Retiring After 32 Years

Tom McDonald Delivers Final Letter Friday

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

"I've had a very, very good life with the Post Office," says Tommy McDonald, "but I think it's time for me to be getting out now."

McDonald, who has delivered mail in Quincy Center for over a decade and has been a Post Office employee since 1948, will make his last deliveries Friday. He is 57.

He's past commander of the George F. Bryan VFW Post and past state VFW commander and says, "I'll be able to volunteer a little more of my time to veterans' services now."

"I hope to find a part-time job, too," he said. "I could never just hang around."

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans will honor McDonald's contributions to veterans' services, youth activities and civic affairs Sunday as their Citizen of the Year.

The Citizen of the Year breakfast begins at 9 a.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue.

A lifelong resident of Quincy and a 1941 graduate of Quincy High, he is married to the former Natalie Haley. They live at 24 Vershire St., North Quincy and have three daughters, all grown.

He spent three years with the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific during World War II and returned home to join the Bryan Post in 1947 and the Post Office the next year.

Looking back on his 32 years delivering mail, McDonald says, "I'm going to miss all of the friends I've made."

"You know, when I was delivering down in Merry-mount, I saw whole families of children grow up, get married and have their own children."

"I'm going to miss just having the opportunity to meet people every day, and talk with them."

And, reflecting on his 12 years making the rounds in Quincy Center, he says, "I'll say this for the business people in the square - they're a very unique group.

"They have all been perfect ladies and gentlemen as far as I'm concerned."

One of the legendary hazards of the trade - dogs - has never been a problem for him, he says.

"In all my years, I've never been bitten by a dog."

"In fact, when I was down in Germantown there was a big German Shepherd - he must have been 150 pounds - that used to follow me around. I think that's why none of the other dogs never used to bother me."

Lots of other memories come to mind, he says:

There was the time he came upon a man in a Quincy Center office being struck by a seizure. McDonald prevented the man from choking, probably saving his life.

And, on the lighter side, there was the time he opened a mailbox and a large angry cat jumped out - apparently placed there by a prankster.

"Needless to say, I went down like a ton of bricks," he laughs. Like almost everything else, the Post Office has changed in the last 32 years.

"When I started," he says, "I made $1.21 an hour - and that was for 60 or 70 hours a week - no overtime."

"Nobody wanted the job then," he adds, "back then, the shipyard was paying $3.25 or $3.50 an hour."

But one thing hasn't changed, he says.

"The people I've met and talked to haven't changed at all," he says. "You still meet nice people all over the city and all over the world."

Spotlight On Prop 2½ Obscures Other Referenda

By TOM HENSHAW

While Question 2, the controversial Proposition 2½ taxcutting measure, basks in the spotlight, there will be five other referenda on the ballot in Quincy next Tuesday.

Question 1 would amend the state constitution to prohibit discrimination against any handicapped person who is otherwise qualified to take part in a program or activity.

Proponents say:

"A constitutional protection against unequal treatment will enable handicapped people to contribute more fully to public life and to achieve greater social and economical independence to the benefit of all."

Opponents say:

Supporters "may have grossly underestimated the potential consequences of this very broad constitutional guarantee of access to all programs by persons of all handicaps as though they were not handicapped."

"The words contained in this amendment seem to constitutionally require that all custodians of premises, programs and activities, whether public or private, provide access, at whatever the cost, to handicapped persons of every kind."

Question 3 would limit local property taxes in 1981 through 1984 to the amount levied the previous year, plus the percentage increase in personal income of the state's residents. It would also provide for increased state aid to local education.

This question was placed on the ballot by the Massachusetts Teachers Association as an alternative to Question 2, or Proposition 2½.

Proponents say:

This tax limitation program would provide for significant reductions in property taxes and place a lid on state and local spending while encouraging further tax relief by increasing the state's share of school costs from 30 to 50 per cent.

Opponents say:

Taxes in only 35 of the state's 351 communities were high enough this year to be subject to the limit and state taxes last year went up by only 7.6 per cent while the income of the state's residents rose by 11.5 per cent.

Also, raising state aid to local education to 50 per cent would mean a 25 per cent increase in state income taxes or a 66 per cent hike in the sales tax.

Question 4 would give voter approval to salary increase for state legislators and constitutional officers that the legislators themselves voted for. The raises would range from $1,853 to $17,923.

Proponents say:

"Most Massachusetts elected officials are underpaid. Citizens demand better representation but are unwilling to support compensation commensurate with other states. To attract talented, intelligent, dedicated people to state service, we must compensate them adequately."

Opponents say:

"In the late hours of Halloween night, 1979, without warning, debate, or timely hearings, the legislature approved pay raises for themselves and constitutional officers far in excess of Presidential wage guidelines. These lopsided pay raises, voted on in secret, should be repealed."

Question 5 would amend the state constitution to limit the power of the legislature to impose certain costs on cities and towns by regulating compensation, hours, status, conditions or benefits of municipal employees.

Proponents say:

"This amendment will increase local control over city and town budgets by limiting the power of the legislature to impose state mandates. Such mandates, historically, have raised local property taxes."

Opponents say:

"The policy recommended by the amendment would more properly be debated as a change in the general laws. Altering the constitution should not be lightly undertaken or caught in the changing tides of public opinion."

ion."

Question 6 would amend the state constitution to allow the legislature to declare a measure to be an emergency law by a voice vote instead of a recorded vote as now required.

Proponents say:

"Standing votes waste time and the records do not accurately reflect the true actions of the Senate and the House. Simple voice votes are enough on most measures. No members will lose any right to challenge any emergency declaration."

Opponents say:

"By eliminating present requirements for recorded votes this proposal makes it easier for a few legislators to create bills into 'emergency laws.' Let's not erode our right to know what legislators are doing."

Ground Broken For Chinese Restaurant

"Oct. 27 is a meaningful day on the Chinese calendar," said David Chu. "It is an omen of good fortune, good luck and success."

Which is one of the reasons Chu chose that day to break ground on his newest restaurant, the Cathay Pacific, at the intersection of Hancock St. and Newport Ave. Extension, North Quincy.

The Chu family, whose grandfather came to America 40 years ago, also owns or part-owns the Canton House in Stoughton, the Oriental Pearly in Fall River and the Cathay Center in North Weymouth.

The Cathay Pacific, which is expected to open in the early summer of 1981, will be the largest of the four, seating 200 people in the dining room, 100 in the lounge and 100 in the function room.

There will be parking spaces for 110 cars, more than double the number required by the zoning laws.

"The north entrance to the city has for many years been neglected and this new building will improve and enhance the city's first impression from the north," said architect John Donahue.

The building will be of New England stone masonry with sweeping roofs and large overhangs. Landscaping will feature extensive use of trees and shrubs to partially screen the parking areas from view.

Inside, it will have multi-level ceilings, indirect lighting and Chinese decorations imported from Taiwan with space dividers to create an intimate dining experience.

Chu said the restaurant will employ a large number of local people.

Those who attended the groundbreaking were treated to 400 egg rolls, 100 quarts of fried rice, 125 pounds of spare ribs, 150 pounds of steak Hawaiian style, 6,000 ounces of tea and 950 fortune cookies.

Douglas G. Brown Awarded $10,000 Colorado Scholarship

Douglas G. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Brown of Squantum, has been awarded a $10,000 full scholarship to the Colorado School of Mines where he will pursue a master's degree.

Grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Granville C. Olson of Squantum, Brown was also granted a research assistantship at the college in the field of geology and chemistry.

Brown was recently graduated cum laude from Bridgewater State College with a B.S. degree in geochemistry. He minored in biology.

He was awarded the Dr. William Vinal Award in the field of zoology and was also chosen one of the "Outstanding Young Men of America 1980."

This past summer, Brown researched the oil shales of Utah and Colorado with a grant sponsored by the U.S. Department

Van For Elderly From State

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center has been awarded a $16,500 air-conditioned van for the elderly by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Transportation and Construction.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey said it is scheduled to be delivered sometime in January.

"I am happy to hear that this hard-working neighborhood center has been awarded this van," Morrissey said.

"It is a credit to their organization and will certainly further their work with the elderly of the Atlantic area."

Proposition 2½: Tax Panacea Or Disaster?

By TOM HENSHAW

If you listen to proponents, Proposition 2½ is all that stands between Massachusetts property taxpayers and a fiscal fate worse than death.

If you listen to opponents, it will destroy every government service that residents of the Bay State's cities and towns have come to hold dear.

There is no middle ground. At the same time, most opponents agree that something has to be done about the skyrocketing tax burden on homeowners, even though Proposition 2½ may not be the thing.

And most proponents agree that their proposition has certain flaws which could be corrected by the State Legislature, even though they are reluctant to trust it with the job.

That's the dilemma that will confront Quincy voters Tuesday when they come to Question 2 on the ballot, a controversial proposal that has generated more heat than light in recent months.

Proposition 2½, sponsored by Citizens for Limited Taxation, would limit the municipal property tax levy to 2.5 per cent of the value of all the property in the community.

In the case of Quincy, where the full and fair value of all the property, based on the state's equalization formula, is $1,147,000,000, the tax levy would be limited to $28,675,000.

The tax levy for fiscal 1980 was $62,289,355, which means that $33,614,355 would be lost.

But, under Prop 2½, the new tax cap would be phased in at a rate of 15 per cent per year until the 2.5 per cent is achieved, which in Quincy's case would be about five years.

Thus the first year's loss to the city treasury on the tax levy would be $9,343,403.

Prop 2½ also trims the auto excise tax from $66 to $25 per $1,000 of adjusted market value of the vehicle.

The loss to Quincy in excise taxes for the year is estimated by Chief Assessor John P. Comer at $2.2 million, which, added to the $9.3 million, would reduce the city's tax levy by $11,543,403 the first year.

Quincy's loss in revenue (56 per cent) would make it the fourth hardest hit community behind Boston and Chelsea (72 per cent each) and Lynn (62 per cent).

But that's not all. Prop 2½ is a veritable catchall of proposals aimed at attracting the vote of anyone who ever had a gripe with the Commonwealth's collection and expenditure of money.

In addition to the 2.5 per cent tax cap and the slash in auto excise taxes, Prop 2½ would:

- Permit renters, who indirectly pay property taxes through their rents, to deduct 50 per cent of their yearly rental payments from their state income taxes.

- Abolish fiscal autonomy for school committees by placing the school budget under the control of the city council, like the budget of any other department in the city government.

- Repeal the compulsory binding arbitration law under which many labor disputes involving police and fire departments are settled and leave settlement of the disputes to negotiations.

- Limit the practice of the state legislature mandating new local programs by forcing the state to fund them or giving the city council the option of accepting or rejecting them.

- Limit the fees charged by the city government for services to an amount not exceeding the cost of the services to prevent the city from raising additional money through such fees.

- Limit the assessment of charges to the city by such government entities as the MBTA and the county to no more than 4 per cent increases over the previous year's charges.

Now, what is the poor voter to make out of all that?

The University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extension Service, in a comprehensive fact book on Proposition 2½, puts it succinctly:

"Proposition 2½ would bring with it costs and benefits.

"The benefits would accrue to the homeowner and landlord primarily in the form of reduced tax bills and to the renter in the form of a state income tax deduction.

"The costs would come in the form of the possible cuts in services that may take place to accommodate the decreasing tax levy.

"You must consider what services may be cut, how much they may be cut, and how important they are to your community."

What services would be cut? That would depend on the city official doing the cutting, since Proposition 2½ limits the tax levy, not individual department budgets.

"We would eliminate all those areas of city government that are not really mandated to run the city," says Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "Then we would get into the larger areas and trim them, too, starting with the things that would be the least disruptive."

Opponents of Proposition 2½, led by the League of Women Voters and the Massachusetts Teachers Association, see the results as nothing less than disaster for city services.

They warn that passage will lead to destruction of quality public services and massive layoffs of public employees, including police officers and firefighters to the detriment of public safety.

To which backers of the proposition reply:

"Nearly everyone agrees that there is a great deal of waste in government. By imposing a limit on taxation, we are forcing local government to order priorities and live within its means --- and ours.

"Cuts should not come in the areas of police and fire protection."

But, retort opponents, there is no guarantee that trimming waste and patronage will be a priority of local government.

And Proposition 2½ would have no effect whatsoever on the state's power to tax and spend nor would it place any controls on the state government, a frequent target of would-be waste-cutters.

Opponents of the proposition claim that about two-thirds of the tax breaks would go to big business at the expense of the homeowner. Proponents say it wouldn't.

The Legislative Research Bureau was unable to confirm either claim, however, "because of difficulties with the statistical difficulties with the statistical data on which such claims are based."

Proponents of 2½, many of whom agree that the measure would leave the cities without enough money to run themselves, look to state aid to make up for the losses.

But, argue opponents, the state has never been generous with local aid before; how can you expect it to start now?

If Proposition 2½ passes, most of its provisions would go into effect 90 days later, just like any other law that is enacted by the legislature and signed by the governor.

And the state legislature can amend it --- or even repeal it --- just like any other state law.

In fact, there are indications that a number of voters who are opposed to the philosophical aspects of Proposition 2½ may wind up supporting it just to stir the legislature into action.

They anticipate, said the LRB, that passage "will precipitate a fiscal crisis which will shatter the longstanding, entrenched resistance inside and outside the legislature to overall tax reform and certainly to property tax reform."

Is the risk too great? That's up to the voters to decide Tuesday.

Superette Owner Told To Solve Traffic Problem

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The owner of Phil's Superette, 808 Willard St., West Quincy, was instructed at Tuesday's License Board meeting to speak to operators of trucks and cars that are blocking the roadway while patronizing his store.

The traffic problem was brought to the board's attention by the Traffic Commission which said in a letter that the parking of heavy commercial vehicles in the area is "impairing visibility and causing heavy damage."

Owner Charles F. McDonald told the board the problem is the worst between 7-8:30 a.m. and that he has tried speaking to operators of the vehicles. He said there are no parking signs around his store and that he has a parking area for 21 to 23 cars. McDonald indicated trucks were pulling up on the street because they couldn't fit inside the parking lot.

Councillor James Sheets sympathized with McDonald saying he realizes when he (McDonald) was busy he couldn't be out directing traffic. He added, however, that the situation was intolerable.

City Clerk John Gillis told McDonald to ask the truck drivers to park under a nearby bridge rather than around the store.

Police Chief Francis Finn added he would try to send an officer to the area during the busing periods to tag illegally parked vehicles.

License Board Briefs

- Granted James J. Ricciuti, Quincy Public Works Commissioner, a permit to store 11,000 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars at the new garage to be constructed at 212-240 Burgin Parkway.

- Granted a one day all-day alcoholic license to the Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, for a social Saturday, Nov. 8, 7:30 p.m. to midnight in the school hall.

- Approved the change of name of the operator of Parkway Mobile, 1267 Furnace Brook Parkway, West Quincy, from Halim Awde to Awde Corporation.

- Granted the Boston Harbor Marina Antique Craft and Flea Show permission to open Friday, Nov. 7, 6 to 10 p.m.

- Referred a consumer matter concerning Helene Finnich of Weymouth and Karl's Auto Body, North Quincy, to the courts.

- Indicated preliminary

Flu Vaccine Available Friday

Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh has announced that 1,000 doses of flu vaccine have been obtained and will be administered Friday beginning at 9 a.m. at the Kennedy Health Center, Quincy Center.

Dr. McKeogh said 500 doses were obtained from the state, and 500 were purchased.

He said the vaccine will be given until the supply runs out or first 5:30 p.m. which ever comes first.

Weight Control at City Hospital

A weight control program begins at Quincy City Hospital Thursday, Nov. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The six-week course is taught by Gail Lombardi, registered nutritionist.

The program is a combination of behavior modification techniques, group support, and educational direction with the goal of permanent weight loss.

Individualized diets will be designed for each participant.

Class size is limited. For more information and registration, contact John Felci at 773-6100, ext. 308.

Youth Appreciation Week Nov. 9-15

The week of Nov. 9-15 will be Youth Appreciation Week in Quincy by proclamation of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"The vast majority of the youth in this city are concerned, knowledgeable and responsible citizens and their accomplishments and achievements deserve recognition," said the mayor.

"Too often we hear only of the negative actions of youth and overlook the good."

"I am pleased to take this opportunity to acknowledge the positive contributions youth make toward a better society and encourage a continued partnership between youth and their government."

"A Code of Ethics isn't something you just put on the bulletin board, it's something you live every day."

Suddenly everybody seems to be rediscovering ethics.

Bob Cerasoli set the recent trend in motion.

When Bob entered the Legislature in 1975, he requested an assignment to the Joint Committee on Election Laws. In order to stop campaign fraud and corruption in Massachusetts he immediately set to work rewriting Chapter 55 of the General Laws which now provides for full disclosure of campaign contributions and expenditures.

RESULTS!!

Today, Massachusetts has one of the toughest Campaigns Finance Reporting Laws in the country and Bob Cerasoli has since become the Vice Chairman of that Committee on Election Laws.

In 1979, at the age of thirty-one, Bob Cerasoli was the youngest Chairman ever appointed to the House Ethics Committee.

RESULTS!!

If you have been reading the newspapers during the last two years, then you know Bob Cerasoli has played a major role in working to eliminate graft and corruption in Massachusetts' politics.

At a time when people have become frustrated with the political system and its leaders, others were just talking about tough Ethics Laws. Bob co-authored and co-sponsored with Common Cause/Massachusetts one of the strongest State Ethics Laws ever enacted in the United States.

RESULTS!!

Today, Massachusetts has its first State Ethics Commission, a strong Conflict of Interest Law and mandatory Financial Disclosure. All a direct result of Bob Cerasoli's legislation.

Times may change, names may change, faces may change, but the battles don't change. The cost of fighting for what's right has gotten high, but not half as high as the price of not fighting.

Presidential Handwriting To Be Analyzed In Wollaston

John Swanson, master graphoanalyst, will analyze the handwriting of the three presidential candidates tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Methodist Church, Beale St.

The meeting is co-sponsored by the Quincy Women's Republican Club and the Republican City Committee.

Swanson, who has lectured on radio and television and conducted courses in his specialty, will include in his presentation a disclosure of secrets that handwriting reveals and how to analyze your own.

A social hour will follow Swanson appearance, during which members and their guests will have a chance to discuss the presidential campaign and politics in general.

All Republicans are welcome to bring a friend.

Raiders' Defense Paves Way For Upset

By TOM SULLIVAN

Defense has been the strong point this season for the North Quincy football team and it was never better than it was last Saturday in the monsoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The superlative defense and one big play, called by Coach Dave Burke midway in the final period, enabled the Raiders to upset Waltham, 6-0, and take a three-game winning streak and a 4-1-1 record into Sunday's 2 p.m. game against Brookline at Northeastern University's Parsons Field. The game was moved to Sunday because Northeastern has a game Saturday.

Brookline has its best team in several years and should give North Quincy all it can handle. It has wins over Weymouth South, Weymouth North and Cambridge Rindge and Latin, while bowing to Waltham and Brockton.

North's big win moved it into second place in the Suburban League.

"It was a tough day to play," Burke said in an understatement. "But thank God we won. The defense was just superb today."

"Give our defensive coaches, Kenny McPhee and Jack Raymer, a lot of credit, they have done a tremendous job this year."

"Offensively, we did all right considering the atrocious conditions. Dean Zoia really ran well, just as he has all season. He isn't too big (5-foot-6, 160 pounds), but he is awfully hard to stop. He gave us some really big plays today (71 yards gained) and he has been truly outstanding all year long. Steve McEachern and Joe Dudek also ran well and gave us some key first downs and our quarterback, Jack Brown, handled the wet ball well and also got off a couple of good runs. Jamie Walsh gave us another fine two-way performance."

NORTH'S SEASON'S SCORING

| | TD | PAT | FG | Pts. |
|-----------|----|-----|----|------|
| Zoia | 5 | 0 | 0 | 30 |
| Leone | 2 | 6 | 1 | 21 |
| McEachern | 3 | 0 | 0 | 18 |
| Walsh | 2 | 0 | 0 | 12 |
| Dudek | 1 | 2 | 0 | 8 |
| Brown | 1 | 2 | 0 | 8 |
| Donaghey | 1 | 0 | 0 | 6 |
| Howley | 0 | 3 | 0 | 3 |

"What can I say?" asked an ecstatic McPhee. "Twice Waltham had a first down inside our four and couldn't score. This was our third straight shutout and our fourth in five games. Everyone was just super."

Bob McCormack and Ken Mann were given game balls for their defensive performances and McPhee also praised Glen Segalla, who came up with a big play to stop a screen pass inside the 10 in the final seconds.

Also singled out were Mann, who intercepted a pass in the end zone with less than 30 seconds left, recovered a Waltham fumble and made some other big plays. Gino Pillard, who recovered a fumble in the end zone to prevent a Waltham touchdown; Chris Baker, Chuck Sylva, Jim McInnis, who has played well all season; Pete McDonough, who had a fumble recovery; Bill Feeney, Paul Schaeztl and Walsh, who covered well on passes.

"We did a good job of containing (Steve) El-Masry (he did gain 82 of Waltham's 109 yards)," McPhee said. His brother, John, another outstanding runner (he and Steve combined for 244 yards against Quincy), was sidelined with an injury and Mike Oliveri replaced him. The North secondary again was outstanding.

George Liset, offensive line coach, was pleased with the performances of the lineman and had special praise for Segalla, Bob Bolster, Jack Leone, Lou DePietro ("a super game"), Feeney, McDonough, John Buckley, Sylva, Ted Hannon and Jim Sullivan.

North's fine punter, Brian O'Leary was out with a concussion and Rich McCarthy, punting in competition for the first time, kicked well with the heavy ball.

Waltham had the first big scoring chance, recovering a fumble on North's 16 midway in the first period. The Hawks moved to a first down on the three and apparently had a touchdown but Pillard recovered a fumble in the end zone.

North got a big break with 30 seconds left in the half when the officials ruled that the Waltham punter's knee touched the ground on a low pass from center and North had the ball on Waltham's seven. Burke planned a couple of running plays and then Leone would try a field goal. But the plan backfired when North fumbled on the first play.

Baker came up with a big pass interception on the second play of the final period halting a Waltham drive.

A few plays later Burke called the big play. Brown passed to Segalla, who lateraled back to Walsh and he raced all the way to the Waltham 11, the play covering 45 yards.

"We hadn't practiced the play very much but I thought this would be a good spot to try it," Burke said.

McEachern picked up two yards, Zoia ran for eight for a first down on the one and one the next play he scored.

On the try for the extra point, Feeney's pass back to Brown, holding for Leone, bounced along the ground, so Leone didn't get a chance. "The ball felt like it weighed a ton," said Feeney, who played another fine two-way game.

fumble on North's 49 several plays later.

With time running out, North was assessed with two successive holding penalties and the Raiders had fourth down and 48 yards to go, deep in their own territory.

Thinks looked gloomy for North when McCarthy was unable to handle a low pass from center, giving Waltham the ball on North's four with 1:10 left in the game.

But the Raiders' defense rose up and the first play lost six yards. A screen pass was stopped, thanks to Segalla, a pass was incomplete and, a fourth down pass was intercepted in the end zone by Mann, who ran it out to the seven and North ran out the clock.

North had 117 yards on the ground and Waltham had 109. Brown threw only two passes, his other being intercepted, while Waltham had only 10 yards through the air on two for five and two passes were intercepted. The Raiders had nine first downs to six for Waltham.

QJC Opens Nov. 12 At Boston Garden

The Quincy Junior College basketball team will open its regular season on Wednesday, Nov. 12, at Boston Garden.

Coach Brian Buckley's Jaguars will meet Emerson College at 5 p.m. in a preliminary to the Celtics-Washington Bullets game.

Tickets for the doubleheader are available from the QJC student government of the basketball players.

QJC will face Massachusetts College of Pharmacy this Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Greater Boston Small College Conference jamboree at Hellenic College.

The Jaguars, who finished 17-5 last year, will open their home season at Quincy Vo-Tech gym on Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 7 p.m. against Daniel Webster.

"We should be fairly competitive," said second-year coach Buckley. "We will be led by returning starters Jim Holleran at guard and forward Ed Richard."

Also returning from last year's conference playoff team are guards Steve Jaehning and Ed Hanratty, who will see plenty of action.

Richard, who had to play center last year, will be playing forward exclusively this year thanks to the addition of 6-8 Gene Casper, a center from Marshfield. "I like to call him 'Gene the Dream' because every coach dreams of having the big guy in the middle," said Buckley.

Also looking good in practice are another rebounder, 6-4 Brian Raymond of Weymouth, and a 6-1 swingman, Jeff Marcel of Quincy.

Another pleasant surprise has been freshman guard Andrew "Drew" Scheele of Quincy. "Drew is going to help us a great deal," said the Jaguars' coach. "He is quick, aggressive on defense and he can handle the ball."

Rounding out the squad are Paul Mizzetti, Dennis Djerf, Steve Pastor, Mark Linane, Paul Ellsmore, and Jim O'Leary.

QJC plays all home games at the Vo-Tech gym and admission to the game is free.

Girls X-Country

North Girls Defeat Milton

The North Quincy girls' cross country team shut out Milton, 15-40, last week to improve its record to 7-2-1.

Mary Crehan was the winner in 16:23, followed by teammates Sheila Barrett, Robyn O'Donnell, Deirdre Donovan and Deirdre Corrigan. North's Amanda Mujica finished 10th.

The North boys continued to find the going rough and lost to Milton, 24-33, to drop their record to 2-7.

Gary Morin once again was the Raider's first finisher in fourth place and Rich O'Brien again was next in fifth place. North's Paul Dindy was eighth, Bob Morin ninth and Araf Scababaddiu 10th.

The North boys earlier had bowed to Brookline, 15-55, with Morin placing sixth and O'Brien seventh.

The North teams will face Quincy next Tuesday and both teams will run in the state meet Nov. 8 at Franklin Park and in the Surburban League meet Nov. 11 at Blue Hills Regional.

Giordani Brothers Shine At New Haven

Mark and Jeff Giordani, former Quincy High standouts, are having another banner season for the University of New Haven football team, which last week improved its record to 4-2-1 with a 32-0 romp over Curry.

Last year the Quincy brothers had great success as Mark was one of the team's top scorers and ground gainers and Jeff led the club in punt and kickoff returns.

This fall Mark is again one of the top ground gainers and two weeks ago in a 23-17 win over Nichols, he rushed for a school record 146 yards on 19 carries and had three runs of 20 yards or longer and six over 10 yards. He also scored the winning touchdown. Giordani's yardage total broke the record of 143 set in New Haven's opener against Framingham State by Tony Major.

Giordani has scored four touchdowns, two on rushes and two on passes and going into the Curry game he had gained 234 yards.

Jeff again is leading the team in kickoff returns and is among the leaders in punt returns.

A newcomer, freshman Leo Graham, former North Quincy star, is having an excellent season as a defensive back.

Saturday Morning Gym Programs Resume Nov. 8

Saturday morning gym programs for elementary, junior high and senior high boys will resume Nov. 8 at 11 schools, announces Charles Alongi, city recreation director.

The programs offer basketball, hockey, bombardment and other games. Programs will be held at the Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Broad Meadows, Central, Merrymount, Montclair, Quincy Point, Snug Harbor, Sterling, Wollaston and Atlantic schools.

The weekly schedule at all 11 schools is: elementary school boys, 8 to 9:30 a.m.; junior high boys, 9:30 to 11 a.m. and senior high boys, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Here's the story of one of the most unusual games ever played in the National Football League...

The Cleveland Browns of 1950 were ridiculed by some NFL teams for passing too much, so Cleveland coach Paul Brown decided to show the world he could win without passing at all... In a game on Dec. 3, 1950 against Philadelphia, with first place at stake, the Browns played the whole game without ever throwing a pass -- and they won 13-7... There's never been an NFL game since then when a team went through an entire game without throwing a pass.

How many points can a team score and still lose a football game? ... Davidson College scored 55 points against Furman on Nov. 3, 1979 but lost the game 63-55 -- and that's the record for most points ever scored by a losing team in college football history.

What was the LONGEST game ever played in the history of college or pro football? ... It happened Christmas Day, 1971, in a National Football League playoff game between Miami and Kansas City... Before the tie score was broken and Miami won, the game went midway into the SIXTH QUARTER, to set the all-time record.

There was competition in all age classes and belt ranks with teams from Massachusetts, Maine and Rhode Island competing for AAU awards.

Budo's instructors, Marcus Darr and Bob Barra, were pleased with the success of the Quincy club and particularly with the performance of Marianne Derbyshire, who not only won the junior girls' division, but took first in the senior women/light category.

First place awards also went to Quincy residents Judy Mays, senior women/heavy; Tom McNaught; senior men's white/heavy; and Chris Coughlin, 93-102 pound. Also, Kingston's Sean McNeil won the 57-68 pound class.

Other members of the Quincy team receiving awards were Erin McNaught, second girls; Keith McNaught, second, 40-49; Sean Derbyshire, second, 57-68; Jim Costello and Jackie McNeil, second and third, 85-92; and Billy McNeil, second, (93-102).

Presidents Ready For Weymouth North

Maybe Quincy's football team should play all its games at night.

In their first five games this season the Presidents scored only 34 points in compiling a 1-3-1 record.

Last Friday they played their first night game at New Bedford and nearly equalled their scoring total of the first five games by handing the Whalers a 27-14 defeat.

Saturday Quincy hopes to make it two in a row when it hosts Weymouth North in a 2 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The starting has been moved up to 2 because of college entrance exams in the morning. Weymouth has only a 1-5 record this fall.

"We put everything together at New Bedford and the boys did a fine job both ways," Coach Tom Fitzgerald said. "I wasn't sure just how we would react in our first night game. New Bedford really started most of its games under the lights but we finally came out at the start and took charge and gained a lot of confidence.

"I was pleased with the large crowd of Quincy fans at the game.

QUINCY SEASON'S SCORING

| Abboud | 3 | 0 | 18 |
| Pettinelli | 2 | 5 | 17 |
| Iodice | 2 | 0 | 12 |

| Spencer | 0 | 1 | 1 |

We had more at New Bedford than we have at most of our home games. I think playing at night would be the answer to our attendance problems. There was no trouble at New Bedford and other teams in that area also play at night."

The victory could prove costly to the Presidents as they lost starting quarterback Ron Pettinelli with a fractured wrist. He will be lost for an indefinite period and Fitzgerald will now have to find someone to back up Sean Martin, who will take over at quarterback.

"Our offense clicked well (239 yards on the ground and 50 passing) with Mike Abboud (118 yards and two touchdowns), Ed Iodice and Paul Flynn running well and Pettinelli and Martin doing well at quarterback," Fitzgerald said. "And the offensive line was tremendous."

Capt. Fran Duggan, Chris Chevalier, John Varrasso, Scott Anson, Sean Burke, John Taglieri and Ed Mackey stood out on offense. Mackey, who hadn't practiced all week turned in his usual brilliant two-way performance.

Among those who stood out on defense were Mike Nevins, Anson, Chevalier, Mackey, Steve Remillard, Walt Kilgallon, Ken Gustin, Steve Goguen and sophomore Jamie Gravelese.

Quincy's secondary was again outstanding and had two more pass interceptions.

Quincy took the lead less than a minute into the game after recovering a fumble on the New Bedford 23. Pettinelli scored from the one.

Iodice sparked a 62-yard scoring drive in the second period with a 33-yard run to the three. Two plays later Flynn scored from the one and Pettinelli rushed for the two points.

The presidents increased their lead to 21-0 in the third period when they drove 65 yards in six plays and Abboud raced 34 yards for the touchdown. Steve Spencer kicked the extra point.

New Bedford turned a break into its first touchdown early in the final period. Pinned deep back in their own territory, the Whalers fumbled and Quincy's Taglieri apparently recovered in the end zone, but a quick whistle enabled NB to retain possession and on the next play Gary Benoit galloped 97 yards for a touchdown.

Quincy made it 27-6 when Martin, replacing the injured Pettinelli, ran twice for 26 yards and Abboud finished off the Presidents' scoring from the one.

New Bedford added a touchdown with 16 seconds left and the Quincy subs playing, driving 55 yards with Benoit scoring from the one.

Quincy had 239 yards on the ground to 110 for New Bedford, picked up 56 yards on passes while the Whalers had 98 yards through the air. Quincy had 13 first downs to nine for New Bedford.

North Loses 2 More Close Games

The North Quincy boys' soccer team continued its frustrating habit of losing close games last week when it dropped a 3-2 decision to Brockton and a 4-3 verdict to Weymouth North.

North had a strong game against Brockton's perennial Suburban League powerhouse, with the exception of the first 10 minutes when Brockton popped in two quick goals, both by the Boxers' outstanding wing, Jack Xavier. North refused to buckle under the pressure and sophomore Mike Bourikas drilled a 35-yard shot over the Brockton goalie with sophomore Peter McGillicuddy assisting.

Down, 2-1, at the half, the Raiders outplayed Brockton but could not get the tying goal. With three minutes left Brockton scored the game winner but again North roared back and, with 15 seconds left, a strong cross by McGillicuddy to Steve Cahill resulted in a goal by Steve Sacchetti, as Cahill got the assist. Earlier North had missed great opportunities to score by Lester Gerry and Bourikas.

North played well again later in the week against Weymouth North, which has only two defeats.

The Raiders had early chances to score as Paul Donovan sent a beautiful cross to McGillicuddy, who missed connections. North's outstanding goalie, Pat Mallory, was making several diving saves to keep Weymouth off the board.

The Raiders took a 1-0 lead in the second quarter as Danny Marsters, starting his first game at halfback since being called up from the junior varsity, scored on a perfect left-footed shot from 10 yards out. Chris Dunn had crossed the ball to Steve Dodd, who got the ball to Marsters. The Maroons came back, however, to tie the score just before halftime.

Weymouth took a 2-1 lead in the third quarter but North came back with Rich Palma driving a 30-yard low, hard shot that the Weymouth goalie couldn't control and Mike Bourikas took the rebound and scored his fifth goal in five games.

Weymouth struck twice in the final quarter and North came back to score with three minutes left as DiCarli scored his first goal of the year on a 45-yard kick.

North finishes its season today (Thursday) with a game at Waltham at 3 o'clock. (C)

Central Downs North, Sterling

By PETE ZOIA

Central's ninth grade football team defeated North, 26-12, and Sterling, 20-14, last week to improve its Junior High League-leading record to 6-1.

The North game saw Central march 48 yards to a score in the second quarter. The accurate arm of Nunzio Carbone prevailed as he connected on passes of 24, 11, and 12 yards, the 12 yarder being a touchdown pass to Vic DiGravio standing in the end zone.

After an exchange of downs, Carbone fed the ball to Bill Fahey, who ran for 12 and seven yards to the North six, and then Carbone threw to Mark Valpando for a TD. Jack Bolster pulled in the conversion pass from Carbone to make it Central, 14-0.

North responded with a score as John Comeau teamed up with Jim Kennedy for a successful 23 yard reception, and as the half ended, Central led, 14-6.

Penalties ruined the North chances in the third frame. Signal caller Comeau passed to Joe Callahan for nine, and to Brian Ellis for 22 more, only to have penalties stop the drive on the Central 27.

Midway into the fourth quarter, Valpando intercepted a North pass and ran it back 48 yards for a touchdown. Another North errant pass was returned for a 38-yard score shortly after by Fahey. Both conversion tries were stopped by North.

North didn't quit as it paraded 58 yards to a score, Comeau firing to Nick Gelsomini from the Central 23.

Although winless, the North team has improved week to week and could surprise some team and be a spoiler.

Central took Sterling in tow, scoring all of its 20 points in the second quarter. Carbone paired up with Bolster for two touchdowns via the air, one for 10 yards, the other for 21. Fahey concluded with a 31 yard

TD run. Paul Ryan took a hand off for the two points.

Sterling scored one touchdown in each of the last two periods on a dive from the three-yard line and a 21-yard run.

Broad Meadows got its third win against one loss, defeating Point, 28-22. Point jumped out to a two-touchdown lead in the first quarter due to a poor kick and a fumbled BM kickoff. Kevin Cabezas passed to Dan Curtin for 21 yards for the first score. A Cabezas to Gerry Britt toss netted the two points. Again in the first quarter, Cabezas hit Curtin for a 19-yard pass to the three and then Cabezas teamed with Britt for a three-yard throw for the second TD.

Broad Meadows struck back with two scores in the second period. After an interception on the Point 45, Tony Cascarano passed to Bill Gardiner for 12 yards, another to Mike Notarangelo to the 13, Notarangelo carried to the five and then took it in from there. Gardiner bucked over for the two points.

A flea-flicker pass play saw Notarangelo completing a 43-yard play for the score.

Broad Meadows forged into the lead in the third quarter when Greg Keefe smashed over from one yard out. Cascarano found Ed Boyle in the end zone for the two points to make it BM 22-14.

Cascarano recovered a Point bobble on his 38 and BM was on the TD route again. Notarangelo picked up 19 yards, and then Cascarano crossed up the Pointers by lateralizing across to his far right to Keefe, who proceeded to throw a perfect strike deep to Boyle for a well executed 34-yard score.

The Larry Keough-coached Point Green Machine retaliated with the concluding score of the game. An interference call against Broad Meadows put the ball on its five from where Cabezas bulled over on two smashes. Britt added the final two points as the game ended.

The Atlantic eighth grade team remained undefeated, blanking Central, 20-0. At the start of the second period Atlantic recovered a Central fumble on the Central 16. Quarterback Dave Zuroms quickly took charge and zipped a 28-yard pass to Larry Nialez for the winners' first touchdown. Mike Sullivan made it 8-0 by running in for two more.

The second score stemmed from Atlantic holding Central on downs on its 18. Joe Bangs carried to the six, but Central threw them back to the 15 as the third quarter ended.

Halfback Steve Kelly displayed some of the best running of the season, repeatedly twisting and turning his way to the Central 15 at the start of the final quarter. Zuroms then passed to Bangs for another Atlantic score.

The final touchdown was set up by Bangs intercepting a heave on Central's 37, whereupon Zuroms passed to Kelly for a 15-yard gain to the 22. Zuroms then went back to pass, found his receivers covered and took off on a beautiful piece of broken field running, not stopping until he reached the end zone.

The hard running of Kelly, Bangs and Zuroms along with a strong passing game was the primary factor in this win. The entire defensive unit was outstanding throughout the afternoon.

The Sterling-Central eighth grade game was won by Sterling, 16-0. Mike Drachio ran it in from the 15 and Gerry Frazier scored the other TD on a three-yarder. The two points were added by Darryl Tucker. The hard charging Sterling linemen trapped a Central back in the end zone for a safety.

IF ATTACKED BY A DOG

If you're confronted by a snarling dog and can't bluff him out of attacking (see last week's column), here's some armchair advice by experts.

Prepare for the attack. Cross your arms, gripping your elbows firmly. When the animal leaps, try to knock it off balance by giving it an upercut with your arms. Since its legs are off the ground, making its balance precarious, it usually can be thrown (hopefully).

But if the animal's lunging attack bowls you over, stop fighting. Fold your arms over your face and lie perfectly still. Amazingly, your savage attacker will probably lose interest and good words for his entire line, which was outstanding.

The Manets and Panthers battled to a 6-6 tie, with the Manets scoring first on a 60-yard pass play from Bob Carty to Bill Canneren.

Chris Shaughnessy scored from the three to tie it for the Panthers.

The Panthers' coaches praised Joe Newman, Richie Pettinelli, Kevin Cameron and Dave Britt for their performances, while Carty, Canneren, Mark Cohen, Bill Burkhead, Chris Doyle and John Palmer were outstanding for the Manets.

N.Q. Kickers Soccer League

Quincy Edges Parker 1-0, Blanks Beechwood, 3-0

Quincy School edged Parker, 1-0, in a battle of the unbeaten in the North Quincy Kickers Soccer League.

Nick Cangemi slipped one past parker goalkeeper Teddy Stevenson with just seven minutes left in the game to move Quincy into first place. Parker missed several excellent scoring chances in the final minutes as shots by Brian Durgin, John Mooney and Mark Gilooly just missed. Warren Palmer, Quincy's goalie, was outstanding as was Tommy Iagen. For Parker Tommy Burke and Paul Simmone played well.

Quincy also defeated Beechwood Knoll, 3-0, on goals by Danny Hobin, Mike Benson and Cangemi. Palmer, who has allowed only three goals, again got the shutout. Mike Kevin Caldwell and Bobby Callahan played well for Beechwood.

Parker bounced back to edge Furnace Brook, 3-2, as Brian Durgin scored an unassisted goal early. Brian Keenan scored on a penalty shot and Durgin scored the game winner with Paul Hannon assisting. Also playing well for Parker were Eddie Walty and Henry Seto. Furnace Brook almost tied it but its comeback attempt just fell short. Paul Sullivan scored unassisted and Jimmy Kilcommons scored with Billy Palmer assisting. Matt Wilson played well on defense for Furnace Brook.

Mass. Fields moved into third place by tying Montclair, 1-1. Mass Fields' Tommy Reilly scored on a penalty shot and, with 40 seconds left in the game, Bobby O'Donnell scored for Montclair. Chris Higgins and John Rodophele played well for Montclair and Robert Hubbard, Brian Callow and Billy Moriarty excelled for Mass. Fields.

Mass. Fields also blasted

Rental Fees Halt YMCA Hoop League

The entire schedule of the Quincy YMCA Church Basketball League has been postponed, due to increased school rental fees, according to Director Jim Rendle.

The league council will meet tonight (Thursday) at the Quincy Y, according to Rendle, to discuss "alternatives and solutions" which might save at least part of the nation's oldest and largest church basketball league.

The School Committee last week decided to keep its new $12 per hour rental fees in effect.

"I'm upset that no one even talked to us to try to work out a compromise," said Rendle, after last week's meeting.

"Seven thousand dollars would have saved the league," he said.

But now, as a result of the School Committee's decision to retain its $12 per hour school rental fees, half of the league's 127 teams and 1,300 youths may not be able to participate this winter, Rendle said.

Last year, youth groups like the YMCA league paid the school system $3 per hour rental fees, all other groups $7 per hour. The increase to a flat $12 fee came after the committee cut custodial overtime "for community purposes" out of the budget.

The $12, paid through a revolving fund, would roughly cover the overtime rate for the additional custodian who is assigned to a school when it is rented to an outside group.

The reasoning behind the higher rate, said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, is that "the Quincy School Committee should not be charged with underwriting non-public school activities when they are for the betterment of the city as a whole."

"It used to be that it didn't make any difference," Creedon said, "but times have changed." "We have no right to be good Samaritans with the taxpayers' money," added member Frank Anselmo.

Voting to retain the new $12 rate were committee members

Anselmo, Mary Collins, Joan Picard and Patricia Toland. Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy and John Sullivan argued unsuccessfully for lower rates for the youth groups.

"This is something that the school system has been doing for a long time and people have come to expect it from us," said Kennedy. "I don't think we can turn our back on this and say, 'It's not our job.'"

But, countered Mrs. Picard, "The last week I've gotten a lot of calls from wives of custodians and wives of teachers asking why we are cutting the fees for church groups when we can't pay what we owe the people who work for us. I don't feel we should be supporting church groups."

Mrs. Collins favored sending the matter to the City Council, either for increased funding for the school system or approval for the Recreation Department to share part of the costs.

"I would like to know if the City Council is as concerned for the youth of our city as we are," she said. "If they are, let them put their money where their mouths are."

The cost per player could vary from team to team, some as high as $50 per player, Rendle said.

"A lot of them just won't be able to afford it," Rendle said. "If you've got two or three kids in the family, that's a lot of money."

Broad Meadows, Montclair Cancelled

... And Force Cutbacks For Koch Club

Increased school rental fees have forced the cancellation of two divisions of the Koch Club basketball program and placed the third in jeopardy, announces Richard J. Koch, executive director.

The Broad Meadows and Montclair divisions have been discontinued, says Koch, although an attempt will be made to retain the 31-year-old North Quincy program.

The School Committee this year raised rental fees for youth groups like the Koch Club from $3 per hour to $12.

Anthony Delmonico, founder and director of the 17-year old Broad Meadows division, noted that the rental fees include paying for a custodian one-half hour before the children enter the gym and an additional half hour after the program is completed.

Delmonico told Koch it would be impossible for his league to absorb the 300 percent rent increase.

Howard Crowley, director of the 11-year-old Montclair Division, said, "the dedicated volunteers of the past 11 years should not be asked to concern themselves with the financial expense of the programs."

Crowley thanked School Committee members Christopher Kennedy and John Sullivan for their support of lower fees for the Koch Club and similar groups.

Last year, according to Koch, the Montclair division included 100 boys, Broad Meadows 100 boys and girls and North Quincy about 125 boys.

Youths who would have participated at Broad Meadows or Montclair this year are invited to take part in the North Quincy program, beginning Nov. 6 at 6 p.m. at the Atlantic Junior High gym, Koch said.

Last year, all participants paid a $1 registration fee and a weekly 25-cent fee, Koch said. The $1 paid for a trophy awarded to each youngster at the end of the season while the 25 cents just covered the rental fees.

"We just about survived on that," Koch said. "We have always tried to keep our fees at a minimum, realizing that often there are two, three, or four children participating from one family."

"We don't want to pass this rent increase along to the families."

Last year, the league paid $285 for 19 five-hour rentals at North Quincy, $153 for 17 three-hour rentals at Montclair and $162 for 18 three-hour rentals at Broad Meadows.

The $12 fee means that, for the same number of dates, the league's total rental costs at the three schools would increase from $600 to $2,400.

That would mean higher rates for the kids, as well as increased fund raising in the community, Koch said.

"The old adage, 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,' seems forgotten," Koch said. "The many community-wide organizations that provide preventative type activities by volunteers at little or no cost are taken for granted."

Executive League

Adams, Washington Win

Sixty area residents attended enjoyed the free program which may be repeated at a later date. From left, are Leslie Stein, guitar; Holly Pope, alto saxophone; Tony Santangelo, tenor saxophone; Francis, tenor saxophone; and Music Makers head Robert Brenner, bass.

Historical Society Gets $11,350 Federal Grant

The Quincy Historical Society has received a grant of $11,350 from the Federal Institute of Museum Services to support the services of its museum in the old Adams Academy building.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly said only one out of every four applicants is selected to receive the grant, which will be used to further education, security, exhibitions, collections and community programs.

"I'm very glad to see the federal government actively helping Quincy to save its rich historical assets and present them to the public," said Donnelly.

"In addition to the historical society museum, the federal government is supporting the Adams National Historic Site and it will soon assure the preservation of the Church of the Presidents."

Koch Club Conducting Drive For Christmas Toys For Needy

The Koch Club of Quincy is conducting its 10th annual drive to collect new and used toys for children at Christmas time.

Persons wishing to assist in the program may donate new toys or toys used still in good condition.

The used items donated are cleaned and refurbished by a committee of Koch Club members and friends and when completed the toys are delivered to families and charitable organizations serving needy children in the Quincy, South Shore and Greater Boston Area.

Since 1971, more than 12,000 articles have been prepared, delivered and made available to thousands of children at Christmas time to brighten the holiday season for those who otherwise might be forgotten.

The Koch Club started a decade ago with 300 gifts for children burned out of their homes in a pre-Christmas blaze and the program has continued to grow and service many more families and children each succeeding year.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, said the organization now acts as a coordinating agency with the assistance and generosity of many individuals and groups.

Those participating and cooperating in the Christmas Charitable Project for the past nine years include Mrs. Sadie Wesley and the Granite City Grange, the PTO and students of the Massachusetts Fields School, PTO and students of the Parker School, students of the Sacred Heart School, North Quincy, members of the South Shore Junior Ten Pin Bowling League, Quincy Junior Wonders Candel-pin Bowling League, members of the Koch Club Women's Bowling League, the Boys and Girls Bowling Leagues of the Koch Club, Koch Club basketball participants and employees of Otis Elevator Company in Quincy directed by Mrs. Alice Buchan, the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and the North Quincy Catholic Women's Club.

The Dress-A-Doll Project conducted for the past several years will continue this holiday season.

Women and girls are invited to join and assist in one of the most successful phases of the Christmas charity program.

Dozens of used dolls are donated each year in good condition but are in need of cleaning, grooming and dressing and volunteers are needed to prepare and dress-a-doll for presentation to a needy girl at Christmas.

Mrs. Simone Koch of 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, and Mrs. Ginny Derringer of 4 Edward Cody Lane, South Weymouth are chairmen. Those wishing to help may contact them for dolls or they will be delivered to older or shut-in women that are confined to home but may wish to participate.

Haunted House Open For March Of Dimes

The fifth annual March of Dimes Haunted House is open for "frightful fun" through Sunday, Nov. 2, at President Plaza, Quincy Avenue.

Donated by Boston Development, the house has six rooms, including Dr. Frankenstein's Laboratory, Web Room and a Death Maze.

Hours are Monday through Thursday 6 - 9:30 p.m., Friday 6 - 10 p.m. and on week-ends, 2 - 10 p.m.

All proceeds from the Haunted House will be used to fund March of Dimes programs to prevent birth defects. Last year, almost $20,000 was raised.

For more information, call the March of Dimes at 329-1360.

Treats For Tricksters At Fore River Clubhouse

The Ward 2 Civic Association will sponsor its annual "trick or treat stop-off" for youngsters tomorrow (Friday) from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Children of Ward 2 are invited to stop by while making their Halloween rounds and pick up a specially prepared bag of goodies.

Halloween Dance At HN Legion

The Houghs Neck Legion Post will hold a Halloween dance Saturday, Nov. 1, at the Post Home, 1116 Sea St., with music from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. by Billy Tang.

Costumes are optional but prizes will be awarded for the most appropriate. Tickets will be available at the door.

Post Commander James Bragg and Jr. Vice Commander Alice Scribner are dance chairmen.

Brain Injured Children Center Christmas Fair

The South Shore Center for Brain Injured Children, Inc., will hold a Christmas Craft Fair Saturday, Nov. 8, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the center, 46 Lincoln St., Braintree (the Eldridge School).

Fair items will include hand crafted articles and decorations, baked goods and plants.

The center would also appreciate any donations of other items for the fair.

All proceeds will benefit the center, a non-profit school for the severely brain injured child.

Cerasoli Election Eve Reception Nov. 3

An election eve reception for Rep. Robert Cerasoli will be held Monday, Nov. 3 at Mr. Kelly's restaurant, 62 Summer St., Quincy Point.

WEEK OF OCTOBER 30

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19

Reckless urge can cause you to say too much, spend too much. "Ordinary" folk impress you more than VIPs—and you're rubbing shoulders with both types now.

PISCES—February 20-March 20

Careful attention to money details—and numbers of all sorts—can't be stressed enough. Mixup in dates causes embarrassment, but don't overdo the apologies. Affections sweetest on weekend.

ARIES—March 21-April 20

In mood to be entertained—and you shouldn't be disappointed. If dealing with financial adviser, be sure you understand all his/her advice. Loved one perks up.

TAURUS—April 21-May 21

Tensions ease when rival steps out of picture. Good time to buy longed-for luxury item. Confusion is cleared up on weekend. Poetic mood strikes by Monday.

GEMINI—May 22-June 21

Good week to take stock of relationships: are you seeing your favorite people often enough? Personal magnetism increasing and social circle finds you dynamic.

CANCER—June 22-July 22

Good week for review of current goals. Keep your eye on career prospects, your hands on purse strings. People you share money with are in extravagant mood.

LEO—July 23-August 22

Short trips, likely linked to family event, are in week's picture. Recognition from peers comes in unexpected way. Overdue news on family problem arrives by Wednesday.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22

Go wild with colors—you're in that kind of mood—and brighten wardrobe and decor. Reconciliation accented on weekend, partnership arrangements generally favored now.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22

Watch casual acquaintances don't use your name to better their positions. Chance to travel opening up; watch out for unique opportunity and think about companions.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21

Could feel a bit stale and change is much better than rest. It's good week for taking stand about inequities. Friends are kind on weekend—but to point of hovering.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22

Little jaunts and lots of glamor featured now. Overseas news arrives after delay. Month ends on note of triumph—you've made your point and earned needed support.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20

Period is off to controversial start—perhaps you do something that shocks conservative colleague. A relative proves value as friend after the weekend.

Frank DiCristofaro Jr. Appointed Director Adapted Physical Education

Frank DiCristofaro Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank DiCristofaro, 68 Federal Ave., South Quincy, was recently appointed director of Adapted Physical Education in the Attleboro School System.

DiCristofaro was educated in the Quincy schools, attended Bridgton Academy for one year before attending Bridgewater State College, where he played varsity hockey for four years.

He developed an adapted physical education and health program at Nazareth Hall and Vocation Center in Fall River for the past two years before being appointed to the Attleboro School System.

A resident of Bridgewater, he is completing his masters degree in Adapted Physical Education at Bridgewater State College where he has been a hockey coach for three years.

Lawler Says Local Officials Should Locate Dump Sites

Gerard Lawler of Weymouth, Republican candidate for State Representative in the Third Norfolk, says he feels local government should have the ultimate decision in locating waste disposal facilities.

Lawler, who is seeking the seat currently occupied by Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy), spoke to faculty and students at Central Junior High School in Quincy.

A community would voluntarily accept such a dump site if the price were high enough, Lawler said, adding that the industry creating the waste and not the state should pay for disposal.

Lawler said in a recent story in a Boston newspaper Cerasoli was recorded as favoring state government, local government and citizen advisory groups as the ultimate decision maker.

He said he questioned Cerasoli's multiple answer.

Lawler also said Cerasoli voted to provide Gov. Edward J. King with a $60,000 addition to his $200,000 expense account, which had become highly publicized through the purchase of lobster dinners.

He said he would have voted not to give King the money.

Lawler told the students and faculty that the state had $90 million in unobligated funds at the end of the fiscal year and Cerasoli voted against using those funds to increase local aid.

He said the $90 million is available to King in addition to the $6 billion state budget.

Commenting on Lawler's charges, Cerasoli said he was in favor local veto power over the disposal of hazardous waste, adding that he would also favor a citizens advisory group to contribute input.

"I voted in the Legislature for amendments that would give such local veto power," he said.

He said he voted for the $60,000 addition to King's expense account, which, he added, "was a small item in a multi-million dollar deficiency budget."

IF SOME GOVERNOR'S COUNCILORS WERE TOUGHER SOME PEOPLE MIGHT STILL BE ALIVE.

On December 31, 1977, the Governor's Council commuted the sentence of a two-time killer and made him eligible for parole.

He walked out of prison and robbed and beat another victim.

On June 13, 1973, the governor's Council commuted the sentence of a second-degree murderer. He also walked out of prison.

In just a little over a year, he was arrested again for murder and sent back to prison.

On November 4, 1980, you have a chance to vote for someone who will vote against sentence commutations for first and second degree murders.

First GOP Win Here In 24 Years

Reagan, Prop. 2½, Eleey Win

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy went Republican in a presidential election for the first time in 24 years Tuesday as its contribution to Ronald Reagan's landslide victory over President Jimmy Carter.

The margin was a slim 61 votes.

Reagan got 18,038 votes to 17,977 for Carter in the City of Presidents and the third major candidate, Independent John Anderson, received 5,328.

Referenda Question 2, the controversial Proposition 2½ limiting the municipal tax levy swept Quincy by a 26,859 to 14,135 margin. It won by 3-2 around the state.

In the only contested elections on the Quincy ballot, Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli easily prevailed over Republican George W. Lawler of Weymouth by 11,532 to 5,128.

And Quincy Atty. Peter Eleey

apparently won the Fourth District seat on the Governor's Council. He outpolled the GOP's William J. Robinson of Hull in Quincy, 28,178 to 9,609, but results from the rest of the predominantly Democratic district were generally unavailable.

In the figures from the few cities and towns available outside of Quincy, Eleey prevailed by approximate 2-1 margins in Brockton, Braintree and Milton. He was also a big winner in Abington, Hollbrook, Marshfield and Hanover.

The election, with only the Presidential race and Question 2 drawing any attention, attracted 42,445 voters to the polls in Quincy, 81.8 per cent of those registered, the lowest count in more than 25 years.

The Republican ticket of Reagan and George Bush did a number on the Carter-Walter Mondale duo in the Third, Fourth and Sixth Wards to give the GOP a victory in Quincy for the first time since Dwight D. Eisenhower did it in 1956.

Carter won Wards One and Two and squeaked by with a 16-vote margin in Ward Five.

Proposition 2½ won in every Quincy ward by margins of roughly 2-1.

Bad News: $242.60 Tax Rate Forecast

Announcement of a $242.60 tax rate for fiscal 1981, an increase of $18.60 over the previous year, is expected in a matter of days.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin refused to confirm or deny the figures but he said if certain numbers are accepted by the state "the tax rate increase will be $1 or $1.50 less than the projected $20."

"When I announce it," he added, "I want to be able to say that this is it."

It was an apparent reference to the fact that last year the tax rate was prematurely announced at $221.20; then the figure was withdrawn at the insistence of the state and raised to $224.

Tobin pointed out that the tax rates already announced by communities across the state have averaged an increase of 9.1 per cent while Quincy, if it turns out to be about $18.60, would rise only 8.1 per cent.

"That speaks well for the city and all its problems," he said.

Auditor Charles L. Shea was in Boston talking with the State Department of Revenue Tuesday and there were indications that his work might be concluded and a tax rate ready for announcement as early as Wednesday (yesterday).

The Mayor said the Department of Revenue questioned some of the city's figures and "if Mr. Shea had not been able to document them the tax rate would have gone up by $23 or $24."

"We are holding our own," he added.

Tobin reiterated his previous statement that the tax rate could have been $8 less if the City Council had approved his proposal for a sewer users charge based on water use.

That would have taken the cost of the Sewer Department off the tax levy and placed it in a reserve for appropriation account.

The Council, at the urging of Tobin, took another, rather bored look at the sewer charge proposal again Monday night and shuffled it off into the Public Works Committee.

Under questioning, Auditor Shea told councilors that if the separate sewer user charge were implemented with less than half the fiscal year remaining, the savings on the tax rate would be only "53 and change."

Tobin countered that saying he was told that if the charge were implemented in the middle of the fiscal year the charge could be sent out as a one-time bill for $8.

Tobin's latest communication to the Council on the sewer charge noted once again that the city was in danger of losing 90 per cent state and federal reimbursement for sewer work if it did not have some form of sewer charge.

His communication was accompanied by a letter from Rep. Thomas R. Brownell noting that if the city does not have a sewer user charge the MDC may give it one momentarily.

"The MDC will do so in protecting its interests in federal funding," he said. "However, the city may not receive federal funding for its project until it adopts a sewer use charge of its own.

"It was further stated (at an MDC meeting) that all deadlines have passed for adopting a sewer use charge, therefore an imposed charge could come about at any time."

Brownell's letter caught the attention of Councilor James A. Sheets.

"We have voted down a variety of plans," he said, "but I do not agree that our obligations end there."

"I certainly do not want the MDC setting a sewer use charge for the city of Quincy. I've dealt with the MDC. I'm not going to be satisfied to allow them to determine a sewer use charge for the people of Quincy."

Special Council Meeting To Help City Meet Payroll

The City Council will hold a special meeting tonight (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. to empower the City Treasurer to meet the mid-November payroll.

The city will be out of funds that day unless the Council gives Treasurer Robert E. Foy III the authority to borrow more money in anticipation of taxes.

If the power to borrow is not forthcoming, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said, the city could also be in default of a $4 million note that is due on Nov. 14.

Each year, usually in late June, the Council authorizes the treasurer to borrow money against the tax levy in order to keep the city going until tax money starts coming in.

This year, however, in order to encourage an early tax rate, the Council voted to limit the borrowing to $20 million. Later, the cap was extended to $25 million.

But that is not enough to pay both the note and the payroll.

It was explained that the note originally was believed to be included in last year's borrowing but it was discovered Tuesday morning that it will be charged against this year.

Vigil Or Celebration?

Service For Hostages At First Parish Church Sunday

No matter what happens in the next few days, there will be an interfaith service for the American hostages in Iran Sunday at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

Should they still be in captivity, the service will be a vigil, noting the start of their second year as hostages.

But, says Rev. Keith Munson of United First Parish, "if by some 'miracle' the hostages are released before Nov. 9, then we will celebrate their release and return to their families and loved ones."

Featured speaker at the service will be Mrs. Louisa Kennedy of Washington D.C., wife of one of the hostages. The mother of four sons, she is officially designated spokesperson for the hostages' families.

Other participants will include the combined choirs of United First Parish Church and Bethany Congregational Church, Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El, Father William McCarthy of St. John's, Rev. Kenneth Lehman of Atlantic United Methodist Church, Rev. Winston Clark of Quincy Point Congregational Church, Rev. William Arnold of Bethany Congregational Church, Mrs. Irene Larrington of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Rev. Munson, host minister and the Salvation Army Band.

The service will begin at 4 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

All clergy of the city are invited to take part in the robed procession preceding the service, meeting at the church at 3:45 p.m.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted tag day permits to the North Quincy High School Girls Soccer Team for Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15, with no solicitations to be made at intersections.

- Granted a one day wine and malt license to St. Joseph's Rectory for a bazaar Friday, Nov. 14, 6 to 10 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse. The bazaar, to raise funds for the salaries of the lay teachers at St. Joseph's School, is for adults only Friday. It will continue Saturday, Nov. 15.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to Vic DiGravio, Jr., for a testimonial for George Wirtz and his family Sunday, Nov. 23, 7 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse. The Wirtz family is moving to California Dec. 1.

- Approved a change in the corporate structure of Island Seafood Restaurant, Inc., 302-310 Quincy Ave., with Michael Katsikis as a new member and Stylianos Katsikis leaving the corporation.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Ward II Civic Association for their annual installation of officers Saturday, Nov. 8, 8 p.m. to midnight at the Fore River Clubhouse.

A request from Shore Taxi, Inc., 535 Sea St., for two hackneys was postponed to Nov. 18.

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board is coming down hard on those applying for old gold licenses as well as those who are buying gold, silver or platinum without a license.

The board has instructed the Police Department to take a long, hard look at those applying for the licenses "because there is just too much opportunity for unscrupulous people to operate in the business" said Lt. David Rowell.

According to Rowell, of the applicants that have been checked out so far, three have not complied with regulations and are being taken to court on complaints.

At Tuesday's License Board meeting, three individuals applied for licenses for such businesses but none were issued and the requests continued.

Daniel J. Mullen applied for a second hand license for Old Gold Antiques, 1157 Hancock St., Quincy Square and was reprimanded by Police Chief Francis Finn for not applying for an old gold license which would also be necessary.

Finn also pointed out that Mullen has been operating without a license since June.

Fire Chief Edward Barry commented that Mullen, who said he has been in business for two years mainly at antique shows, knows the rules but hasn't played by them.

The request was continued for two weeks pending a properly filled out application.

A license request for William Chiaramonte for Treasure Hut, 322 Washington St., Quincy, was also continued to Nov. 18.

Chief Finn said a complaint is being sought against Chiaramonte for operating without an old gold license.

Chiaramonte asked Finn how he could support his family without the license, and Finn said he wouldn't vote for the request until the matter was squared away.

A hearing on a license application from Thomas Laitinen for TAJ Coin & Stamp Co., 9

Maple St., Quincy Center, was continued for three weeks.

Finn declined to act on the request from Laitinen, a member of the Quincy Police Department, saying it might give the impression of "making fish of one and foul of another."

Laitinen said his business deals with gold and silver coins, not bullion.

Laurence Dreyfus of Rainbow's End, 294 Water St., South Quincy, came before the board unofficially to say he had been unable to obtain information on whether he needed a license for scrap gold and silver and didn't know where to turn.

Dreyfus said he has been keeping a hard bound record of such transactions as he was instructed to do by the Police Department. Finn said Dreyfus' license application was not in time for this week's meeting and will be heard in two weeks. Chief Barry cautioned Dreyfus not to break the law by operating illegally in the meantime.

Barry said the board is being careful in issuing licenses to protect the people.

"With all the thievery today, it is very easy for illegal dealers to work in a fencing operation", he said. Chief Finn agreed there is a lot of fraud in the purchase of gold and said he is concerned with the large local population of senior citizens that are taken advantage of.

Finn said license applications would be investigated very thoroughly.

Would Exclude Apartments

West Quincy Rezoning Heads To Court Fight

The City Council Monday night heard a proposal that sections of Roosevelt Rd. and Old Coach Rd. in West Quincy be rezoned in order to exclude multi-unit apartment buildings.

But councillors also heard the owners of the only two buildable parcels of land in the area promise that they would take the city to court if the zoning is approved.

Sentiment at the hearing was overwhelmingly in favor of rezoning from Residence B to Residence A with four speakers and 39 signers in favor and three speakers and four signers opposed.

The area in question is off Adams St. and Furnace Brook Parkway where some half dozen new single family houses have been built in the past three years.

The controversy started last August when Jerry Soricelli, owner of one of the two vacant parcels, filed plans with the Building Department to construct a four-unit dwelling on his land.

Residents protested that it would change the character of the single family neighborhood.

"The area is not consistent with rental and multi-unit housing," said Leslie N. Lahage, 23 Old Coach Rd. "There are areas where business and multi-unit housing should be encouraged but it is not sensible here."

Carmen M. Mariano, 11 Roosevelt Rd., said his house, built three years ago, has been appraised for $97,000; he pays $2,600 in property taxes; and he has spent $8,500 on landscaping.

"Insert one multiple dwelling," he said, "and it would reduce the value of my property and violate the intent of more than a million dollars in investments in single family homes."

"Our area is still very young," said Mariano's wife, Edith, "but in a relatively short period of time we have created a neighborhood that represents a residential Zone A area."

"It is unfortunate that a neighborhood can be destroyed by the desire of individuals to make money."

Joseph F. Killion, attorney for Soricelli, said his client purchased the parcel of land in August, "knowing it was Residence B and aware that he could construct a four-unit dwelling."

"He has spent a considerable amount of money to purchase and prepare for construction of a building. He did this all in good faith in the zoning established by the city."

Since Soricelli applied for a building permit before the zoning hassle started, he said, "I suggest the law will give him protection in the event you decide to rezone this parcel."

"I further suggest to you that in the event this matter ends up in court — which it will if you rezone it — you will also have another substantial issue, that of spot zoning."

"You are singling out for rezoning the remaining two parcels where all the other units contiguous to this land have been Residence B and there are multi-unit dwellings."

The other multi-unit buildings are on Adams St., around the corner from Old Coach Rd. and backing up to Roosevelt Rd.

Paul Crossen, with his brother, Robert, own one multi-unit structure at 448 Adams St. and a vacant parcel of land on Roosevelt Rd. on which they plan to build another.

Paul Crossen said they bought the vacant land 15 years ago "before there were any houses there so we would be able to invest in a multi-unit dwelling."

"I can't afford a $97,000 house," he said. "It has taken me some years to save money to be able to build a three-family house and we hope to do so in the next two or three years."

He said he and his brother had the plans for the house filed at Dedham court in 1977 and they were "assured that once we filed the plan the zoning would remain the same as long as the plan was in file."

The Planning Board has already held a hearing on the rezoning proposal but has not yet made a recommendation.

GOOD NEWS for the General Dynamics Shipyard is announced by, from left, Gary S. Grimes, general manager of the Quincy shipyard; Gov. Ed King and Guy Nichols, chairman and chief executive officer of New England Electric. The shipyard will construct a $60 million coal-carrying ship, the first of its type in the country in 25 years, for New England Electric. Construction, scheduled to begin this year, is expected to employ about 1,000 workers for about 18 months.

$60M Contract Landed GD Shipyard Will Become Coal-Ship Leader, Says Donnelly

The General Dynamics Quincy shipyard will become the leader in construction of coal ships, "just as it is now the leader in LNG tankers," predicted Cong. Brian Donnelly this week.

Donnelly's optimism came as a result of an agreement between General Dynamics and New England Electric to construct a $60 million coal-fired, coal-carrying ship at the Quincy Yard.

The contract is expected to guarantee employment of about 1,000 shipyard workers until early 1983, when the ship is to be completed.

Also lauding the construction of the first coal ship in the country in over 25 years was Gov. Ed King, who appeared at last week's press conference announcing the contract agreement.

"Building such a ship here in Massachusetts will benefit the people of the Commonwealth by creating more than 1,000 jobs, keeping our energy costs down and making our energy supplies more secure," said King.

The ship, when in operation, is expected to carry 2.2 million tons of domestic coal per year from coal ports on the Eastern seaboard to New England Electric's generating stations in southern New England.

The vessel will be 655 feet long, 95 feet wide and have a draft of 32 feet.

Two 'Smart Kids' Blamed For Series Of Explosions

Quincy Police say they have traced a series of eight recent explosions to two high school students who were allegedly experimenting with propane gas.

The most recent explosion, at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday, caused damage to windows and shingles to homes at 151-155 Billings St., North Quincy.

The two youths will not be arrested, according to Lt. David

Rowell, chief of detectives, as there was "no criminal intent" and "no intent to damage."

The pair are being blamed for eight explosions in Wollaston and North Quincy, some dating back to last summer, he said. They will be channeled into a restitution-type program to pay for the damages caused by the explosions, Rowell said.

Rowell described the pair as "smart kids" enrolled in "upper level classes" at their high school.

"They are not a serious threat to life and property," Rowell said, adding that "they have no background in crime."

Police blamed the explosions on propane gas in large plastic trash bags, ignited with wicks.

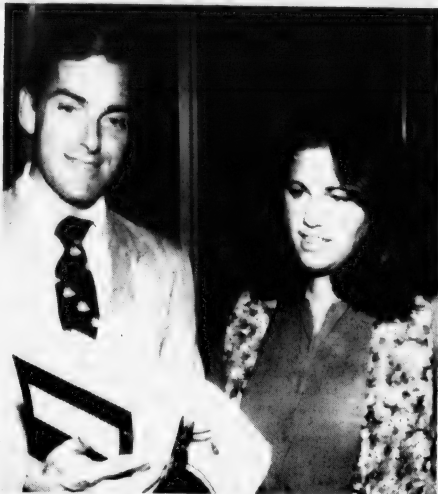

Rowell credited Sgt. Daniel Lyons and Det. John Salamone in their work in tracing the cause of the explosions.

1,000 Rapes Predicted In County

Joan Hassol, educational coordinator for Norfolk County's Sexual Assault Unit, says estimated 1,000 rapes will occur in Norfolk County this year.

Speaking at a recent workshop sponsored by the Quincy Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Junior College Women's Center, Miss Hassol offered practical suggestions on how women can protect themselves. Among them:

- When driving, lock the doors and roll up the windows, check the back seat before entering a parked car and always park in a lighted area.

- Never hitchhike or take in hitchhikers.

- When walking, stride purposefully. Look as if you can take care of yourself.

- Be sure your home is protected, since 50 per cent of rapes occur in homes. Entrances should be well-lighted, windows locked and deadbolt locks installed in doors. Always have your keys ready before you enter.

Miss Hassol noted it's not only strangers you need to watch as most rape victims knew their attackers beforehand.

- If you are attacked, try to use your head. Take any opportunity to distract the rapist. Run or scream. Yelling "fire" brings more help than "rape".

Force is effective in some cases, but in others it provokes further violence. Judo might be ineffective against a larger man. Spraying someone with mace might get into an assault and battery suit.

Sometimes the attacker can be bluffed or scared away. After a rape takes place, get medical attention in a hospital. Be sure to have them collect evidence in case you want to prosecute later.

Married women should get pregnancy tests at that time to see if they were already pregnant.

Therapy is always recommended after an assault to help resolve severe and long-lasting trauma.

Miss Hassol also described the work of the assault unit in assisting rape victims who have ranged in age from three to 68.

She added 206 male and female rapes have been reported this year, and four out of five rapes are unreported.

In half of the reported cases, said Miss Hassol, victims were under 16 years old.

Upcoming programs for the Commission on the Status of Women will be: Women's Health: Standing up to the Medical Establishment, Nov. 19; Parental Stress, Jan. 21; Helping Displaced Homemakers Re-enter the Job Market, Feb. 18; and Financial and Emotional Support for Divorced Families, March 18.

Each of the workshops is free and will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall. The public is invited.

Sheila deBettencourt

To Counsel Displaced Homemakers

The Quincy Junior College Women's Center and DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) have been awarded one of four, full-time career counselors for non-CETA eligible displaced homemakers in Massachusetts.

Sheila de Bettencourt of Quincy will counsel displaced homemakers who have worked in the home for a number of years and are displaced because of the death, disability or divorce of the wage earner.

Many displaced homemakers wish to return to the job market but are not eligible for training or employment under CETA.

The position is funded by the Massachusetts Legislature and Mrs. de Bettencourt will test displaced homemakers as well as lead workshops and initiate job development.

While raising her three children, Mrs. de Bettencourt returned to school as a psychology major at U. Mass-Boston. She has also been involved in a Boston College project studying the effect of unemployment on families.

The counseling program is under the direction of the Office of Manpower Development. Mrs. de Bettencourt will work under the supervision of Alicia Coletti, Women's Center director, and Jean Zagoudis, DOVE director.

Commented the two directors, "We are quite pleased that Quincy was chosen one of the sites where displaced homemakers could avail themselves of the services of a career counselor.

Everyone who fits the definition of a displaced homemaker wherever she lives in the South Shore area is eligible for the free services of the counselor."

EMERGENCY CALL FOR HELP

It could be fatally time-consuming to search through a phone book for a number during an emergency. Have them posted in an obvious place near the telephone.

If it's night and the lights won't work or you've been blinded by smoke, dial "operator". Feel for the dial opening just beneath the finger stop and pull around. If you've got a push-button phone know where the "O" is located - now!

Here are major points to cover in an emergency call for help:

1. Tell where it happened. Give your complete address. Repeat it. A brief description of the house will help, especially at night.

2. Tell what happened. Is your house on fire? Is someone bleeding badly? Has someone had a heart attack?

3. Tell who you are. This is important where the emergency is not obvious from the outside, especially in an apartment house. Also, a neighbor is more likely to know your name than your number.

Historical Society Receives 2 Special Bequests

The Historical Society announces that it has received two bequests "of unusual interest."

One, according to Society historian H. Hobart Holly, was a $1,500 legacy from the estate of Thorpe Babcock, late of California and formerly of Quincy.

The bequest is to be added to the endowment fund already established by Babcock in memory of his parents, Walter T. and Frederica C. Babcock.

Thorpe Babcock, a graduate of Adams Academy, wrote a biography recalling his experiences of the academy and his memories of Headmaster Dr. William Everett. His father was prominent in civic affairs for many years and was a member of the Board of Supervisors of the Adams Temple and School fund.

A $1,000 bequest was received from the estate of former Patriot Ledger editor and reporter Richard T. LaBrecque.

LaBrecque suggested that half of the amount be used "to pay membership fees for students and that $500 be used for the awarding of prizes to students for writing essays on subjects of historical value and development of the city of Quincy."

Commented Holly: "Dick LaBrecque made a great contribution to Quincy and its historical record in the special columns that he researched and wrote during his many years with the Patriot Ledger. Those who knew him can see in this bequest his desire that students participate in and enjoy the historical writing experience that meant so much to him."

Quincy Quiz

Again, only one winner in the Quincy Quiz this week.

Mrs. Rudolf O. Oberg of 37 Walker St., Atlantic, is the winner of a T-shirt as the only one who answered the five questions correctly.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the City Councillor who represents the Squantum section?

2. The room in which the Board of Managers of Quincy City Hospital meets recently was named the Dennis F. Ryan Board Room. Who is Dennis F. Ryan?

3. The first Navy "E" for excellence in shipbuilding to be awarded in Quincy went to the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard in 1942. Where was the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard?

4. In what section of the city is Sterling Junior High School?

5. There are nine Roman Catholic churches in Quincy. Name them.

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. J. Vincent Smyth is the superintendent of Quincy's cemeteries.

2. The Granite Railway was built in 1825 to haul granite for the Bunker Hill Monument from the quarry to a dock on the Neponset River for transshipment to Charlestown.

3. Quincy's tax rate for fiscal 1980 was $224 per thousand.

4. The Islamic Center of New England is in the Quincy Point section of the city.

5. The motto of the city of Quincy is "Manet — It Remains."

Federal statistics show about 75 percent of the population sees a doctor at least once a year.

What About The Decent?

Ever get the feeling the world is going in one direction and you in the other?

That somehow you seem to be out of step in the parade of today's so-called liberal intelligentsia?

That you're not only a square and old fashion but maybe you were also shortchanged in the brains department and it's beginning to really show now?

I do.

Like the Massachusetts Supreme Court ruling that the state's death penalty is unconstitutional because it is cruel.

And, I stupidly ask myself, what about the cruelty to victims of murder, rape and other vicious crimes?

And what about the cruelty to a family that is suddenly left without a husband or father because of some creep who shot him down in cold blood in a liquor store holdup or mugging or killed just for the kicks?

Or, take the deadbeats of the world. I wish someone would and dump them together on an island surrounded by crocodiles or sharks.

You worry if you're a few days late paying the mortgage or phone bill. They run up staggering bills with no intention of paying them and then fold their tents in the middle of the night or duck into bankruptcy. Then come back under another name and do it all over again — probably with the aid of a federal small business loan.

How about those who are guilty as all hell but walk out of the courtroom on a technicality? Like maybe the arresting officer forgot one word when he was reading them their rights. Or, the search warrant said the raiding officers were looking for drugs but found a half-million dollars from a bank heist instead and so it isn't admissible evidence.

Even the burglar has rights now. If you happen to wake up in the middle of the night and find one ransacking your home and shoot him, you might find yourself charged with murder or assault and battery. After all, he might just have been passing through and wanting directions to the nearest T station.

What about all the professional freeloaders who demand more and get more while Uncle Sam and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts dig deeper into your pockets to give it to them?

And, what about the threat to such wholesome youth programs as the Quincy YMCA and Koch Club basketball leagues?

Some 1,300 boys and girls aged seven to 18 took part in the YMCA Church league last year and hundreds more in the Koch Club league.

Increased school gym rental fees are jeopardizing these programs.

It looked for awhile that the YMCA Church League — the oldest and one of the largest in the country — would be knocked out of existence. But Director Jim Rendle is going to try to keep it going by hiking the fees of players and teams to meet the rental costs hike.

"I know we can survive," says Rendle. "It's just a question of how many youths will be left out on the streets."

The increased membership fees will be a hardship on some families that have more than one youngster on a team and to some churches that have more than one team entered.

The Koch Club has already been forced to cancel two of the divisions in its basketball programs — Broad Meadows and Montclair.

"We are going to try to keep North Quincy going on a trial basis," says Richard Koch, founder and president of the Koch Club which stresses participation rather than competition. The Koch Club gives hundreds of youngsters the chance to take part regardless of their athletic talents.

Here are two worthy programs that have kept thousands of youngsters off the street and out of trouble down through the years.

And along come increased costs to just about yank the rug from under them.

But there always seems to be plenty of money and attention available to help youngsters — and adults — who go wrong. Like Quincy District Court's "Earn It Program."

But the good kids often seem to get forgotten in the shuffle of liberalism. Why can't Uncle Sam find a few dollars to help finance programs like the YMCA and the Koch Club which helps deserving youngsters. If we had more programs like these we wouldn't need programs like "Earn It."

Isn't it about time that we started giving some attention — and money — to keep programs like the YMCA and the Koch Club going?

And, really, isn't it about time that the innocent, the law abiding, the hard worker who supports his family and the victim of crimes be remembered?

And, maybe it is time that the chronic creeps and deadbeats of the world be given not always an automatic helping hand but — once in a while anyway — a swift boot in the pants.

City Looking For Tall Christmas Tree

The Forestry Division of the City Park Department is conducting its annual search for the donation of a large full Christmas tree by a Quincy resident for erection at McIntyre Mall, Quincy Sq.

The tree must be between 30 feet and 35 feet in height and easily accessible for removal by forestry personnel.

Persons interested in providing a tree from their property may contact the Forestry Division, 773-1380, ext. 224. Final selection will be made according to size, shape and accessibility.

For the past number of years, local residents have donated the tree from their property.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board, said that the tree is erected and lights installed each year by forestry employees at McIntyre Mall, the focal point for the Christmas Festival activities. The activities begin with the Christmas Lighting ceremonies which this year will be held Friday, Nov. 28.

The Forestry Division personnel each Christmas season installs the Nativity Creche at Hancock Cemetery and Christmas lights on the trees at the Houghs Neck Fire Station, Shea Park, West Quincy, Fort Square, South Quincy, the Wollaston Library, Elm and Hancock Streets, the Hancock Cemetery, Washington St. at the Bargain Center and Merrymount Park at Southern Artery and Hancock Sts.

Laurence Curtin Papers To Historical Society

The papers of former City Council President Laurence J. Curtin were presented to the Quincy Historical Society last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Adams Academy building.

The presentation program and a champagne reception were arranged by Sen Paul D. Harold on behalf of the Quincy Citizens Association and the Curtin family. Curtin was first president of the QCA.

Following the reception, the QCA will hold its regular business meeting with a report by Joseph E. Breit, chairman of the nominating committee.

The QCA will hold its annual meeting, including the election of officers, Friday, Dec. 5, at 7 p.m. in Walsh's Restaurant. The meeting will be preceded by dinner and followed by a Christmas party with Earl Hanafin entertaining.

Seating is limited to 90 so reservations should be made early by calling Elenda Lipsitz at 328-8327.

Lt. James R. McIntyre Returns

Korea: 28 Years Later

(Nearly 30 years ago, former Mayor-Senator James R. McIntyre was a second lieutenant commanding a Marine rifle platoon in some of the bloodiest fighting in the Korean War. Recently, he was invited back to help commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Marine landing at Inchon. He was reluctant to go, unwilling to revive those painful memories, but he went and came back with a new, more positive view of a Korea at peace.)

By JAMES R. MCINTYRE

The memories of Korea of 1952 have been in my mind in a very haunting and moving way.

Korea has been known as the "Land of the Morning Calm"; but I had seen a different Korea and sadly left friends on the field of battle.

They have come in and out of my mind over the years and as I thought of them I reflected on the futility of it all: my platoon sergeant, who was very close to me, killed one afternoon as we were strafed by our own aircraft; a mixed-up Browning Automatic Rifleman, a good kid, who never followed orders much except when the chips were down, killed by an enemy mortar following its own orders; my platoon corpsman, who died in my arms, choking on his own blood as I tried fruitlessly to bring him through; and others and their replacements whom I chose not to know too well so that I would not experience an inner feeling of hurt when something happened to them.

The Korea of the mountains, the hills, the rice paddies, the flowing rivers and streams was a beautiful one, but against the background of war and of lost friends, it became a horrible memory which I hoped to forget until the day that I was one of those invited to Korea to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the First Marine Division landing at Inchon. I didn't know what to expect and my wife did not want to go because what I had told her about Korea was not particularly inviting, even though I had expressed to her the physical beauty of the land.

The spectre of Korea beckoned me back, however uncertain of what to expect. Twenty-eight years after I left Korea we landed at Kimpo Airport near Seoul. It isn't the original Kimpo Airport, as STATUE OF former President Harry S. Truman forms the backdrop as the McIntyres, James and Sheila, visit park near Panmunjom, site of the long negotiations that ended the Korean War nearly 30 years ago.

SHEILA MCINTYRE and a young Korean lieutenant are outfitted in field gear as they prepare to enter a tunnel near the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

most of Korea has a new image, an image which is now foremost in my mind and which has helped to erase some of the sad memories of 1952.

At the time of our arrival, the Korean government was going through a period of change and the new president had just been inaugurated and the government was hoping to impress Americans with its stability, graciousness and gratitude for what had been done for them by America. The succeeded in my judgement.

We stayed at the most exquisite hotel which we had ever seen in the Orient, the Hotel Shilla in Seoul, which was our home while we visited various parts of Korea.

We were taken to one of the tunnels which the North Koreans have dug and which the South Koreans had exposed in the DMZ in the Chorwon Valley, and we viewed the area where the Koreans had established their main line of resistance against any anticipated North Korean attack. We were bussed to Panmunjom along super highways reminiscent of Route 128 and saw the North Koreans viewing us at the

Burgin Backs Lane For Mayor

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, on the eve of leaving office for Navy duty, endorsed Rep. Myron N. Lane as his successor, "qualified by education, training and experience to assume the responsibility that goes with the Mayor's office."

All five candidates for Mayor — Lane, former Mayor Charles A. Ross, Neil A. McDonald, Russell T. Bates and Laurence J. Curtis — pledged economy in government at a candidates' night sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Ross opened his Ward 5 election headquarters at 225 Beale St., Wollaston, with a rousing speech by former School Committee member John P. Flavin backing his candidacy.

AUXILIARIES ENFORCE DIMOUT

John T. Lane, vice chairman of the Quincy Defense Council, said Auxiliary Police will be assigned to enforce the dimout along Quincy Shore Drive as soon as the MDC, which has charge of the highway, gives its permission.

A test of the dimout along the drive between Hancock St. and Sea St. showed that three out of five motorists had their lights on, many at high beam, despite warning signs that it was a dimout area.

Lane said most of the offenders were Fore River workers hurrying home at the conclusion of their shifts between 11 p.m. and 12 midnight and 6 a.m. and 7 a.m.

APPRENTICES BOW

Jocky Hamilton ran 55 yards with a pass interception for their only touchdown as Coach Tony Colucci's Fore River Apprentices lost to Dean Academy, 12-6, at Municipal Stadium.

NO HEAT AT MASS FIELDS

Pupils of the Massachusetts Fields School were sent home for lack of heat despite the fact that there were 700 gallons of oil in the school's tank.

Due to a mechanical flaw in the system, it was not possible to pump oil unless there was more than 700 gallons in the tank and federal regulations forbid the delivery of oil if there was more than 400 gallons on hand.

John Eliot Meets The Indians At Squantum Church

The morning worship service at the First Church of Squantum Sunday was bilingual: partly in English and partly in Algonquin.

It also included a costumed re-enactment of the historic first meeting between "the apostle to the Indians", John Eliot, and the Indians at Waban's wigwam in Nonantum (Newton).

That meeting, Oct. 26, 1646, was the beginning of the process by which thousands of native Americans converted to Christianity. They were called "praying Indians" because the concept of personal prayer had not been characteristic of their native religion.

Eliot assisted his converts in establishing scores of Indian towns and villages across eastern Massachusetts, the first of which was Natick in 1650.

The first to write the Algonquin language down in letters, he translated the entire Bible into that tongue and taught the Indians to read.

Through him, the Indians received a basic education and training in trades such as farming, business and carpentry as well as laws, a democratic form of government and the Christian religion.

The service had members of the congregation participating in that first meeting. The Indians were portrayed by Sunday School children, including toddlers and a few infants.

The Indian leader Waban was played by Steven Williams of Quincy; his assistant with the tom-tom was Steve Williams of Weymouth. William Cogswell was John Eliot and his helpers were Tom Adams and David Gerry.

During the re-enactment, Eliot led the congregation in reciting the Lord's Prayer in Algonquin. After that, he distributed apples to everyone in the congregation as Eliot is known to have done.

The scripture for the morning was the same Eliot had used, Ezekiel's Old Testament vision of the valley of the dry bones. Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin's sermon was "The Christian's Duty To Society", based in part on the life of Waban, an Indian who was converted to Christ by John Eliot.

In observance of Covenant Renewal Sunday, the service closed with the Lord's Supper and a reading of the Church Covenant by church members.

Seated with the pastor at the Lord's Table were Deacons Grace Holmes, Ralph Dougherty, Edna Swanson and Leon MacIntyre as well as Don Frazer and Eva Martin, representing the church at large.

The Senior Choir sang Henry Pfohl's "Antiphonal Psalm". Greeters were Renee Johnson and Adelaide Nelson. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Chris Young, Carolyn Chisholm and Lee Sindelar.

The series on "John Eliot and His Friends" will continue for two more weeks with another sermon on Waban next Sunday and a sermon on Cutchamekin the following week. The public is invited. Worship begins at 10:15 a.m.

Anointing Of The Sick At St. John's Nov. 15

St. John's will hold its annual anointing of the sick and elderly Saturday, Nov. 15 at noon in the church chapel.

Rev. William D. Walsh, Catholic chaplain at Quincy City Hospital, will be principal celebrant and homilist, assisted by the St. John's priests and deacons. A light lunch will be served following the Mass and anointing in the parish hall. Both the hall and chapel are accessible to the handicapped.

The service is co-sponsored by the parish's Christian Service Commission and Spiritual Development Commission.

For transportation to the church, call Marion Horne at 471-3866 or Duncan McLean at 471-6416.

St. Joseph's Students Share Halloween Fun

Students at St. Joseph's School welcomed first graders from St. Paul's School, Hingham, on Halloween for a day of fun and celebration.

St. Joseph's eighth grade students prepared goodies, games and other treats for the first graders, who entertained the student body by parading around in their costumes.

At 4:30 all children and families were invited to participate in costume at a special Mass for All Saints Day, celebrated by Rev. William Devine.

Chicken Supper Nov. 8 At Adams Shore Church

Adams Shore Community Church will hold a chicken pie supper Saturday, Nov. 8 at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets may be obtained from Irene Yoerger, Margaret McMullin, Ellen Yoerger, Alice

Munn or Helen Jaffarian.

The church is located at 175 Albatross Rd., Adams Shore.

WOLLASTON CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE celebrates dedication of its new sanctuary Sunday. Leading the choir, brass ensemble and congregation in the opening hymn of the dedication service is Eastern Nazarene music professor Greg Larkin (at podium).

Santa Claus At St. Mary's Festival

Santa Claus will make a special appearance at St. Mary's annual Christmas Snowflake Festival which begins tonight (Thursday) and continues through Saturday in the church's Mullarkey Hall, West Quincy.

Festival hours will be 5 to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday.

Santa will arrive at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Other special features Saturday will be an auction sale at 10 a.m. and awarding of prizes of up to $1,000 at 9:30 p.m.

Refreshments at the festival will include pizza, hot dogs, hamburgers, French fries, coffee, milk and tonic.

A chicken dinner will be served

Saturday. Tables will feature Irish bread, home baked cakes and other items as well as candy.

There will also be white elephant items, watches, costume jewelry, Irish glasses, Christmas cards and wrapping paper, knitted goods, gifts, bibles and a doll house. Games of chance will also be featured.

Christian Cabaret At St. John's

The Adult Education Committee of St. John's Church is sponsoring a Christian Cabaret Wednesday, Nov. 12, 8 to 10 p.m. in the lower church hall.

Several Christian artists will perform and explain how their art is a method of prayer and expression of their faith.

The performers will include an artist, musician, liturgical dancer, poet-folksinger and an artist illustrator.

Coffee, cider and donuts will be served in a cabaret setting.

Anyone interested in the interaction of artistic expression and prayer is welcome.

Voice Recital At ENC Nov. 8

Eastern Nazarene College students Tami Huff and Paul Douglass will perform a baccalaureate recital in voice at the Student Center Auditorium at 8 p.m., Nov. 8.

Miss Huff, a soprano, will sing selections by Franz Schubert, Robert Schumann, Giovanni Paisiello, Giuseppe Torelli, Mozart and Dvorak.

Douglass, a tenor, will perform selections from Schubert, Schumann, Hahn, Gabriel Faure, Dvorak and Van de Water.

The concert is free and the public is invited.

Bridge of No Return.

Incidentally, while at Panmunjom at the Armistice Talks Building, I saw a young American soldier whose name was tagged as Tomasello. Since the Tomasello name is quite common in Boston, I went over to him and asked him whether he was from Boston and his eyes gleamed and he responded with a loud "yes" and a laugh. I told him where I was from and he further refined his location as from Norwood. He was a young man who proudly represented the United States. I called his mother after I returned and sent her some pictures which were taken of her young son.

I remembered that in 1952, my platoon had guarded the bridge across to Panmunjom and held positions north of the Imjin River where we fought the Chinese Communists People's Army and where I was wounded only a few kilometers away.

The terrain near where I fought has changed little because neither side has done anything to restore it. However, the areas south of the demilitarized zone have changed so dramatically that I did not recognize anything in two towns which I had been familiar with - Munsan-ni and Uijonbu. The Koreans have made great advances economically and the people seemed very happy and not suppressed. I did not see my mud huts with thatched roofs which had dominated the countryside twenty-eight years ago. Most of the houses are now made of brick with stucco and slate roofs.

The roads are paved and the villages along the main roads have electric systems. The presence of the military in Korea is strong because the North Koreans are an ever-present enemy less than 35 miles away from Seoul. The bridges are guarded with concrete emplacements and between the Imjin River and Seoul there are three strong concrete fortifications that have been built to withstand an invasion.

The countryside is as beautiful as I remember it. When I looked at the fields, and this was just prior to harvest time, it reminded me of Ireland which I visited in 1972 with my wife and my mother; all different shades of green in the fields and rice paddies split up into lots and terraces resembling a jigsaw puzzle of fertility. Korea resembles Ireland in various other ways - a divided country, under the heel of conquerors for many years, a unique national culture but one which has had a foreign influence of its neighbors.

The highlight and prime purpose of our visit was to commemorate the Inchon Landing which occurred on September 15, 1950, and for which the Korean government asked all of us to return so they might show their gratitude to America, to the United States Marine Corps and particularly to the first Marine Division which broke the back of the North Korean Army by cutting off its supply routes into South Korea. The landing was an historic amphibious operation in which I did not personally participate. I landed at Inchon sometime later, in fact, but was among those of the First Marine Division to fight in Korea and thus eligible for this most memorable commemoration.

On the morning of Sept. 15, we rose early and rode a bus to Inchon where on the beach we loaded into two landing craft of the Korean Navy, proceeded into the harbor where the Korean Navy patrol boats and LST's saluted us and where a wreath was thrown into the sea to honor the marine dead of Inchon. F86 Saber Jets, Korean War vintage, flew over several times passing over the Island of Wolmi-do where the Marines first hit the beach in a harbor which has one of the highest tide differentials in the world. Thirty feet from low to high. To successfully land regiments of marines under such conditions was a tribute to the United States Navy.

Later we returned to the shore and proceeded to a park typically called Freedom Park. Prominently displayed in the park is a statue of General Douglas MacArthur containing an inscription expressing the gratitude of the Korean people for his military genius in the Inchon Landing operation. Despite the lengthy speeches, mostly in Korean, with no English translation provided, most of us gathered the distinct impression that the Koreans were deeply grateful and appreciative of the role we Marines had played in the Korean War.

After a box lunch with the people gathered at Freedom Park, we were transported under Korean Marine escort to the unveiling of the monument commemorating the Inchon Landing itself and the participation of the United States Marines in that landing operation. It was a magnificent afternoon, a clear sunny day with the temperature in the 60's and there were more than 5000 people in the crowd, most in their holiday regalia. We were the honored guests - about one hundred former Marines representing the United States.

The ceremony was most impressive, particularly when the Korean National Anthem was played and everyone stood while the Koreans sang their Anthem. Then, as the United States National Anthem was played, all of us in loud voice sang the Star Spangled Banner, exemplifying pride for our country and a desire not to be outdone by the 5000 Koreans who proudly sang their Anthem. That moment was the highlight of my trip - pride for our countries, intertwined with sacrifices in war against a common enemy.

The recognition of what had been done since I left Korea was very positive. For the people, a significant upthrust and a standard of living which has been substantially improved. The happy, smiling faces were certainly very apparent not to be those of an oppressed people. The still growing, beautiful, clean, thriving city of Seoul with a population of eight million people, the plethora of building and highway construction in and out of the city, the prudent and controlled use of land for the growing of rice and vegetables, the ever present TV antennas, the uniformed school children all with leather book bags, the beautiful clothing on the women and the obvious contentment of the people dispelled the memories of an unhappy Korea that I had experienced twenty-eight years ago.

I am sure there is no enduring winner or loser in war; but I was uncertain whether the sacrifices of the men whom I knew would be effectual in ensuring the permanence of the government of South Korea.

However, after my revisit, I saw a new Korea, a bastion of economic productivity in Asia, challenging Japan for superiority in tourism and in some areas of trade and eager to show the world that the "Land of the Morning Calm" is not only naturally beautiful but exists now in vigilant tranquility and is looking forward to a better tomorrow as the Korean people realize that today is so much better than their yesterday.

Councillors Ask Meeting With Mayor On Hospital's Future

The City Council is concerned that it is losing whatever grip it has on the future of City Hospital.

Council President Leo J. Kelly told his colleagues Monday night that he is going to send a letter to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin asking for a meeting "so we can find out what's going on."

This came in the wake of a visit by Mayor Tobin to a hospital management firm in Nashville, Tenn., and amid reports that the Mayor was about to select such a firm to run the Hospital.

Auditor Charles L. Shea told the Council that, if the Hospital had the money in its budget to hire a management firm, he is not sure that the Council would have any control over the matter.

"I have to certify on every contract that there are funds available," he added.

"May I request then," said Councillor Joanne Condon, "as chairman of the Hospital Committee, that before any management contracts are signed by you that the Council be given the courtesy of a communication stating:

"Who has applied to the city to take over the Hospital?"

"What were the specifications of the contract?"

"What fee would be involved?" "I'll go further than that," said Shea. "I won't sign any management contract at the Hospital unless a majority of the City Council approves it."

Both the mayor and the Council have had rival blue ribbon commissions studying the Hospital, although the Mayor has generally ignored the report of the Council's group.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley asked Mrs. Condon if, as the Council had directed, she ever sat down with the Mayor to discuss the commission's report. She said she hadn't.

McCauley asked her if she had been invited to join the mayor's "entourage" on the trip to Nashville and she said she had not been.

"For the mayor to bypass the Council in this matter is wrong," said Councillor Stephen J. McGrath.

"I hope the mayor will take us into his confidence before he makes a move at the hospital," said McCauley.

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia said he felt that entering into a management contract at the Hospital at this point "would be testimony as to mismanagement of the Hospital rather than an innovative concept on anyone's part."

"When you consider that 95 per cent of the revenues of the hospital are paid by the patients," he said. "It is very doubtful that any organization the size of City Hospital could not succeed financially."

Mayor Tobin said he would be happy to talk to Kelly and Mrs. Condon about the hospital at any time.

"We are in the preliminary stages of doing something at the hospital now," he said. "When we arrive at decision I'll be happy to inform the Council."

"Members of the council are confusing the legislative and the executive functions. They seem at times to want to make executive decisions."

'Hands On' Experience Quincy Sea Cadets Train On World War II Destroyer

By TOM HENSHAW

U.S. Naval Sea Cadets from Quincy are getting "hands on" experience aboard a genuine World War II destroyer.

For the past five months, the Cadets have been spending their duty weekends helping the National Park Service restore the USS Cassin Young to its fighting shape of 35 years ago.

When finished, the Cassin Young will join the USS Constitution, Old Ironsides, on display for tourists and other visitors as part of the "Boston Fleet" at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

For 10 weekends this summer, some 20 to 30 Quincy cadets, ages 11 through 17, have taken the bus to Charlestown to sweep the decks, polish the brass and chip paint, just like World War II sailors.

"The cadets enjoy the wonderful training aid the ship is to them," said Lt. Arnold P. Smith, executive officer of the Quincy Division, U.S. Naval Sea Cadet Corps.

"They are very fortunate to be able to study the ship while it is undergoing a shipyard overhaul. With the ship in drydock, they are learning it all from top to bottom and from stem to stern.

"They learn not only our Naval history but the inner workings of the machinery along with standing routine watches, navigation, propulsion and ship's construction."

The Quincy Cadet Corps is made up of two divisions, the USS Quincy, ages 14 to 17, and the USS John Adams, ages 11-14.

The Quincy Division was the host unit aboard recently when former crew members of the Cassin Young held a reunion, sharing "sea stories" with the fledgling sailors.

There were a lot of stories to tell.

Pedro, Calif., Dec. 31, 1943, named for the commanding officer of the cruiser San Francisco, killed at Guadalcanal.

She served in the invasions of the Philippines, Iwo Jima and Okinawa, taking several kamikaze hits and shooting down at least six Japanese suicide planes. She won a Navy Unit Commendation.

Several other Cadet units have been involved in the restoration of the Cassin Young, some from as far away as Manchester, N.H., and Cape Cod, but the Quincy youngsters have done most of the work.

There is no target date for completion.

"We will stop work just before Thanksgiving while the work of the Cadets and their conduct aboard ship are evaluated," said Lt. Cmdr. Mike Magnante of the Cadet Corps.

"Once the work is done, the boys are looking forward to helping the National Park Service with the tours of the ship by taking the roles of sailors in manning the guns and keeping quarterdeck watch."

Cadet taking part in the restoration work aboard the USS Cassin Young include:

Adams Division: Apprentice Christopher A. Anastasi, PO/2 Michael S. Bickford, Able Seaman Edward N. Barber, RC James J. Bennette, Able Seaman Steven J. Crowe, Apprentice Robert R. Conneen, RC David A. Crowe, RC James R. Downs, RC Stephen Fox, RC Paul Fox.

RC Thomas J. Feerick Jr., Able Seaman Robert G. Gralton, Apprentice George M. Hartford, RC Peter J. Leahy, RC John M. LeGere, PO/2 Richard A. Marshall, Able Seaman Stephen G. Mahoney, Apprentice Scott F. Mayo.

Apprentice Richard O'Brien, PO/2 Anthony J. Pereira, Able Seaman John C. Pereira, RC Michael A. Robinson,

Anti-Vandalism Police Patrols For Business Area

Members of the North Quincy Local Development Corp. met recently with Quincy police and city and state officials to discuss vandalism in the North Quincy business district.

They expressed concern with the growing number of youth gangs that hang around the area from early afternoon when school gets out until the late hours of the evening.

They cited broken windows, damaged sidewalks and trees and break-ins as a troublesome problem.

The corporation plans to start a team network in which store owners will report problems and trouble to their officers who, in turn, will work with the police for a solution.

Capt. Roy Cavicchi said he will ask for a step up in patrols for the area, especially during the evening and early morning hours when most of the vandalism seems to occur.

Also at the meeting were Police Sgt. Richard Laracy, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, City Councillor Joanne Condon and Thomas Burke, representing Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Reject Prop. 2½

NQHS Students Pick Reagan

North Quincy High School students gave thumbs up to Ronald Reagan but thumbs down to Proposition 2½ in a poll conducted at the school Monday.

In the mock election involving almost 1,200 students, Reagan received 401 votes, or 33 percent; John Anderson 339 votes, or 28 percent; and Jimmy Carter 296 votes, or 25 percent. Fourteen percent, 169 students, were undecided.

Students gave approval to Question One, banning discrimination against the handicapped, and Question Three, a tax-cutting measure sponsored by the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

Question Two, popularly known as Proposition 2½, limiting real estate taxes, and Question Four, approving pay raises for state legislators, were rejected by the students.

Question One received 894 "yes" votes, or 79 percent; 239 "no" votes, or 21 percent.

Question Two received 411 "yes" votes, 36 percent; 722 "no" votes, 64 percent.

Question Three received 794 "yes" votes, 71 percent; 324 "no" votes, 29 percent.

Question Four received 153 "yes" votes, 14 percent; 960 "no" votes, 86 percent.

The mock election was conducted by twelfth graders in Bernice Mader's American Politics classes.

Rudner Re-elected To Head Wollaston Park Association

Benjamin Rudner of 148 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, has been reelected president of Wollaston Park Association at its 24th annual meeting at Walsh's Restaurant.

Other officers reelected included Thomas F. Dowd of 19 Vassal St., vice president; and Dorothy C. Kelly of 108 Davis St., secretary-treasurer.

Directors reelected were Madeline and Dominic Falcetta of 55 the Strand; Anna H. Lucey of 39 Ridgeway St.; William M. MacDonald of 74 Copley St.; and Eleanor Sharkey of 36 Briggs St.

First term directors elected included Vito A. Barresi of 36 Rawson Rd.; and Robert J. Nankin of 177 Marlboro St.

Members joined with Reps.

Thomas R. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey and City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath in a discussion of property tax rates and the possible effect of revaluation.

Lt. Robert Kelly of the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau demonstrated how fires start in the home and suggested ways of preventing them.

N. Quincy Debaters Speak Out For Carter, Reagan, Anderson

Three candidates for president of the United States broke roughly even out of a debate staged at Long Island Hospital by students in the American Politics class at North Quincy High School.

Two students each spoke for Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and John Anderson and when it was over the audience voted 10 apiece for Carter and Anderson and nine for Reagan.

One student represented the candidate on domestic problems and the other the candidate's views of foreign policy.

Tom Koch and Eric Mellyn spoke for Carter, defending his economical policies and handling of foreign affairs. "He took the best course of action" in Iran and Afghanistan, they said.

Steve Kavanagh and Rick Dargon represented Reagan. They preached the evils of big government, spoke of tax cuts and warned of the dangers of the Salt II Treaty with the Soviet Union.

Bill Feeney and Linda Morash debated for Anderson, speaking of his "fresh new ideas" and stressing that "a vote for John Anderson is, in fact, a vote for Reagan."

When the debate was over, the candidates were questioned by a panel of reporters, including Carol Lint, Marco Zanelli, John Mantalos, Chris Dunn and Walter McConaghy.

But one of the best rounds of applause went to a patient in the audience who challenged the Carter spokesmen to explain why a vote for Anderson was a vote for Reagan.

He described himself as a strong Anderson supporter who contributed $100 to the Anderson cause from his earnings from a paper route at the hospital.

The debate was the idea of June Sutcliffe, supervisor of therapeutic activities at the hospital, who invited the North Quincy students through John Harrington, social studies coordinator.

Members of Bernice Mader's American Politics class were chosen to debate. Joe Phelan was the moderator.

John O'Donnell presented information on Proposition 2½. Nancy Gorman explained Question 1, the constitutional amendment insuring the rights of handicapped persons.

Members of the class who assisted behind the scenes included Pam Henry, Chris Dunn, Steve Rowley and Pete Rizzo.

MONARCH II, for which ground was broken yesterday (Wednesday) will be a nine-story, $14 million addition to the State Street South complex in North Quincy.

MONARCH I & II (lower left center) will be located on the south side of the State Street South office building (upper left).

Break Ground For $14M Monarch Office Building

Gov. Edward J. King was scheduled to be the speaker yesterday (Wednesday) at 5:30 p.m. at groundbreaking ceremonies for the nine story, $14 million Monarch II office building in the State Street South complex.

At the same time, developers Peter and William O'Connell will dedicate Monarch I, their five story, $11 million nearby structure, which has since been renamed the Commercial Union building.

The buildings were built by OBC Inc., the O'Connell brothers' Company, and Forge Development Corp., a subsidiary of the Monarch Insurance Co. of Springfield.

Both buildings were started as speculative ventures but Monarch I, begun in November, 1979, has attracted as its prime tenant the Commercial Union Insurance Co.

When completed, the two buildings will have provided more than 500 man hours of work for local construction workers and will employ about 1,800 people in clerical, technical and professional jobs.

Sterling Junior High Poll Picks Reagan

Ronald Reagan was the overwhelming choice of students in a "straw vote" at Sterling Junior High Tuesday.

Reagan received 207 votes, or 51 percent, of the 408 cast, Jimmy Carter 97 votes or 24 percent and John Anderson 61 votes, or 15 percent.

One vote was cast for DeBerry of the Socialist Workers Party, 14 for Clark of the Libertarian Party and 28 write-in votes were recorded.

Students in all three grades took part in the vote, organized by Richard Riley's ninth grade social studies classes and tabulated by Robert Mattson's seventh grade math classes.

Results were very similar from grade to grade, Riley noted, differing only by a few percentage points.

Christmas Festival Poster Contest Opens

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee is conducting its third annual poster contest with "Christmas Just For Kids" the theme.

All Quincy public, parochial and private school students in grades one through six are eligible. Instructions have been forwarded to each of the elementary schools inviting classroom participation.

Richard J. Koch and Mrs. Gloria A. Noble, members of the Christmas Festival Committee, are chairmen.

Posters submitted must be no larger than 22 inches by 28 inches and should include the students name, address, telephone number, grade and school on the back of the poster.

Two sets of winners will be chosen in grades one through three category and a second in grades four through six group.

First prizes will be a $100 savings bond and the second prize a $50 savings bond.

Deadline for receiving posters from the schools involved is Friday, Nov. 14. Posters may be delivered to the Park Department Office, 100 Southern Artery, Quincy.

Teachers in participating classrooms are asked to choose the winning poster for that class or allow the children to vote the outstanding entry from the classroom.

The poster nominated from each classroom will be submitted for final judging by a special committee.

Winners will be announced at the Christmas lighting ceremony Friday, Nov. 28, at 7 p.m. at McIntyre Mall, Quincy Center.

Retired Federal Employees To Elect

The next meeting of the Quincy Chapter 430 of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees will be held Monday, Nov. 10, at 2 p.m. at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The association will elect new officers and view a slide presentation from South Shore Cooperative Bank on "Direct Deposit Of Annuity Checks." A complete turkey dinner for Thanksgiving will be given as a door prize.

He suggested that Councillor John J. Quinn chairman of the Public Works Committee, get in touch with Brownell and the MDC and summon them to a meeting for an explanation of what's going on.

"We hear a lot but I'm afraid we don't know very much," he said. "Let's straighten this thing out once and for all."

"We can't have the federal funding dangling out there. That's crucial to this city. We still have an obligation to the people of this city who are not going to get sewerage relief unless we have federal funding."

"I don't want a basic argument with the Mayor by this Council to result in a loss of that funding."

"I want to hear what the MDC has to say and I want to hear what their timetable is."

"I want to feel more comfortable with not taking action."

Councillor Joseph J. LaRia noted that the city had previously been told that if it didn't install voting machines or if it didn't reevaluate property 15 years ago someone would do it for the city.

"If we're going to become paranoid about some other authority zeroing in on us we'll pass everything the first time it comes before us," he said.

"This is a deliberative body. If it takes us years to pass something, that's our prerogative."

Councillor Francis X. McCauley also urged caution.

He noted that the MDC "doesn't even have a plan itself so how are they going to impose one on us." Also, he said, six out of 10 cities and towns he surveyed are not even talking about a sewer use charge.

"One of the big problems we had facing us was bringing this matter in at tax rate setting time," he said. "I think the mayor's sole reason for bringing it in at this time was part of an effort to get everything he could out of the tax rate."

"He is telling the people to keep their money in this pocket while he is taking it out of the other. There are some plans that treat the home owner better than the plans the mayor has proposed."

"There is no question we have to do something in the long run. I question whether or not we ought to do it tonight. I think we can take our time. I think the mayor is trying to stampede the Council."

The Council, unstamped, voted to send the problem to the Public Works Committee for consultation with the MDC.

MCL Senior Vice Commandant Speaker

Veterans Day Parade, Ceremonies Tuesday

Joseph Mammone of Albany, NY, national senior vice commandant of the Marine Corps League, will deliver the Veterans Day address in Quincy Tuesday, Nov. 11 at 11 a.m. at ceremonies in front of the Adams Academy building.

Mammone, who served with the First Marines on Guadalcanal, Bougainville and Palau during World War II, was chosen National Marine of the Year in 1977.

He was in the Marines from 1942 to 1945 and has been a member of the Marine Corps League's Ulster Detachment in Kingston, NY, since 1943.

The parade will step off on Water St. at 10:30 a.m., headed by Chief Marshal James P. Lynch, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, and move down Quincy Ave. and Hancock St. to Adams Academy.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremonies will be held in the Quincy High School auditorium. Official instructions will be broadcast on WJDA.

The reviewing stand will be in front of the Masonic Temple on Hancock St.

Rev. Frank Bauer of Wollaston Lutheran Church will give the invocation; parade chairman John M. Gillis will introduce the guests; Commander Lynch will extend the welcome and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin the greetings from the city.

Following Vice Commandant Mammone's address, wreaths will be placed at all memorials.

Rev. John McMahon of St. Mary's Church will offer the prayer; the Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League will fire the volley; and the 125th Army Band of the National Guard will sound taps.

The national anthem will be played by the same band after which Rabbi Jacob Mann of Congregation Beth Israel will deliver the benediction and the line of march will be reformed by Officer of the Day, Henry J. Williams, past commander of the QVC.

The parade roster includes: Chief Marshal James P. Lynch, commander of the QVC; and his aides, John M. Gillis, senior vice commander, and Roger Whitcomb, junior vice commander, both of the QVC.

Co-chairman Joseph P. McDonough, Kenneth Taft, Lawrence S. Butler, Lawrence J. Perette, Irving Isaacson, Adjutant Arthur G. McLean, all past commanders of the QVC.

Officer of the Day Henry J. Williams, Asst. Officer of the Day William Reeves, Asst. Sgt. at Arms Frank Roberts, aides to invited guests Thomas Hurlbaus, Joseph Callahan and Richard J. Koch.

Aides de camp to the speaker of the day will be Edwin J. Boland, William S. Ash, Joseph Sullivan, Lawrence J. Perette, Benjamin Rudner and Lawrence Carnali.

John Pazyra of the Nickerson Legion Post, Carl W. Anderson of the Cavanagh Chapter, DAV; Thomas C. Mills of the Quincy Amvets Post, Robert J. Ellis of the Quincy Barracks, World War I Veterans; Jason Stone of the Jewish War Veterans, and David Dunderdale of the Caddy Detachment, MCL.

The staff will also have honorary representation for the Paul J. Revere Post, GAR; and the Boyd Camp of the United Spanish War Veterans.

The parade formation will include:

The Quincy Police colors; the QVC colors, carried by the Caddy Detachment, MCL; Commander Lynch; Senior Vice Commander Gillis; Junior Vice Commander Whitcomb, the 215th Army Band, Chairman Arthur Senter and staff; Vice Commandant Mammone; national, state, county and city officials.

The First Division will be marshalled by Lawrence Carnali, graves registration officer of the QVC, with Irving Isaacson, past commander of the QVC as adjutant.

The division includes the North Quincy High School band, past commanders of the QVC, Gold Star Mothers, World War I Veterans, World War I Barracks, US Marine Corps Reserve, and the Massachusetts National Guard.

The Second Division will be marshalled by Paul W. O'Neill, past commander of the QVC, with Lawrence J. Perette of the QVC as adjutant.

The Division includes the Quincy High School Band; the GAR colors, carried by the Bryan Post, VFW; the United States Spanish War Veterans colors, also carried by the Bryan Post; the Bryan Post and auxiliary with junior girls; the Houghs Neck Legion Post and auxiliary.

The 567th Air Force Army band; Quincy Legion Post and

Conference On Arts And Mental Health, Nov. 7, 8

The nation's first conference on the use of arts in mental health day treatment programs takes place in Quincy this Friday and Saturday, Nov. 7-8.

Over 200 New England day treatment administrators and therapists will attend a series of seminars and demonstrations sponsored by Wollaston II Day Treatment Program, 1620 Hancock St., according to Ellen Ratner, director.

Videotapes of "soap operas" by clients of Wollaston II will be played. These are the first use of continuing episodes in mental health day treatment.

Titled "Carney General" and "The Edge of Wollaston II," the "soaps" were written by clients who also act in them.

The conference will feature the Midway Clown Project of New Haven, which includes mental health patients who perform as clowns in public.

San Francisco's Creative Growth Project will be described by its directors, Dr. Elias Katz and Florence Ludins Katz, who work with mentally ill and mentally retarded persons, as well as those who are physically handicapped.

Norma Plank of the Kokomo, Indiana Regional Mental Health Center will present a seminar on "Draw Them Home With Music." Creative drama therapy will be described by Raymond Jacobs and Dwight Hall of Staten Island, New York.

The purpose of the conference is to update professionals with current trends in the use of the arts in day treatment programs.

Ratner said a Saturday afternoon session will be given to forming a New England coalition to further promote arts programs.

Community Education Symposium Nov. 21

Quincy Public Schools' Office of Community Education will sponsor a community symposium on "Community Trends in the '80s," November 21 from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd., Quincy Center.

The symposium will highlight

Community Education Week in Quincy, November 17 - 21. Keynote speaker will be Lt. Governor Thomas P. O'Neill III. All local organizations and agencies are invited to attend. There is no fee. However, reservations must be made with the Community Education office before November 18.

Organizations and agencies interested in sending a representative to the conference can obtain a brochure and reservation form at the Community Education office, in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St. or call 786-8717.

Boston, whose membership includes Quincy residents, will hold its 24th annual Autumn Bazaar Friday and Saturday, Nov. 14 and 15.

The bazaar, which is free, will be held 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the new Armenian Cultural and Educational Center, 47 Nichols Ave., Watertown.

Shish kebab luncheons and dinners will be served both days. Armenian delicacies and pastries will be available.

Booths will feature jewelry, boutique, arts and crafts, handmade articles, groceries, white elephant items.

Scrooge And A Clean Campaign

By FRANK MORTIMER

A single leaflet supporting or reviling Proposition 2½ blew down the sidewalk, wrapped around the writer's leg like a hungry cat, and was kicked free.

That incident alone was enough to set off his old political pet peeve. "Campaign junk," he growled to himself like an Election Eve Scrooge. "An excuse to litter the streets with nonsense."

But even as he spoke, a smile came to his lips, and a bounce entered his walk.

"Of course!" he thought. "An editorial is in order. It's time to denounce the boasts, exaggerations, and downright lies we see plastered on our buildings and littering our streets at voting time."

All 15 watts of the writer's brainpower suddenly charged to the subject. He hurried home, eager to reach the typewriter. A malicious glaze crept across his eyes. He no longer watched his surroundings. He saw what he wanted to see.

And in just that state he wrote. He wrote words of sympathy for homeowners who wake up to find their hedges tangled with wind-blown pictures of smiling candidates. He wrote words of scorn for the ones responsible for scheduling elections and Halloween within a week of each other. He compared the eggs thrown by trick-or-treaters with the literature distributed on behalf of candidates. Typing at fever pitch, he did not call eggs by their rightful name, but labeled them "embryonic hand grenades." To his 15 watts of indignation, that sounded smart.

In short, the fellow was in a bad way.

He closed his diatribe with a final snort at the posters tacked to telephone poles. He predicted that the faces of winners and losers alike would be grinning down from the lampposts months after the election.

Thus he spent his wrath. Taking the page from the typewriter, he looked it over, and was entirely satisfied. The mad glaze even began to melt from his eyes. His spirits rose.

But a funny thing happened on the way to the newspaper office.

He looked at the actual telephone poles. There were no political ads tacked around them. He scanned the sidewalks along Hancock St. They were far cleaner than his own backyard. The actual, visible city looked entirely unlike the politically befuddled neighborhood described in his complaint. As if to throw the salt of irony in fast-opening wounds, he could find only one sample of campaign vandalism. A bumper sticker with a candidate's name was attached to a stop sign -- and a city worker was scraping it off.

Humbled, he started home.

A phone call to the Dept. of Building Inspection further opened his eyes. The clerk said, "Of course there are laws regulating such advertisements. They're called sign ordinances."

He blushed. He felt foolish. He felt like someone who'd always regretted the absence of seat belts in his old car -- only to fail to notice and use the belt in his new car.

"These sign ordinances must be pretty strict," he said, recalling his humiliation on Hancock St.

"Not that strict. As a matter of fact, the laws were relaxed a couple of months ago. At one time, political signs were restricted to business and industrial zones. Now they're allowed in residential zones."

As the law now stands, she said, a sign can be posted in a residential area no sooner than ten days before a primary and must be removed within three days after the regular election.

She said inspectors enforce the law, but there are few violations -- "probably because violations are, in themselves, bad advertising."

How about the old practice of using lampposts as billboards. Is that legal?

The woman wasn't sure.

A call to the Election Office in City Hall brought a swift reply: "That stuff is out. No way is it allowed."

The caller said thanks and quietly hung up the phone. The malice was gone from his eyes.

Two telephone calls had brought Scrooge into the 20th century.

Presidents Face Brockton Powerhouse

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football team faces the unenviable task of playing Brockton's undefeated powerhouse Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Brockton's Marciano Stadium and the Presidents will be decided underdogs.

However, Quincy showed last week it can move through the air as well as on the ground and Coach Tom Fitzgerald is hopeful of giving Brockton a ball game.

"We know full well what to expect," Fitzgerald said after the Presidents rolled over Weymouth North, 36-6, at Veterans Memorial Stadium to even their record at 3-3-1. "Brockton is really loaded and could beat a lot of small college teams. They have an awesome attack and some of the fastest backs around, but I honestly think if we play our game we can make them earn everything they get."

No one has really tested Brockton this fall. The Boxers have rolled over New Bedford, 18-0; Brookline, 28-16; North Quincy, 35-11; Newton North, 42-8; BC High, 39-14; Cambridge Latin, 35-8, and last week ran it up on Leominster, 53-7. They have won 20 straight regular season games.

Quincy, following some hard-luck losses and a tie, came alive the last two weeks. Two weeks ago it ground out 239 yards on the ground and defeated New Bedford, 27-14.

Radio Station WJDA will carry the play-by-play of Saturday's North Quincy-Weymouth South football game at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Game time is

Last week it again netted 239 yards on the ground but this time it was the Presidents' passing attack which sparked them to their easy victory.

Junior quarterback Sean Martin, spelling the injured Ron Pettinelli, came into his own as he threw four touchdown passes and nearly had a fifth.

Pettinelli may miss the rest of the season, except for kicking extra points and trying field goals, due to a broken wrist. Martin showed last week he can do the job and do it well.

(The players last week voted to make Pettinelli a captain for the rest of the season.)

"Martin did a great job today," Fitzgerald said. "He's been coming along well and is still learning, but he is gaining confidence in himself and he proved he can do it. He threw some beautiful passes, ran well and handled the ball well. He has some good receivers and took advantage of them today. The main thing now is for him to stay healthy, because right now I don't have anyone behind him."

Mike Abboud, who gained 118 yards at New Bedford, again led the running attack with 94 yards. Ed Iodice, Paul Flynn, Martin and Mike Monahan, who had his best day blocking and running, all ran well.

The offensive line was again outstanding and offensive line coach Pete Chella singled out Scott Anson, Capt. Fran Duggan, Chris Chevalier, Ed Mackey ("another brilliant two-way game"), John Taglieri, John Varrasso and end Sean Burke, who not only made some fine pass receptions, but blocked well.

Chella also had good words for Joe LaRaia, Bill Hall, Mike Connors, David Donnelly, John Christello, Steve Aluisi and sophomore Jamie Gravales, who again played well both ways.

Bill Maver who, along with Joe Goguen, handles the defense, again couldn't say enough about Mackey, who has been superb both ways in every game.

He also praised Gravales, Connors, Mike Nevins, Taglieri, Walt Kilgallon, Steve Goguen, Ken Gustin, Craig Oriola, Paul D'Angelo, Jim St. Angelo, Dan Montani, George Slicis, Steve Rossetti and Eddie Starr.

Barrett 4th In Franklin Park Meet

Sheila Barrett, one of the top runners for the North Quincy girls' cross country team, made an excellent showing in last Saturday's state coaches meet at Franklin Park, finishing fourth among more than 135 starters in the good time of 12:17 over the two-mile course. Thayer Plante of Cambridge, rated one of the outstanding runners in the state, won the race in 11:49.

Tuesday the North Quincy and Quincy girls' and boys' teams met in the final regular season meets. The North girls took a 7-2-1 record, the best ever at North, into the meet.

Saturday the Quincy and North teams will compete in the state meet at Franklin Park, Quincy competing in Division 1, the North girls in Div. 2 and the North boys in Div. 3.

Sports

Quincy got a break right at the start when Weymouth fumbled on the first play from scrimmage and Goguen recovered on the Maroons' 30. It took the Presidents seven plays to score, Flynn going over from the three.

Martin raced around left end for an apparent 15-yard touchdown run midway in the second period but a holding penalty nullified the run. Two plays later Martin passed to Anson for 30 yards and a score and Martin hit Burke for the two-point conversion.

Quincy recovered another fumble on Weymouth's 30 on the first play following the kickoff. Martin passed to Anson for another apparent touchdown but Anson was called for offensive pass interference.

Quincy held Weymouth deep in its own territory and, on fourth down, a bad pass from center resulted in a punt that traveled only a few yards and Quincy had the ball on Weymouth's 20. On the first play Martin passed to Burke for 20 yards and the third touchdown. Martin kicked the extra point and it was 21-0 at halftime.

Quincy drove 80 yards following the second half kickoff for another touchdown, a 38-yard pass from Martin to Burke highlighting the march and Martin passed to Iodice in the end zone for his third TD pass and again passed to Burke for the two points.

Weymouth scored its lone touchdown on the third play following the ensuing kickoff. Peter Kane passed to Paul Cavallo, who split two Quincy defenders and raced 50 yards to finish off a 76-yard scoring play.

Quincy came right back after falling on an onside kick and drove from its 47 with Martin again hitting Iodice with a 19-yard touchdown pass. Martin kicked the final point.

While Quincy had 239 yards on the ground, Weymouth was held to 67. Both teams gained 128 yards through the air, but Weymouth's quarterbacks hit on only three of 11, while Martin has six for 13 with one interception.

Quincy clicked off 16 first downs and Weymouth had only four.

Raiders Hope To Regroup After Upset

North Quincy's football team hopes to regroup Saturday against Weymouth South at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium after suffering its most disappointing defeat in years last Sunday at Brookline.

On paper, the Raiders (4-2-1) should be favored over the Wildcats (2-5), but Coach Dave Burke is worried that his team could have a letdown after last week when it blew a 20-0 lead and was upset by Brookline, 22-20, at Northeastern's Parsons Field.

The Raiders' defense, which had been superb in three straight shutouts, fell apart in the second half to enable Brookline, with its best team in years, improve its record to 5-2.

"We can't afford to be down against Weymouth," Burke said. "I know their record isn't that good, but they have played some good games and unless we regroup and play our game, we could be in for trouble."

Weymouth South, following wins over Hingham and Marshfield, bowed to Quincy, Scituate, Brookline, Boston Tech and Newton North.

It appeared Sunday North was well on its way to its fourth victory in a row as it scored twice in the first period and again early in the second for a 20-0 lead. It still held a 20-8 lead at the half.

"I am very, very disappointed," defensive coordinator Ken McPhee said. "I really thought we could get our fourth shutout in a row but, after Brookline scored in the second period, the defense just gave up. I never thought I'd see a team overcome a three-touchdown deficit against us."

"We had one outstanding defensive player, Bob McCormack," said Jack Raymer, the other defensive coach. "He stopped everything around his end in the first half and they didn't try his end at all in the second half."

Penalties killed the Raiders, a pair of 15-yards setting up Brookline touchdowns.

"The momentum just changed completely around," Burke said.

"It was like two different games out there. We clicked well in the first half, then the defense fell down in the second half. It was certainly a disappointing loss."

Quarterback Jack Brown played a fine game and Dean Zoia (two touchdowns), Joe Dudek and Steve McEachern ran well.

North played without Jack Leone, its outstanding place kicker, who has a pulled muscle, and Paul O'Sullivan, one of its top defensive players.

North started with a bang as it drove 69 yards following the opening kickoff and Zoia scored from the three after going 12 yards on the previous play. Steve Howley, kicking in Leone's absence, added the extra point.

Brookline fumbled the ensuing kickoff. Brown went 17 yards on a keeper and McEachern scored from the eight. The kick was blocked.

So, North Quincy had a 13-0 lead before Brookline ran a single play.

In the second period Zoia scored from the 11 and Howley kicked the 20th point.

Brookline drove 43 yards for the first TD against North in four games, Chris Horblit scoring from the six. Joe McMahon, who had an outstanding game for Brookline, passed to Mike Gropman for the two points.

The third period was scoreless. In the final Brookline went to North's 12 but the Raiders held. A bad pass from center on a punting situation gave Brookline the ball deep in North territory. Dawny Fong rushed five times in a row and scored from the eight and McMahon scored the two extra points on a keeper.

With four minutes left North fumbled and Brookline recovered on the Raider 38. McMahon picked up big yardage on two keepers. On the second he was apparently trapped for a huge loss but he squirted away from several would-be tacklers and he ended up with a sizeable gain. He scored the winning touchdown from the eight.

North came back and, with Zoia, Dudek and McEachern alternating on carrying the ball, reached Brookline's 37 but the game ended with a series of incomplete passes.

North Quincy gained 232 yards rushing, 158 of them in the first half. Brookline had 171 yards, only 69 in the first half. North had 15 first downs, 11 in the first half, while Brookline picked up 14, only five in the opening half. North had only nine yards passing on one for nine, while Brookline was none for seven.

By ROBERT COLMAN

Did you know there was once a major football game in which the score -- and even the winner -- were changed 48 hours after the game was over... It happened in 1940... Cornell beat Dartmouth 7-3... But on the Monday after that Saturday game, officials of both schools looked at movies of the game and realized Cornell had scored its touchdown on an illegal down... Even though Cornell had an unbeaten season going, they said they'd give up the touchdown, and thereby give up the victory... The result was declared reversed and it was officially changed in the record books from Cornell 7, Dartmouth 3 to Dartmouth 3, Cornell 0.

Here's quite an oddity... The man considered by many to be the greatest football player of all-time, Jim Thorpe, never played football and never even saw a football game until he was 17 years old!

Here's an amazing football record... Quarterback Bart Starr once threw an incredible total of 294 passes in a row in National Football League games without having any intercepted... That stands as the all-time NFL record for most consecutive passes without any interceptions -- and no one else has ever come close to that record.

Apaches Win 7th, Sailors Down Panthers

The league-leading Apaches ran their record to 7-0 in the Quincy Youth Football League Sunday with a 36-6 romp over the Elks at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Ken Yanefsky recovered an Elks fumble, setting up Mike Gill's 45-yard touchdown run early in the game. Ed Page added the two-point conversion.

Page scored from the one and Keith Smith added the two-point conversion to make it 16-0 after a period.

In the second period John Ainsley recovered an Elks fumble. Don Kelly raced 22 yards and Kelly passed to Smith for 35 yards and another TD.

The fourth touchdown came on a spectacular 65-yard run by Bob Varnado and the final score came on an eight-yard run by Garry McNamara, with Mike Doherty adding the two-point conversion.

The Elks scored on a 15-yard run by Bill Egan.

The Sailors topped the Panthers 14-6, all the scoring coming in the second half of a fine defensive game.

Bill Doherty plunged over from the one to give the Sailors the lead and he also added the two-point conversion.

The Panthers came back with Bill Shaughnessy passing to Chris Shaughnessy for the touchdown, but the try for the tying points failed.

Late in the game Doherty ran 22 yards for the Sailor's second touchdown.

Central Defeats Point To Win City Crown

By PETE ZOIA

Central's ninth grade football team won the city Junior High School championship as it defeated Point, 28-8, to finish with a 7-1 record.

A Nunzio Carbone pass to Jack Bolster for 26 yards set up a five-yard scoring run by Paul Ryan to put Central on the board first.

A Point fumble gave Central its TD as it drove to the four and Carbone passed to Mark Valpando for the score.

Dan Curtin of Point intercepted and ran back a Central pass for 52 yards to put Point on the scoreboard. Kevin Cabezas passed to Curtin for the conversion.

Central roared back as Ryan lugged the ball 80 yards for a kick-off return score. Bill Fahey added two more points.

A stray Point aerial went into the hands of Dan Morris on the Point 35. A 20-yard run by Tim McCarthy to the 15 set the stage for a Carbone to Valpando scoring pass. McCarthy ran in the two points to end the scoring.

The Central reserves played the remainder of the scoreless second half.

Darkness halted the contest between Broad Meadows and Sterling in the third period, with BM in front, 22-0.

All the scoring came in the second period after Sterling was halted on the FM four.

It was here that Coach Gene Macomber's high scoring unit went to work. With Mike Notarangelo and Greg Keefe piling up large chunks of yardage, BM sent Notarangelo eight yards for a TD. Tony Cascarano, who had a big day passing, tossed to Ed Boyle for the two points.

Sterling fumbled the kick-off on its 45, wherein Cascarano and Notarangelo connected for a 45 pass-and-run score.

Soon after, Cascarano again teamed up with Notarangelo for a 23-yard touchdown pass. Darkness took over from then on. No word has been said about how this game's outcome will be determined.

Point won its second game of the season, 10-6, over North. The Northerners scored first in the second frame. Joe Callahan and Brian Ellis brought the ball to the four, from where Ellis banged it in for the only North score.

Point forged ahead in the same quarter, thanks to the fine running of Dan Curtin and Kevin Cabezas to North's 17.

Here Cabezas threw a strike to Curtin to tie the game. Cabezas then put Point in the lead for good by passing to Rick Coscia for the conversion points.

After a scoreless third quarter, in which both teams had chances galore, stemming from numerous fumbles and interceptions, Point added a safety by downing a trapped North back in his end zone.

Both Point victories this season were over North.

There was only one eighth grade game played this past week and it was never completed. The game was called after one half with Sterling leading, 8-0, before darkness prevailed. The only score was produced in the opening quarter as Sterling started a drive from the BM 37 and ended with Darryl Tucker sneaking in from the one. Gerry Frazier then outran everyone for the two-pointer.

A decision should be forthcoming from the junior high coordinator as to the results of this contest, due to the fact that Sterling and Atlantic are neck and neck for the eighth grade championship. The teams meet this week.

For the first time this season, the seventh graders played regulation games, after scrimmaging against each other while the older classes played.

Point was fortunate to draw two games and made the most of it, winning, 6-0, over Atlantic and edging Central, 8-6.

In defeating Atlantic, the Point yearling team scored on a 13-yard run by Robert Josephs, after marching 62 yards.

The close Central-Point tilt was a come from behind victory for the young Pointers, after Central took an early lead on an eight-yard score by Frank Nolan. The try for two points failed.

Point got its touchdown in the second period when Josephs ran it in from the four, and Kevin Jolly bucked for the winning two points. Coach Ron Mariano of Point praised the play of Sean Flaherty and Steven Pace.

In another seventh grade encounter, Sterling nosed out Broad Meadows, 8-6. Meadows enjoyed an early six points lead thanks to the strong running of Walter Rollins, who turned his right end for a four yard TD. Sterling's winning margin came in the third quarter on a 52-yard scamper by Don Parry. David Gould added the two point conversion that won the game.

● Girls Swimming

North Continues To Dominate Quincy

The North Quincy girls' swim team continued its domination of the Quincy girls last week, ending its regular season with a 103-67 win over the First Ladies before a large crowd at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

Quincy has never defeated North in boys' or girls' swimming since the schools inaugurated the sport six years ago.

The Raiderettes then made a fine showing last Friday and Saturday in the Suburban League championship meet at the Lincoln-Hancock pool, finishing fourth with 118 points.

In the league meet Sue Quintiliani placed eighth in the 500 freestyle and 11th in the 200 freestyle. Jacqui Pike was fourth in the 200 individual medley and fifth in the 100 butterfly. Kit Harrow was third in the 50 freestyle and fourth in the 100 freestyle. Diana Dawson was ninth in the 100 backstroke. Marjie Bortolotto was second in the 100 breaststroke. Sheila Quintiliani was sixth and Martha Donaghe 12th in diving and the 400 freestyle relay team of Yvonne Boness, Pike, Harrow and Sue Quintiliani placed second.

The Quincy girls placed eighth with 62 points.

Donna Marcin was second in the 200 and 100 freestyle and Mary Kussman was seventh in the 100 butterfly. Kussman was ninth and Robin Lotti 10th in diving.

In North's victory over Quincy, the Raiderettes broke three school records.

Bortolotto broke her own record in the 100 breaststroke. Harrow set the 100 freestyle mark, and the 400 freestyle relay team of Pike, Boness, Harrow and Sue Quintiliani also broke a record. Quintiliani also broke a mark for her leg of the relay.

North's Sheila Quintiliani won the one-meter diving and qualified for the state meet, along with several other Raiderettes.

Donna Marcin broke Quincy school records in the 200 and 500 freestyle events.

North's 200-medley relay team of Dawson, Bortolotto, Jean Oulette and Donoghue, won; Pike won the 200 individual medley, Harrow won the 50 freestyle, and Dawson won the 100 backstroke.

Earlier the North girls had defeated Stoughton, 107-63, and lost to Weymouth North, 80-76, and to Newton North, 104-68, and finished the season with a 5-7 record.

QJC Looks Good In Jamboree

The Quincy Junior College basketball team is preparing for its season's opener against Emerson Nov. 12 at Boston Garden in a preliminary to the Celtics-Bullets game, after making a fine showing in last weekend's Small College Conference jamboree at Hellenic College.

QJC met Mass. College of Pharmacy in a 20 minute scrimmage and was led by Jim Holleran and Ed Richard.

"Jim and Ed got us fired up early with some outstanding defensive plays," Coach Brian Buckley said. "The rest of the players rallied and we played with confidence the rest of the way."

Buckley was impressed with the showing of most of the teams and expects the conference to be well-balanced this year.

5 Quincy Swimmers Shine At AAU Meet

Five members of the Quincy AAU swim team made excellent showings last Sunday in an AAU-sanctioned meet at Attleboro High School.

Some of the best swimmers from Massachusetts and Rhode Island competed.

Eleven-year-old Bob Laracy of Quincy won the 100-yard individual medley (butterfly, backstroke, breaststroke and freestyle), took second in the 50 breaststroke and third in the 50 freestyle.

Jon Rice, 14, won the 100 freestyle and the 100 breaststroke and placed second in the 100 backstroke.

Peter Boylan, 13, won the 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke, took second in the 100 breaststroke and fourth in the 100 butterfly.

Wendy Molignano, 14, won the girls' 200 individual medley and the 100 butterfly.

Erin Canavan, 12, took second in the girls' 100 backstroke and fourth in the 200 individual medley.

Quincy Sophs Seek 6th Against Brockton

Quincy High's sophomore football team, coached by Mark Conroy and Bill Deal is having a fine season and takes a 5-1 record into Friday's home game with Brockton.

The young Presidents have defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 20-0; Weymouth South, 20-0; Newton North, 26-14; Natick, 14-8, and Weymouth North, 22-6, while losing only to Waltham, 16-

6. Quincy's quarterback is Bob Mudge and the offensive backs, all of whom have run well, are Mike Miller, Ted Walsh, Brian Callahan, Mark Righini, who has gone over 100 yards in four games; Chris Dracchio and John Pickering.

The offensive line has done an outstanding job and includes Dan Mahoney, Bob Willard, Rick Gustin, John O'Donohue, Al

Carpenter, Willie Cullen and John Riggs, who is an excellent two-way player.

Among the top defensive players are Bob Burns, Sal Lorenzano, Dave DeCoste, Don Noll, Glen Oriola, Sean Wynn and Righini.

Dennis Obert has done some fine kicking and others who are playing key roles in the team's success are Steve Gannon, Fran Gaudiano, Bob Richiardi, Ed and Jim Kennedy and Bob McIsaac.

Mite A's Roll By Neponset

Quincy's Mite A hockey team rolled over Neponset, 14-0, to remain in first place in the South Shore Conference.

Kevin Daly had five goals, Joey Fasano three, Brian Zimmerman two and Ronnie

Last, Matt Smith, Michael Baylis and Tony Spinelli one each. Zimmerman had five assists, Richie McDonald three, Kenny Staskiwicz three and Smith, Last, Timmy Collins and Baylis one each.

Goalie Scotty Mann posted his fourth shutout and Matthew Kelley, Mark O'Brien, David Santosuosso and Bobby Scott played well.

Patti Catalano In Heartbreak Hill Race

Quincy native Patti (Lyons) Catalano, America's outstanding women's distance runner, will take on familiar territory Sunday when she runs in the fourth annual Purity Supreme Heartbreak Hill 10K road race in Brighton.

Patti, who finished second behind 1980 Boston Marathon winner Jacqueline Gareau, has raced Heartbreak Hill many times in her 4½-year running career.

Since the Boston Marathon she has beaten Gareau's winning time of 2:34.28 and two weeks ago she has become the first American woman to break 2:30 when she finished second in the New York Marathon in 2:29.33, bettering her previous American record of 2:30:57.

She finished behind Oslo's Greta Waitz, who set a world's record time of 2:25:41 in winning the New York run.

Patti, who is married to her coach, former Quincy High track coach Joe Catalano, had set her previous American record in the Montreal International Marathon in September.

Patti won the Bonne Belle 10K race in Boston last month, setting U.S. five mile and 10K records.

Sunday's race, which has attracted many other world class runners, is held annually to benefit the Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children.

Luke's Wins, 4 - 1

Luke's Lounge defeated

Budget Rent-A-Car, 4-1, Monday night in Executive Hockey League action at the Youth Arena.

Ed Linehan, John McNeil, Don Costa and Jack Powers scored for Luke's with Mike Semertgakis having two assists and McNeil, Linehan, Costa and Ted Ahola one each. Steve Marini scored for Budget with Art Boyle and Dave Towle having assists.

Adams Sports defeated Beau's Place, 5-1, and Dayce's Place topped Washington Tap, 6-4.

Hancock Tourney Raises $2,400 For United Way

A recent softball tournament sponsored by the Hancock Bank raised $2,400 for the United Way.

The tournament, featuring 24 teams from the South Shore, was won by the Washington

Tap of 609 Washington St., Quincy Point.

"We are happy that we could help the United Way," said Hancock Bank President William Kelley. "This tournament was a fine opportunity to aid an important cause and have a good time doing it."

The bank donated trophies to the top four teams as well as jackets to the champions, Washington Tap. The Tap defeated Farrington Market to win the title. In the consolation game, Hancock Bank beat Ted's Market.

The money raised will benefit 167 human care agencies which provide health, family, counseling, child care, and youth services to approximately 750,000 people in 86 cities and towns of eastern Massachusetts. Last year, an estimated 21,881 Quincy residents benefited from the services of United Way agencies.

The campaign will continue through Nov. 25.

YMCA Caruso Road Race Nov. 11

The Quincy YMCA will host its annual Robert G. Caruso 5-mile road race Veterans Day, Tuesday, Nov. 11 at 11 a.m.

Trophies and awards will be presented to the first five finishers, first three women finishers, and first three Quincy YMCA finishers.

Medals will be awarded to the first three men and first three women in eleven age categories: 14-17, 18-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69 and 70 and over. Runners are eligible for one award only. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the race.

The winning time last year was set by Ed Sheehan with a time of 23:22. The first woman, Donna Reardon, finished with a time of 30:48 and George Hitt, first Quincy YMCA member, finished with a time of 25:21.

White Sparkles For Fitchburg

Trimmed-Down Koch Club Basketball Opens

A trimmed-down version of the Koch Club basketball program will tap off its 32nd season tonight (Thursday) despite increased school rental fees.

The School Committee's decision to increase fees from $3 per hour to $12 per hour has caused the cancellation of the Koch Club's Montclair and Broad Meadows divisions, according to Executive Director Richard J. Koch.

Youngsters from across the city are invited to take part in the surviving program at Atlantic Junior High School, Koch said.

However, fees will be increased to try to offset the higher school rentals, he said. This year, a weekly fee of $1 (up from 25 cents last year) will be charged.

The second participating member of a family will pay 75 cents and three or more members of a family will pay a flat $2 weekly fee.

The North Quincy program is being conducted on a trial basis and a decision will be made in December on whether there is a sufficient number of participants for it to continue.

The North Quincy program, directed by Richard J. Koch, Jr., will hold registration tonight (Thursday) at the Atlantic Junior High Gym. Youngsters seven through nine should report at 6 p.m. and those 10 to 13 should report at 7:15.

St. Moritz Pee Wees Bomb Mass. Bay Braves

The St. Moritz Youth Hockey Pee Wees evened their record at 1-1 by wallowing the Mass. Bay Braves, 9-3.

Chris Marshall had a hat trick and an assist, Mike Spinney had two goals and two assists, James Brady two goals and Eddie Ceriani and Edward Conway one each. Doug Nelson had three assists, Sorielio two and Jamie Bille and Collins one each.

The Bantam team dropped a 4-3 squeaker to Plymouth County All-Stars, who scored the winning goal in the final minute. Sean Aruda scored twice for St. Moritz and had an assist, Bobby McCabe had the other goal and Paul Marshall had two assists.

The St. Moritz Midgets gained their first win after three losses, topping Mass. Bay, 3-1. Mark Affanato and Tom Good were outstanding in goal. Fred Connelly, James Peretti and Paul McCabe scored the goals with Peretti and Reardon having assists.

● Mite-Squirt House

Harold Club Rolls

The league-leading Harold Club defeated Quincy Teachers, 5-2, in the Mite-Squirt House League.

Brian Zimmerman scored two goals and Brian Kelly, Joey Zona and Steve Connelly one each. Zimmerman had two assists and Darren Simonelli one. Mike Hughes scored both Teachers goals with assists for Jeff Freeman, Tony Spinelli and Mike Monahan.

BoCar and Lydon-Russell played to a 5-5 tie with Mike Witham having two BoCar goals and Gene Moore, Dave Nogler and Arthur Cangemi one each.

Smith 2nd In NEOC Meet

Jean Smith of Quincy, a member of the New England Orienteering Club, finished second at 3.4 kilometers in the women 50 and over class in the recent NEOC meet in Saugus.

The NEOC has more than 700 members and at least once each year holds a meet in the Blue Hills area.

● Soccer

Disappointing North Season

The North Quincy boys' soccer team finished a disappointing season last week when it dropped a 3-1 decision to unbeaten Brookline and a 3-0 verdict to tournament-bound Waltham.

Brookline is the fourth-ranked team in Eastern Massachusetts and showed quickly why it is ranked so high. After making several acrobatic saves, North goalie Paul Mallory was victimized by a goal which deflected off North's John Keenan.

Junior goalie Bob Flaherty took over in the second quarter and he, too, was forced to make several outstanding saves before Brookline scored two more goals. Steve Dodd and Paul Donovan looked sharp in an otherwise lackluster Raider performance in the first half.

With North trailing, 3-0, Coach Paul Bregoli fielded a team of all juniors and sophomores in the third quarter and this group performed well. Keyed by junior inside Lester Gerry and juniors Keenan, Dan Marsters and Steve Sacchetti, North dominated play. Sophomore Mike Bourikas narrowly missed a goal midway in the period. North's persistence paid off as junior tri-captain Bill Bradley lofted a perfect cornerkick to Rich Palma, who scored.

Waltham, needing a win to clinch a state tournament berth, came out fired up against the Raiders. A misplayed throw-in gave Waltham its first goal. The Hawks scored all their goals in the first half as the Raiders played them even the rest of the way.

● Youth Soccer League

Quincy Captures Top Spot

Quincy School clinched first place in the North Quincy Kickers Soccer League with a 6-0-0 record after defeating Mass. Fields, 3-0.

Tommy Tegen scored two goals and Mike Benson one. Only outstanding goal tending by Randy Rajapke kept the score from being higher. Warren Palmer earned the shutout.

Beechwood Knoll moved into third place with a 4-1 win over Parker and a 4-0 decision over Wollaston.

Bobby Callahan had two goals in the Parker victory, Kevin Caldwell scored on a penalty kick and Paul Murphy had the other goal. Caldwell and Callahan had assists. Derek Rolfe was outstanding at fullback. John Mooney scored the Parker goal with Jim Marchilatis assisting.

Adam McGregor, Van Leister,

Callahan and Julie Marsters scored against Wollaston as Jimmy Phelan earned the shutout.

Montclair squeezed by Squantum, 2-0, on two goals by Rashid Monsoor and assists for Billy Murphy and Timmy Baker. Mark Zinkus played well.

Furnace Brook and Wollaston played to a 2-2 tie. Scott Sacchetti and Jimmy Gordon scored for FB with Billy Palmer having an assist. For Wollaston Jimmy DeCarli and Joseph Lawry scored. Mike Cassetta and Tommy Rananah played well for FB.

The league playoffs will be played Saturday and Sunday.

● PeeWee House

3-Way Tie For Top Spot

Bersani Brothers, Boston Gear and Keohane's are tied for first place in the Pee Wee House League with 2-1-0 records.

UCT upset Bersani, 5-1, with Kevin Kuska and Tony Orlando having two goals each and Mike Flaherty one. Rick Ames had two assists and Flaherty, Rick Connelly, Jim Dunphy and Kuska one each. Dan Hurley scored for Bersani with Bob Ellis assisting.

Boston Gear topped Keohane's, 3-1, on goals by Dave Young, Bill Ferrara and Mike Morris. Brian Roche scored for Keohane's with Don Burke assisting.

Dee Dee's defeated Mug 'n' Muffin, 3-1, with Tony Koury outstanding in goal for Dee Dee's. Kevin Tobin scored all the goals with Steve Kowski and Dave Maimaron having two assists each. Paul Lester scored for M 'n' M with Chris Holland assisting.

● Midget House

Caddy, Suburban Tie, 6-6

Caddy Marines, leading the Midget House League with a 3-1-1 record, and second place Suburban Disposal (2-2-1) played to a 6-6 tie. Dennis Croke had two goals for Suburban and Kevin Jennette, Paul McCabe, Bill Ne and Bob Doyle one each. Dave DiCarlo had three assists, Bob Doyle two and Jamie Doyle, Joe Livingston, Ne, Croke and Jennette one each.

Fire Dept. topped the Police Club, 4-2, on goals by Frank Griffin, John Grenier, Rich Milano and Steve DeLuca. Griffin and Milano had assists. For Police Darby Flaherty and Ted Walsh had the goals and Dave Hickey and Mike Chennette had assists.

● Bantam House

D&H In First Place

Doran & Horrigan defeated Baskin Robbins, 2-1, to take over the Bantam House League lead with a 3-0-0 record.

Jim Burgess had both goals and Chris Holland had an assist.

Burgin Platner edged the Quincy Sun, 4-3, on goals by Dennis Shannon, Lee Little, Bob Reidy and Dave Edgren. Kevin Jay had two assists and Frank McArdle, Steve Golden and Shannon one each. Paul Gelanger, Paul McMillen and Mark McManus scored for the Sun with Barry Miller having two assists and Mark Jenkins and McMillen one each.

McGinn defeated Johnson Motors, 6-2.

Centerstage Theatre Company To Present 'All My Sons'

Quincy's Centerstage Theatre Company, formerly Quincy Community Theatre, will begin its fourth season with Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15.

The drama, which won the 1947 New York Drama Critics Award, will be staged at 8 p.m. each night at the Theatre Arts Complex of North Quincy High School.

Directing the play is Jeanne N. Armin whose credits include directing the Ralph Farris Choral, Boston Children's Theatre and Playwright's Platform.

Assisting her is Joanne Richardson Coleman, a member of the theatre company's board of directors.

Cast Members are Michael J. Moschella, Eric Bogle, Pat Bogle, Thomas Langstone, Steve Lincoln, Evelyn A. Hedrick, Edward Mortell, Jane Cartier, Linda Sullivan and Paul De-Grassie.

Tickets will be available at the door. Reduced price tickets are available for senior citizens, students and groups of 15 or more. An opening night dinner discount of 10% is also offered at Walsh's Restaurant, 9 Billings Rd.

For more information, call 471-0100 ext. 349, or 472-8950.

Centerstage Theatre Company is a community education program of the Quincy Public Schools and is dedicated to bringing quality theatre at low cost to the community.

3 Residents In 'Fiddler On The Roof'

Three Quincy residents will be appearing in the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's fall production of "Fiddler on the Roof" Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. at the Hingham High School auditorium.

They are Paul Mahoney, Violet MacDonald and Peter O'Laughlin.

A percentage of the profits from the musical will be donated to The Mayflower Parents of Multihandicapped Children Association. The organization is raising money for the purchase of a specially equipped van to transport the children.

Profits will also help support the music theatre's annual scholarship to a Hingham High School student planning a career in music and theater arts.

Tickets are on sale with group rates available and student and senior citizen discounts.

For more information, call 328-3066 or 749-7789.

Inmates Art Exhibit At North Library

The second annual art exhibit by the inmates of the Norfolk County House of Correction, is being held at the North Quincy Library, through November.

The work will be judged by Richard Ramsdell, Anet Paglierani and Robert A. LeNormand. All work will be for sale and the money will go to the inmates.

The opening reception was held Monday. Tea was served by Mrs. Arthur Tobin and Mrs. Clifford Marshall.

The exhibit is under the direction of Carol Babayan, art instructor.

Michael Costa In 'Life With Father'

Michael Costa, a student at North Quincy High School, will play John Day in The Company's production of "Life with Father", Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. at First Congregational Church of Weymouth.

Active in football and drama at the high school, Costa makes his acting debut with The Company in this production.

He plays one of four high spirited boys in the true story of the Day family of New York during the 1890's.

Other local residents involved in the production are directors Zoe Bradford and Jordie Saucerman, and assistant director Timothy Kilburn.

Tickets will be available at the door. Reduced rate tickets are available for students and senior citizens.

STARSCOPE

by Clare Annsweil

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 6.

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

Some financial loose ends being tied together and it's generally perfect week to tend to money matters. Moody friends cheer up slightly. Avoid gossip Monday-Tuesday.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

Small rewards on job plus more respect at home make for successful week. There's a lot of work involved here, so enjoy favorite forms of solo relaxation.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

Possible romantic setback but you're almost too busy to notice. Then again, that might be cause of problem. Communication and transportation tie-ups end Wednesday.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

Diplomacy is a must, especially in dealing with people who handle your finances. Love life begins to perk up by Saturday. Astrology and philosophy are good areas to probe now.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

Week is off to slow start—then you risk overcommitting yourself. Opportunity opens up for increased community status. Rely more—much more—on your own good judgement.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Commitments made now shouldn't be hard to keep, and integrity is impeccable. One caution relates to spending—especially on luxury items that are sure to be on sale after holidays.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Good week for giving yourself spruced-up look. Leo can be surprisingly coy now, even secretive. But don't make costly plans without consulting loved ones.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

It's easy to turn serious matter into joke, which can disturb partner. Tensions ease over family matter. Weekend accents shopping—especially bargain hunting.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Modest but steady financial gains accented. Friends of opposite sex very private but colleagues and/or neighbors support far out ideas. Play hunches after weekend.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Victory can be yours—through tact. Fact is stranger than fiction all week. Romantic mixup has its funny side. Best look right now is natural one.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

Fashion plays major role in week's event—so choose styles with special care. Shaky relationship is beginning to stabilize and difficult people are little easier to be with.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

Some friction in romantic life; take every-day-as-it-comes approach. You're spending extra time looking after ailing friends. Careerwise, don't worry about seeming overanxious.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Emotional, powerful, intensive—these terms describe your strengths and weaknesses—it depends on how you play your hand. Year ahead stresses self-improvement and features financial breakthrough and increased family responsibility.

BORN THIS WEEK

November 6th, director Mike Nichols; 7th, singer Joni Mitchell; 8th, actress Katharine Hepburn; 9th, comedian Ed Wynn; 10th, actor Richard Burton; 11th, comedian Jonathan Winters; 12th, Princess Grace.

Reagan, Prop. 2½, Eeley Win

Opposed by city employee groups and the League of Women Voters, it limits the municipal tax levy to 2.5 per cent of the total equalized valuation of the community.

It has the effect of state law and can be amended or even repealed by the Legislature. The General Court is expected to make changes in it, but cautiously, in view of its margin of voter popularity.

The first noticeable effect of Proposition 2½, unless it is altered by the Legislature, will be the reduction of the auto excise tax from $66 per $1,000 valuation to $25.

It also does away with fiscal autonomy for local school committees, binding arbitration for police and fire and some state financial mandates on cities and towns.

These were the results of the voting in Quincy on other referenda:

Question 1, a constitutional amendment prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped -- Yes, 22,415 to 14,962.

Question 3, limiting property taxes and raising the state's financial contribution to local education -- No, 25,697 to 12,892.

Question 4, increasing the salaries of Legislators and other state constitutional offices -- No, 34,701 to 3,819.

Question 5, limiting the power of the Legislature to impose certain costs on the cities and towns -- Yes, 20,947 to 15,135.

Question 6, changing the procedure by which the Legislature declares a measure to be an emergency law -- No, 26,905 to 9,619.

The results of the referenda appeared to reflect a desire on the part of the electorate to limit the power of the State Legislature and secure relief from property taxes, the highest in the nation.

Democratic candidates for other offices on the ballot were re-elected without opposition. They were:

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, Sen. Paul D. Harold, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, County Commissioners James J. Collins and George B. McDonald, and Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall.

In the 1976 election in Quincy, Jimmy Carter defeated then President Gerald Ford by 24,082 to 17,622 and Democrats all won handily in the four previous elections back to 1960.

The biggest margin was Lyndon B. Johnson's win over Barry Goldwater by 31,731 to 9,759.

Eisenhower's victory over Adlai Stevenson in Quincy in 1956 by a margin of 27,241 to 15,398 was the last in a long series of Republican triumphs.

Quincy was so staunchly Republican in those days that its voters even went for Alfred Landon over Franklin D. Roosevelt in the national Democratic landslide of 1936.

Three Girls Douse Fire

The quick thinking of three Atlantic Junior High seventh graders helped douse a small fire outside a Rawson Rd., North Quincy home Tuesday.

The three--Carol Mahoney, 12, of 200 Farrington St., Wollaston; Debbie Napolitano, 11, of 69 Rawson Rd. and Melissa Nord, 11, of 24 Taylor St., Wollaston--smelled a fire in a pile of leaves and wood outside a nearby garage, notified neighbors and put out the small blaze with a garden hose.

The small fire at 75 Rawson Rd., was apparently set by other youngsters at about 3:30 p.m.

"We smelled the fire, so I went to the front door, Melissa went to the back door and Carol got the garden hose," said Miss Mahoney.

Mrs. David Buckley, who lived in the house, called the fire department and another neighbor also helped out with another garden hose.

The flames, which had been four or five feet high, were subdued by the time firefighters arrived.

"They were pleased that we knew how to handle it," said Miss Napolitano.

No damage was caused by the small fire, according to the fire department.

MRS. LOUISA KENNEDY, wife of hostage Moorhead Kennedy, told participants in Sunday's vigil service she didn't blame President Jimmy Carter for the hostage situation. The recent return of hostage Richard Queen, she said, has helped the hostage families maintain their optimism.

UNITED FIRST PARISH CHURCH, Quincy Sq. was the scene of Sunday's inter-faith vigil service for the hostages in Iran. Among those looking upon the symbolic 52 candles are (center, front row) former Mayor and State Senator James McIntyre, Mayor Arthur Tobin and Sen. Paul Harold.

FIFTY-TWO CANDLES, representing the 52 hostages in Iran, were lit at the inter-faith vigil at historic United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq. Fr. William M. McCarthy of St. John's Church (lighting candles) and Rev. Gene Lahevin of First Church of Quantum each lit 26 candles.

Tobin Halts All Overtime

Police, Other Depts. May Go Broke

By TOM HENSHAW

Police Chief Francis X. Finn is scheduled to appear before the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday at 6:30 p.m. and indications that the police and other city agencies may go broke before the end of the fiscal year.

"If things go along the way they are now," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, "there is a possibility we will have insufficient money to make it to June 30."

As if to underline the problem, the Mayor issued an order halting overtime immediately in all city departments, including the Police and Fire Departments.

"I am directing the city auditor not to authorize payment of any overtime," he said. "That applies to everyone."

Tobin said he hopes to sit down with representatives of the city employee unions and iron out any contractual difficulties that may arise from the no overtime directive.

"I'm trying to take the least disruptive method for the city and the city employees," he said. "If the union start grieving me they're only going to make it more difficult for themselves."

"I am concerned about this year's budget," said Finn. "The Police Department is under-budgeted. It's a problem."

"I think what the Chief is saying," said Tobin "is that he wants to make sure he doesn't wait until June 30 and have everybody say, 'Why didn't you tell us?' We have a problem here and we ought to be doing things so that it doesn't happen."

"I'm not saying any department is going to run out of money," said City Auditor Charles L. Shea, "but someone is going to have to make decisions on which way they want to go."

Shea said he is compiling a report on the 1981 budget for the City Council and may be ready to report at the next Council meeting Monday night.

Tobin blamed the Council, which cut $11 million out of his budget last spring, for the current fiscal problem, which is known technically as an appropriation deficit.

"The Council made drastic cuts in public safety," he said. "We warned them that they would create a deficit and what we predicted came true."

"One of the areas where we feel the cuts were too much was the

Quincy Talks, E.F. Hutton Listens

E. F. Hutton — you know, when he talks everybody listens — apparently has been listening to Quincy.

A post-Proposition 2½ paper prepared by the Massachusetts Municipal Depository Trust contains some hints on money-saving bonding practices from E. F. Hutton's Research Department.

"You may wish to issue callable bonds with a five to seven year call protection," said one hint. "This will allow your community to refinance its bonds at a later date if current market conditions result in a high level of interest cost."

"Consider the use of municipal bond insurance in order to increase the marketability of your bonds and possibly reduce the cost," said another.

Quincy did both those things with an expected savings of thousands of dollars two months ago at the suggestion of Treasurer Robert E. Foy III.

"I guess when Quincy talks, E. F. Hutton listens," said Shea.

Mayor Tobin's Task Force on Proposition 2½ met for the first time Monday to take an initial peek at the municipal havoc that is expected to be wrought by the sweeping new tax limitation law.

Tobin dispatched a letter to city department heads to identify the most essential services that they perform and to notify them what a 15 per cent reduction in their budgets would entail.

"It's best that they know it from the start," said the Mayor. "Then we're going to have to deal with priorities. I'm sure the people of Quincy will want public safety affected last."

Tobin said Quincy is expected to lose $15 million in tax revenue the first year in which Prop 2½ takes effect. That would be fiscal 1982, which starts July 1, 1981.

"We have our jobs cut out for us," he said.

Earlier, Chief Assessor John P. Comer calculated that the city would lose $11 million — about $9 million in property taxes and $2 million in auto excise taxes — the first year.

"But everyone on the task force agreed that the figure is closer to $15 million," said the Mayor, "including many benefits for the people who will have to be laid off."

"And there are going to be layoffs. I don't want to mislead anyone. But there is a way of making layoffs that is the least disruptive. There are things that can be worked out.

"If any particular union, for any reason, takes an obstinate view and says, 'What's mine is mine and we're not going to try to take the least disruptive course,' at least I'll be able to say I tried."

Among other things, Prop 2½ limits the tax levy of the city to 2.5 per cent of its total equalized valuation and cuts the auto excise tax from $66 to $25 per thousand valuation.

While voters in Massachusetts went for it by a 3-2 margin, Quincy did even better. The Quincy vote was 26,859 in favor and 14,135

McCauley Urges No Action On Assessor Bill

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley has asked his Council colleagues to defer action on an order that would exempt the current Board of Assessors from new standards being set up by the state.

The order was first presented by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to the Council at the Nov. 3 meeting but it was tabled by the action of Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia. It will be back before the Council next Monday.

The bill requiring minimum standards was passed by the State Legislature at its last session and the usual procedure in such cases is to "grandfather in", or exempt, current holders of the office.

The standards have not yet been set but McCauley said Edward J. Collins, the deputy commissioner of revenue, told him that they will be made public in about 90 days.

"Assessors would then have three years to comply," said McCauley.

The Councillor pointed out that passage of the Classification Amendment and other legislation dealing with assessing procedures make it imperative that the Council review the minimum standards before making a decision.

Possible $5 Million

School Officials Huddle On Possible Budget Cuts

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School officials are meeting weekly to study a possible $5 million in budget cuts made necessary by the passage of Proposition 2½.

But, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon says he won't discuss the possible effects of those cuts until they are presented to the School Committee, "when the School Committee so requests them."

Creedon said the school system's share of the expected $15 million city-wide budget cut would come to about $5 million, if the burden were shared equally by all city departments.

"But," he emphasized, "the final determination of how much is spent on education in Quincy is up to the Quincy City Council."

The repeal of school committees' fiscal autonomy by Proposition 2½ has left it unclear whether the council has line-item approval of the school budget or may merely approve a lump sum for the school system, Creedon said.

"What we're doing now is costing out each and every program," said Creedon, "and separating what we are required to offer, by city, state and federal law, and what we are not."

"Take art education, for example. We are not required to offer anything in art education."

Administrators are also figuring how many teachers could be laid off should the School Committee decide to increase pupil-teacher ratio to any one of several levels. The ratio is now one teacher for every 20 or 21 students, Creedon said.

Complicating the situation, Creedon said, is the fact that collective bargaining agreements already signed and in effect would add about $1.7 million to the 1981-82 budget.

"That if there are no layoffs," he said.

That figure also doesn't include the $1.4 million in negotiated raises for school employees for 1979-80 which have yet to be paid. School Committee members have said they hoped to pay those raises during 1981-82.

Harold Opposes Ambler's Bid To Sell Recreational Facility

Rep. Robert B. Ambler (D-Weymouth) will get no support from Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) in his proposal to sell the money-losing Norfolk County Recreational Facility in Quincy.

Ambler filed legislation Monday to force county commissioners to sell the facility and its golf course, which he called "a luxury which I think the taxpayers of the county are willing to do without."

Harold said he would oppose any effort to sell the facility, which is the old Wollaston Golf Club course in Montclair, even though it is losing $100,000 a year.

"The original reason that the county purchased and developed the golf course was to preserve open space and provide a recreational facility for residents of the county," he said.

"It was never intended that the facility would be a money maker, no more than we expect MDC ice skating rinks or swimming pools to operate at a profit."

"To force the county to sell the facility, because there is a cost assessed to all the communities in the county would run contrary to the theory by which all metropolitan services are provided."

"Rep. Ambler's town of Weymouth has an MDC skating rink and pool that was built to serve many communities in the MDC district."

"If we follow Rep. Ambler's thinking, surrounding towns which pay an MDC assessment could force sale of Weymouth complex merely because the regional facility is not within their community's jurisdiction."

"With the further development at State Street South, the need for open space in Montclair is increased for both the neighborhood and those who make use of the recreational facility."

Ambler suggested that sale of the facility, which was purchased by the county seven years ago for $2 million, might soften the impact of Proposition 2½ by reducing county assessments to communities.

"It would make sense to me to reduce the size of such assessments before cutting into local services," he said. Proceeds of the sale would be distributed to county towns according to population.

Two years ago, the food concessionaire at the facility was frustrated by protests from the local community in his attempt to secure a liquor license, even though Ambler filed a bill that would authorize it.

Trucks Banned On 3 South Quincy Streets

The Traffic Commission has decided to ban trucks from Liberty, Rodman and Trafford Sts., South Quincy, "due to extenuating circumstances during the construction of the MBTA station."

In other recent actions, the Commission recommended: Pedestrian lights on Adams St. in the vicinity of Greenview St., Wollaston.

No parking anytime on Presidents Lane from Dimmock St. and Monroe Rd. and no parking tow zone on both sides of Presidents Lane from Monroe Rd.

to Lawton Rd.

One way signs on Tyler St. and Oxenbridge Rd. from Billings Rd. to Vassall St., Wollaston, for a trial period of 90 days.

A loading zone, requested by Lion Labels Inc., 56 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, on the east side of Newbury Ave. 65 feet northerly from Walker St. for a distance of 50 feet.

But the commission denied a request for no parking sign in front of 83 Whiton Ave., Quincy Point, because it "does not look favorably on making recommendations for single residences."

Costing City $5,000 A Day

Shea Blasts State On Tax Rate Delay

The Quincy tax rate for 1981 is still in the hands of the State Department of Revenue, which does not appear to be in any hurry to report one out.

An angry Auditor Charles L. Shea blamed Edward J. Collins Jr., deputy commissioner of revenue, for the delay, which he said is costing the city some $5,000 a day in interest on short term loans.

"I went in Boston to see them Monday morning," said Shea. "I wanted to sit down and talk with them. But they were in conference so I left."

"Then I see in the Ledger Monday night that the deputy commissioner has time to be interviewed by a reporter while I'm busting my tail on the MBTA to see him and he won't talk to me."

"Collins is the epitome of bureaucratic incompetence."

The tax rate is expected to be $242.60, an increase of $18.60 over that of 1980, provided the city's figures hold up under Department of Revenue scrutiny.

"There were three or four areas in which they requested additional backup material," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "It was hand-delivered to them Monday morning."

"We hoped that when it was delivered we could have a conversation with them and explain our figures face-to-face, but that was not possible. So we just left the information."

"We're still waiting."

Tobin said the four areas that were questioned were School Department receipts, the MBTA garage sale, additions to retirement costs, and hospital reimbursements for Medicare and Blue Cross.

The city is in the process of selling two floors of the Quincy Center station garage to the MBTA and, said Shea, the sale price is an acceptable receipt against the tax rate.

"We had an MBTA auditor out here last week and what we brought into the Department of Revenue Monday were his findings, which happened to come out the same as ours," he said.

Burgin Parkway Closed Friday

Burgin Parkway near the intersection of Granite St. will be closed most of the day tomorrow (Friday) while cement is poured for construction of the UDAG parking garage.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said the roadway will be closed to traffic at 9 a.m. and remain closed for at least five or six hours.

Security Guard Possible

Tobin Asks Aid To Curb Vandalism At Oceanview

Mayor Arthur Tobin has asked the Housing Authority for aid for residents of Oceanview Apartments in Germantown, who were the victims of vandalism over the weekend.

"I received a call over the weekend from some residents at Oceanview who were subjected to acts of vandalism this past week," Tobin said. "They had 11 tires slashed outside Oceanview on Saturday."

"I don't want to give the good kids of Germantown a bad name," said Tobin, "but why would anyone want to commit these senseless acts?"

Senior citizen residents reported seeing five youths running away from the cars, Tobin said, "but we don't know if they're from Germantown or from the outside."

QHA Chairman Rev. William McCarthy was "extremely cooperative" when contacted, said Tobin, and promised to contact Quincy CETA officials about the possibility of a security guard for the senior citizen housing complex.

"With the passage of Proposition 2½ it's going to become more and more difficult to combat these acts of vandalism," Tobin said.

Della Chiesa Parking Lot Closed

The $10 million Center Plaza building took another step forward this week with the closing of the Della Chiesa parking area.

The 115-space lot was permanently closed to the public yesterday (Wednesday) to make way for the long-awaited Campanelli - Stop and Shop building. Construction of a five-floor garage adjacent to that building and over the MBTA tracks is now underway.

Ground for that garage was broken in September with completion expected in late 1981.

'Our Bodies, Ourselves' Authors To Lead Nov. 19 Workshop

Judy Norsigian and Jane Pincus, contributing authors of the women's health book, "Our Bodies, Ourselves", will be guest speakers at a workshop Wednesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at the City Hall Annex.

The workshop, in the second floor conference room, is the second in a monthly series sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Quincy Junior College Women's Center and Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Miss Norsigian and Miss Pincus, members of the Boston Women's Health Book Collective, will discuss many of the topics covered in the book.

Published in 1971, the book has been used by women, clinics and courses as a tool to help understand, accept and be responsible for their physical selves. It is one of the first such books to be written by women.

Topic will include nutrition, deciding whether to have children, childbearing, sexuality, health care and common medical problems.

Stated Deborah Ormon, Mayor's Commission chairperson, "Women can often become frustrated and angry because they do not receive sufficient information about their medical care."

"This workshop is designed to help educate women to become better health care consumers and to become more comfortable with their rights as patients" said Miss Ormon.

Other topics to be discussed are things to look for when choosing a doctor such as qualifications, the need for a specialist and willingness to share information.

Also on the agenda will be what to consider when choosing among medical care options and questions that should be asked.

The women's role in deciding upon treatment as well as how to cope with hospitals, illness and clinics will be explored.

"Health Care is an issue that affects women of all ages", stated Miss Ormon. "The program is free and open to the public and we encourage as many people as possible to attend and hear these highly respected authors."

Future programs planned by the commission as part of the series will be on Parental Stress, Re-Entering the Job Market and Divorce.

'Biblical Feminism' Seminar At ENC

The newly formed Greater Boston Chapter of the Evangelical Women's Caucus will hold a seminar on "Biblical Feminism" Saturday, 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston.

Dr. David Scholer of Gordon-Cromwell Seminary will lead a morning seminar on "The Role and Status of Women in the New Testament".

Afternoon workshop discussion groups will be on "Women in the Church", "Women and Families", "Women Being Single", "Women and Marriage", "Women and Work", and "Women in Crisis/Transition".

Men and women are invited to attend and bring a lunch. For more information, call ENC at 964-8047.

FAMILY FIRE DRILLS

Fire drills are just as necessary at home as in schools. A person who knows what to do in case of fire is not so likely to panic and become trapped.

Sit down with your family and map out a fire escape route and alternate from every room, especially bedrooms. Don't count too heavily on using stairways for exits because they are usually the first to be flooded with smoke and heat.

A porch roof or garage deck are ideal havens while awaiting rescue. Where these are not available, a rope ladder can be stored in an upstairs bedroom and dropped out in a few seconds.

Teach everyone the "bedroom door heat test". Feel before opening. It's hot or even warm, keep it closed and go out the window. Open it and you'll be felled by a blast of hot air and fumes.

Decide on a meeting point outside the house so no one will be tempted to return for someone who is already safe. Practice fire drills not once but often. They may, one day, save the lives of your family.

Volunteers On Horseback

'County Mounties' Seek Enforcement Role

By TOM HENSHAW

The little folks who trick or treat around Copeland St. in West Quincy were flabbergasted Halloween when they were joined by four masked Lone Rangers on real horseback.

They were members of the Massachusetts County Mounted Patrol — "the County Mounties" — demonstrating a public service they can perform by riding herd on Halloween pranks.

"We provided volunteer patrols last year in Brookline," says Edward Oliver-Bohld, their leader. "People remarked how much quieter Halloween was, how comforting the clip-clop of horses hooves."

"Next Halloween we'd like to sponsor a contest for kids in the Quincy area where they would dress up as headless horsemen and trick or treat from door-to-door on horseback."

But the concept and objectives of the County Mounties go far beyond an annual appearance with the witches and goblins at Halloween.

They would like to be recognized by the Quincy Police as sort of a mounted auxiliary. They were so recognized once in Brookline. So far, in Quincy, it's been no go.

"We don't want any volunteer organizations that are not trained and sworn as police officers," says Police Chief Francis X. Finn. "It could leave us open to civil liabilities."

The Mounties, a dozen strong plus three cadets, moved their headquarters to the Brookdale Stables on Willard St., West Quincy, last August after stops in Boston and Taunton.

It was one of the Mounties whose horse left the mysterious hoofprint on McIntyre Mall that piqued the curiosity of the city a couple of months ago.

The group was founded in 1974 by Oliver-Bohld, an entertainer who performs under the name of Edward Oliver, with the blessing of then Suffolk County Sheriff Thomas S. Eisenstadt.

But, as a supplement to the sheriff's department, the Mounties never really got off the ground.

"We were a low priority item," says Oliver. "We never got further than informal training sessions on rented horses. When Dennis Kearney became sheriff, he had no use for a mounted patrol."

Oliver, a horse fancier from an early age, did not want to see his idea go down the drain. He put his own money into it. Since 1977 he figures he has invested some $5,000 in the Mounties.

When the prestige of special deputy sheriff was withdrawn most of the membership withdrew, too. Oliver and one remaining member found a facility in Taunton where they could use horses at a reasonable rate.

"Membership went up to 10 people," says Oliver, "but we weren't getting the type of people who were interested in public service. They were more interested in bargain basement horseback riding."

So it was back to Boston with headquarters in a stable in the Franklin Park area. They formed an auxiliary attachment to the Brookline police, supplementing member's dues with merchants contributions.

In Brookline, they used their horses to help break up a street fight. Another time, one of the Mounties was involved in rounding up and arresting two men for stealing cars from a gas station.

"We left Brookline because we were looked upon as competition by the police," says Oliver. "Now the Brookline police have a two man special mounted unit. They used to be in our organization."

Members of the Mounties pay $60 a month in dues, which Oliver views as a factor in keeping out the vigilante types.

"We run a tight ship," he says. "Most law enforcement people don't see us as a vigilante group. In fact, we have even consulted with Sheriff John Buckley on a mounted patrol for Middlesex County."

While marking time on law enforcement, the Mounties hire out to watch large estates, keep an eye on guests' cars at parties and provide celebrity escorts — "two horses with a uniformed dashing duo." They are a colorful lot with distinctive uniforms "so we can't be confused with the police."

Members wear gold shirts or jackets, blue pants with gold stripes, blue and gold motorcycle helmets, black boots with spurs and saddle pads with the Mountie emblem.

Oliver himself is a city boy from South Boston, normal in every respect until his father, who was publisher of the Civil Service Reporter, bought a building behind the City Police Stables in Boston.

He fell in love with horses. As a teen ager he exercised them. "I wanted to grow up to be a mounted police officer," he says. We joined the National Lancers, an organization that is similar to the Ancients.

There wasn't much market for a professional horseman so he went into the music business. He runs an agency that books his own bands. He sings, too, billed in the Screen Actors Guild guide as "the Singing Mountie."

And if you think Ed Oliver looks vaguely familiar, he played the role of Paul Revere in the Sears house paint commercial on TV. He was also John Adams, on foot, in another Sears commercial.

Right now, Oliver and his Mounties are attempting to start a group called "Operation Guardian Angel", which he describes as a sort of One Hundred Club for civilians.

"It would raise money to make cash awards to civilians who are injured or killed in police situations like the One Hundred Club does for policemen and fire fighters," says Oliver.

"It's for people who are willing to stick their necks out."

Vigil For The Hostages

By FRANK MORTIMER

Cynthia Bain, my 10-year old daughter, wanted to attend the candlelight vigil at First Parish Church Sunday afternoon.

She wanted to show that she cares about the Americans held captive in Iran. She wanted to see and hear Louisa Kennedy, the wife of a hostage. And she was curious about the big granite church itself.

She's toured the church with school groups, seen the room where two presidents and their wives are entombed, heard the news that the historic structure was recently donated to the U.S. National Parks Service. But a tour is a tour. This was action, and she didn't want to miss it.

I did.

The crowd was going to be huge. How could it be otherwise? Here was a chance to meet a real victim of Iran's cruelty; here was a chance to see flesh and blood proof that the ever present "hostage situation" is more than an impression on a television screen. This city-wide, interfaith vigil was a chance for any and all in this city of 85,000 to express their hopes and fears together - instead of muttering curses, alone, over a newspaper.

And I wanted none of it. I wanted private peace, not public peace. I wanted the freedom to go to the fridge for a baloney sandwich.

I weighed Cindy's side and my own, and came up with a sensible compromise: I said no. Well, it wasn't that harsh. I softened the refusal:

"We already went to church today," I said.

Cindy, somehow, wasn't impressed.

"Besides, we might not be able to get a babysitter for Kate," I added.

"Robin might be home. I think she'll sit."

"Forget it, Cindy. Anyway, it's supposed to rain this afternoon."

"I'll wear my raincoat."

As usual, she tried to be reasonable. If only she's say "Please, oh please" in that nagging way some children have. Then it would be easy to say no.

Still, I was firm. "Forget it. There's other things to do."

She nodded her head, turned, and left the room. She went into the living room and turned on the TV.

At about 3:15, 45 minutes before the vigil was to begin, I climbed into sneakers and sweatpants. I stopped in the living room to let Cindy know I'd be out jogging for 20 minutes. I asked her to listen for the baby, in case she wakes up. She said okay. She did not say it's supposed to rain.

"What are you watching," I asked.

"Pippi Longstocking."

"What's Pippi Longstocking?"

"It's about a girl - her mother's up in heaven, and her father's king of an island. Pippi sleeps with her head on

The Mayor And Prop. 2 1/2

Well, voters really sent a loud and clear message to their elected officials last week with a resounding "Yes" for Proposition 2 1/2.

Anyone on Beacon Hill or at City Hall who didn't receive it, has to be blind, deaf or just plain stupid.

And, any of them who ignore it should take up Russian roulette as a hobby. It might be safer.

So the answer to Question 2 is there for all to see. Now, that answer has spawned another question on the local political front:

What affect will it have on Quincy's mayoral race next year?

Will anyone want to run knowing there are hard days and tough decisions ahead for the man (or woman) who sits in the hot seat at City Hall the next two years.

The mayor, for those first two critical years under Proposition 2 1/2, is going to have to say "No" to a lot of people. And a lot of people don't like hearing "No."

His Honor (Her Honor) may wind up spending half of the $25,000 mayoral salary on aspirin or tip-toe around with a basket-sized headache.

It's going to take a thick skin, strong stomach and plain old fashioned guts to occupy the mayor's office. And, with all those windows facing Hancock St. the art of dodging might help a bit, too.

Maybe that's a little exaggerated. But the fact is the mayor's job is going to get a lot tougher before it gets easier.

For openers incumbent Arthur Tobin is going to have to cut the municipal budget by $15 million next year unless there's a gold mine in the City Hall basement waiting to be discovered.

Will Tobin want another term?

Before Proposition 2 1/2 he seemed like he was leaning toward another run and right now still looks like he's interested.

Maybe he figures he has already had to deal with a few tough decisions like his stands on teachers and nurses salary increases and sees them as his baptism for Proposition 2 1/2.

He also has a few projects underway like the Campanelli office building and UDAG garage in downtown and the O'Connell brothers buildings in North Quincy. And no doubt would like to still be around as mayor when they cut the ribbon.

What about the potential contenders? Names like Frank McCauley, James Sheets, Joseph LaRaia and Joanne Condon have been mentioned frequently.

Will Proposition 2 1/2 give them second thoughts?

For that matter, will anyone want to run for mayor?

REFLECTIONS on the Reagan-Republican landslide in the recent election:

DONNELLY

"I represent a vanishing breed," said Cong. Brian J. Donnelly at ground-breaking ceremonies for the Monarch II office building in North Quincy, "A Democrat who is returning to Washington in January, 1981."

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath says he knows how President Carter feels, having lost a bid for the Democratic nomination for State Representative due largely to overwhelming support for Rep. Thomas F. Brownell from Houghs Neck.

"I watched the map on television filling up with Reagan's color," said McGrath. "It was like a bunch of Houghs Necks sneaking up on you."

SIGN OF THE TIMES? - At a recent family liturgy at St. John's Church, Quincy Center, Rev. Joseph Byrne had children at the service gather around him as he asked them what costumes they wore at Halloween.

The children gave the usual answers: they dressed up as clowns, godzilla, witches, and, some imaginative ones as chocolate chip cookies.

But one child had dressed up as a priest.

"And what is your name," asked Fr. Byrne for the benefit of those who couldn't see the child.

"Jennifer" she replied.

"If that comes about Fr. Byrne smiled "there sure will be a change in rectory living!" Parishioners applauded.

Quincy Quiz

This week saw a record number of both entries and correct responses to the Quincy Quiz.

Donald P. Uvanitte, 10 Beebe Rd., Germantown and Carol Lydon, 7 Orchard St., Squantum, will receive Quincy Sun T-shirts for being the first readers to answer all five questions correctly.

Quincy Sun bumper stickers will be awarded to Harold Spencer, 74 Union St. Quincy Point and Bryant I. Carter, 102 Faxon Rd., North Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the longest city street, excluding state and MDC roadways?

2. What is the name of the principal of North Quincy High School?

3. What roadways would the proposed East-West Connector in Quincy Center connect?

4. In what section of the city is radio station WJDA?

5. When the mayor is out of town or incapacitated, what city official is acting mayor?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Joanne Condon is the City Councillor who represents the Squantum section.

2. Dennis F. Ryan is the clerk of the District Court of East Norfolk and former member of the Board of Managers of Quincy City Hospital.

3. The Quincy Adams Yacht Yard was on Town River Bay off Palmer St. between Adams Shore and Germantown.

4. Sterling Junior High School is in the South Quincy section of the city.

5. The nine Roman Catholic churches in Quincy are Most Blessed Sacrament, Our Lady of Good Counsel, Sacred Heart, St. Ann's, St. Boniface, St. John the Baptist, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's and Star of the Sea.

Drivers Who Injure Dogs, Cats Must Report Accident

Any driver who strikes and injures or kills a dog or cat must report the accident to the animal's owner or to a police officer in the town that it occurs, according to a new state law. Norfolk County Dog Officer Harold Robbins stated violation of the Chapter 426 law, effective as of June, 1980, is punishable by a $50 fine.

Said Robbins, "Most people stop and report these accidents but that small minority who leave an animal injured or dying on the highway must now face up to their responsibility or pay."

Enrichment Program Parents Night At Lincoln Hancock

The Lincoln Hancock Community School Office of Community Education will hold a Reading and Math Enrichment Program Parents Night tonight (Thursday) 7-8 p.m. in Community Room 11 on the school's lower level.

Parents of children in the program are invited to attend. Teachers will be available for consultation and parents will have an opportunity to view their child's work.

Thanks Volunteers For Blood Donations

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The St. John's Semi-Annual and first Michael DeThomaso Memorial Bloodmobile held at St. John's School Oct. 15, was a great success. There were 113 donors on hand and 96 pints of blood were collected.

The blood was collected in triple-pack. It was picked up once an hour from the donor center and brought to the Red Cross lab where it was separated. Plasma and platelets were taken out and were ready for immediate use in area hospitals. Plasma is used especially for shock patients and serious injuries. Platelets are used especially for leukemia patients. Collecting the blood in triple-pack means the 96 pints of blood can be used to help approximately 288 people.

We would like to thank the Red Cross volunteers who were under the direction of Mrs. Arlene Noonan and the Red Cross nurses and staff. They helped to make the bloodmobile the success that it was.

We would also like to say a special thanks to all the donors and to Mrs. Marion Horne, Mr. Duncan MacLean and Mr. Carl Brown who helped us in organizing the bloodmobile.

We are looking forward to next year's bloodmobile and hope we will again have your support.

COLLECTED PAPERS of late Laurence J. Curtin, former City Councillor and longtime civic leader are turned over to the Quincy Historical Society. Left to right, Laurence J. Historic Curtin Papers Entrusted To Historical Society

Three decades of Quincy history from 1930 to 1960 were turned over to the Quincy Historical Society for posterity last week.

The clippings, papers and other memorabilia collected by Laurence J. Curtin during his career as a city councillor and civic leader were presented to the Historical Society at ceremonies in the Adams Academy.

Curtin, who died Oct. 12, 1979, served on the City Council from 1931 to 1936 and from 1939 to 1942 and later led the fight to overthrow Plan E and restore the Plan A form of government to Quincy.

Sen. Paul D. Harold, who gave the papers to the Historical Society after receiving them from his widow, Mrs. Margaret L. Curtin, called Curtin "one of the leading architects of the present form of government in Quincy."

"He served on the City Council during two of the most critical periods of Quincy's recent history, the great depression and the war years," he said.

"Unlike many politicians, even when he was out of office he retained a deep interest in his city and the welfare of its people."

Harold, who was elected to the City Council at the age of 27 and state senator at the age of 30, referred to himself as "one of Larry Curtin's proteges."

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley also praised Curtin for his work on the Council and for founding the Quincy Citizens Association, the group that sponsored the presentation last week.

McCauley noted that the 'City Council two nights previously had voted unanimously to have a plaque placed in the Council Chamber in Curtin's honor, the first councillor to be singled out in such a way.

McCauley said the plaque would be paid for by private funds.

Dr. James Cameron, president of the Historical Society, called the Curtin papers a valuable addition to its collection of original research material.

Also attending the presentation ceremony were Curtin's widow, Mrs. Margaret Curtin, his son, Laurence J. Curtin Jr. of Braintree, and several grandchildren.

MBTA To Register

Seniors, Handicapped Nov. 18

An MBTA registration team will be in Quincy Tuesday, Nov. 18, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. to process applications for reduced fare identification cards for senior citizens and the handicapped.

The registration will be held at the Senior Drop-In Center on High School Ave.

To be eligible, senior citizens must bring proof of age, 65 or older, through birth certificate, baptismal record, or driver's license; and proof of residency. There is a 50 cent cash fee.

Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.

Senior citizens who already have reduced fare ID cards need not register again. Once the card is issued it is good for life.

Handicapped persons must present proof of disability, such as a letter from Social Security, evidence of 70 per cent or more disability as determined by the Veterans' Administration or completion of MBTA Form No. SN-7.

The MBTA forms will be mailed to anyone requesting them by calling the Special Needs Office at 722-5438.

Austin, Brett Clash Over Hospital

City Councillor Edna B. Austin termed "utterly ridiculous" a late attempt by Councillor-elect Joseph E. Brett to block construction of a $2 million addition to City Hospital.

Other members of the Council and I have been studying this proposal for more than 10 years," said Mrs. Austin, who is chairman of the Council's Finance Committee.

"We were convinced that it was good business for the city or we would not have approved that $1,750,000 bond issue last October."

But Councillor James R. McIntyre, noting that he had voted against the bond issue, came to Brett's defense, saying the addition would not be needed if the hospital stopped admitting out-of-town residents as patients.

TRANSIT PLAN BLASTED

A proposal by Boston Mayor John B. Hynes for a $300 million state-financed Metropolitan Transit Authority to absorb the New Haven Railroad's commuter lines met a hostile reception in Quincy.

Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy) called the proposal "one more endeavor for Boston to unload its financial and economic problems on the state."

George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, demanded that the MTA "put its own house in order" before asking the South Shore to consider the plan.

He noted that the MTA had a record $12 million deficit this year.

NEW POLICE ASKED

City Manager Edward T. Lewis said he plans to ask the City Council for funds to add five new officers to the Quincy Police Department after the city voted a five-day week for policemen.

Denis J. Donoghue, 39 State Police Corporal

A funeral Mass was said yesterday (Wednesday) at Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Stoughton, for State Police Corporal Denis J. Donoghue Jr., 39, formerly of Quincy, who died Sunday at his home in Stoughton.

A 16 year State Police veteran, he died from an accidental gunshot wound to his head, police said. He was found dead in his living room with his .38 snub-nose revolver nearby.

Born in Quincy, he had lived in Dorchester before moving to Stoughton 14 years ago. He attended schools in Dorchester as well as Suffolk and Boston Universities.

Mr. Donoghue was an instructor in swimming and motorcycling at the State Police Academy. He was instrumental in forming the K-9 program with the State Police.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kathleen (Hennessey) Donoghue; two sons, Denis J. 3rd and William J., both of Stoughton; his father, Denis J. Donoghue Sr., of Quincy; three brothers, Michael, Paul and Joseph, all of Quincy; two sisters, Brenda Sharkey of Vienna, Va., Judith Simpkins of Derry, N.H. and Mary Lee Donoghue of Quincy.

Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery, Stoughton.

Mrs. Louise (Nash) Drew, 88, Organist, Choir Director

Funeral services were held Nov. 7 at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Weymouth, for Mrs. Louise (Nash) Drew of Quincy, retired organist and choir director for several local churches.

Mrs. Nash died Nov. 4 at a local nursing home.

Born in Abington, she had lived over 40 years in Quincy and was also a former resident of North Weymouth. Among the churches she served as organist and choir director are Wollaston Baptist Church, Wollaston Methodist Church, Atlantic Methodist and Union Congregational Church of East Braintree.

She was also a former member of the Women's Fellowship of Pilgrim Congregational Church. Wife of the late George K. Drew, she is survived by a daughter Mrs. Marjorie Hopkinson of North Weymouth; four grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Rev. John B. Welch, 78, Associate St. Ann's

A concelebrated funeral Mass was said Tuesday at St. Ann's Wollaston for Rev. John B. Welch, 78, an associate at St. Ann's.

Fr. Welch died Nov. 7 at Carney Hospital, Dorchester. He had been said daily Masses at St. Ann's since his retirement in 1978 from Resurrection Parish in Hingham.

Fr. Welch became the first pastor of the Hingham parish in 1958, when he established the church at the request of the late Richard Cardinal Cushing.

He was honored by more than 500 parishioners and friends in June, 1978, upon his retirement after nearly 20 years at Resurrection Parish. He then became an associate at St. Ann's where his long-time friend, Rev. Joseph McDonough, is assigned. A graduate of Boston College and St. John's Seminary, he was ordained in 1931. He served at St. Rose Church in Chelsea, St. Peter and Paul Church in South Boston and Sacred Heart Church in Malden before helping to found Resurrection Church.

He was the son of the late James and Margaret (Boyle) Welch of Roxbury.

Burial was in St. Paul Cemetery, Hingham.

Rev. Robert D. O'Brien, 65, Priest, Professor, Poet

A funeral Mass was said Nov. 10 at St. Boniface Church, Germantown, for Rev. Robert D. O'Brien, 65, of Germantown, who had formerly served as associate pastor at St. Mary's in West Quincy.

Born in Marlboro, he was a graduate of Shadowbrook in Lexington, Weston College and St. John's Seminary in Brighton.

He was a retired professor at Boston College and also taught at Milton Academy, Harvard University, St. John's Prep in Danvers, Marymount College in New York and St. Mary's College in Emmitsburg, Md.

He has served as associate pastor at St. Albert's Church, East Weymouth and also served at parishes in Somerville, Concord, Arlington, Lynn, Jamaica Plain and Dorchester.

Rev. O'Brien was also a poet, and had his work published in Atlantic Monthly and other magazines.

He went on sick leave in 1970 and retired two years ago. He had been assisting at St. Aidans Parish in Dorchester.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary (Skelly) O'Brien of Germantown and his sister, Mary O'Brien of Middleboro.

Burial was in Immaculate Conception Cemetery, Marlboro.

Mrs. Katherine A. Gorman, 81 Wife Of Retired Fire Chief

A funeral Mass will be said today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at St. John's Church, Quincy, for Mrs. Katherine A. (Clark) Gorman, 81, wife of retired Quincy Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman Sr.

Mrs. Gorman died Nov. 10, at Franvale Nursing Home, Braintree, following a long illness.

Born and educated in Boston, she moved from Dorchester to Quincy 50 years ago to raise her five children. She was a former member of St. John's Ladies Sodality.

Her husband retired as fire chief in 1967 after a 42 year career with the Quincy Fire Department.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sons, Thomas F. Gorman, Jr., a captain in the Quincy Fire Department, and Daniel A. Gorman, both of Quincy; three daughters, Patricia Plourde of Weymouth, Mary Lou Thomas of Braintree and Doris Gorman of Quincy; two brothers, Albert Clark and Joseph Clark, both of Dorchester; and nine grandchildren.

Visiting hours were scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. at Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

'Bethel Bible Series'

At Faith Lutheran Church

Pastor James L. Kimmell of Faith Lutheran Church is conducting "The Bethel Bible Series", a four-year intensive Bible program, for 12 trainees who are members of the congregation.

The trainees are Mrs. Sandy Barnes, Sue Brighton, Julie Christenson, Michael Crumbliss, Kirk Davis, Mrs. Chris Ferguson, Chet French, Larry Johnson, Margaret McCarthy, Mrs. Hanna Salomaa, William Satterlund and Mrs. Jeanne Satterlund.

The program involves two years of two-hour weekly lectures and approximately eight hours of homework per week.

The first year of training covers the Old Testament, and the second year the New Testament. The learning method incorporates memorization of 40 pictures which carry the concepts of scripture and bible study.

Following the learning period, the trainees will teach the course to other members of the congregation.

Rev. Kimmell spent two weeks in Madison, Wisc., last year in preparation for teaching the program.

'SS. Ambrose-Francis Court Memorial Mass At St. Mary's'

SS. Ambrose-Francis Court, Catholic Association of Foresters, will hold a memorial Mass Saturday, Nov. 22, at 4 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

A meeting will follow in Rev.

John J. Mullarkey Hall in the lower church. Guests are welcome. Signed attendance slips with names of guests should be returned by Nov. 15.

Virginia M. Davis is chief ranger.

'Peace Child' Film

At Glad Tidings Church

"Peace Child", a film on primitive life in the jungles of Irian Jaya, was scheduled to be shown last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the upstairs sanctuary of Glad Tidings Church, 158 Washington St., Quincy.

Filmed in the jungles of what was formerly Dutch New Guinea, the film documents the reaction of stone age people to the message of the Gospel of Christ.

PSSB Benefit Concert Sunday

The Protestant Social Service Bureau will present a benefit concert featuring folk singers Jim and Dick Peterson of Quincy and baritone Lewis Williams of Boston Sunday at 2 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

Jim Peterson studied at the Berklee School of Music and his father attended the New England Conservatory of Music where he was a pupil of Bernard Berberian.

He was also soloist for many years at Hingham's Old Ship Church and the First Church, Christ Scientist, Braintree, as well as president of the Braintree Choral Society.

Williams, who studied with Ludwig Bergman of Boston University, is a pupil of Marion Fisher Robertson of Boston and Marblehead.

A soloist with the Eva Jessye Concert Choir, he has appeared on radio, television and in summer stock.

His selections will include spirituals as well as works by Haydn, Dvorak and other composers.

Elinor McDowell will be accompanist for the concert.

Proceeds will benefit the adoption and counseling programs of PSSB which serves 10 South Shore communities.

For more information, call 773-6203.

John Eliot Series Continues At Squantum Church

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum heard Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preach a sermon Sunday on "Waban: One of Our Christian Ancestors."

The sermon was the third in a series on "John Eliot and His Friends." The series commemorates the great missionary work done in the Boston area in the mid 1600's by John Eliot, the "apostle to the Indians," and those native Americans who converted to Christ at that time.

Waban was the Indian leader at Nonantum in Newton who first invited Eliot to come to preach to his people Oct. 26, 1646.

Dr. Langevin recounted Waban's pilgrimage into faith, beginning with the young Indian's traumatic teen-age years when, about 1619, nine-tenths of the Indians in New England perished with a "great sickness" now thought to have been influenza.

Waban first sent his own son to be educated in Roxbury by the apostle Eliot. Later he invited the missionary to teach the Christian faith to the people in his tribe.

With Eliot's help, Waban promulgated laws to improve the lives of his people and encouraged them to adopt new lifeways that were essential for them in order to survive.

In 1650, Waban moved with his people to Natick where the first "Praying Indian" village was established. Waban adopted the first name of Thomas and became the town's first clerk. He also served his community as a "ruler of fifties" or a judge. By 1660, the Indian congregation at Natick was fully recognized by the Puritans as a Christian church.

Over the years of Eliot's life, thousands of native Americans were converted to Christ and brought within the "praying Indian" towns and villages throughout eastern Massachusetts. There they learned to read Eliot's translation of the Bible in their own Algonquian language. They also acquired trades and new democratic values which improved the quality of their lives.

At the time of Waban's death in 1685, he had not only found salvation for himself in the Christian faith but had led his people into a new way of life which allowed them to share in the good things of the new emerging society.

The Youth Choir sang "They'll Know We Are Christians By Our Love" by Peter Scholtes. Accompanying the choir were Sarah Midram on xylophone, Susan Scott on glockenspiel, Tom Adams on tambourine and Steve Williams on wood block. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The Senior Choir sang "There Is A Balm in Gilead," by William L. Dawson. Robert Frazer was soloist.

Each person attending the service received a copy of the first page of Eliot's translation of the Bible. Greeters were Warren and Marjorie Miller and their granddaughter Tracy. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Gloria Cutler, Fred MacMillan and Isabelle Preston.

The series concludes next Sunday with a sermon on Cutchamekin, an Indian leader in the Quincy-Milton area. Worship begins at 10:15 a.m.

Next week, Sunday School will begin meeting fifteen minutes earlier at 9:15 a.m. Cinnamon Toast, a separate Christian education program, will continue to meet for breakfast at 8:30 a.m.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield area. When that is in deficit it affects the whole city but it affects more people in the Police Department because it is one of the bigger departments."

Compounding the difficulties is the uncertainty of federal revenue-sharing funds and auto excise tax money.

Revenue-sharing funds are assigned to the Police Department budget when it is made up in the spring but Congress has not yet passed the revenue sharing bill for this year. Usually, the city receives notification in August or September.

As a result of Proposition 2½, the auto excise tax is cut from $66 a thousand to $25. If it goes into effect Jan. 1, the city will lose about $1.5 million in anticipated revenue that has already been assigned in the current budget.

Guidance Counsellors

Attend Aquinas Reception

Guidance counsellors from the two Quincy high schools attended a reception recently at Aquinas Junior College in Milton as part of the school's 25th anniversary

There is some dispute as to when the excise tax cut takes effect.

Citizens for Limited Taxation, which drew up and sponsored Proposition 2½, thinks it is Jan. 1 but the State Department of Revenue thinks it may be July 1, 1981.

Finn originally was asked to appear before the Public Safety Committee to update the Council on plans to farm out the ambulance service, on the status of 18 vacancies in the department, and on delivery of new police radios.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley added the discussion on the 1981 budget. The Council cut some $420,000 out of the request for the Police Department.

"I wanted to find out how one department head is coping with the action of the City Council," said McCauley. "Is he going to make it or what's going to happen in his department?"

celebration.

In attendance were Gerald Ridge of North Quincy and William Hutchinson and Robert Nolan, both of Quincy.

Vigil For The Hostages

the bottom of the bed and her feet on the pillow. It's really funny."

I looked at my daughter curled up on the chair, squinting at the blurred image of this motherless child with odd sleeping habits. I looked down at my jogging shoes.

"Cindy, I think there's still time to make it to the church. I'll try to get a sitter."

She looked at the TV, at me, and back to the program. "Don't you want to go anymore?"

"I'm not sure."

"Well, let's go anyway."

We rounded up Jason. Cindy's eight year old brother was building a spaceship with legos in his room, oblivious to earthly matters.

All were dressed in 10 minutes, the sitter arrived, and off we went. As we walked I quizzed the kids about the matter at hand. Where are the hostages? How long have they been there? Why are we going to this church?

Iran. Over a year. To pray. They knew the answers.

Good thing, I thought. A big event like this will be well covered by the media. Wouldn't it be just like one of those TV reporters to grab a kid for an interview. No sense letting the child suffer unnecessary embarrassment. No sense letting a parent look bad, either. Better to be prepared.

I also figured it wouldn't hurt to formulate my own answer to a related question:

Interviewer: "Sir, why did you bring your children here?"

The Dad: "I want my children to know that history is not something that happens only in textbooks." Hmm. Not bad. A little too formal, maybe, but passable.

We reached the church steps at 3:45. I had not begun to think of the hostages yet. That would come later, after finding a seat.

We did find a seat. In fact, there was plenty of room in most of the pews. And when the procession of priests, ministers, a rabbi, and the tall, tired looking wife of an American hostage filed up the middle aisle, the church was only half full. There were about three in attendance for each of the 52 candles that were lit.

But I understood. It was supposed to rain.

Prop. 2½ To Bring Layoffs, Service Cuts

against.

"The citizens of Quincy sent a message to us," said Tobin.

The Mayor said the first meeting of his 11-man task force concerned itself with identifying the areas that should be looked into for possible savings or sources of revenue.

"One idea was to ask the legislature for legislation that would aid in the collection of delinquent personal property taxes," he said. "There is a law now that addresses delinquent real estate taxes."

"We have the chairman of the Board of Assessors looking into how the reduction in the excise tax is going to be handled. Does it start Jan. 1 or does it start July 1, 1981?"

"The other area we looked into was possible enterprise accounts like the Junior College and the Hospital."

An enterprise account is one in which receipts theoretically cancel out expenditures so that whatever expense appears in the budget is balanced by an estimated receipt, thus bypassing the tax levy.

"We also talked about the possible consolidation of some departments whose duties overlap," said Tobin. "We're trying to come up with a master plan to make Prop 2½ as palatable as possible."

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of schools; John

Morris, hospital budget director; William Grindlay, public safety advisor; City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.; and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, special advisor.

Tobin's letter to department heads warned that the city could not expect any changes in Proposition 2½ to be made by the State Legislature, even though it is legally able to do so.

"Public statements both from the office of the governor and from the legislative leadership clearly state that the law shall stand as voted," he said.

He directed each department head to:

- Submit to the Mayor a list of services which your department is legally required to perform.
 - Determine and list those services performed by your department which could be self-supporting.
 - Determine and list all non-essential services that your department could eliminate without affecting the health, welfare and safety of our citizens.
 - Determine and recommend the consolidation of municipal departments to eliminate any duplication of services and reduction of overhead.
 - Determine and list any real property with your department's control which may become surplus by cutbacks in your department mandated by Proposition 2½.
- Tobin asked that the information be forwarded to him no later than Nov. 25.

'The People Have Spoken'

Legislators See Little Tinkering With Prop. 2½

By TOM HENSHAW

Most members of the Quincy legislative delegation have adopted a wait and see attitude toward possible changes in Proposition 2½, the tax-cutting law that was favored by city voters by about 2-1. All except Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli.

"I don't see that there is anything for the Legislature to do at all," said Cerasoli. "The people have spoken. They understood what they were doing and they made their choice overwhelmingly."

"Any legislator who believes in basic rights has to represent the view of his people. I am here to represent their views. It would be insanity to interpret that any other way."

Since Prop 2½ is one of those referenda that have the effect of law, it is possible for the State Legislature to amend any of its sections or even to repeal the whole thing outright.

But Sen. Paul D. Harold and Reps. Michael W. Morrissey and Thomas F. Brownell don't see that happening immediately.

"The size of the vote limits our options," said Harold. "If only 51 per cent had voted for it, the legislators could have justified changes. Now they will be hesitant to make too many."

"There may be some technical amendment but I don't think the Legislature will do very much until there is some movement on the local level and we see how it is handled."

"We're not hoping for a crisis but we'll see what happens when the cities and towns put together the 1982 budgets with 2½ in mind. Then we'll know better what to do."

"There may have to be some legislation to make it workable," said Brownell, who is a member of the Committee on Taxation, "but I haven't discussed it yet with legislators or committee members."

"There is a tremendous mandate in the vote. It is the will of the people. Let's implement it and see where it takes us. Let's see what the cuts in services translate into for the cities and towns."

Brownell said there probably will have to be some new state tax programs to aid the cities and towns "but people have told us that they do not want any more taxes."

"I think the leadership will have to come from the governor," said Brownell.

"Like it or not," said Morrissey, "it is the law. The people have spoken. Now let's see what we can do with it."

"I have two questions about Prop 2½. Were the people sending us a message about tax reform? If they were, I agree we need tax reform. Or were they voting for a strict property tax limit?"

"The road is clear but the direction is confused."

Morrissey said he feels that the big push now will be on a constitutional amendment to limit taxes which may be on the ballot as a referendum in the 1982 election.

"I don't agree with that," he said.

"The tax limitation statute is flexible. A constitutional amendment would be a hard and fast rule."

$25 Million O'Connell Structures Monarch Buildings Aid Quincy Says King

"Your problems in Quincy are solved with Proposition 2½ and buildings going up like this," said Gov. Edward J. King. "Now I'm ready for Monarch II."

Gov. King, fresh from a belated endorsement of the triumphant Prop 2½, was the featured speaker at the dedication of what was once called Monarch I, a five-story, $11 million office building in the State Street South complex in North Quincy.

It is now called the Commercial Union Building, in honor of its prime tenant, the Commercial Union Insurance Co., which moved in about a month ago, even before it was entirely finished.

Then the governor stepped across the street, picked up a shiny new shovel and presided over the groundbreaking for Monarch II, a nine-story, $14 million building which is expected to be finished in the fall of 1981.

"This proves that the slogan 'Make It in Massachusetts' has some substance to it," boasted Gov. King, who was standing before a sign that read: "Forge-O'Connell Is Making It in Massachusetts."

Forge-O'Connell is the partnership of OCB, Inc., the O'Connell brothers construction company, and the Monarch Insurance Co. of Springfield, which financed the two buildings.

Benjamin F. Jones, president of Monarch, said that his company has been investing a lot of money in the South and the Southwest "and we are delighted to put it to work close to home where we can see it."

"The way the O'Connells are going," he added, "before long they'll be financing their own projects. Who knows, maybe we'll be borrowing money from them."

The O'Connell brothers are Peter and William, owners of OCB, Inc.

"We in Quincy feel a great pride for the O'Connell brothers," said Chief Assessor John P. Comer.

"They have been a part of Quincy from childhood. They wanted to work right here in their hometown. They are kind of people who do not forget their roots."

Poster And Essay Winners To Visit UN Tuesday

The nine winners of the United Nations Day Poster and Essay Contest will visit the United Nations in New York by bus Tuesday, Nov. 18.

The bus trip is sponsored by contributions from eight local firms and organizations. They are the Quincy Cooperative Bank, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Quincy Rotary Club, South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Quincy Sons of Italy, Quincy Savings Bank, The Quincy Sun and Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The nine winners, many of their parents, and Rev. and Mrs. Keith Munson of United First Parish Church, will have lunch in the UN delegates dining room, tour the building, be briefed by a member of the UN staff and sit in on a meeting of the General Assembly. Rev. Munson and Richard Ramsdell of Quincy Public Schools acted as coordinators of the contest, which was co-sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Quincy Sun.

Arrangements for the visit are being made by the United Nations office of the Unitarian Universalist Church, according to Rev. Munson.

The group will leave Quincy at about 7 a.m. and return about 10 p.m.

Winners in the contest were:
Grade 7: Lori Oldham, 12, 289 East Squantum St., North Quincy and Thomas Lee, 12, 70 Billings St., North Quincy.

Grade 8: Nancy Losordo, 13, 79 Davis St., Wollaston and Kevin Shurtluff, 13, 11 Wayland St.,

Wollaston.

Grade 9: Jennifer McCauley, 13, 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck and Elaine Sugarman, 14, 53 Hilltop St., West Quincy.

Grade 10: Joanne Pappas and Pauline Pappas, both 14, of 21 Harborview St., Squantum.

Grade 11: Stacey Goldstein, 16, 3 Skyview Rd., Randolph (a student at Woodward School for Girls).

Choosing the winners were Anne Keating of the Adams Shore Branch Library, coordinator of judges, and Ramsdell, Janet DiTullio, coordinator of language arts for Quincy Public Schools; Jane Granstrom, supervisor of children's services and Ann McLaughlin, adult services supervisor, both of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Laurence Babin Retiring As Quincy Vo-Tech Director

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Laurence Babin, long-time director of the Vocational Technical Institute, is retiring at the end of December.

"I don't want to be hauled out of here," says Babin, who's approaching his 62nd birthday. "I'm going to leave while I still have the good health to enjoy other things."

Babin has been Vo-Tech director since 1965, when it was the Quincy Trade School. His retirement Dec. 31 will complete 30 years and six months in the school system, he says.

"I'm not going to Florida or anything like that," he says. "I was born and raised in this area and I still love it here."

Babin plans to do some work around his Braintree home, spend some time at the family's second home in New Hampshire and, possibly, put his real estate sales license to use.

The selection process for Babin's successor caused some discussion at the School Committee's Nov. 5 meeting.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon told the committee that six finalists, all from within the school system, would be interviewed following the morning.

Committee member Patricia Toland questioned whether school administrators had been aggressive enough in seeking applicants from outside the school system.

Creedon replied that the vacancy had been posted in all "the normal places": bulletin boards throughout the school system, and with jobs banks at the state Department of Education and local colleges, like U-Mass Boston and Amherst, Boston College and Northeastern.

Mrs. Toland thought the administration should interview outside applicants, too.

"Let's face it, the person we pick is going to be in charge of a $30 million institution for the next 10 or 15 years," she said. "I think we would feel better to know that we have looked everywhere for the best possible person."

Creedon said the lack of outside applicants could be traced to at least three factors.

First, he said, the School Committee "has expressed an increasing interest that we stay within our own school system. Maybe they (outside applicants) feel that's the way Quincy's going."

Second, he said, in these days of predicted cutbacks due to Proposition 2½, many educators may be reluctant to leave their present jobs for new positions in a different school system.

And, he said, for some previous vacancies, like the Quincy Junior College Dean of Students, the administration had recommended an outside applicant. In that case, committee members directed Creedon to try to find a qualified candidate within the school system.

"I don't think we need a repeat of the exercise," he said.

Committee member Joan Picard brought up another factor in delaying the choice.

An accreditation team from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges recently visited Quincy High and Quincy Vo-Tech. Their report, due Dec. 4, may include the recommendation that the two schools be joined, administered by a single person.

Mrs. Picard thought any action on the Vo-Tech post should be delayed until that report is received.

Committee members Mary Collins, Mrs. Picard, Mrs. Toland, and vice-chairman Christopher Kennedy voted to suspend the scheduled interviews, delay any further interviews until after the committee's Dec. 10 meeting and seek a wider range of applicants.

Creedon told the committee he would now send notices of the vacancy to every vocational-technical school in the state.

"It's not that many," he said, "maybe 15 or 20."

DEAN ZOIA picks up 13 yards in North Quincy's 38-28 victory last week over Weymouth South.

Brown, Leone Give Raiders Offense Punch

By TOM SULLIVAN

Over the first half of the North Quincy football schedule the name of the game was defense.

The Raiders' defense was superb as it led to four shutouts and it appeared every team would have trouble moving against it.

But things have changed during the past two weeks and, while the offense has picked up, the defense suddenly has fallen apart.

Two weeks ago North appeared on its way to an easy win at Brookline, leading 20-0, and still holding a 20-8 edge in the last period. But the Indians roared back and pulled out a 22-20 victory.

Last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium Jack Brown and Leonard Leone turned in record performances as the Raiders struggled to defeat Weymouth South (2-6), 38-28, but the defense had another rough day.

The name of the offense in this game was Brown. The clever Raider quarterback scored all five North touchdowns and gained 206 yards on 11 carries. North improved its record to 5-2-1.

Leone, the Raiders' premier place kicker (kicks with his shoe off) kicked a 51-yard field goal which, with the help of some wind, traveled at least another 10 yards. He also was five for five in kicking extra points.

Brown, with the aid of some crisp blocking, had touchdown runs of 67 and 60 yards and the latter clinched the unexpectedly hard-earned win, as the persistent Weymouth team, having little trouble moving against the North defense, had crept to within three points (31-28) before the run.

Brown is believed to be the first North Quincy player to score five touchdowns in a game and Leone's field goal, the longest kicked on the South Shore, was one of the longest kicked by a Massachusetts schoolboy.

Despite the win, defensive coordinator Ken McPhee was again extremely disappointed in the defense.

"I don't know what is wrong, but I am very disappointed, Weymouth never should have moved against us like that (143 yards rushing and 71 yards passing)," he said.

"If we don't revert to the form we showed over the first half of the schedule, we'll be in for trouble next week."

North Saturday goes to Brother McKenna Stadium in West Roxbury to play Catholic Memorial in a 1:30 non-league game.

Memorial, which blew North out, 35-0, a year ago, got off to a slow start but has won its last four games for a 5-3 record.

The field goal was Leone's second this season and his eighth for North Quincy. He has been kicking since junior high and appears to be getting better all the time.

The kick came as time ran out in the first half and gave the Raiders 10 points in the final 46 seconds of the half after Brown had scored on his 67-yard run. So North held a 24-14 halftime lead instead of being tied, 14-14.

"I knew Weymouth would be tough," a relieved Coach Dave Burke said. "They almost beat Quincy and, despite their record, they had played some good football. Give them a lot of credit, we were fortunate to win."

Burke called a variety of razzle-dazzle plays which, he felt, led to some of the many penalties against North. The Raiders were hit with penalties all afternoon.

"I was getting desperate," Burke said with a smile. "I think some of those plays I called resulted in a few penalties, as the players weren't used to them."

Joe Dudek had his best day running for North, picking up 120 yards on 10 carries as the Raiders ground out 382 yards on the ground. Brown threw only five passes, hitting on three for 35 yards.

Although Dean Zoia was held well below his rushing average, he did some excellent blocking.

The offensive line was outstanding and assistant coach George Liset singled out Leone, Glenn Segalla, Bill Gray, Mike Panaro, Paul Ciarfella, Ted Hannon, Bill Feeney, John Buckley and Neil Fisher.

Although the defensive coaches, McPhee and Jack Raymer, wouldn't single out any players, Chuck Sylva, who played well both ways, came up with some big defensive plays and Chris Baker twice intercepted Weymouth passes.

North got into trouble right at the start as it fumbled the long opening kickoff and started on its

North Girls Win Division 2 Crown

The North Quincy girls' cross country team capped its most successful season in history Saturday by winning the Eastern Mass. Division 2 championship over the Franklin Park course.

The enrollment figures decide which division a school is placed in and North defeated Winchester by 20 points, scoring 68 points to Winchester's 88.

"This is the first time the girls have finished in the top 10," Coach Lou Tozzi said. "There were 34 teams and 225 runners in our division."

Three Raiderettes finished among the top five, with Sheila Barrett second, Linda Kennedy third and Mary Crehan fifth.

However, Robin O'Donnell, who finished 22nd, Deirdre Donovan, 36th, and Deirdre Corrigan, 38th, actually won the meet for North. With 660 yards to go all three passed Winchester's fifth finisher and scorer, thereby giving the Raiderettes their margin of victory.

Earlier last week the North girls finished their best season ever, shutting out Quincy, 15-48, to finish 8-2-1.

North swept the top six places with Kennedy, just back after recovering from an asthmatic condition, winning the race with Barrett second, Crehan third, O'Donnell fourth, Corrigan fifth and Donovan sixth.

Joanne Metiche was the first Quincy finisher in seventh place and Jeanne Dunnig was eighth. North's Amanda Molica placed ninth and Quincy's Darlene Marston was 10th.

The North boys, coached by former Raider star Bart Petracca, defeated Quincy, 24-35, to finish 3-9. Quincy was 0-8 on the season.

Gary Morin of North was the winner. Quincy's John Cascarano was second, North's Rick O'Brien third, Steve Dunn of Quincy fourth, North's Paul Dindy fifth, Quincy's Kevin McCormack sixth, Walter McConaghey of North seventh, Rolf Shahabuddin of North eighth, Bob Morin of North ninth and Joe McDonald of North 10th.

Petracca did a good job coaching the Raiders, who had an inexperienced team. In most meets only Morin and O'Brien finished among the top 10 finishers.

Presidents Must Stay 'Up' For Brookline

Quincy's football team lost a game last week at Brockton to drop its record to 3-4-1.

But the Presidents, who have been playing outstanding ball over the past few weeks, gained the respect of the Brockton coaching staff and a lot of people who had expected them to be blown out by the Brockton powerhouse, which won its 21st straight regular season game, improved its season's record to 8-0 and virtually clinched another Super Bowl berth.

It took several "home runs" by the speedy Brockton backfield to overcome another fine offensive show by Quincy and pull out a 36-22 victory at Marciano Stadium.

The Boxers' touchdowns included runs of 75 and 73 yards by Jay McGee, the top scorer in Eastern Mass., who had four touchdowns and gained 232 yards, and a 67-yard pass play from Bob O'Neill to McGee.

"I've never been prouder of a team than I am of this team today," Quincy Coach Tom Fitzgerald said. "The way they kept coming back against probably the best team in Eastern Massachusetts gained them a lot of respect. Many people thought we didn't stand a chance, but we gave them plenty to think about.

"Armand (Colombo, Brockton coach) told me it was their toughest game and he was more than a little worried. He said we certainly were prepared for them."

Quincy hosts Brookline Saturday at 1:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium and Fitzgerald's job this week is to keep the Presidents "up" and not let down against Brookline's best team in years. Brookline, which came from 20-0 down to upset North Quincy, 22-20 two weeks ago, takes a 6-2 mark into the game.

Quincy's offense continued in high gear as it gained more than 200 yards on the ground and more than 100 through the air.

Junior Sean Martin, who took over the starting quarterback spot two weeks ago when Ron Pettinelli broke his wrist, had another big day as he scored one touchdown and passed for the other two giving him four TD passes in two games.

"He is amazing, he is so cool out there," Fitzgerald said. "Time and again several of Brockton's huge players would rush in on him but it didn't bother him in the least. You could put him in Yankee Stadium and it wouldn't bother him. He has done an outstanding job for us."

Once again the name mentioned first by the coaches was Ed Mackey.

"He is unbelievable," Fitzgerald said and his sentiment was echoed by all the assistant coaches. "He has been brilliant both ways in every game and he was incredible again today."

Mark Abboud again rushed for over 100 yards, and Ed Iodice, Mike Monahan and Mark Picot were outstanding. Picot got off some booming punts and averaged over 40 yards a kick. Sean Burke and Scott Anson excelled at end.

The offensive line had a good day and assistant Pete Chella singled out Capt. Frank Duggan, Mackey, John Taglieri, John Christello, who filled in well for the injured Chris Chevalier, John Varrasso, Burke, Anson, and Dave Donnelly.

Bill Mavor who, along with Joe Goguen, handles the defense, had good words for Mackey, Anson, Mike Nevins, Mike Connors, Steve Remillard, sophomore Jamie Gravelle, Taglieri and Walt Kilgallon.

Quincy sorely missed Chevalier both on offense and defense.

"Pettinelli, who probably won't be back, worked with me along the sidelines," Fitzgerald said. "He helped out Martin and was a help to me. He's a really good kid and hates to be out of the lineup."

Brockton got on the scoreboard first when Stanford McMurty raced 46 yards for a first period touchdown and McGee rushed for the two points.

McGee's 75-yard run and John Asack's extra point kick gave the Boxers a 15-0 lead early in the second period.

Martin scored on a six-yard run for Quincy but a pass for the points failed.

Brockton took a 22-6 lead at halftime on O'Neill's long bomb to McGee and Asack's kick.

Martin passed to Burke for a touchdown in the third period and then hit Anson for the two points, but McGee scored from the four and O'Neill passed to Bill Brown for the points and Brockton took a 30-14 lead into the final period.

Quincy again battled back and in the final period Martin passed to Anson for a touchdown and then passed to Iodice for the points and it was a 30-22 game.

But McGee soon put the frosting on the cake for Brockton with his 73-yard run.

Again the Presidents came back and went all the way to the Boxers' 15 before a fourth down pass failed.

Brown, Leone Give Raiders Punch

two-yard line. The Raiders couldn't gain and a short punt into the stiff wind gave Weymouth the ball on North's 10. It took four plays but Steve Ondrick scored from the one. Weymouth's Pat Duffin kicked the point but his team was offside and he missed his second try.

The Raiders drove 72 yards in 10 plays after the kickoff to take the lead.

Brown got the drive started with a 29-yard run and North, clicking off five first downs, scored on a six-yard run through the left side by Brown and Leone kicked the go-ahead point.

A questionable gamble on fourth down by Weymouth gave North the ball at midfield on the first play of the second period. The Raiders went all the way with Brown again scoring from the six. Two plays before Leone had made a beautiful catch of a Brown pass on the four. During the drive Brown had a 24-yard run nullified by a penalty. Leone kicked the second of his five points.

Weymouth took the kickoff and, showing no respect at all for the Raider defense, drove 67 yards to tie the score. With fourth down on the four-yard line, Rob Lyons passed to Mark Cipriano for the touchdown and Lyons passed to John O'Hara for the two tying points.

Then came the explosion. On the first play from scrimmage Brown, starting to the right, reversed his field out raced down the left sidelines for 67 yards and a touchdown. Leone added the point.

Baker came up with his first interception on Weymouth's 42. With time for one play, Burke called upon the shoeless Leone to kick and he came up with his booming 51-yarder as time ran out.

Weymouth came back in the third period and Lyons who, like Brown, wears No. 11, did some fine running of his own. He ran 19 yards to the four and Ondrick scored. The try for the extra points failed.

North drove from its 48 following a punt for its next touchdown. Dudek fumbled on the five but the alert Brown picked the ball up and ran it in. Leone kicked the point.

Weymouth wouldn't quit. North was penalized 15 yards, the penalty taking place after the touchdown and the Raider kickoff from the 25 against the wind traveled only to the North 43. Lyons passed to John Nelson for 33 yards and Lyons scored from the eight and passed to Ondrick for the points, pulling the Wildcats to within three points.

Brown clinched things with his 60-yard run down the right sidelines on the first play from scrimmage after the kickoff. Baker came up with his second interception and North ran out the clock.

● Junior High Football

Broad Meadows Bombs North, Point

By PETE ZOIA

The Broad Meadows Junior High ninth grade football team had a big week as it exploded for 82 points in defeating North 34-0, and Point, 48-0.

Continuing his dazzling running, Mike Notarangelo scored eight touchdowns, five against North and three with Point. This diminutive back scored on runs of 29, 50, 20, 65 and eight yards in the North game.

In the Point game he showed his heels to the Point defense, scoring on a five-yarder, a 20 yard run and topped it off with a 65 yard kick-off return.

Also against Point, Bill Gardner scored on a 20-yard dash. Steve Taylor went in from the seven, and Greg Keefe swept in from the three. As usual, Tony Cascarano quarterbacked BM flawlessly.

Broad Meadows has one more game to play. If it beats Sterling, that will make it co-champion with Central, both finishing with seven wins and one loss.

B.C. Clinic At NQHS Thursday

The Boston College basketball team will hold a clinic/scrimmage tonight (Thursday) at 7 o'clock at North Quincy High School.

The event, for children, high school students and adults, is sponsored by Quirk Chevrolet of Braintree and everyone attending will receive a free ticket to the BC-New Hampshire basketball game at Roberts Center Dec. 2.

The clinic/scrimmage is free of charge and open to the public.

Tom Davis, BC coach, and his staff will be available for questions during the clinic and a game condition intrasquad scrimmage will follow.

This community scrimmage program is being run in conjunction with the Boston College Athletic Association.

Carpenter Seeks Junior Title

Ten-year-old Mike Carpenter of Wollaston, a 75-pounder, defeated Kevin McAdams of Waltham in the recent annual Andrea McCoy boxing tournament at New Bedford and tonight (Thursday) he will seek the junior division championship.

Mike represents the Quincy YMCA and is coached by Dick Mullaly.

For the first time this season, a happy North team enjoyed its bus ride back to the school. North finally won a game, 14-0, over Sterling.

The Walter McCarthy-coached club looked good and played its best game.

John Comeau played an important part handling the offense as he repeatedly passed successfully to Brian Gibbons and Jim Kennedy to set up both touchdowns. The scoring was done by Jim McNamara who missed most of the season because of two broken toes. With the help of Brian Ellis, McNamara's two touchdowns came after marches of 56 yards and 44 yards, where he bulled thru each time from two yards out. Ellis put across the two-point conversion.

At the eighth grade level, Atlantic played two games, shutting out Broad Meadows, 14-0, and playing a scoreless tie with Sterling.

A Dave Zuroms pass to Rich Horrigan was good for a 16 yard

TD in the opening period.

The second Atlantic touchdown was a 50-yard off-tackle sprint by Steven Kelly in the third quarter. Joe wrapped up the scoring for two more points, smashing through for the conversion.

As for the Atlantic-Sterling 0-0 game, the South Quincy eleven got as close as the Atlantic three, only to cough up the ball when the Northerners wouldn't budge in a great goal line stand.

Late in the fourth quarter Sterling's Gerry Frazier raced to the Atlantic 42, where a late hit infraction put the ball on the 27. Darryl Tucker added five more yards to the 22 via a quarterback sneak, but on the next play Atlantic's Paul McNulty pounced on a Sterling fumble to halt any bid to score.

This young undefeated, but twice-tied Sterling team, must defeat Broad Meadows this week in order to cop the championship. If Sterling ties BM it will be co-champ with Atlantic and if it loses, Atlantic will win the title.

Track Club Takes 6 Medals In N.Y. Meet

The Quincy Track Club recently made its finest showing ever in the annual Road Runners Club of America National Age Group Championships at Van Cortland Park in New York City. QTC members took a record six medals and one trophy and nine others placed in the top 50 finishers in each of 10 age groups.

More than 2000 athletes from 25 states competed and Quincy had the largest number of entries with 50 taking part.

In girls' 6-7, Tammy Coull, 6, placed 20th to become the youngest ever from the QTC to win a medal in New York.

The top 25 finishers in each age group received ribbons and the top 50 finishers are recorded in the official results. Each finisher received a small trophy and the top three received a large trophy.

In girls' 8-9 Cindy Bonner placed 37th and Marisa Zona was 41st.

In girls' 10-11 Karen Rodgers placed fourth with a bad spill at the start possibly costing her a chance for a win. Her time of 9:23 is only 10 seconds off the course record and she still has another year in that age bracket. Lorrie McNeill took 43rd.

In boys' 10-11 Finn Kelly won with Stuart Coull 13th and Harry Worth 27th.

Terry Rodgers took 13th in girls' 12-13. Tracy Coull was 16th and Susan Curran 38th.

Harry Morash placed 29th in boys' 12-13.

In girls' 14-15 Bernadette Murphy placed 35th.

In boy's 14-15 Kevin Dunn was 30th and in 16-17 Ron Cogliano was 44th.

Coach Jeff Hennessy placed 26th in the open division.

Final results were determined for the Brockton Fun Run series.

In girls' 8-12 Mary Beth Bonner of the QTC was the winner. Tracy Fostello second and Lorrie McNeill third.

In boys' 8-12 Morash was third, Coull fourth and Werth fifth.

In boys' 13-16 Dunn was second and Tracy Coull was the girls' winner and Bernadette Murphy was third.

In other announcements regarding QTC members, Michelle Millane and Brian Donahue, were High School All-American team honorable mentions on the basis of their winning performances in the state championships.

Rugby Club Takes B Division Title

The Quincy Rugby Club captured the championship of the B Division of the New England Rugby Football Union, going undefeated in league play.

This is the first year Quincy was involved in the divisional alignment.

The club, which has represented Quincy in games throughout the Eastern part of the country since 1972, will receive a trophy in a formal presentation from the union next week.

Quincy defeated teams from Springfield, Worcester, Berlin, Conn., Dover, N.H., Old Gold of Boston and Old North Bridge of Concord to win the title.

The club gives special thanks to director Richard Carroll and the fans for their support. Anyone interested in joining is asked to call 328-0066.

SOI Honor Babe Ruth Champs

Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge recently honored its Babe Ruth team, which has won the Babe Ruth League title for the past two years.

All players and coaches were presented championship jackets. Making the presentations were Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo, Asst. Venerable John Marella and Board of Trust member James Mastrantonio.

Films of the 1970 and 1975 World Series were shown.

Head table guests included Board of Trust members A. Mario Salvatore and Rocco Marella and lodge officers John Tamasco and Joseph Sacco.

Paul Connolly had three assists, Billy Roche and Salton two apiece and Schuerch, Mike Benson, Peter Schofield, Murphy, David Kraunelis, Hays and Zimmerman one each.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Here is an amazing football fact... The quarterbacks on the winning teams in EACH of the last 8 Super Bowl games have ALL worn the number 12 on their uniform... Here are the winning quarterbacks in the last 8 Super Bowls: Terry Bradshaw (Super Bowl 13), Roger Staubach (Super Bowl 12), Ken Stabler (Super Bowl 11), Bradshaw (Super Bowls 10 and 9), Bob Griese (Super Bowls 8 and 7) and Staubach (Super Bowl 6)... Every one of those quarterbacks wears number 12.

What's the farthest any man ever punted a football?... The official record was set by Steve O'Neal of the New York Jets who got off a 98-yard punt in a game at Denver in 1969... O'Neal punted from his own one-yard line to the Denver one!

Did you know one of the most important scientific discoveries in history happened at a football field?

One Dec. 2, 1942, scientists working under the stands at the University of Chicago's football stadium created the first controlled nuclear chain reaction -- and at that instant the atomic age was born... Chicago had given up football 3 years earlier, making their stadium available for top-secret atomic experiments... So, one of the biggest scientific milestones of all-time occurred -- of all places -- in a football stadium!

North Sophs Breeze By Weymouth South

The North Quincy sophomore football team, which has had its ups and downs this fall, exploded in the second half last week to defeat Weymouth South, 20-0.

"It took us a half to put everything together," said veteran coach Ted Sadowski, "but the offense and defense finally clicked in the second half."

North had numerous chances in the first half, thanks to a brilliant 47-yard run by Dave DiCarlo and a fine pass reception by Peter Clark from Vin Barry. Both efforts put the winners in enemy territory, but penalties and a fumble negated any scoring.

North took control of the game in the second half, marching 57 yards for the first T.D. The hard running of DiCarlo and Rich Brown planted the ball on the one and Barry sneaked it in. Another apparent score was nullified when DiCarlo outran the Weymouth secondary on a pass from Barry good for 39 yards, only to be called back.

Not to be denied, these two teamed up again for an 11 yard score, Barry to DiCarlo in the end zone. Barry tossed the two point conversion to Clark.

The final tally came in the last quarter, also on a 49-yard dash by Mike Cullen, breaking out to his right side line to outrace everyone.

Sadowski pointed to the outstanding all-around play of Brown and Barry who had his best game and punted well filling in for the injured Mark Balzarini.

Also doing their part in the offensive backfield were Mike Costa, John McDonald and Bob Leonard, who intercepted a pass to stop a Weymouth threat.

The two way performances of Shawn Cunningham, Clark, Jerry Connolly, Ted Reilly and DiCarlo were outstanding. Opening up holes in the offensive line were Chris Flaherty, Steve Varnado, Steve Mallory and Brian McGinnis.

The defensive unit did itself proud in getting their first shut-out.

Accomplishing this feat were Paul Graham, Jay Pillard, Pat Fitzgerald, Bob Walker, Rich Myatt, Rick Tapper, Neil Leonard and Dan Johnson.

The young Red Raiders travel to Whitman - Hanson Friday.

32nd SEASON for the Koch Club Basketball program got underway last week with registration at Atlantic Junior High School. Richard J. Carty, Brian Callow, Mike Crowley and Bill Campbell had the goals for Donuts with an assist for Crowley. Jim Stee and Ernie Petersen had two goals each for Noble and Dennis Carey had an assist.

Ideal Elevator defeated Razer's Edge, 5-2, with Sean Caplis and Mike Cassetta scoring two goals each and Bill Caplis one. Bill Caplis and Derek Hunter had assists. For Razer's Edge Bob McDonald and Steve Doran had the goals and Kris Meyer had an assist.

In the Bantam Division Lydon Russell edged Plaza Olds,

3-2, with John O'Connell having two goals and Kevin Kelly one. Kelly, Ben Klingenstein and John Downing had assists. Pete Quinn and Brian Campbell had the Plaza goals and Quinn and Bob Climo had assists.

Riley Club and Bike 'n' Blade tied, 4-4, with Mike Joyce having two goals for B'n'B and Mike O'Reilly and Bill Ward one each. Billy Ward had an assist. For Riley Mike Walsh scored twice and Paul Kelly and Dan Robison one each. John Keller, Walsh and Mike DeLuca had assists.

● Executive League

Adams, Dayce's, Beau's In Wins

Goalie Harry Kamataric posted the shutout as Adams Sports defeated Budget Rent-A-Car, 2-0, in Executive Hockey League action Monday night at the Youth Arena.

Tom Roberts and Dennis O'Connell scored the goals with assists for Bibby Lewis, Jack Aldred and Kevin Glynn.

Dayce's Place topped Luke's Lounge, 5-2, with Dave Mullen, Pete Bertrand, Ken Marini, Doug McLean and John Aldred scoring the goals. Bertrand, Mullen, McLean and Ken Noonan had assists. Rich Gibbs and Jack Powers scored for Luke's with Kevin Sullivan assisting on both goals.

Beau's Place blanked Washington Tap, 6-0, with goalie Ray Dunn earning the shutout. Terry Flaman and Colin Campbell had two goals each and Bill Carroll and Harry Crispo one apiece. Carroll, Ted Ahola, Charlie Chambers and Flaman had assists.

Youth Football

Apaches Win 8th Straight

The Apaches improved their record to 8-0 in the Quincy Youth Football League with a 30-8 victory Sunday over the Panthers at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Mike Gill scored on a 38-yard run and Eddie Page added the two-point conversion and the same pair accounted for the second touchdown and conversion. A safety increased the Apaches' lead to 18-0 at halftime.

In the third period Tom Travers scored for the Panthers and Joe Noonan added the two-point conversion.

The Apaches struck back with two touchdowns, the first on a 42-yard run by Bob Varnado and the other by Mike Doherty.

Chris Shaughnessy, Kevin Cameron, Noonan and Rich Pettinelli were praised by the Panthers' coaches, while Gill, Varnado, Page, Dan Kelly, Steve Kearns, Bob Flynn, Doherty, John Ainsley and Jon Sheehan were singled out for their performances for the Apaches.

The Sailors edged the Manets, 8-0, in a bitter defensive struggle, with Mike Barry scoring the touchdown from the 11 late in the first half after a 45-yard run by Gerard Coughlin, and Bill Doherty rushed for the two-point conversion.

The Sailors' coaching staff had good words for the entire team, and has special praise for Doherty and Don Clancy.

Seamans Wins Second 50-Mile Masters Title

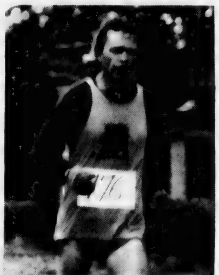

Robert Seamans of Merry-mount has won the New England 50-Mile Masters Championship for the second time.

Seamans also won the road race, for runners 40 and over, in 1978.

He finished the 50-mile competition, held Saturday at Newton North High School, in 6 hours, 56 minutes and 5 seconds, 27 minutes ahead of the second-place finisher.

The race consisted of 200 laps around the Newton North quarter-mile track.

Seamans, who owns a Boston advertising agency, has also run in 15 Boston Marathons.

'Just For Kids' Theme

29th Annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Nov. 30

"Just for Kids" will be the theme of the 29th annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Sunday, Nov. 30, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

According to chairman George C. Fay, close to 30 floats and specialty entries will be participating.

Band coordinators William Morrill and Bryan Carter report that participating bands will be Quincy, North Quincy, Gloucester, Abington, Hull, Silver Lake, Norwood and Milton.

Also, bands from Weymouth North and South, Holbrook, Somerville, Norton, Avon, East Bridgewater, Oliver Ames, Dedham, Fairhaven, Waltham Post, as well as the 215th Army Band and the Klassy Klowns.

City Council president Leo J. Kelley commented, "as spokesman for the entire city council, I'm just delighted and proud to see so many of the finest Bay State bands participating in this year's extravaganza and I know this will be one of the most exciting ever presented."

Last year, according to Fay, in excess of 275,000 people viewed the two and a half hour parade. An even greater crowd is expected to view the 1980 edition.

MDA 'Super Dance' At St. John's

A "Super Dance" to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held Saturday, 2 p.m. to 2 a.m. at St. John's School auditorium, Quincy Center.

Sponsored by St. John's CYO, the fundraiser will feature 12 hours of dancing by participants with at least $10 in sponsors. Participants should arrive at the dance by 1 p.m. with their sponsor sheets and money.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three money raisers. Other prizes will also be awarded during the event.

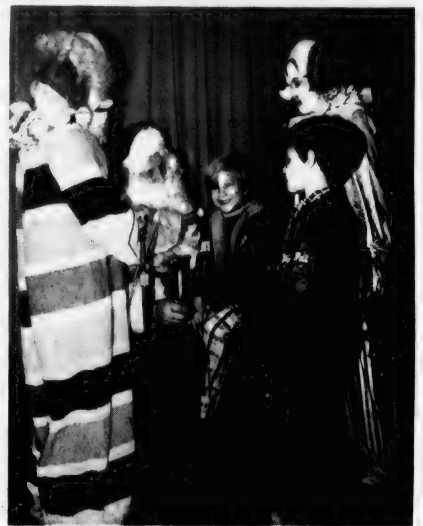

Refreshments will be available.

The dance is being organized by Donald Bernard, 17, a senior at Quincy Vo-Tech, who has been active with MDA for six years, and David Myett, 15, a Quincy High School sophomore.

For more information, call Karen Canfield of MDA at 843-2797.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 13, 1980

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Good week to tend to management problems—you speak with authority. Matters involving shared finances proceed smoothly, but politics is not your current forte.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Extremely ambitious, you might take on more than you can handle; don't rush things. Friend's romantic success comes as relief; meanwhile, don't take your own relationship for granted.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
For singles, an important meeting can take place now; married Aries people should make point of indulging the one in your life. Weekend offers chance to sample new luxuries.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Week includes close encounter with someone you've been avoiding. Don't play games; hit on issue you've been dodging. Possible financial tangle on weekend followed by small bonus.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
You're easily fooled, so obtain second and third opinions. Workwise, try for more adventurous approach. Spontaneous gestures bring great success through weekend.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Emotions are running high, so take frequent breaks for reflecting on your status. Meanwhile, your sharp wit makes week socially successful, and some financial doubts are cleared.

LEO - July 23-August 22
You prove true all things they say about Leo people: you're in leadership role—and you're fighting for center stage! A winning week—just be sure to review documents and ask questions.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Best financial ideas come during most relaxing stretches. Preachy types can frazzle nerves on Sunday but keep your cool. You're absolutely persuasive from Monday onward.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Delays happen in most areas with one important exception: finance. Visits to/from older relatives hold bright surprises. Good time to put in bid for something that catches your eye.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Don't mix business and pleasure, especially after Sunday. May come up with winning invention but don't reveal too much information. Romance is light and bright starting Tuesday.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
The period starts with series of bulletins—regarding state of family and business affairs. New ideas popping into your head; tend to them before they pop out.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Good week for presenting pet project to supervisor. Long-distance affairs simplified now. Beware of stubborn type—likely a Taurus—whose failure to budge can cause mini-crisis.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You combine strength and stubbornness, energy and drive, persistence and possessiveness. Spring breaks opportunities for doing what you most enjoy—especially in realms of work and travel. Improved personal relationships accentuated after June.

BORN THIS WEEK
November 13th, singer Paul Simon; 14th, actor Brian Keith; 15th, singer Petula Clark; 16th, actor Burgess Meredith; 17th, actor Rock Hudson; 18th, actress Brenda Vaccaro; 19th, host Dick Cavett.

Condon Seeks City Control Of Storefronts

City Councillor Joanne Condon is embarked on a campaign to get Quincy merchants, particularly those in her North Quincy area, to make their storefronts more presentable.

She filed a proposal in the Council to create a committee of businessmen and city officials "to study the feasibility of regulating the exterior designs of commercial structures within the city."

Several communities have such ordinances now, she said.

Mrs. Condon said the subject came up when members of the North Quincy Local Development Corp. told her they were having problems getting absentee landlords to participate in their storefront program.

The city of Salem, she said, has a program under which the city is granted easements on storefronts so it can spend community development funds on fixing them up "in an orderly fashion."

Other communities have solved their problems in different ways, she said.

"If we had an ordinance similar to Salem," she said, "we would get more for the same dollars we are spending and the end result would be a nicer business area."

Indochinese Refugee Service Center Established At Bethany Church

Classes for Indochinese refugees began yesterday (Wednesday) at Bethany Congregational Church as part of an Indochinese Social Services Project recently established at the church.

The project was initiated and is being administered by the United Community Planning Corporation (UCPC), a human services research and planning organization and the planning partner of the United Way. Four social service agencies are also joining UCPC in effort.

Funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare, the project provides a variety of social services to some 700 Indochinese refugees in Greater Boston.

The Bethany site was particularly favorable since it has had past involvement with Indochinese refugees, adequate space for classrooms, and is within walking distance of public transportation.

The center will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Free services for refugees will be available in the languages of Vietnamese, Cambodian, Laotian, Chinese and H'Mong.

Services will include Case

Management, English as a Second Language Courses and Vocational Services and Social Adjustment and Translator Interpreter Services.

Project consultant Ronnie Mae Weiss recently expressed the project's thanks to Bethany "for opening their church to the Indochinese refugees by providing space for them to learn English and take advantage of the other social services provided."

Church pastor Rev. William Arnold responded, "We are grateful that in the Providence of God, Bethany has been given this opportunity to minister, following the example and spirit of Jesus, serving persons beginning a new life in America."

School Milk Price Hiked To 10 Cents

"Even the milk of human kindness is going up," observed School Committee member Frank Anselmo wryly.

So is the price of an eight-ounce carton of milk in Quincy Schools - from five cents to 10.

The committee voted unanimously last week to accept school Supt. Lawrence Creedon's recommendation that the price be doubled.

Creedon told the committee that the school's Division of Food Services has already lost over $6,000 this year because of the five-cent price, and a $46,000 deficit for the year was projected.

A survey of surrounding communities revealed that they were already charging the higher price, Creedon said.

The ten-cent price is still "a bargain," observed Anselmo, noting that similar cartons sell for as high as 50 cents in some places.

Executive House Tenants To Meet At Central Junior

The Executive House Tenants' Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in Central Junior High School to elect officers and discuss grievances and plans.

Atty. William Golden will report on progress to date to get the Department of Housing and Urban Development to review and act on rent increase over the past few years.

New tenants may join the association at this meeting.

Seeking 'Viable Hospital'

Mayor, Aides In L.A. Checking Hospital Firms

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and a retinue of city officials are in Los Angeles this week to investigate two more hospital management firms that have applied to take over the running of City Hospital.

Tobin said the companies are paying for the trip — "a standard procedure in the industry; the only way to show what they have to offer is to invite officials to corporate headquarters to meet their people."

Accompanying the Mayor on the trip are Auditor Charles L. Shea, Solicitor Robert Fleming, Treasurer Robert E. Foy III and the Rev. Peter Corea and Richard Corner of the Hospital's Board of Managers.

Corner, a certified public accountant, will also represent the special commission that was appointed by the Mayor to study the feasibility of hiring a management firm to run the Hospital.

"With Proposition 2½ on us right now it is absolutely impossible to pump into the Hospital the millions of dollars that are necessary to do what has to be done there," said Tobin.

He said that Dr. Russell L. Irons, president of the medical staff, and other doctors from the Hospital have visited hospitals managed by the four companies that are in the running to take over in Quincy.

"We are talking to the executives," said Tobin. "Between us we feel that we can give Quincy the most viable hospital."

In Los Angeles, the travelers from Quincy will visit the Hyatt Medical Association and the National Medical Enterprises Inc. They left Tuesday. They'll be back Sunday.

Earlier, Tobin and his aides visited Nashville, Tenn., to examine the offerings of the Hospital Corp. of America and Hospital Affiliates International.

"Those companies are the top four in the industry," said Tobin. "This will be the end of our interviews."

What Snow Storm?

"I wouldn't even call it a snow storm," said Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, referring to the first snowfall of the season that dropped a little more than an inch on Quincy Tuesday.

"There were some problems initially," he said, "but it turned to rain so soon that the roads were all passable. We had sanders out but there was nothing unusual about it."

Ricciuti said six sanders were placed on standby Tuesday night ready to move on hilly streets and other slippery situations amid reports that the slush in the streets might freeze.

"All the work was done in house," he said. "We don't usually call in outside contractors until we get three inches of snow and we assume that we will be getting more."

"Now let me tell you about February, 1978..."

City Gets 25-Foot Christmas Tree From Canada

An early Christmas present to the city from the Canadian province of New Brunswick — a 25-foot fir tree — has taken its place at City Hall's McIntyre Mall.

The Christmas tree will be lit at 7:45 p.m. Friday, Nov. 28, officially starting the holiday season.

City forestry department employees put the 30-year-old New Brunswick Fir in place Tuesday.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, said the gift was arranged with the cooperation of Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council Director John Nourse and Mayor Arthur Tobin.

New Brunswick Minister of Tourism Leland W. McGaw, will represent his nation in the Sunday, Nov. 30 Santa Claus Parade, sponsored by the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

McGrath Irked Tobin, Council Clash Over Finn, Taxis

By TOM HENSHAW

The growing breach between Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and the City Council widened considerably this week as they clashed over Police Chief Francis X. Finn and a proposed increase in taxi fares in Quincy.

Finn, who was closeted with Tobin on Proposition 2½ matters, failed to appear as advertised Monday night before the Council's Public Safety Committee to discuss Police Department finances and related subjects.

"It's very insulting to the Council," said Councilor Stephen J. McGrath, chairman of the committee. "It is symptomatic of what is wrong in this city, the lack of communication between the mayor and the City Council."

Tuesday morning the mayor announced that he was going to veto an order passed by the Council that would have raised the taxi rates to $1.60 a mile because, said Tobin, "there was no communication with the mayor's office."

"I want additional information," he said. "I'd like to know who the Council interviewed. How many senior citizens and handicapped people are going to be affected? Or are they just taking care of the special interests?"

Finn was supposed to appear before the Public Safety Committee to discuss ambulance service, patrolman vacancies, police radios and, most important, "how the department is coping with the budget cuts for fiscal 1981."

But when the call went out for the chief, there was only Capt. Paul Nestor to explain that Finn had been called into a meeting with the mayor on Prop 2½ and could not make it with the Council.

McGrath dispatched Sgt. Joseph Nichols, the police officer assigned to City Hall, to go get the chief. Nichols returned empty handed with the chief's word that Capt. Nestor and Officer Guido Pettinelli were authorized to speak for him.

"I think the matters before us are such that I wanted to have the Chief here," said McGrath. "I personally am very disappointed

1981 Tax Bills On Their Way

Property tax bills began rolling out in alphabetical order to some 23,000 Quincy taxpayers this week.

Chief Assessor John P. Comer said that letters A through D would be in the mail by the end of the business day Tuesday and the mailing should be finished in 10 days.

The first installment is due at City Hall 30 days from the date that the last bill is in the mail.

The tax rate for fiscal 1981 was officially set Friday at $242.60, an increase of $18.60, some three weeks after it was filed for certification with the State Department of Revenue.

Mayor Arthur Tobin said Auditor Charles L. Shea and Comer told him that the rate could have been certified two or three weeks ago had the state chosen to act with dispatch.

It cost the city $5,000 a week in interest on tax anticipation notes to keep the city running until the 1981 tax receipts started coming in.

"But that's water over the dam," said the Mayor.

He noted that Comer several weeks ago predicted that the tax rate hike would be between $20 and $25.

"But we got it down to $18.60 and after three weeks of scrutiny by the Department of Revenue, they didn't change it one iota," he said.

"We tried to keep it as low as possible. Had the City Council acted, it could have been different but they didn't so we can't cry about that."

Tobin was miffed that the Council refused to act on his recommendation for a sewer user charge based on water usage, which would have removed the Sewer Department's expenses from the tax levy.

"If there is anything good about it," said Tobin, "And I don't think any increase in taxes is good — the average tax increase across the Commonwealth is 9 1/2 per cent."

"We were approximately 8.1 per cent. In my three years in office, with inflation running about 14 per cent, the average increase has been about 6 per cent."

QCA Urges Tax Downpayment In Lieu Of Borrowing

The Quincy Citizens Association has suggested that, instead of waiting for the tax rate to be set, Quincy taxpayers make a $200 downpayment on taxes to help the city through its borrowing crisis.

Treasurer Robert E. Foy III has borrowed some $30 million in anticipation of taxes to keep the city running until tax money comes in. It's costing about $5,000 a day in interest.

The QCA recently sent the following telegram to Foy:

"Per membership vote last night, the Quincy Citizens Association hereby recommends all Quincy taxpayers to be requested (via the media) to make $200 downpayment on real estate taxes to raise cash, instead of borrowing."

President Arthur M. Chandler said the move would "bring in a sizeable amount of money before the tax bills are sent out, making costly borrowing unnecessary."

invited to attend a Tuesday, Nov. 25 meeting at Quincy City Hall, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Brownell.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the second-floor conference room of the City Hall Annex.

McCauley Delays Action Council Balks At Exempting Assessors From State Standards

The City Council handed the Tobin administration a minor setback Monday night when it sent to committee a proposal to exempt the current Board of Assessors from standards that have yet to be set by the state.

The procedure is a common one, called "grandfathering," in which those presently holding an office are retained after new rules are set up governing their duties and qualifications.

"In the event he or she does not qualify," said Councillor John J. Lydon, "are we going to get rid of an assessor who is doing a fine job in possibly one of the toughest times the city has had? I think not."

But Councillor Francis X. McCauley wasn't sure.

"Councillor Lydon says he is very happy with this board of assessors," he said.

"But I would remind the councillor that we had a very serious problem a year ago when the board of assessors arbitrarily raised the assessment on four-family apartment houses."

"The courts supported the contention of the apartment house owners and the term used by one judge to describe the action of the board of assessors was 'blatantly illegal.'"

"That concerned many of us."

Lydon moved to pass the exemption right away but McCauley moved that it be placed in the Ordinance Committee, which took precedence over Lydon's bid.

"We don't know what minimum standards the state is going to set for assessors," he said.

"I am told that those standards will be ready in the near future. I don't think the City Council should take action until we know what the standards are or how our assessors relate to them."

Five members of the Council agreed with him—James A. Sheets, Joanne Condon, Stephen J. McGrath and Joseph J. LaRaia, and McCauley.

Four stood with Lydon—Daniel G. Raymond, John J. Quinn, Leo J. Kelly and Lydon.

It went into committee by a vote of 5-4.

Who Speaks For Quincy On MBTA?, LaRaia Asks

The MBTA either has gone or is going broke and City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia wants to know what Quincy is doing about it.

"Who is representing us on this MBTA advisory board that is meeting constantly?" he asked at Monday's Council meeting.

Auditor Charles L. Shea allowed that Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti was the mayor's designee on the board.

"Can he describe to us what is happening?" asked LaRaia. "Do we know what the city's position is on the MBTA?"

"Where the city allocates $2.5 million of taxpayers' money to the system I think that's crucial enough so that we should have an update as to the city's position on the advisory board."

Ricciuti acknowledged that he had not attended the most recent meetings of the MBTA advisory board, but he told the Sun that the meetings were illegal.

"We must be notified seven days in advance of meetings," he said. "They can't waive that requirement. Still they called the meeting on Friday and convened on Sunday."

"I got notice now that the advisory board is going to meet Nov. 26 to reaffirm Sunday's vote. They're just legalizing Sunday's meeting."

Ricciuti said he went to a football game Sunday with former Court Clerk Carl Johnson of Braintree.

Council Public Hearing Dec. 2 On Condo Conversion

The City Council's Ordinance Committee will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. on a proposal that would limit the ability of apartment house owners to convert to condominiums.

The ordinance was introduced Monday night by Councillor James A. Sheets with the support of Councillors Stephen J. McGrath and Joanne Condon.

It would forbid condo conversion unless the apartment vacancy rate in Quincy is over 2.5 per cent, and give tenants two years notice — three, in the case of senior citizens — before eviction.

Sheets noted that a number of apartment houses in Quincy have recently been converted into condominiums and "it has come to our attention that problems have been created for tenants."

"What concerns me," he said, "is the possibility we are going to decrease the rate of apartment vacancies to the extent that it becomes very difficult for young married people to find a place to live.

"They can't afford to buy a single family house and they can't afford to buy a condominium.

"We should see if we can come up with some type of ordinance which would on one hand protect tenants and the city and at the same time not interfere with the basic rights of the owner has to convert."

Sheets said his proposed ordinance is similar to one that is in effect in Malden.

IRS Has Tax Refunds For 18 Persons, 2 Businesses

The federal tax collector is looking for 18 residents of Quincy and two business firms — to give them some money.

They were listed by the Internal Revenue Service as taxpayers to whom a tax refund check was mailed in 1980 and returned by the Postal Service as undeliverable.

The list includes Florence Becker, Joseph E. Boyle, Mildred M. Boyle, Charles H. Brady, Vincent J. and Marilyn Cicci, Michael P. Greenan, William M. Mahan Jr., Kathleen A. McElhinney.

Richard D. Paolini, Kathleen S. Peters, Theodore R. and Rosemary S. Silva, Marino K. Viorosso, John C. Barkas Jr., Karen P. Hetrick, Robert F. and Rosemary K. Nolan.

All sport news including bowling leagues must be submitted by noon Saturday.

Next week's Quincy Sun will be published on Wednesday instead of Thursday because of Thanksgiving.

Full Denture Program Instituted By City

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has announced a program under which low-cost full dentures will be provided to Quincy residents who do not have the money to purchase them at the usual prices.

The program is a cooperative effort of the South Shore Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and the Massachusetts Dental Society.

Participating dentists are willing to lower fees for full dentures in accordance with the patient's ability to pay. The price is negotiated between dentist and patient.

Those interested in the program should call Diane M. Mackie at the RSVP office, 471-3600, and schedule an appointment, at which time a list of participating dentists will be given out.

Adopted Korean Youngsters

New Citizens Joy And Michael Still Waving Their Flags

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Korean born youngsters Joy, 4, and Michael Chase, 3, became U.S. citizens at recent ceremonies in Boston.

And they haven't stopped waving the two small flags presented to them to mark the occasion.

The two, adopted children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chase, Jr., of 441 Granite St., Quincy Center, were among 733 children and adults to become citizens at ceremonies at Commonwealth Pier which coincided with the Whole World Celebration.

Despite long political speeches and ceremonies which temporarily put them to sleep, the youngsters were thoroughly impressed with the occasion and repeated the Pledge of Allegiance along with the rest of the new citizens.

On hand for the occasion with the youngsters' parents were their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chase of 99 Burgin Parkway, Quincy. The family later continued the celebration at a local Chinese Restaurant.

The Chases adopted Joy in April, 1977. Following adoption proceedings of about a year, she came from Saoul a healthy little girl and is now a nursery school student at Snug Harbor.

When she hears the song, "God Bless America" she asks her mother, Marilyn, if they're playing it just for her because she's become a U.S. citizen.

Michael's beginnings were not quite as fortunate as his sisters'. According to his father, when Michael came to this country in January, 1979, he was a "sick puppy".

PROUD AMERICANS — Korean youngsters Joy and Michael Chase of Quincy wave the flags they received when they became U.S. citizens recently at ceremonies in Boston. The youngsters' parents are Harold and Marilyn Chase.

He had been found wandering the streets of Pusan by himself, and was suffering from malnutrition. During the trip to this country, he developed a cold and the chicken pox.

Today, Michael is a happy, enthusiastic youngster who proclaims, happily, "I'm a U.S. citizen!"

Both children are well on their way to becoming

"Americanized" and are great fans of hamburgers, French fries and pizza.

Both Joy and Michael are looking forward to having other Korean brothers and sisters now that their parents have begun adoption proceedings again.

This time, the Chase's, who have been married for 10 years, are hoping for twins.

'Borning Bed' Presented To Hospital's Birthing Room

A special birning bed has been donated to Quincy City Hospital by the Women's Auxiliary for use in the Hospital's birthing room.

The birthing room was established several years ago to offer parents the opportunity to deliver their baby in a private, quiet, home-like atmosphere while retaining the protection of the Hospital.

The birning bed is designed so that a mother can make the best use of her body during labor and delivery. It retains all the functions of a labor bed, delivery table and recovery stretcher.

Beth Tutunjian Winner Of Scholarship Program

Beth Tutunjian, a 17-year-old senior, has been named the winner of the Century III Leaders Scholarship competition at Quincy High School.

Miss Tutunjian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Tutunjian, 155 Samoset Ave., Merrymount, is now eligible to compete with other seniors across Massachusetts for two $1,500 and two $500 scholarships.

Two winners in the state competition will be eligible to try for a $10,000 national scholarship to be awarded March 13-16 in Williamsburg, Va.

Runnersup in the competition at Quincy High were Martin Griffin and Garreth McHugh.

The Century III program is administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by the Shell Oil Co.

Barbara Victoriano Wins Writing Citation At Thayer

Barbara Maria Victoriano of Quincy, a senior at Thayer Academy, has received a citation from the National Council of Teachers of English for outstanding performance in writing. It was the third consecutive year in which a Thayer student has won a citation.

There were some 850 finalists chosen from more than 5,000 entrants and each of them is recommended by the Council for scholarships to two or four year colleges if they need assistance.

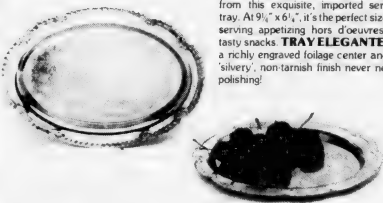

Miss Victoriano, who is considering a career in library science, is on the editorial board of Prologue, the Thayer literary magazine, and a member of Quill and Scroll societies.

A member of the Drama, Spanish and Chess Clubs, she won the school's history prize as a freshman and the Spanish prize as a junior. She also won a school-wide poetry contest.

She does volunteer work at Quincy City Hospital and at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

IF YOU SMELL GAS

If you smell the odor of gas in your home, please remember one thing over all - the primary danger is not asphyxiation, but explosion. Natural or manufactured gas escaping from appliances such as heaters or stoves can accumulate in a dangerous concentration in confined spaces.

A flame, static electricity, or even operation of an electric switch or doorbell can set off an explosion. So, don't light a match or use a light switch.

Turn off the gas supply at the main valve near the meter. This main valve, located in the basement, garage, or utility room should be identified and marked so there is no time wasted looking for it in an emergency. Open doors and windows to let the gas out of the house and call the local gas company for emergency investigation or repair.

Our Lady Of Good Counsel Parish Celebrating 40th Anniversary

Our Lady of Good Counsel Church celebrates its 40th anniversary this week.

Rev. Peter Martocchio, Pastor, said he is looking forward to the weekend with the community joining in commemorative events.

In 1938 Cardinal O'Connell created the parish from the parishes of Blessed Sacrament and St. John's. After two years of work by then pastor, Rev. Aloysius Finn and the Adams Shore - Merrymount community, the new church building was dedicated in December of 1940. Since then the church has flourished and enjoyed the support of its members and the services of dozens of clergy.

On Saturday evening there will be a parish reunion and ball from 7 to 11 p.m. at The Neighborhood Club. Admission is by ticket only. Many former priests of the parish will attend including Fr. Finn. Parishioners, both new and old, have been invited to this social event according to Parish Council President Robert Mitchell. Function chairman Francis Whalen has planned a full evening of dancing.

Following the festivities of

Saturday evening, an Anniversary Mass will be concelebrated by Humberto Cardinal Medeiros. This Mass, at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, is open to all and will be followed by a collation in the parish hall. Many members of the parish have worked for the past several months to bring about the anniversary celebration and they hope that all community residents as well as the city at large will join in commemorating this historic event in the life of the people of Adams Shore and Merrymount.

Thanksgiving Dinner For Seniors Nov. 27

The annual Thanksgiving dinner for Quincy senior citizens will be held Thursday, Nov. 27, at 1:30 p.m. at Montello's Restaurant, Mass Ave., Quincy Point.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has extended an invitation to any senior citizen in Quincy who would otherwise be alone for the holiday to join in the festivities.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted, subject to a routine police check, transfer of the common victualer take-out only license for Newport Subs, 299 Newport Ave., Wollaston, from Anthanasios Mettas to Mrs. Emily B. Laura of Squantum who will manage the establishment.

- Granted the Quincy High School Hockey Boosters Club permission to sell "Quincy Presidents Hats" during the 1980 Christmas parade, Nov. 30, and tag day permits for Friday, Dec. 5, 5 to 8 p.m., and Saturday, Dec. 6, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh, who has been concerned with the safety of participants in tag days, did not vote on the request.

- Continued for one week so that the applicant's lawyer can be present a request from Shore Taxi, Inc., 535 Sea St., for two hackneys.

- Continued for one week a request from Wollaston Assembly, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, to sell balloons at the Christmas parade. No representative from the group appeared at Tuesday's meeting.

- Granted, subject to a routine police check, a change of manager for the Furnace Brook Golf Club from Robert K. Hayhurst, who is leaving the club to start a new business, to Martin J. Healey of Quincy. Healey, who assisted Hayhurst at the club for the last eight years, told the board he would be present at the club when the bar opens for the day.

Council Needs Duplicating Machine

Members of the City Council have asked the Mayor to buy them a machine so they can duplicate their orders, resolutions and press releases - if he has the money.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who filed the request, said the Council's secretary, Louise Barbazon, has to make several trips a day from the second floor to the basement of City Hall to make copies.

South Quincy T Interchange Bids To Be Opened Dec. 9

Bids for the $22 million South Quincy MBTA Station interchange to be built at the intersection of Routes 3 and 128 are scheduled to be opened Dec. 9. The three-year project, involving eight bridges, four culverts and two walls, is expected to get underway this spring, possibly in March.

The target date for completion is in November, 1983, though State DPW officials hope that enough construction will be completed by May, 1982, to provide access to the planned Quincy Adams MBTA station.

The project includes ramps to that station, plus re-decking on the tri-level bridge on the expressway, and will involve more than a dozen different traffic patterns.

"A construction project of this magnitude is bound to cause some inconvenience for motorists, but I am urging the DPW to oversee the contractor to hold traffic disruption to a minimum," said

Sen. Paul D. Harold.

He said he hopes that the MBTA's budgetary difficulties will not affect construction of the Quincy Adams Station.

The project area will start just east of the Washington Street Bridge in Braintree, which was recently rebuilt, and extend to the point where Routes 128 and 3 split.

116 Permits For $1,029,938 Wiring

The Wire Department issued 116 permits for wiring estimated to cost $1,029,938 during the month of October, according to Inspector William H. Pitts.

A total of $5,350.50 in fees was collected, 167 inspections made, 26 defects noted and 51 certificates of approval issued to the Massachusetts Electric Co.

There were nine reinspections and two fire calls.

The major projects for the month were a 132-unit multi-dwelling at 61 Palmer St.; a 16-unit condominium at 150 Quincy Shore Drive; two 12-unit condominiums at 148 and 152 Quincy Shore Drive; and an elevator for the Church of the Nazarene, 37 East Elm Ave.

209 Plumbing Permits

The plumbing and gas fitting inspector issued 209 permits for plumbing estimated to cost $163,304 during the month of October, Inspector James A. Erwin Jr. reported.

At the same time 211 permits were issued for gas fittings valued at $186,230.

The department collected $1,024 in fees from plumbing and $1,363 in fees for gas fittings and made 446 inspections.

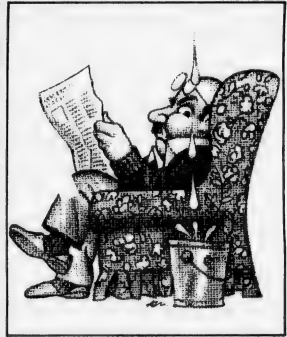

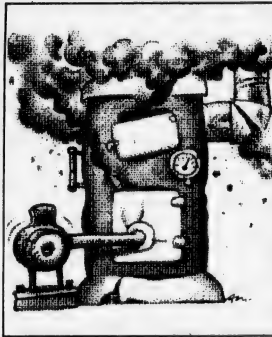

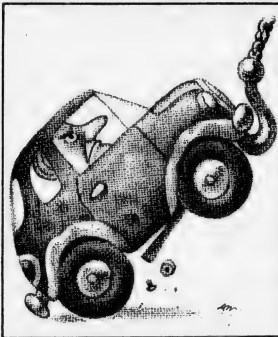

'Outsmarting Crime' At Granite Place

Janice Malloy, Director of Crime Prevention at Quincy Police Headquarters, presented a slide presentation on "Outsmarting Crime" recently at Granite Place, Quincy Center.

Cerasoli Says Prop. 2½ Must Be Implemented Totally

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Nov. 4, over 18,000 voters went out to vote in the Third Norfolk District comprised of Precincts 5, 6, 9, 12, 13, 16, and 17 in Weymouth and Ward 2 in Quincy.

Those voters overwhelmingly elected me as their State Representative and at the same time overwhelmingly voted in favor of Proposition 2½.

On December 5, Proposition 2½ (Question 2 on the ballot) automatically goes into law. Contrary to popular belief it does not have to be voted on again by the Legislature.

Every two years I send a survey questionnaire throughout my district to find out the will of the people on many issues.

Offentimes there is a good response, sometimes there is not. In this election 86 percent of the voters in Weymouth and Quincy turned out and I can't think of a better way to survey their feelings on an issue than by putting it on the ballot.

I have read the results and they are imprinted on my memory and I will not forget them. I will do all in my power to see that Proposition 2½ is implemented and carried out. I will not vote to change what the people have enacted in law.

In this case the people exercised the purest form of democracy. They voted directly to pass a law. This is one of the greatest assets of our government. The people have spoken and I will see to it that your voice is heard loud and clear.

Previously, I opposed Proposition 2½. I voted against it in the Legislature and I also voted for alternative proposals that were much less severe. These proposals were not adopted and so we put Proposition 2½ on the ballot for the people to decide. The people have decided and I will represent their wishes. I will continue to act as their true Representative by seeing that Proposition 2½ is carried out.

Readers Forum

The people definitely understood the issues; the issues were well defined and well publicized. The voters knew what they were voting on. They wanted quick and massive tax cuts.

It is unclear at this time what results 2½ will have on public services in Weymouth and Quincy. There are many conflicting viewpoints.

One thing does stand out very clear-- that is the message of the voters. I think it is extremely important that we implement Proposition 2½ totally. That is the only way to totally comply with the wishes of the voters.

All of those people who gave me a vote of confidence on Nov. 4 can be reassured of their confidence in me. I will continue to vote according to their wishes.

A Turkey Shoot

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This year the City Council has decided not to have a New Year's Eve party, instead they are going to let the planning board host a Turkey Shoot!

Once again the residents of Squantum and North Quincy will be the lucky people invited to the holiday celebration.

On Tuesday, Nov. 25th, Marina Industries will go before the planning board to seek a variance on a portion of the property and present their master plan for the development of the entire PUD project.

If everything goes according to Mr. Hannons "Master Plan" I'm sure we will be invited to a St. Valentine's day massacre at the City Council chamber.

We must be very careful at such a busy time not to overlook any of these holiday parties planned by our City officials.

Happy Holidays!

Quincy Quiz

There are no winners this week.

Last week's Quincy Quiz questions stumped everyone.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the chairman of the Conservation Commission?

2. Quincy now has three state representatives but, until 1978, had four. Besides the three present representatives, who was the fourth in 1978?

3. In what section of Quincy is the Quincy Lodge of Elks home?

4. In what historic building is the Quincy Historical Society located?

5. The John Adams and John Quincy Adams birthplaces were recently painted white and "stone" respectively. What color had they been previously?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Sea St. is 16,500 feet long, according to the city engineering department. (Hancock St. is 16,370 feet long).

2. The principal of North Quincy High School is Peter Chisom.

3. The proposed East-West Connector would run from Granth St. to McGrath Highway at Revere Rd.

4. WJDA is on Brackett St., in Quincy Center.

5. Should the mayor be out of town or incapacitated, the acting mayor would be the City Council President (Leo Kelly).

A Tribute To Elsa

John and Elsa Herbert were married 43 years. They were happy years, closely shared.

John was long-time editor of The Patriot Ledger and later became editor of The Boston Herald Traveler. He is now president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Elsa was content to remain in the background of her husband's two successful careers.

They raised and educated two sons both of whom have successful careers of their own. Robert, following in his father's footsteps, runs the Rockingham County newspapers owned by the Wall Street Journal. John handles public relations for Scandinavian Air Lines in Stockholm.

Last Oct. 20, Elsa died, losing a long, courageous battle to cancer.

John received more than 400 cards and letters of condolence -- many from friends who knew and loved Elsa. And many from others who really didn't know her, but knew of her.

Touched by their kind words and thoughts, John wrote a tribute to Elsa and has mailed copies of it to each of those more than 400 who wrote to him.

His tribute follows:

Elsa's great joy was her family. Her two sons were her great pride; she was proud when they did so well with their respective educational opportunities; she was proud of their career successes. And they reciprocated in their love and devotion to her. She was proud of her three grandchildren -- and for years she has carefully put aside funds in savings accounts for their education.

Her next great love was nature.

From a child she lived a life that was tied to the sea. Her father was a great yachtsman of the old school and family picnics on harbor islands were regularly scheduled for good weather. Later Elsa shared a love of the sea with her own children. She loved to go fishing; but it didn't end there -- she would carefully filet the catch aboard the boat for a winter supply of frozen fish. She loved storms, the wilder the better. If it was a local northeaster she wanted to get out in the car to see it. One typical reaction was during a summer we were going to Europe on the Queen Mary. We ran into a terrible storm and few of the passengers were on deck -- but Elsa indoctrinated her youngsters into the majesty and glory of a mighty ship rolling through 40-foot waves.

Another love of nature was manifest in her gardening. She surely had the green thumb and

Facing Television Nonsense

By FRANK MORTIMER

At the Boston Globe Book Festival last month, a peppy looking college student popped up from his seat and asked New York Times columnist Russell Baker a key question: "How much TV do you watch?"

The audience looked from the young man in the flannel shirt to the sharply buttoned down wit at the podium.

Baker, tall and a bit aristocratic, leaned slightly into the mike and said: "I don't see much TV. I just can't keep up, though I try."

The crowd loved it. There was an explosion of laughter and applause. It was fun to mock TV. It was thrilling to mock TV hand in hand with one of America's foremost humorists.

The audience clearly interpreted Baker's remark as sheer, uncomplicated sarcasm, sheer scorn for television. After all, what writer of Baker's stature would really want to "keep up with" the boob tube?

The laughter seemed to say, "That's right, Russ. We smart people keep TV last on our list."

I laughed too. But later, waiting in line for this urbane New Yorker to inscribe my copy of his new book, doubt crept into my mind. I wondered: what humorist of Russell Baker's stature would bother to take such an easy shot at the world's easiest target?

It occurred to me that he might have been at least half serious. Maybe this man does want to keep up with TV -- if only to keep in touch with what this nation is doing with its evenings.

Watching him chat and joke with everyone as he signed books, I felt my snobish superiority to television quickly going flat.

That was several weeks ago. But the impression lasted. And it was in this weakened state that I let my 8-year-old son con me into watching the season premier of The Dukes of Hazzard last Friday night.

Now if you don't know what the Dukes of Hazzard are, you're innocent indeed and should read no further. The rest of us already know that the Dukes are a pair of hillbilly cousins who solve most of their problems by driving at breakneck speed down country roads.

Of course Bo and Luke Duke never do break their necks. They crash cars, topple barns and tear up trees. But even the fastest chase and most violent collision leave the pretty boys looking no more rumped than John Travolta after a hot disco number.

And that's the big reason I don't want my children to watch the show.

I don't want them to believe for one second that high speed driving is likely to produce glamorous results.

But to them the program is just wild fun, and for months they gave me a good tug-of-war every Friday night at nine. Sometimes I was strong: "No Dukes tonight." Other times feeble: "Okay, but this is the last time."

I decided to make this season premier the final conflict. When Jay asked to watch it I said, "No way. Never again."

The boy had ideas of his own. "Would you just watch the Dukes once before you say no to it?"

The request was fair. My knowledge of the show was based on glimpses caught when coming in to turn down the volume. I was outmaneuvered.

So we watched together. The program turned out to be even more idiotic than I'd imagined. The first punch in the mouth came five minutes after the credits. The second punch came five minutes and one second after the credits. And so it went. The trouble began when Catfish Lee, a professional boxer gone bad, poured a frosty beer over Luke Duke's head. The idea was to lure Luke into a later match in the ring, from which Catfish and his manager would abscond with all the admission fees and wagers.

Luke at first refused the match. With a sentimental guitar melody strummed in the background, he explains to Bo and Cousin Daisy that he once almost killed a man in the ring, and never wants to box again.

But Luke soon learns that Boss Hogg, the corrupt town official, intends to sue for Uncle Jessie Duke's farm to settle the cost of a mirror broken by Luke during the brawl. The mirror is a phony antique -- valuable, according to Hogg, because Robert E. Lee or some other hero once combed his beard in front of it. A prize fight could save the farm.

Luke still refuses the match, so dedicated is he to peace...

Until he sees poor, white-bearded Uncle Jessie grooming a lamb. The guitar again strums a tearful tune in the background, and Luke decides to do what he does every Friday night: raise all hell.

The viewer gets his money's worth and more. The punches are thrown, but all for the sake of righteousness. And there are righteous high speed chases as well.

In the climactic scene, which comes after Luke hooks Catfish in the ring, Bo and Luke drive top speed toward a barn. Inside the barn four crooks blast away at the car with pistol fire.

A bullet pierces the windshield. The Duke boys shrug, laugh and charge the barn again. Their car hits a conveniently placed ramp, rises about 15 feet, and knocks down the barn. The culprits are covered with broken lumber. The car lands safely in hay. The Duke boys, confident that the hoodlums can't fire a shot, walk up, unarmed, and collar the four.

What nonsense. I had all the evidence to banish the Dukes forever from our house.

But that's not what happened.

Instead, we talked about what we saw.

"So what do you think of Bo's driving?" I asked.

"Oh, about 40 miles an hour. Good driving." My son answered. After all, his favorite program seemed to be at stake.

"It's not dangerous driving that fast?"

"Well, there's no other cars and things to crash into. Just the old barn."

Jay defended his position. Until I asked him to put himself in Hazzard County:

"Do you think Bo's driving would be safe if you were walking the baby along that road?"

Jay grew suddenly serious, and shook his head no.

He didn't want to walk his sister in Hazzard County.

Mayor Hopeful Ross Pledges Clean Reign

City Council President Charles A. Ross, one of five candidates for mayor of Quincy, promised a candidates night audience at Finnish Temperance Hall that he would give the city "a clean business administration."

"But I cannot promise you a lower tax rate," he said, noting that it had reached $27.60. "I know the financial condition of the city of Quincy only too well."

Meanwhile, William W. Macdougall, campaign manager for Forrest I. Neal, complained of the "prize fight" atmosphere surrounding a candidates night at the Wollaston Improvement Association.

"I personally want to enter my protest against the growing custom in Quincy of treating candidates for public office as if they were the prize buffoons of a vaudeville circuit," he said.

Councillor Thomas J. McGrath won the draw for top spot on the mayoral ballot. The other candidates were John D. Mackay and former Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, who held that office from 1917 to 1920.

Church News

World Hunger Concern For Peninsula Council Service

World Hunger is the concern of the six churches of the Peninsula Ecumenical Council at their third annual 7:30 p.m. Thanksgiving Eve service at St. Boniface Church, Germantown, on Nov. 26.

The offering will be given to OXFAM.

Rev. Wayne Yerxa, pastor of Bethel Beach Church of the Nazarene, will be principal speaker. Peter Scott of that church will read the New Testament Lesson.

The choir of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck, will sing. State Senator Paul Harold of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount, will read the Governor's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Mrs. John G. Whyte of Adams Shore United Methodist Church will read selections from the Old Testament.

Clergy participating are Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church; Rev. Peter Martocchio of Our Lady of Good Counsel; Rev. James Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament; Rev. Daniel D. Allen of Adams Shore Methodist; and Rev. George Carlson and Rev. Gerald Osterman of St. Boniface Church.

A fellowship time with refreshments will follow in the church social hall.

Teaching On Faith Healing At St. John's Nov. 24

Fr. Robert DeGrandis will present a Teaching on Faith Healing at a special Mass and Healing Service Monday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in St. John's upper church, School St., Quincy Center.

The church's charismatic prayer community invites the public to the service which will be followed by fellowship.

Fr. DeGrandis is a member of the Society of St. Joseph, a group of Catholic priests who work in predominantly Black communities in the United States.

Assigned to the teaching center of Jesus the Lord in New Orleans, Fr. DeGrandis is the author of "Healing and Catholics", now in its eighth printing.

Active in the renewal since 1969, his works have included ministries in radio, television, newspaper, colleges, and hospitals.

He has also appeared on the PTL and 700 Clubs as well as local television and radio talk shows.

CCD Parents Night At St. Joseph's Sunday

St. Joseph's Parish Religious Education Commission will hold a CCD Parents Night Sunday at 7 p.m. in the school hall, 22 Pray St., Quincy Point.

The event is to acquaint parents with the CCD program and teachers. The meeting is open to all members of the parish and parents of children in the CCD program.

'Conversion Of Cutshamekin' Sermon At Squantum Church

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached a sermon on "The Conversion of Cutshamekin" at the First Church of Squantum Sunday.

If was the fourth in a series of sermons on "John Eliot and His Friends" commemorating the missionary work of the 17th century "apostle to the Indians" and his Indian friends.

Cutshamekin was the sachem or leader of one of the most important subdivisions of the Massachusetts tribe of Indians in 1646 when Eliot was beginning his missionary activity.

Dr. Langevin explained why he believed the site of their village was in the Lower Mills area of Milton. During most of the year including winter, Cutshamekin's people lived on fish and game the men caught and on crops the women raised on Milton Hill. In the summer, they came down the Neponset River to the area near Mossusset Hummock at the neck of the Squantum peninsula.

Cutshamekin was the Indian who, while serving in Rhode Island in 1636 as an interpreter for the English from Boston, killed a Pequot Indian. This act precipitated warfare resulting in the total destruction of the Pequot nation in Connecticut in 1637.

He is also known as the sachem who threatened John Eliot's life if he did not cease his attempts to Christianize the Indians. Eliot's famous response was: "I am about the work of the great God; and my God is with me; so that I fear neither you nor all the Sachems in the country; I will go on, and do you touch me if you dare!"

Cutshamekin backed off and opened his wigwam to the missionary so he could hold his services there. Governor Winthrop records one time "when the governor was there and about 200 people, Indian and English, in one wigwam of Cutshamekin's to hear what Eliot had to say. Eventually, the Indians in Cutshamekin's tribe converted to Christianity and moved to Natick, the first "Praying Indian" village in Massachusetts.

The consensus of scholars is that Cutshamekin never really converted to the Christian faith. Dr. Langevin, however, recounted anecdotes from Cutshamekin's life that suggest otherwise. These stories, written down by Eliot, indicate that although Cutshamekin was not the noble figure that Waban was, he was trying to deal with the spiritual issues raised in his life by his family, his rule as a father and a husband, his work and his personal problems.

Dr. Langevin argued that Cutshamekin did convert to Christ. "The only thing was that for Cutshamekin, like some of the rest of us, being 'born again' once was not enough. It had to be, as Christ has said, a daily process. As Christians, we have to be born again and again and again. And those conversions will mean different kinds of growth in different areas of life. In a very real sense, as in the case of Cutshamekin, conversion to Christ is a life-long process."

Six years after Cutshamekin died in 1651, his people moved from Natick to Ponkapoag in the Blue Hills. It was to be another "Praying Indian" village nearer to their old camping ground in Milton. There, until they were swept away in 1675 by the ravages of war, they flourished—a community of Christian Indians—a testimony in large measure to the effective Christian ministry of John Eliot to their leader Cutshamekin.

Special music for the service was provided by two choirs. The Youth Choir sang "You and I" by Natalie Sleeth. Tom Adams played tambourine and Steve Williams played the wood block. The Senior Choir sang "The Old Hundredth Psalm Tune" in an arrangement by Ralph Vaughan Williams.

In observance of Stewardship Sunday at the church, members of the Board of Trustees collected the offering of the morning and the pledge cards for the coming year. They were presented to God at the prayer of dedication. Trustees are Edwin Adams, Barbara Anderson, Calvin Bumpus, Mary Gifford, Kathryn Kelly, John Malmgren, Ida VonRiegers, Lester Young and Stewart Scott, chairman.

Paul and Mary Gifford were greeters for the morning. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Genevieve Todd, Vi Willner and Gladys Chandler.

GEORGE'S DEATH MUST BE DIFFICULT FOR THE CHILDREN.

THEY'VE ALREADY BEEN ASKING A LOT OF QUESTIONS

As in all other aspects of life, honesty is the best policy! Children can quickly see through adult uneasiness or deceit. Telling a child that the person died and giving a specific reason for the death is most honest and helpful. If children raise further questions, these too should be answered honestly. Death is not a common occurrence in the lives of most families. It is helpful to reassure children that they will be cared for in spite of the fact that things will be different without the deceased. It is helpful to include children in all ceremonies and as much as possible in decisions that will affect them but only if they wish to participate. A child's loss is real and will not go away by being ignored.

Sons Of Italy Charitable Donations Reach $58,048 For 1980

The Quincy Sons of Italy celebrated the ninth anniversary of the lodge's social center Saturday and announced a new record of annual charitable donations.

The lodge has contributed $58,048.62 this year to charitable groups, scholarship funds and other organizations. Since moving into the social center at 120 Quarry St., in 1972, the lodge has made $282,667.36 in charitable contributions.

A $10,000 check was presented to Mayor Arthur Tobin Saturday for the city's capital improvements fund.

Guest speaker for the evening's festivities was Judge Joseph Furnari, presiding justice of the Third District Court of Essex and national recording secretary for the Sons of Italy.

Celebration Chairman was James Mastrantonio. The charitable contributions were announced by Board of Trust Chairman A. Mario Salvatore and Venerable Domenico D'Arcangelo.

A 50-year declaration of trust was signed by Board of Trust chairman A. Mario Salvatore and board members John Fantucchio, Rocco Marella, Robert Panico, John Brown, Frank Tapella, Anthony Vardaro, Sam Masotta and James Mastrantonio.

Plaques of appreciation were presented to Toastmaster Winslow Bettinson of radio station WJDA and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth. The plaques cited their "unfailing devotion to their fellow man."

Remarks and presentations to the lodge were made by Mayor Arthur Tobin, State Sen. Paul Harold and Rep. Robert Cerasoli.

Invocation was delivered by Rev. William McCarthy of St. John's Church and benediction by Sons of Italy Grand Chaplain Rev. Vincent Maffei.

Koch Club Christmas Charity Programs Underway

The Koch Club is planning its 25th year of Christmas activities and will again provide assistance to needy families, individuals and organizations in Quincy, the South Shore and Greater Boston Area.

A Christmas Basket program has been conducted by the Koch Club for the past 25 years with hundreds of Quincy families and individuals assisted during the Holiday Season.

The food baskets are distributed through the cooperation of local charitable agencies and community organizations.

Members and friends of the Koch Club wishing to assist in the endeavor by the donation of canned goods or non-perishable items are requested to leave them with the Director of the Four Koch Club Districts or officers in the various recreational units.

Thomas F. Nestor is treasurer of the Christmas Charitable Projects. Those interested in donating toward the purchase of turkeys for food baskets which include fresh fruits and vegetables and canned goods may contact Nestor at 69 Welland Rd., Weymouth, or Richard J. Koch, executive director, 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy. Checks should be made payable to Koch Club Christmas Charity.

Canned goods have also been provided by the Koch Club to a number of charities conducting various type food kitchens that provide free meals for persons who are unable to purchase the same and a number of agencies and halfway houses serving those away from home.

Various agencies and individuals have been of assistance in allowing the Koch Club to help so many. The Students of Broadmeadows Junior High School for the past several years have collected five thousand items of canned goods to aid the project.

Iraq Slide Program Shown At NuChapter Meeting

A film slide program on "Iraq - a Land of Contrasts" was featured at a recent meeting of Nu Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma at the Lincoln Hancock School.

The program, presented by Lincoln Hancock teacher Fatima Allie, showed the contrasts between the old and the new in the former "Mesopotamia of Western Literature".

The unearthing of the Hanging Gardens was also depicted in the slides as well as the cultural differences in the people of the area.

The meeting also included a tribute by E. Dorothy Russell to the late Miss Sarah E. Chase, one of the founders of the Massachusetts Delta Kappa Gamma Society, on her 100th birthday.

Members brought games, clothing and other items to the business meeting for the chapter's service project, DOVE.

Chapter president Diane E. Willard announced at the meeting the following programs have been scheduled on "Designing Quality Living": "God's Art in Nature" by Roger and Mildred Cahoon, Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. in the Adams Room of the Hollow, Quincy.

"Teaching Our Gifted Children", by Besty Buchbinder, Milton teacher of the gifted child, Monday, March 2, 1981, at 7 p.m. at Val's Restaurant, Braintree.

"Stress - How to Cope with it", by Mrs. Polly R. Carter, vice chairman, MTA Classroom Teacher's Committee, Tuesday, April 7, 1981, at 7 p.m. at Hollis School, Braintree.

"Initiation", North Quincy High School Choral Society Concert, May 7, 1981, at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

"Nu Chapter Night at the Pops", June, 1981, Symphony Hall, Boston.

Marina Proposals Topic For Squantum Association

The Squantum Community Association was scheduled to hold a special meeting last night (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. in Maryhall, Star of the Sea Church, for an update on proposals for the Boston Harbor Marina property.

Marina Industries, developers of the property, are scheduled to go before the Planning Board Tuesday, Nov. 25, to seek a variance and present their master plan for development of the whole planned unit development (PUD) parcel.

The developers have received approval to build 142 condominium units on the site, provided a second means of access to the property is obtained.

Pharmacy Drug Store Granted Nov. 23 Sunday Opening

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Pharmacy Drug Store, 42 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its grand opening Sunday, Nov. 23, but will have to wait till Dec. 9, for a License Board ruling on future Sunday openings it requested.

The drug store, a branch of Purity Supreme, will be located in the old First National Store.

District manager Robert J. Almeida explained to the board a section of the store will be used and the other section probably subleased to another tenant.

Almeida described the operation as basically a drug store with a small line of convenience foods. He said no meats or produce would be sold and compared the store to a Medi Mart.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald objected to a Lord's Day License for the store and cited violations of the license by several stores in Quincy.

MacDonald explained convenience stores that open on Sundays are failing to cover up items that are not to be sold on those days.

Police Chief Francis Finn said he doesn't have the manpower to enforce restrictions in Sunday licenses and added the courts don't take such violations very seriously.

Stores will be allowed to open on Sundays from Thanksgiving to Christmas anyway, said Finn, so Pharmacy will just be doing what other stores are doing during that time.

Lawrence Cowley of the City Solicitor's office was brought in for a ruling on what items are legal for sale on Sunday but the law proved complicated with some 50 exemptions.

MacDonald reiterated his claim that voting for the Sunday license would be condoning violation of the law since violations are so common.

Chief Finn answered that the board would be voting for a firm that has been in the city with little or no trouble and he made a motion to grant the license.

The motion received no second and was withdrawn.

Almeida said he had no intention of breaking the law whatsoever. He said the stores have had no problems in the past and that the company wanted to be part of the community.

Fire Chief Edward Barry commented the board needed to stimulate business in the city, not negate it.

Finn made a second motion that a one day Lord's License be granted to give the board more time to go over the matter.

After specifying that Pharmacy appear before the board Dec. 9 with legal counsel, Dr. McKeogh seconded the motion.

MacDonald asked that the law department revive the Sunday opening law for the board.

Protestant Chaplain Since 1965

Rev. Frank Bauer Is Pastor To 1,000 State Troopers, Too

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The pastorate of Rev. Frank Bauer of Wollaston extends beyond his own flock, to the highways of Massachusetts.

Pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, Rev. Bauer is also one of two chaplains to the Massachusetts State Police. The post causes him to exchange clerical garb for the "french and electric blue" state police uniform several times a year.

Besides taking part in ceremonial occasions, Rev. Bauer says, the position requires him to act as "pastor to the entire state police family—not just the troopers, but their families too." The force has more than 1,000 state troopers.

He is frequently called upon to give counseling on family and job-related problems.

"Most of the troopers attend churches in their own communities, of course," said Rev. Bauer. "But, frequently, a trooper finds it easier to talk to a clergyman in uniform, who understands his work and his calling."

In the past, he said, family problems frequently sprung from the troopers' demanding schedule. Until recently troopers were required to be on duty in the state police barracks for three full days—72 hours straight—followed by three days off.

Naturally, he said, this caused some family strain.

Another frequent problem, he said, relates to the State Police mandatory retirement age of 50.

"You take, say, a fellow who might be a colonel, he's used to all that power and prestige, and he gets to be 50 and the next day he's nothing. It's hard for them to cope with."

As chaplain, Rev. Bauer holds the rank of captain, doesn't carry a gun and isn't asked to help out in routine police work.

He is however, occasionally stopped by troopers on the highway, at the site of serious accidents, when last rites might be necessary.

His license plate, MSP-CH (Massachusetts State Police Chaplain), is well-known to the troopers, who seek him out in such situations, Rev. Bauer said.

So far, he said, his presence has been a lucky charm at such accidents.

"Of all the accidents I've been summoned to, none of them has been a fatality, where a chaplain was actually needed at the scene," he said.

Rev. Bauer has been chaplain since 1965, when the previous Protestant chaplain retired and he applied for the position.

"They wanted someone with a military background," he said, adding that his other chaplain posts, with the 26th Infantry "Yankee Division" and the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, aided him in landing the state police position.

He is also executive director of Wollaston Lutheran Apartments, which operates Fenno House and the newly constructed Town Brook House on Brackett St.

Working closely with the state police for 15 years has taught him at least two lessons, he said.

"I'm always impressed with the patience and low-key approach they are able to use in dealing with the public," he said.

Training for cadet troopers includes mock encounters with instructors posing as obscene and abusive motorists, testing those would-be officers who could lose their cool under pressure.

And, he adds, "it's really amazing how well-patrolled the highways are. If, for example, you had motor trouble on Rt. 128 and had to pull over, within five minutes a state trooper would be by. Try it yourself and see."

In the Grades 1 to 3 category, Jason Radzevich, 153 Vassall St., North Quincy won first prize and Christine Sutter, 59 Bird St., Houghs Neck, won second prize.

Jason is a second grader at the Sacred Heart School and Christine a third grader at the Atherton Hough.

Winners in the Grades 4 to 6 category were Irene Scott, 27 Sharon Rd., North Quincy, first prize, and Corinne Radzevich, 153 Vassall St., North Quincy, second prize.

Both are fifth graders at the Sacred Heart School.

Each of the first-prize winners will receive a $100 United States Savings Bond, while runners-up will receive a $50 bond.

Council Wants Part On Prop 2½ Discussions

Christmas Festival is "Just For Kids."

Co-chairmen of the poster contest are Richard J. Koch and Mrs. Gloria Noble. Christmas Festival Committee General Chairman is George Fay.

Other activities scheduled for this year's Christmas Festival include the Christmas tree lighting ceremonies, Nov. 28; Santa's visit to Quincy Center, Nov. 29; the annual Christmas Parade, Nov. 30; placing of Santa's Mailboxes in Quincy Center, Dec. 1 and the Christmas Festival Nativity Pageant, Sunday, Dec. 14 at United First Parish Church.

All events are co-sponsored by the city of Quincy and the QCBPA.

The Tobin Administration is deeply involved in solving the riddle of Proposition 2½ and now Councillor Francis X. McCauley feels that the City Council ought to get involved, too.

"There's been a lot of talk in the newspapers concerning 2½ and when it will be implemented and the problems it will cause the city," he told his fellow councillors Monday night.

"I think it would be a good idea to have the Council updated on the requirements of the law, the dates on which it will be implemented and the amounts of money that will have to be cut from the budgets."

He asked Council President Leo J. Kelly to call a special meeting of the Council to have the treasurer, auditor, solicitor and members of the Board of Assessors discuss 2½ with the Council.

Kelly said he would.

Meanwhile, Mayor Tobin continued to meet with department heads and others in an effort to pin down the implications of Prop 2½ and ready the city for an expected $15 million budget cut.

Tobin said he has talked to some union officials, "very informally, and they informed me that they're going to take a hard position in any discussions of collective bargaining."

"I told them," he said, "that I respect whatever they have won in contracts but Proposition 2½ was voted by the people and I must live with this mandate."

"I told them if they take a hard position on this then it's going to come down to huge layoffs of city workers. It's not a threat, I said, it's a fact of life."

"What I'm saying is we have to negotiate with them and discuss it with them so the next step is up to them on which way we're going to go."

Col. Bernard LaCouture Wins Second A.F. Medal

Lt. Col. Bernard LaCouture, a teacher in the Quincy Public Schools for the past 26 years, has received his second Air Force Commendation Medal for Meritorious Service.

Col. LaCouture is a member of the 3245th Air Base Group at Hanscom Air Force Base, Bedford. He has 30 years active and reserve service.

Last year, he received his first Commendation Medal for developing educational programs for the Massachusetts Defense Civil Preparedness Agency, headquartered in Bridgewater.

He developed "Quincy Defense Civil Preparedness Week" in 1978 in which 900 junior high school civics students became involved in the DCPA course entitled, "Your Chance to Live."

Class and home activities stressed the need for preparation prior to a man-made or natural disaster. The Quincy plan became a model for other communities planning DCPA weeks.

Col. LaCouture has the additional duty of being Air Force Academy liaison officer for Quincy and surrounding communities in which he recruits,

Brownell Seeks MBTA Help For Handicapped

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell has requested the M.B.T.A. to authorize the use of "special needs passes" for the disabled during all operational hours rather than just off peak hours.

"This has been designated as the 'Year of the Handicapped' and it is only appropriate that the MBTA adopt this proposal," said Brownell.

"Many disabled citizens, existing on fixed Social Security payments, simply cannot afford the full fare during rush hours.

"The voter's recently overwhelmingly supported a constitutional amendment for equal access for handicapped citizens.

"It is incumbent upon those who have the ability to implement change to mainstream our disabled citizens and not make ability to pay a criterion for necessary travel."

In a letter to MBTA Chairman Barry Locke, Brownell asked for administrative implementation before he would seek a change in the general laws during the 1981 session.

The existing discount for off peak hours is a federal mandate for federal funds which supercedes the lack of state law, Rep. Brownell pointed out, adding there is a possibility of broadly interpreting the federal regulation.

Patty Maddalena At Montello's Friday

North Quincy's Patty Maddalena, now a nightclub singer, will return to her hometown to perform for an evening of ballroom dancing at Montello's in Quincy Point Friday.

Ballroom dancing is held each Friday at Montello's, 53 Massachusetts Ave., from 8 p.m. to midnight. Proceeds benefit the Goodwill Performers, who entertain area senior citizens.

Miss Maddalena, 22, is a lifelong resident of Quincy and a graduate of North Quincy High. In 1977 and 1978, she participated in over 60 shows for senior citizens groups as a member of the Goodwill Performers.

Tozzi Presents Mathematics Workshops

Lou Tozzi, resource room teacher at Central Junior High School, recently gave two workshops entitled "Mathematics Learning Disabilities".

The first was at Providence St. Junior High School in Worcester as part of the Worcester Public Schools In-Service day for all staff.

The second was at the Natick Hilton Inn, sponsored by the Mass. Teachers Association at its Fall Post Graduate Educational Institute.

Both presentations dealt with visual, auditory and perceptual problems encountered in the classroom, along with demonstrations of how to develop materials for remediation.

Open College Week Planned At Quincy Junior

Quincy residents who have always wanted to go to college but never got around to enrolling can attend the classes of their choice at Quincy Junior College during Open College Week, Dec. 1-4.

The week is designed to acquaint residents of Quincy and the South Shore with the college. "It's an opportunity to meet instructors and students, to sit in on a college course to see what it's like, and to get information all in one place and at one time," said Toby Felton, assistant to the QJC president.

"The Open College Week is specifically designed to open the college to people who are not presently students at Quincy Junior College."

"We hope that people who are curious about college or specific courses or who have questions they'd like answered --- or who simply want to visit us --- will attend."

The hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Dec. 1-4.

The second floor lounge in the main college building will be the registration center and gathering place. Students and faculty will be available to chat with visitors over coffee and pastry.

Visitors can then choose which class they'd like to visit and will be escorted to that class by a student.

A special drawing for a $100 scholarship will take place from the registration cards. A registrant whose name is drawn and who will be attending QJC full-time will receive the scholarship.

Brochures and advice will be available in the areas of financial aid, admissions, student life, careers, continuing education and academic programs.

Further information may be obtained by calling, Donna Rothenberg at 786-8777.

2 Residents On Xray Tech Membership Drive Committee

Two Quincy residents are members of the committee planning a membership drive for the Massachusetts Society of Radiologic Technologists beginning Monday, Nov. 24.

The residents are Patricia A. Coughlin of 56 Warren Ave., and Michael DelVecchio, RT, of 72 Keating St.

According to society president Paul M. Fournier, RT, of Medfield. "The purpose of the drive is to present a united voice for the profession as it seeks licensure which will not only benefit the public through radiation protection, but will also enhance the credibility of practitioners.

The certified public accounting firm of Corner, Dandrow, & Co. will be the first occupants of the newly remodeled Greenleaf Building at 1419 Hancock St., corner of Granite St.

The building is the former Greenleaf Hotel, built in 1876.

Richard W. Corner, managing partner in the firm which was founded in 1977, has announced that Robert V. Dandrow of Norwood has been admitted to partnership in the company.

"Our rapid growth has made it necessary to provide additional space for present and future expansion," said Corner. "Quincy is where I was born and raised and we wanted to be right in Quincy Square."

Corner, Dandrow & Co. serves closely-held corporations, non-profit organizations, financial institutions, health care businesses and physicians, as well as providing extensive tax and estate planning services.

Corner, a graduate of Suffolk University, is a member of the Hospital Financial Management Association, the board of directors of the South Shore Mental Health Center and the board of managers of City Hospital.

Both he and Dandrow, a graduate of Boston College, are members of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Massachusetts Society of CPAs.

Were Those The Presidents Out There ?

By TOM SULLIVAN

Any resemblance between the Quincy football team that gave unbeaten Brookline its toughest game two weeks ago and the one which faced Brookline last week at Veterans Memorial Stadium was purely co-incidental.

The Presidents, following an outstanding showing at Brookline, collapsed in every department last week and Brookline, with its best team in years, rolled, 28-0, to improve its record to 7-2.

The disappointing loss dropped Quincy to 3-5-1, assuring a losing record this year and its only goal on Thanksgiving will be a fourth successive victory over North Quincy.

The Indians dominated the game from the start and, paced by the McMahon brothers, Joe and Tim, who, incidentally are two of the top hockey players in the Suburban League, had little trouble penetrating the Quincy defense, while its own defense bottled up the Presidents' attack, which had clicked well in the previous three games.

"We were just flat in every department after the Brookline game," said a disappointed coach Tom Fitzgerald.

"They have an excellent team and an outstanding coach in Ed Schluntz and they certainly were the better team out there today. I am very disappointed with our performance after such a fine effort at Brookline."

The only Quincy back to make any appreciable yardage was Mark Abboud, who gained 85 of the Presidents' 126 yards on the ground. Junior quarterback Sean Martin, who had two outstanding games against Weymouth North and Brookline after spelling the injured Ron Pettinelli, was under terrific pressure by the aggressive Brookline defense and couldn't get untracked. He completed only five of 16 passes for 47 yards and had two intercepted, while picking up only minimal yardage on the ground.

Offensive line coach Peter Chella and defensive coaches Bill Mavor and Joe Goguen were extremely disappointed and refused to single out any players.

"I'm not trying to alibi or take anything away from Brookline, but we had a bad week of practice with many players out sick," Fitzgerald said. "I didn't have a full squad at any time and several of the boys were playing under par physically."

"Captain Fran Duggan, John Varrasso and Chris Chevalier, three of our outstanding linemen, were out nearly all week as were several others."

Brookline had 186 yards on the ground and quarterback Joe McMahon passed for 87 yards and three touchdowns, while he and brother Tim did the bulk of the Indians' gaining on the ground.

Although both teams had 13 first downs, Quincy never threatened seriously.

Brookline killed Quincy with trap plays and on the second play from scrimmage Joe McMahon broke loose for 57 yards to the Quincy nine but The Presidents recovered a fumble on the next play.

After a Mark Picot punt went to midfield, Tim McMahon picked up 22 yards and five plays later Joe McMahon passed to Eric Pender for seven yards and a touchdown. Tim McMahon rushed for the two points.

A bad pass from center on a punting situation sailed far over Picot's head, giving Brookline the ball on the Presidents' 24, but on the next play another fumble was recovered by Quincy.

Quincy drove to Brookline's 35 but was stopped and the Indians marched 65 yards for their second touchdown. Joe McMahon completing two passes to Pender for 29 yards and Ed Riley scored from the three. Dave Ewanowski skirted left end for the two points.

Brookline drove 78 yards for another TD after a Picot punt went to its 22. A 16-yard pass from McMahon to Jack Steele and two successive 15-yard penalties against Quincy moved Brookline to the 20 and Joe McMahon threw a screen pass to brother Tim, who went all the way for the score.

Jim Hennessy intercepted a Martin pass and returned it to Quincy's 39 to set up the final touchdown, which came on a 35-yard pass from McMahon to Steele.

10 A.M. Kickoff

Quincy, North Sophs Clash Saturday

The Quincy and North Quincy Sophomore football teams will have their day Saturday when they meet in their annual game at Veteran's Memorial Stadium.

Kickoff time is 10 a.m. and if the game approaches those of the last two years for excitement, the fans are in for a treat.

Last fall Quincy eked out a 7-6 victory after North had come from behind to pull out a 15-14 thriller the previous season.

Mark Conroy's Quincy sophs bring the better record into the game (6-1) to 3-5 for Ted Sadowski's North team but, like the varsity game, records can be thrown out the window when the young rivals meet.

Quincy has outscored the opposition, 156-44, and in its last outing rolled over Brockton, 48-0. The lone loss was to Waltham.

On offense Quincy has ends John Riggs, an outstanding two-way player and excellent punter, and Willie Cullen and Chris plant, fine pass receivers.

The tackles are Bob Willard and Dan Mahoney, the guards are John O'Donohue and Rick Gustin, and the center is Al Carpenter, who Conroy calls his most consistent lineman.

Bob Mudge is an excellent quarterback, Ted Walsh and Brian Callahan are the hard running fullbacks, and Quincy has excellent halfbacks in Mike Miller, described by Conroy as the most coachable player he has had, Mark Righini, a fine two-way player, and Chris Dracchio and John Pickering, fine running backs.

The backup quarterback is John Spencer and others doing their part on offense are ends Ed Kennedy, Bruce King and Mark Glynn; tackles Joe Harte, Dennis Obert, Steve Ganno and Bruce Ricciardi and guards Darren DeCoste and Bob Burns.

Quincy has a strong defense with Riggs and Bob McIsaac at end, tackles Harte, John Marsters and Ganno, nose guards Obert, Burns and Brian Callahan, linebackers Sal Lorenzano, DeCoste, John Taglieri, Donald Noll, Dracchio and Sean Wynn and halfbacks Glenn Oriola and Righini.

Others who will play on defense are Jim Kennedy, Willard, Han Ho, Morgan Gray, Mark Glynn and Spencer.

"Our special teams have played an important part in each game," Conroy said. "Riggs, Lorenzano and Walsh have punted well and Obert has been outstanding on kickoffs."

Conroy credited assistant Bill Deal for helping in the development of the team. Deal, who works with the line and linebackers, is helping Conroy for the second year. A former player at Auburn, Deal is stationed at the South Weymouth Naval Air Base.

"Our record isn't impressive, but a win over Quincy will make the season successful," said Sadowski, now in his 22nd year as a North assistant coach.

Vin Barry is the quarterback, Rich Brown fullback and Mike Cullen, Dave DiCarlo and John McDonald halfbacks.

The defensive unit includes Peter Clark and Paul Graham, ends; Pat Fitzgerald and Bob Walker, tackles; Shawn Cunningham and Neal Leonard, guards; Rich Reardon and Rick Myatt, linebackers, and Jay Pillard, Rick Tapper, Dan Johnson, Bob Leonard and Mike Costa, defensive backs.

Marc Balzarini was the team's punter but he is injured and Barry and Ceurvels now share the punting and are doing a good job.

Sadowski's assistant this year is Pete Zoia, an all-time North great who starred for the Raiders' first three teams in 1933, '34 and '35. Pete captained the 1935 team. Two of his sons, Dean, current varsity standout, Greg, played for Sadowski.

● Cross Country

North Girls Win Suburban Title

The North Quincy girls' cross country team finished its best season ever last week by winning the Suburban League championship meet and finished sixth in the all-state meet at Franklin Park.

The Raiderettes, who earlier had won the Eastern Mass. Division II title, placed six among the first 15 finishers in the league meet, with Sheila Barrett second, Mary Crehan third and Linda Kennedy fourth. Kennedy had returned to the squad only a week earlier after suffering from an asthmatic condition and made a remarkable comeback.

North's Deirdre Corrigan finished seventh, Robin O'Donnell 10th and Deirdre Donovan 14th.

"We finished 8-2-1 in the regular season and we really missed Linda Kennedy," Coach Lou Tozzi said. "She made an excellent comeback after being out so long. She's only a sophomore and I'll certainly be glad to have her back. Deirdre Corrigan also did a fine job and turned in her best performance of the season."

"These girls are motivated and they keep a great positive attitude that's important to our success. They are the very best."

The North girls made a good showing in the all-state meet, finishing sixth behind champion Bp. Fenwick, Newton North, Waltham, Swampscott, and Seekonk.

Barrett was the Raiderettes' first finisher in 13th place.

Raiders Find Defense, But Lose Offense

North Quincy's defense, which had been superb over the first half of the schedule but faltered badly against Brookline and Weymouth South, returned to form last Saturday.

But the offense was bottled up and the Raiders lost to Catholic Memorial, 13-7, to drop their record to 5-3-1. It was CM's fifth straight win.

North is assured of a winning season regardless of the outcome Thanksgiving, but the Raiders will be out to gain their first win over Quincy in four years.

"We were very encouraged with the improvement in the defense," Coach Dave Burke said. "But their defense was also good. We hurt ourselves with some costly penalties. We moved the ball well, but bogged down when we got in their territory."

Sparked by Dean Zoia (71 yards) and Joe Dudek, North was in Memorial territory much of the game. CM's defense put a lot of pressure on quarterback Jack Brown, who had four passes intercepted.

North's defense was particularly outstanding in the first half as CM lost six yards in the first period and had only a net of 30 yards in the first half.

"The defense was excellent today and we had only one breakdown and that cost us a touchdown," defensive coordinator Ken McPhee said. "They caught us napping on that touchdown pass (for 78 yards) in the second period."

A costly penalty set up the second CM score in the last period and that touchdown was hotly disputed by the Raiders.

"Their runner fumbled as he reached the goal line and the ball popped into the air and was caught by Paul Schaeztl on the three," said McPhee. "How could he have been in the end zone if the ball popped out to the three-yard line? I think the films will show he didn't score."

McPhee and the other defensive coach, Jack Raymer, had good words for Chuck Sylva and Bob McCormack, who were outstanding at defensive end, Glen Segalla, Gino Pillard, Paul O'Sullivan, Bill

| | TD | PAT | FG | Pts. |

Stacy and Steve Lee, but said the entire defense stood out.

McCormack, however, suffered a knee injury which is expected to keep him out of the Quincy game.

Offensive line coach George Liset was pleased with the line's performance and singled out Bob Bolster, Segalla, Jack Leone, Lou Pietro, Sylva, Bob Pound, Bill Feeney, Neil Fisher, John Buckley and Ted Hannon.

Brian O'Leary again did some fine punting for the Raiders.

North drove 65 yards inside the Memorial 10 on the first series of play but a penalty set it back and the drive stalled.

In the second period CM quarterback Butch O'Rourke passed to Brian Murphy, who raced 50 yards to complete a 78-yard scoring play. Warren McGillivray kicked the point.

There was no more scoring until the final period when Mark Bulger scored the disputed touchdown.

The Raiders came back and drove to their only touchdown, sparked by Zoia's running. Zoia was stopped just short of the goal line and Brown scored on the next play. Leone kicked the point.

Leone, who had a 51-yard field goal the previous week against Weymouth South, tried a 35-yard Saturday which had plenty of distance but was just wide.

The rushing figures were close with CM netting 109 yards and North 107. Brown was able to complete only two passes, one for 29 yards and the other for no gain.

● Junior High Football

Broad Meadows, Central Co-Champs

By PETE ZOIA

The junior high school football season came to a close last week with the championships being decided on the final day.

Broad Meadows' ninth grade team defeated Sterling, 10-0, to share the city title with Central, both teams finishing with 7-1 records.

Sterling eighth graders topped Broad Meadows, 14-6, to win the city crown, barely edging Atlantic. Sterling finished 4-0-2 and Atlantic wound up 3-0-3.

The Sterling eighth graders started off with a bang as Darryl Tucker returned the opening kickoff 67 yards for the first touchdown. Gerry Frazier sped around right end for the two points and an 8-0 lead.

After recovering a fumble on Sterling's 27, Broad Meadows' Paul Miller and Mike Powell brought the ball to the two from where Powell scored just before the half ended.

The second Sterling touchdown came in the fourth period after a fumble recovery. A Mike Dracchio to Frazier pass ate up 35 yards for the score.

Both Sterling-Atlantic games this season ended in ties.

In a must win game, Broad Meadows ninth graders had a hard time in finally subduing Sterling. A golden opportunity was missed by Sterling as it reached the B.M. 11, only to fumble and have Ed Boyle recover to give B.M. the ball in the first period.

A well-executed flea flicker pass put the ball deep into Sterling territory, but an interception turned the ball over to Sterling on its 22. A spirited Sterling player was ejected for fighting, triggering a 15-yard penalty back to its 7.

Here a Sterling back fumbled and recovered the ball in the end zone, giving B.M. a safety. This was in the second period.

These two points loomed large until the last quarter when Greg Keefe and Mike Notarangelo took turns carrying from Sterling's 35 to the five, from where Keefe smashed in for the only T.D. of the game. Notarangelo added the two points.

Although this game was hard fought because of its great rivalry, and it had a few bad moments, it was sad to see only one Sterling player, Mark Stuart, offer a hand shake of congratulations to Coach Gene Macomber and the Broad Meadows team members.

● PeeWee House

Bersani, Gear Remain Tied

Bersani Brothers and Boston Gear remained in a top tie in the Pee Wee House League with victories last week.

Bersani edged Mug 'n Muffin, 6-5, with Mike Edgren and Dave Hack having two goals apiece and Sean Mahoney and Keith Freeman one each. John O'Connell had three assists and Freeman, Mahoney and Hack one each. For M 'n M Nicky Cangemi had two goals and Paul Lester, Matt Ostiguy and Chris Holland one each. Bill Jenkins and Cangemi had two assists apiece and Tim Duff, Ostiguy and Mike Barron one each.

Gear blanked Dee Dee's 3-0, with Ron Fletcher in goal. Chris Boussey had two goals and Dave Young one. Bill Stacy had two assists and Bill Ferrara one.

UCT defeated Keohane's, 4-1, with Ricky Ames having two goals and Mike Flaherty and Mike Daly one each. Rich Connolly had two assists and Daly, Ames and Flaherty one each. Ed Martell had Keohane's goal with Steve O'Connell and Chris Conway assisting.

D & H Tops Sun, 7-5

Doran & Horrigan extended its Bantam House League lead to four points over the Quincy Sun by topping the Sun, 7-5.

Baskin Robbins outlasted Johnson Motor, 9-7. Jeff Murphy and Tim McCarthy had two goals apiece for Johnson and Joe Mastroianni, Ed Boyle and Dick Marnell one each. Marnell had three assists, Micky McAuliffe two and Mastroianni and Boyle one each.

Burgin Platner edged McGinn Shell, 2-1, on goals by Sean Bary and John Krantz. Barry, Dave Edgren and Dennis Shannon had assists.

● Midget House

Marines Hold Beachhead

Caddy Marines defeated Fire Dept., 7-4, and hold a two-point lead over Suburban in the Midget House League.

Chris Harrington had two goals and Don Ross, Mike Glennon, Rich Monahan, Dave Nigro and Frank McGinn one each. Bill Flanagan had two assists and Glennon, Larry Costello, Ross, McGinn and Nigro one each. Steve DeLuca, Dan Newcomb, Ricky Miller and Vin Whelan scored for Fire with assists for Whelan, Bill

O'Brien, Paul Egan and Jim Paolucci.

Suburban topped Police, 7-4, with Dennis Croke scoring two goals and Bill Roche, Joe Livingston, Jim Doyle, Kevin Jennette and Bill Lawless one each. Roche had two assists and Croke one. For Police Mike Chennette had two goals and Tom Murphy and Keith Blaney one each. Dave Hickey, Tom Hennessey, Blaney and Chennette had assists.

● Mite-Squirt House

Harold Club Holds Lead

Harold Club holds a three-point lead in the Mite-Squirt House League following a 5-5 tie with Lydon Russell. Brian Zimmerman had a hat trick for Harold and Mike Baylis and Rich McDonald had one goal each. Brian Kelly, Jill Rennie, Zimmerman and Steve Connolly had assists. For Lydon, Mark Molloy had a hat trick and Ron Last two goals. Jeff Connors and Bob Scott had two assists apiece and Chris LaForrest and Chris DiNatale one each.

Teachers defeated Balducci's 7-2, with Bob Moriarty and Jeremy Burn having two goals apiece and Mike Hughes, Mark Cafano and Bill Dineen one each. Burn, Jeff Freeman, Dave Santosuosso, Ed Devin, Bob Moriarty and Tom Gleason had assists. Sean Caplis and Kevin Daly scored for Balducci with assists for Jeff Hemphill and Joe Jackson.

Feeeney's walloped BoCar, 11-1, sparked by Joey Fasano's four goals and Bob Thomas' hat trick. Mark Rudnisky had two goals and Jim Ferrara and Matt Smith one each. Tim Collins, Fasano and Sean Doherty each had three assists, Smith and Rudnisky two and Ferrara, Thomas, Brian Mantville and Chris Fleming one each. Arthur Cangemi scored for BoCar with Brian Backman assisting.

N.Q. Knights To Host Tourney

The North Quincy K. of C. Council 2259 will host the third annual Christmas Holiday Hockey Tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena from Dec. 29 through Jan. 3.

The tournament will be sponsored and supported by K. of C. councils throughout the state and will involve 28 teams and approximately 500 youth hockey players.

Mite A's Bomb Randolph

The Mite A hockey team bombed Randolph, 14-0, sparked by Matt Smith's four goals. Michael Baylis, Richie McDonald and Joey Fasano had hat tricks and Kevin Daly one goal.

Brian Zimmerman and Fasano had two assists apiece and Michael Hughes, Timmy Collins, Daly, Smith, McDonald and Bobby Scott one each.

James Tiberio, playing in goal in his first A game, had the shutout.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Incredibly, there was once a National Football League game when one team got behind 21-0 BEFORE THEY EVEN HAD THEIR FIRST PLAY FROM SCRIMMAGE!... It happened in 1975... San Diego kicked off to Cincinnati, and Cincinnati marched down the field for a touchdown... San Diego then fumbled the next 2 kickoffs and both were turned into touchdowns by Cincinnati... Thus, the score was 21-0 before San Diego ran their first scrimmage play... They were virtually out of the game before they could get started... Final score was 47-17.

Ever realize how many famous boxing champions changed their names?... For instance, Joe Louis was born Joe Barrow... Rocky Graziano's real name was Tom Barbelo... Sugar Ray Robinson was born Walker Smith... Jack Sharkey's real name was Joe Kukauskas... Joe Walcott was Arnold Cream... And, of course, Muhammad Ali was Cassius Clay.

Most football coaches make pessimistic statements, in hopes of keeping their team from being over-confident, but the extreme pessimist of all-time was probably Frank Leahy, who coached Notre Dame in the 1940s and 1950s... Leahy once said, "I honestly feel we won't make a first down this year"... (Notre Dame went undefeated that year).

I bet you didn't know... that COLMAN'S has the latest in cold weather and ski fashion. Jackets, pants, hats, gloves... everything you need to keep warm and comfortable during the cold weather ahead. For the ultimate in cold weather comfort, check the Duofold underwear at COLMAN'S... two layers, cotton and wool. You'll marvel at it.

Defeat Sailors, 34-12

Undefeated Apaches (9-0) Youth Football Champs

The North Quincy Apaches wound up an unbeaten season (9-0) and won the Quincy Youth Football League championship with a 34-12 victory over the Squantum Sailors Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Apaches had finished 8-0 and the runnerup Sailors 5-3 in the league. The two top teams play for the title and, despite the Apaches' better record, the Sailors would have been the league champ with a win.

The Sailors received the opening kickoff but on the first play from scrimmage Eddie Page of the Apaches intercepted a pass and returned it to the Sailors' 20. Mike Gill scored from the seven and Eddie Page added the two-point conversion.

Later in the period Keith

Smith recovered a fumble on the Sailors' 40 and Gill scored his second TD on a 28-yard run.

In the second period Steve Kearns blocked a Sailor punt and Smith recovered in the end zone for the third touchdown. Mike Barry raced 58 yards for the first Sailor touchdown and later in the second period Ken Yanefsky stopped a Sailor drive with a fumble recovery.

There was no scoring in the third period as both teams turned in good defensive plays.

In the final period Bob Varnado put the Apaches ahead, 26-6, with a nine-yard scoring run and a few minutes later Paul Lloyd ran 51 yards for the second Sailors' score.

Varnado scored the final

Apaches TD on a 32-yard run and Mike Doherty finished off the scoring with the two-point conversion.

Sailors Coach Jack Burke had good words for his entire team. "This is our best season since we started five years ago," he said. "We had never won more than two games before and the boys did a tremendous job this year. My assistant, Bob Giordano, deserves much of the credit."

"I congratulate the Apaches, they have an outstanding team, head and shoulders above the rest of the teams."

Burke praised Billy Doherty, Mike Barry, John Roney, Gerard Coughlin and Rob Flannery in particular for their outstanding performances.

"I also want to thank the parents for their tremendous support," Burke added. "They turned out for every game and gave the team a lot of support. That meant a lot to the players."

Hosts Pharmacy Thursday

QJC Bows To Emerson

The Quincy Junior College basketball team lost its season's opener to Emerson, 73-58, last week at Boston Garden in a preliminary to the Celtics-Nets game.

The Jaguars, who host Mass. College of Pharmacy tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Vo-Tech gym and play at Hellenic College next Tuesday at 7, came out flat, playing without aggressiveness on defense and trailed, 47-37, at halftime.

Coach Brian Buckley's team cut the gap to eight points but then missed five foul shots which killed the comeback and Emerson coasted the rest of the way.

"Emerson has a fine team and an outstanding guard in David Brooker (18 points)," Buckley said. "We just weren't emotionally ready. We were outstutled and outcoached."

A bright spot for QJC was the rebounding and shooting of sophomore forward Ed Richard, who pulled down 20 rebounds and scored a career high 26 points.

"I think some of our players were just standing around watching Eddie battle underneath," Buckley said. "He was working very hard and his statistics prove the point."

The Jaguars shot only 61 percent from the line (22 for 36) and hit on only 18 of 60 shots from the floor. "You can't miss 42 shots and 14 free throws and expect to win," Buckley concluded.

Over 400 Take Part In B.C. Basketball Clinic

Over 400 took part last week in the Quincy Recreation Department's Boston College basketball clinic at North Quincy High School.

Head Coach Tom Davis and his entire team demonstrated various drills including Screenouts, post step, shuffle reaction and two-man passing drills.

Free tickets compliments of Quirk Chevrolet of Braintree were given out to all in attendance for the December B.C. - New Hampshire game.

An added attraction of the December 2 game will be an elementary boys game featuring boys from each of the Recreation Department's Saturday gym programs.

Laracy Second In 50-Yard Breaststroke

Thirty AAU swimming teams from three states competed in Framingham last weekend.

Bob Laracy of Quincy, 11, finished second in the boys' 50-yard breaststroke and fourth in the 100-yard freestyle.

Quincy's Meg Givens, 10, finished second in the girls' 100 yard individual medley and fifth in the 50 yard backstroke.

This AAU meet had the largest number of swimmers competing in each event of any meet this season.

Big Foot Joins Hancock Bank

Big Foot, the monster that has fascinated natives of the Himalayas for centuries, has been discovered at the Hancock Bank.

The local banking institution has captured Big Foot in an animal toy version that is being offered to depositors in a six-week promotion.

William Kelley, president of the bank, welcomed the real Big Foot to the bank along with a flock of little Big Foots waiting for depositors to catch them.

When last seen, Big Foot was parading down Hancock St. in a convertible on his way to appearances at local branches of the bank.

Visitors to the bank will have an opportunity to register for a huge Big Foot in a sweepstakes drawing at each branch.

Arthur Shaw In Stop & Shop Quarter Century Club

Arthur J. Shaw of Quincy was one of 73 employees of the Stop and Shop Companies, Inc., inducted into its Quarter Century Club recently during a luncheon at Sidney Hill Country Club in Newton.

The employees of Stop & Shop Supermarkets, Bradlees Department Stores, Medi Mart Drug Stores and the Stop & Shop Manufacturing Co. were welcomed by Sidney Rabb, chairman, and Irving Rabb, vice chairman.

Jacqueline Swafford Nuclear Interne

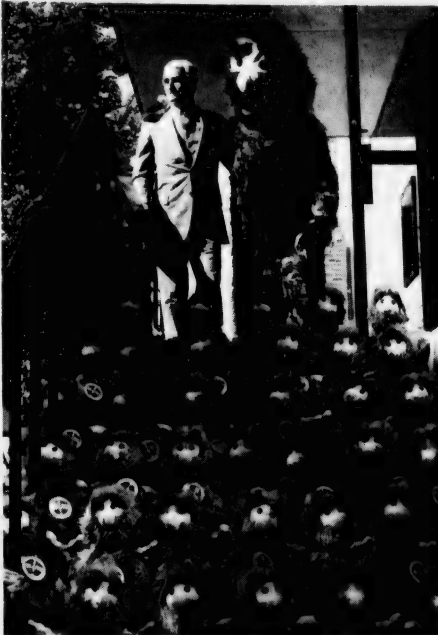

Jacqueline Swafford, 61 Colonial Dr., Quincy Center, a second year student in the nuclear medicine program at Bunker Hill Community College, is interning at Cardinal Cushing Hospital in Brockton.

The program provides training for students in the diagnostic and therapeutic use of radionuclides and for entry into the health care professions.

and disheartened that he is not here.

"We all understand that the ramifications of 2½ are very serious but I suggest that if there was a little more communication with the City Council we would be in better shape financially and able to address public safety issues."

McGrath apologized to those in the audience, mostly police officers, who had shown up to hear the chief and adjourned the meeting until a time "when at the convenience of the various department heads they can appear before the elected representatives of the city."

Tobin said he didn't know what all the fuss over Finn was about.

"Whatever information the councillors want they could get by picking up the phone and talking to Chief Finn or any other department head any time they want to," he said.

"If they were sincere in their approach to gather information Monday evening, Capt. Nestor and Officer Pettinelli were ready, willing and able to answer any of their questions. They handle the books at the Police Department.

"I'm suspicious that the meeting was just politically motivated. They like to orchestrate 30 or 40 union members up there to make all sorts of statements. That's the circus atmosphere right now. The people of Quincy deserve more than that."

Tobin has blamed City Council cuts in the budget for the financial problems of the Police Department, which is due to run out of money before the end of the fiscal year next June 30.

"They stripped the Police Department and now they want to know from the chief and the mayor where the money is coming from," said Tobin. "That's where your hypocrisy is. They know what's happening."

The mayor said that if the Police Department is to make it through to June 30 "we're going to have to sit down and look at all the accounts and scrimp and scrape and do what we have to do."

A drawing for cash prizes totalling $1,650 will be among the highlights of the annual Christmas Bazaar of the Braitree St. Coletta Day School Guild Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28 and 29.

The bazaar will be held at the school hall, 85 Washington St., Braitree, and hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

The drawing will take place Saturday at 1 p.m. and first prize will be $1,000.

Also featured at the bazaar will be homemade cakes and foods, hand knitted items, Christmas decorations, dolls and doll clothes, white elephant articles, jewelry, plants, new and used toys and games of chance.

The kitchen will be open during the bazaar for refreshments. Santa Claus will be on hand for pictures with children.

The event is the guild's major fund raiser of the year. Proceeds will go towards the educational and physical needs of the special children at St. Coletta's.

4 Local Child Actors Win 'Charly II' Roles

Four Quincy youngsters, students at Children's Theater Workshop, have won roles in the upcoming movie "Charly II," which is to be filmed in Boston.

It is the sequel to "Charly," the film for which Cliff Robertson won an Academy Award as the best actors in 1968.

The cast of 22 children for

"Charly II" were handpicked by Robertson.

The Quincy youngsters chosen include Tasha Anastasi, 43 Highfield Rd., Merrymount; Christine Carroll, 29 Mass Ave., Quincy Point; and Kaitlan Barry, 67 Glendale Rd., and Scott Bartoloni, 64 Euclid Ave., Quincy Center.

Diane Purdy, director of the performing arts at Woodward School for Girls, and her daughter, Jodi, also were cast in the movie.

Jodi, 19, was selected by Robertson to read for the lead role of Patty, a 28-year-old graduate student.

"I've never wished to look old so hard in my life," she said.

Aerobic Dancing Begins Dec. 1 At Woodward School

Registration is being taken for "Rhapsody in Blue" Jacki Sorensen's 12 week winter aerobic dancing session, which begins Monday, Dec. 1, at the Woodward School for Girls.

Aerobic dancing is a physical fitness program that combines dancing with jogging.

Miss Sorensen, originator and choreographer of the sport, commented, "Why exercise only one group of muscles at a time when you can tone and trim your entire figure while you dance and have fun doing it?"

A 45-60 minute class begins with a flexibility and sit-up routine followed by a warm-up dance. Six to 10 easy and vigorous aerobic dances follow.

The class ends with a "cool down" dance to gradually slow the activity level and heart rate.

Classes are taught by certified instructors. For more information and a free schedule of classes and demonstrations, call 848-8307.

Christmas Bazaar At Nursing Home

The Quincy Nursing Home, 11 McGrath Highway, is sponsoring a Christmas bazaar Sunday, Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. including a visit from Santa Claus himself.

The tables will feature handmade gift items, jewelry and white elephant items, as well as old books, baked goods and items for raffie.

Refreshments will be served.

Children's Gym Classes At Y

The Quincy YMCA is offering gymnastics classes for children ages 3 to 6 in which they are being taught basic conditioning exercises, tumbling and dance movements.

An introduction to bar and beam work is also included in the course.

The classes, which began last Tuesday, are being held from 1 p.m. to 1:40 p.m., Tuesday; 2:10 p.m. to 2:50 p.m., Wednesday; 1:40 p.m. to 2:20 p.m., Thursday; and 3:50 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Friday. The classes will run for five weeks.

Whist Parties Thursdays At Pagnano Towers

Senior citizens are invited to attend weekly whist parties Thursdays, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Pagnano Towers, 109 Curtis Ave., Quincy Point.

The parties will be held each Thursday until June, except Dec. 11 and when a holiday falls on a Thursday.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 20

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19

Put charisma to work and make major career strides. Warmhearted friends can embarrass you with generosity. Dealings with older relatives and advisers highly favored.

PISCES—February 20-March 20

See projects through from start to finish; it's rather easy to delegate tasks. Eddy friends may need time alone. Canceled plans may prove blessing in disguise.

ARIES—March 21-April 20

Catch up on paperwork and organizational tasks. Promotion is delayed, but don't give up hope. Ideas you shape now will pay off handsomely by year's end.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22

Clear up disagreements—completely—if you're to get on with the job...any job. Older people may need extra attention. Creativity is at high from Sunday on.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21

Week is spent among sophisticated company, but don't get carried away with dress or hairdo. Platonic relationship remains platonic. Avoid detours through weekend.

CANCER—June 22-July 22

A week of artistic accomplishment—and no time for modesty. Issue reminders promptly, especially where funds are involved. Check priorities daily.

LEO—July 23-August 22

You see now that plans were unrealistic—but that's not to say they can't be realized on more modest scale. Chance encounters are scattered through weekend.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22

Watch out for friends trying to coax you into volunteering for heavy-duty assignments. Modest speculation pays off. You do especially well in group activities.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22

May win accolade or be appointed to executive post. Weekend plans go according to clockwork—at first. Weekdays are unexpectedly glamorous, especially if reunions are featured.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21

An activity-packed week, yet there's still time to rediscover favorite old hobby. Family member goes out on limb for you. Watch out for get-rich-quick schemes.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22

Lots of temptations—but guard against people trying to manipulate you. Romantic weekend featured, with surprises scattered everywhere. Accident prone, so don't work too fast now.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20

Thursday's news contains mix of positive and negative information. Be ready to change plans—minor or major—through weekend. Family member shows unexpected affection.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Lucky, idealistic, versatile, curious—you're very independent, but sometimes too casual about serious affairs. Year ahead finds you at crossroads; with increased effort and dedicated approach, you can expand and improve yourself.

BORN THIS WEEK

Board Continues 3 Old Gold License Requests

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Continuing its policy of using caution in issuing old gold licenses, the City License Board continued for one week three requests for such licenses pending the City Solicitor's opinion on license specifics.

The applicants, who will come before the board Nov. 25, are Lawrence Dreyfus of Rainbow's End Jewelers, Inc., 294 Water St., Daniel J. Mullen of Old Gold Antiques, 1157 Hancock St., and William Chiaramonte of Treasure Hut, 322 Washington St. All three requests were continued—from earlier hearings.

According to Fire Chief Edward Barry, acting board chairman at this week's meeting, the board is requesting information on old gold licenses in general and items to be handled.

In addition, Police Chief Francis X. Finn is asking the solicitor's opinion on adding to License Board standards for the license that applicants shall have been in the jewelry business in Quincy for at least two or preferably three years.

Chief Finn is also asking an opinion on deeming ineligible for an old gold license any person convicted within the last 10 years of a felonious offense.

Chief Barry explained at an earlier meeting that the board is being careful in issuing licenses to protect the people.

"With all the thievery today, it is very easy for illegal dealers to work in a fencing operation," he said.

Open House Tuesday At Serpos Dental Clinic

The Elizabeth Serpos Dental Clinic will hold an open house Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the clinic, which is located in the Atherton Hough School, Houghs Neck.

"The purpose of the open house is to acquaint Houghs Neck residents with the newly renovated facility," said Dr. James Will, clinic director.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who is chairman of the Elizabeth Serpos Fund by virtue of his office, will officiate at a brief ceremony in the Atherton Hough gymnasium.

Members of the professional staff will conduct tours of the clinic, including the reception room, treatment rooms, X-ray lab and the director's office.

All Houghs Neck residents are invited to attend.

Smokeout Eve Observed At Quincy Junior

Today (Thursday) is the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout.

The Quincy Junior College Learning Resource Center was scheduled to observe Smokeout Eve last night (Wednesday) with a lecture on how to quit smoking.

John Felci, director of training in education at City Hospital, was to present suggestions and answer questions about how to lay down that last cigarette at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center.

Felci, who runs hospital programs on smoking, is a member of the board of directors of the South Shore Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Santa Claus To Arrive Saturday By Parachute

Santa Claus will make a grand arrival by parachute to begin his holiday stay in Quincy Saturday morning, Nov. 29.

Santa and his elves will descend by parachute from a helicopter at Faxon Field, behind Quincy Vocational Technical School, at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

After distributing candy canes to youngsters on hand, the jolly bearded one will be transported by fire engine to Remick's, 1517 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Beginning Saturday, Santa will be on hand to greet youngsters at Remick's on Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, until Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Youngsters may make their holiday requests to Santa in person at Remick's from noon to 5 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and 1 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Santa's appearance is sponsored by the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

'Toys For Tots' To Be Collected At Parade

The Christmas Festival Committee announces that it "heartily and enthusiastically" endorses the Toys For Tots program conducted by the U.S. Marines Corps.

Chairman, George Fay, asks all those attending the 29th annual parade on Sunday, Nov. 30, to "bring a toy for the underprivileged."

Two Marine vehicles, one near the middle of the parade route and one near North Quincy High School, the end of the route, will be provided to receive donated toys.

Mayor Arthur Tobin and the City Council have also announced their "100-percent" support of the program, said Fay.

Over 40 Floats, Bands

300,000 May View 29th Christmas Parade Sunday

Up to 300,000 persons are expected to view the 29th annual Christmas Festival Parade, which begins at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 30.

At least 21 bands and 20 floats will cover the 2.8-mile parade route, which begins at Quincy Ave. and Scammell St. and proceeds north on Hancock St. to North Quincy High School, according to Chairman George Fay.

The parade is one of a series of holiday activities sponsored by the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

Floats, illustrating the parade theme, "Just For Kids," will be competing for prizes in the commercial and non-commercial categories.

Floats will be judged on the basis of adherence to the parade theme, originality, use of materials and colors and overall appearance.

According to float co-chairwomen Mrs. Frances Flynn and Mrs. Gloria Noble, the 20 floats will include the Curtain Call Theatre's "Annie," Woodward School's "Dreams Then and Now," St. John CYO's "Kids In Casteland," North Quincy Football Boosters' "Football For Kids," Union Congregational Church's "Keeping Christ Alive For Our Children," and North Quincy K of C's "Christmas Morning."

Also sponsoring floats are Sen. Paul Harold, CETA's Theatre Connection, the Koch Club, Viking Club, the Young at Heart Theatre, the Patriot Ledger, Hancock Bank, Hallamore Horses, Wendy's Hamburgers, Quincy Youth Hockey, and Bernie's Modern Formal Shop.

Floats will be judged by Thomas Folan of the Milton Art Association, Harold Hawkes of the Braintree Art Association and June Osgood of the Weymouth Art Association.

Among the high school bands taking part, according to parade coordinators: William Morrill, and Bryant Carter, will be Quincy and North Quincy Highs and award-winning bands from Norwood, Hull and Gloucester high schools. Also participating will be the Somerville, Milton, East Bridgewater, Weymouth North and South, Holbrook, Dedham, Avon, Fairhaven and Norton High School bands.

Waltham Legion Post, Canton Legion Post, the 215th Army Band and the "Klasy Klowns" will also field marching bands Sunday.

In case of inclement weather, the parade will be held on Sunday, Dec. 7. Any postponement will be announced over WJDA and other local radio stations at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Hancock St. Parking Banned During Parade

Parking will be prohibited from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday on both sides of Hancock St. from Elm St. to the junction of the Newport Ave. Extension in North Quincy because of the Christmas Parade.

The Police Department also is asking motorists not to park on Quincy Ave. from Faxon Park Rd., to Elm St., on Chestnut St. from Maple to McGrath Highway, on Elm St., from Hancock St. to Mechanic St., on Mechanic St. to Revere Rd., and on Revere Rd. to McGrath Highway.

The Newport Ave. Extension can be used as an alternate route to North Quincy, Montclair, Wollaston and Quincy Square.

Parking for parade spectators will be available at the MBTA parking area on Burgin Parkway, the Ross parking garage and the Ross Parkingway.

Police said additional parking will be available at Adams Academy, at the Vo-Tech School, at the Coddington St. school, at Quincy Junior College, at Capitol Market in Wollaston, at the Supreme Market in Wollaston, at the Burger King on Burgin Parkway Extension.

Also in the MBTA lots in Wollaston and North Quincy, at State Street South and Kemper Insurance off Newport Ave. Extension, at Pageant Field and Collins Rest Awhile in Merry-mount Park and on Southern Artery from Furnace Brook Parkway to Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The comfort station in the Hancock Parking Area will be open from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Parade Committee

Members of the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association are:

General Chairman George C. Fay, Richard Koch, George White, Tom McDonald, Dick Venna, Jack Flaherty, Tony Malvesti, Remo DeNicola, Robert and Gloria Noble.

Bernie Reisberg, Tom Barry, Agnes Trillcott, Frances Flynn, City Councilors Steven McGrath and Joanne Collins, School Committee members Patricia Toland and Mary Collins.

Bill Morrill, Bryant Carter, Ed Holland, Steve Norton, Paul Schwabe, Carol Pisano and Herb Fontaine.

The late Jason Feldman, who died Nov. 18, was also a committee member.

Cost Of 2½:

Up To 400 City Jobs, $10-M School Budget Slash

By TOM HENSHAW

Proposition 2½ may cost as many as 400 city employees their jobs — not including school personnel.

And the School Department may lose as much as $10 million in its budget for fiscal 1982.

Those are the grim figures that grow out of a presentation of the effects of Prop 2½ that is being given by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to city officials and union heads this week.

The first such presentation was scheduled to be made at 9 a.m. Tuesday morning.

"Some of those jobs may be affected before next July 1 so that we can get through the current fiscal year," said Tobin.

The Mayor said that, after conferring with department heads over the weekend, he prepared a list of about 112 specific positions that might have to be cut from the 1982 budget.

"This is a partial list," he said. "We will be continuing to add to it. We could be talking as many as 300 or 400 positions, depending on which way the city employee unions go on this."

He said he plans to confer with union leaders "to try to save as many jobs as possible," indicating that he may ask them to forego some benefits that have been negotiated over the years.

Tobin said he has talked with School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and that he is planning to issue a directive suggesting budget cuts in the range of $6 to $10 million.

Five or six schools will be affected, said the Mayor, and Dr. Creedon will propose a new teacher-pupil ratio for Quincy schools.

Tobin's presentation included these facts and figures:

- Under Proposition 2½, Quincy will have to reduce its property tax levy by 15 per cent in 1982 and will lose 62 per cent of its usual receipts from the auto excise tax.

- The 1981 tax levy was $66,984,781. The 15 per cent reduction is $10,047,717. Therefore the city can raise only $56,937,064 in the 1982 tax levy.

- Excise tax receipts for 1981 are estimated at $3.7 million. If 62 per cent is taken out of that, the city will lose $2,294,000.

That's a total of $12,341,717 in lost revenue for 1982.

- The excise tax reduction takes effect Jan. 1, which means that the city will lose $1.5 million already budgeted for 1981. Unless cuts can be made immediately, that budget deficit must by state law be made up in 1982.

Thus, the new figure for lost revenue is $13,841,717.

Retirement benefits are expected to increase by $750,000 in the 1982 budget, bringing the figure to $14,591,717.

There are, said Tobin, certain things in the budget that cannot be touched. He listed them, with their 1981 figures, as:

Hospital $25,648,620; Water Department $1,541,661, interest and debt service $5,529,173, retirement benefits $5,609,684, workman's compensation $200,000, veterans benefits $140,000 unemployment compensation $146,616.

The "untouchable" total is $41,815,754.

The 1981 city budget totals $102,800,022. Subtract from that the $41,815,754 and you get $60,984,268.

"That," said Tobin, "is the figure from which we have to cut $14.5 million."

The $60.9 million figure breaks down into three major categories: School, $35,161,495; Police and

Program Threatened

Commission Fears Impact On Its Kids

By TOM HENSHAW

His mother and father were divorced. Neither parent really wanted him. He wasn't a bad kid. It was just that there was no place for him to go.

Fortunately, he wound up in the Group Home for Boys, sponsored by the Quincy Youth Commission. He spent 14 months there, graduating from high school with his longtime friends.

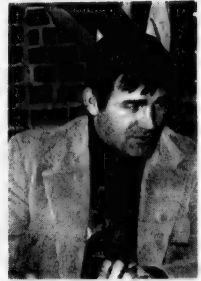

He was home the other day, on leave from the Navy, and members of the Youth Commission felt a certain pride that another young life had been steered through potentially stormy seas.

They are also concerned that the upcoming budget-slashing due to Proposition 2½ is going to wipe out the Youth Commission and all the good things it has done for the past half dozen years.

"People ought to know what it's all about before we get croaked," said Commission Chairman John (Butch) Mahoney. "These are the programs of life."

"I don't expect everyone to understand. This is my job. I feel it's the most important in the world. I hope people don't cut off their noses to spite their faces."

The Youth Commission, whose members are unpaid, has only one fulltime paid ($11,932)

employee, Brian Buckley, coordinator, and operates in this fiscal year of 1981 on a budget of $43,682.

There used to be an assistant coordinator, Karen Bray, but that $8,720 a year job was eliminated along with a $477 raise for Buckley and $2,540 in expenses in last spring's budget-cutting.

From July, 1979, to April, 1980, the last period for which figures are available, the Commission also received $3,715 in donations, including $2,000 from the Quincy Elks.

Drugs Taken In West Quincy Pharmacy Break

An unknown amount of depressant drug was taken early Sunday from the Brewer's Corner Pharmacy, on Copeland St., West Quincy.

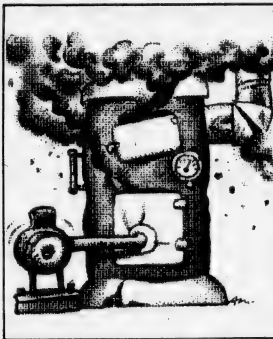

The break-in at the pharmacy was discovered at about 4:30 a.m., Sunday, according to Lt. David Rowell, head of detectives.

A small amount of chloral hydrate, a sedative-type drug, was taken, said Rowell. No estimate as to the value of the drugs was available, he said.

"It was a routine sort of drug store burglary," said Rowell, who added that the break was still under investigation.

'Amazing Response'

Women's Health Info Group May Be Formed

An "amazing response" to a workshop last week at City Hall Annex led by authors of the women's health book, "Our Bodies, Ourselves" may result in the formation of a local women's health information group.

Deborah Ormon, chairperson of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, one of the workshop's sponsors, said she was amazed by the turnout as well as the response of those attending the workshop.

Women of all ages from Quincy, Hanover, Hingham and Pembroke listened with rapt attention to speakers Norma Swensen and Jane Pincus, according to Mrs. Ormon.

The authors, members of the Boston Women's Health Book Collective, discussed health care, self help, attitudes of the health establishment towards women, and the needs of women to be responded to as human beings.

Women attending the workshop then shared their own, sometimes angry, experiences with health care and doctors who dismissed their questions with, "Don't worry your pretty little head about it."

"Questions and comments from the audience revealed the need for interested Quincy and South Shore women to work and learn together about their health needs," said Mrs. Ormon.

Any women interested in such a group should contact Mrs. Ormon at 471-2400.

The workshop was the second in a monthly series sponsored by the commission, Quincy Junior College Women's Center and Quincy Cooperative Bank.

The next workshop, on "Parental Stress, will be in January.

Today's Women

Receives Citation

Mother Puts 9 Children Through College

Mrs. Helen Sullivan of Quincy Center was recently presented a citation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives in recognition of her accomplishment of putting her nine children through college.

Mrs. Sullivan, wife of the late Quincy Atty. Edward F. Sullivan, has five boys and four girls. The family includes a lawyer, masters degree holders and doctoral candidate.

Christopher, a Bridgewater State College graduate, was her ninth and last child to be graduated from college.

The award was presented by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) who expressed admiration for the Sullivan family and remarked on the financial difficulty of such a feat.

Wilhelmina Harris To Be Honored At Adams Historic Site

Thanksgiving weekend marks Wilhelmina Harris's thirtieth anniversary as superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site.

Friends, co-workers, relatives and members of the Adams family will hold a private reception to celebrate the occasion on Sunday, Nov. 30, at the Adams Mansion's Stone Library.

Cong. Brian Donnelly will present Mrs. Harris with a framed copy of a testimonial that he read into the Congressional Record praising her years of service to the Historic Site and to the community.

Breastfeeding Class At Hospital

A free breastfeeding class for prospective parents and mothers who are nursing their babies will be held Wednesday, Dec. 3, at 9:30 a.m. in the Gordon House at City Hospital.

Topics covered include: whether or not to breastfeed; care of the breasts before and during breastfeeding; adapting breastfeeding to the hospital schedule; nutrition for the nursing mother; establishing a modified demand schedule; expressing and freezing breastmilk; and how to deal with possible problems.

To register, call Ann Kurkjian, 848-8564, or Beth Rotondo, 337-8689.

12 Local Women Attend Camp Fire Seminar

Twelve Quincy women recently participated in a three day seminar at Channing Unitarian Church, Rockland, on Leadership Development with the South Shore Council Camp Fire.

The local women are Cecile Molloy, Ginnie Nickerson, Linda Ruggere, Janet Hearn, Gail Freil, Martha Garnowski, Brenda Chin, Elizabeth Day, Jeanne Moore, Rita Kipp, Peggy Reiser and Linda Sloane.

The training session was conducted to help adults understand the opportunities in Camp Fire. The flexible, non-sectarian program stresses individual development for girls and boys who work at their own pace with the help of skilled volunteers.

Cradle of freedom

Freedom of choice.

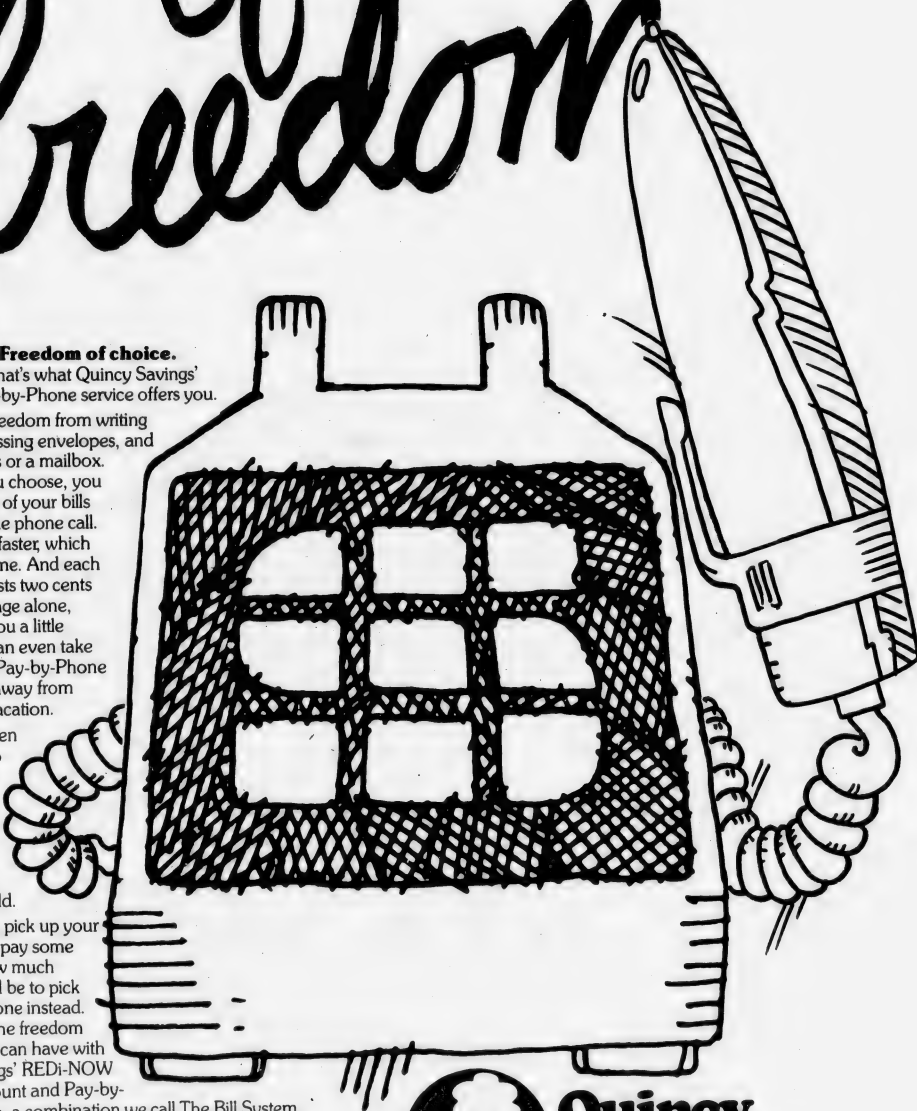

That's what Quincy Savings' Pay-by-Phone service offers you.

You'll enjoy freedom from writing checks, addressing envelopes, and finding stamps or a mailbox. Whenever you choose, you can pay many of your bills with one simple phone call. It's easier and faster, which saves a little time. And each transaction costs two cents less than postage alone, which saves you a little money. You can even take advantage of Pay-by-Phone when you're away from home or on vacation.

Of course, when you choose to write checks, you're free to use your REDi-NOW checking account as you normally would.

Next time you pick up your checkbook to pay some bills, think how much easier it would be to pick up the telephone instead. Think about the freedom of choice you can have with Quincy Savings' REDi-NOW checking account and Pay-by-Phone feature, a combination we call The Bill System.

Here you have it. Checking, with or without checks. For an application or more information, call 471-3500 or visit our nearest office.

TOWN BROOK HOUSE elderly apartments will be dedicated in services beginning at 10 a.m., Sunday.

Lutheran Church Missouri Synod President Speaker

Town Brook House Dedication Sunday

Weymouth and J. David Congalton of Pembroke.

Dedication services for the 151-unit Town Brook House elderly apartments on Bracket St., Quincy Center, will be held Sunday, Nov. 30.

Services will begin at 10 a.m. in the building's Common Room.

The $7 million, eight-story apartment building is sponsored by Wollaston Lutheran Church, which also sponsored Fenno House of Wollaston, which opened in 1973.

Preacher for the dedication will be the Rev. J.A.O. Preus of St. Louis, president of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod. Conducting the service will be Rev. Frank Bauer, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church and executive director of Wollaston Lutheran Apartments.

Also participating in the service will be Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Roman Catholic Church and Quincy Housing Authority Chairman, and Otto A. Staehr of Quincy, chairman of the board of Wollaston Lutheran Church Apartments.

Also to be represented at dedication ceremonies are architect George Earl Ross of Braintree, President Edward A. Fish of general contractor Peabody Construction Co. of Braintree, Counsel James R. McIntyre of Quincy and consultant Gerard F. Doherty of Charlestown.

Greetings will also be brought by Mayor Arthur Tobin and U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly.

At the end of the service, a bronze plaque will be unveiled in honor of John J. Donahue of Weymouth, a director of Wollaston Lutheran Apartments from 1971 to 1975 and Chairman of the Board from 1975 to 1979.

Refreshments and tours of model apartments will follow.

Other members of the board of directors, in addition to those already named, are Gunnar Munnick, Edward Beneks, Sr., Frederick J. Cashman, Jr., Jean Bauer and Lawrence W. Ordway of Quincy; Charles W. Wood of Braintree, Richard T. Mooney of

In One Way, You've Come Too Far, Baby

By FRANK MORTIMER

You've come a long way, Baby.

So the ads keep telling woman. And the message is almost irresistibly reinforced by photos of elegant, gazelle-slim females who have the world at their fingertips -- in cigarette form.

These ads, according to John Felci and Waurean Alpert, have had a deadly effectiveness in recent years.

"The percentage of men smoking has actually dropped, while the percentage of female smokers -- particularly in the junior high age group -- has increased dramatically said Felci in a stop-smoking information session Wednesday night, the eve of the Great American Smokeout.

"Ad experts try to appeal to young girls, and they are succeeding," he said.

Alpert, standing beside him in the Quincy High Methods Center, told the handful of listeners present, "You see, if you're over 30 and smoking, they figure you're hooked. They've got you. Now they have to replenish the market."

Waurean Alpert, and John Felci have made it their business to deplete that market and save lives.

Together they run a year round kick-the-habit workshop at Quincy City Hospital. The course, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, runs five weeks. The next session will start on the first Monday after New Years, Felci, told the small group who attended a one night lecture and film-showing at the Methods Center.

The session was arranged by Debby Mandel, chairwoman at QJC's Learning Resources Center.

Mandel hoped the meeting would lead smokers to make maximum use of the nationwide smokeout.

The American Cancer Society recommended the speakers, she said. She pointed out that Felci and Alpert were "written up" this year in the annual report of the ACS for their four year old program at the hospital.

Felci, a young man who handles an essentially grim business with surprising good cheer, makes no extravagant claims.

Of those who complete the five week course, he said, about 95% throw away the butts. But after a few more weeks, half the original group are smoking again.

About one third of the course participants stay off the smokes for good, he estimated.

He said no method for quitting, however costly, can honestly make higher claims. But some organizations do use the early, unreliable statistics to make promises and profits.

"It is finally up to the individual to quit. No hypnotist, no organization can do that for you. So you're wasting your money to pay for it."

The program at QCH is non-profit. A $10 registration fee helps support the project. The fee is recommended by the Cancer Society for psychological reasons, he said. The society is aware that many of us think if you charge nothing it's worth nothing.

Felci serves as director of training in education at the hospital. He is the jolly, business-as-usual member to the anti-smoking duo. Mrs. Alpert, by contrast, is the sleeve grabber, the shaker. She holds little back. A mother of four children and reformed smoker herself, she wants you to know just how harmful cigarettes are.

"If the effects of cigarette

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Jay, We'll Miss You

Rabbi Jacob Mann probably put it best.

Jason Feldman, he told the throng at the funeral service in Congregation Adas Shalom, wore through his life "the crown of a good name."

Sadly, it was too short a life. Fifty-five years. To those of us who knew Jay, it is still hard to believe that he is gone.

He was so much alive, so full of vigor and enthusiasm, just a few short weeks ago when as president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association he chaired a meeting of the group at the Neighborhood Club at which Mayor Arthur Tobin and Police Chief Francis Finn discussed downtown problems and solutions.

That was the last time most of us saw him. Suddenly he was terminally ill. And then gone.

Jay's son, Paul, a fine, talented young newsman who got his start here at The Sun, told of how hard his father worked -- 12 hours or more a day. How he educated Paul and sons Steve and Mark. How he was looking forward soon to taking it easier and enjoying the fruits of his labor.

His father, Paul said, left his family with "a good name, a good reputation" and a goal for the family to live up.

I knew Jay since we were seventh graders at Point Junior High School and Principal Henry Prario was telling us to always remember as we go through life to "give it (effort) that extra ounce."

Well, Jay did. He worked hard all the way.

In all the years since we left Point and went through Quincy High School and until death took him last week, I never once heard him say an unkind word about anyone.

I used to think that if he caught someone with his hand in his pocket, he would forgive him and then try to find a good quality about him. Like maybe he was good to his mother.

Jay was a devoted family man who loved his wife, Marion, and his children.

To his mother-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Sharper, he was a son -- not a son-in-law. She adored him. And he, her.

If he had another love affair it was with downtown Quincy. Let anyone even suggest that downtown Quincy was headed downhill and had a dark future, and you would get an argument from Jay. An argument in a gentlemanly way.

"Sure we have a few problems," he would say, "But we can solve them if we work together. Quincy still has a lot to offer now -- and more in the future."

Jason's Luggage & Music Shop founded by Jay's late father, Nathan, in 1925 was named for Jay. The shop has been a history of music since and where if you wanted a special record, you knew you would find it there. Whether it was Caruso, Jolson, Crosby, Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Como, Presley, The Beatles -- Jason's had it and you didn't, as the ad says, have to go chasing.

Jay was like a father to many of the young people who worked for him -- some of whom didn't have a father.

The store also became the headquarters for our Quincy High School class where we dropped in to get a record and find out from Jay what class members were up to. Messages were often left with him for one another. Out of state members always made it a point to drop by to see Jay and maybe to get a current address for someone they would like to see.

It's still hard to believe that the next time I go in, he won't be there.

Our high school class reunions will never be quite the same again. Neither will downtown Quincy.

And, for those of us who were lucky enough to have known him, our lives aren't going to be the same, either.

We're going to miss you Jay. A lot.

Quincy Quiz

Just one correct entry in the Quincy Quiz this week.

Patricia Wilcox of 323 Farrington St., Wollaston wins a Quincy Sun T-shirt for answering all five questions correctly. Several other readers had four correct answers, but thought that Clara Yeomans, not James F. Donahue, was chairman of the Conservation Commission.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the chairman of the Quincy Youth Commission?
2. Three Quincy elementary schools were closed this spring by the School Committee. What are the names of the three schools?
3. In what section of the city are the Monarch I and II office buildings to be located?
4. Part of what is now Quincy was settled in 1625 by a group led by an English captain. What section of the city is now named for him?
5. Who were the Republican and Democratic candidates chosen by Quincy voters in the March presidential primary?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. James F. Donahue is the chairman of the Conservation Commission.
2. James A. Sheets represented Quincy's Fourth Norfolk District from 1975 to 1978.
3. The Quincy Lodge of Elks home is in Quincy Center.
4. The Historical Society is located in the former Adams Academy building.
5. The John Adams and John Quincy Adams birthplaces were both formerly painted red.

Prop. 2½ Could Be Dangerous Pitfall

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Time Magazine quotes the late Social Theorist, Ernest Becker, as follows: "A protest without a program -- is the epitaph of many of the great idealisms."

This seems to me to be the synthesis of Proposition 2½. Proposition 2½ appealed to an understandably tax-weary and inflation harassed public. It provided an easy, though unthinking, outlet for pent up financial frustration. And so it passed -- impressively.

But the frightening fallacy is that it provided no viable alternative. It is really a regressive resolution that is really no resolution at all. It is a not so tender trap that could become a dangerous pitfall.

Without any practical substitute the end result must be termed, in advance, a disaster. Our basics will suffer -- Security, Safety, and the quality of Public Education are dangerously threatened. By the time this situation becomes generally apparent, it may be too late to repair erosion and structural damage.

Therefore, while on the surface it may appear to be legislative ignoring of the "Voice of the People," our legislature must carefully weigh the consequences of this apparent mandate. It must react with intelligence, courage, and foresight. It must be careful not to throw the baby out with the bath water. It calls for serious statesmanship, constructive concern, and intellectual integrity.

As the nation veers toward conservatism, our Commonwealth must perceive our basic and important values. The cost must be regarded as an investment.

Charles T. Sweeney

Agrees With Sunbeams' 'What About The Decent?'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Congratulations on your Sunbeams article dated November 4, 1980 titled "What About The Decent?"

It's about time someone in the news media has come up with a God given common sense approach to a situation which has gotten entirely out of hand. I am referring to the highly vocal, liberal do-gooders whose attitude has ignored the conscientious, well behaved, normal, law-abiding citizens. So much has been wasted in time, money and energy on the law breakers. In reference to courts in general and the Quincy Court, is great emphasis required and the expenditure of large sums of the taxpayers hard-earned money warranted in experimental programs, the efficacy of which is most doubtful?

The future of this country lies in the hands of our young, the great majority of whom are fine, young people. Let us commend them and if there is money available for programs, put it where it will do the most good, on extra activities of all kinds for the well-behaved, good kids of our neighborhoods.

Instead of aiding and abetting the misfits of society, let the rewards go to those who deserve them.

'Leadership Vacuum'

O'Neill Sees Prop 2½ As Attack On Indecision

Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, sounding like a candidate for governor in 1982, says he reads a second message into the overwhelming vote for Proposition 2½ three weeks ago.

"The people want decision makers as well as property tax relief," he said on a visit to The Quincy Sun last week.

"They don't want any longer to hear public office holders explain why they can't solve a problem. They don't want to hear excuses anymore. They want something done."

"We've had four governors in a row promising no new taxes or tax reductions of $500 million and none of them made good. That led to government by referendum, which is what 2½ really is."

"They're saying, 'If you can't do it, we'll do it for you. If you can't make decisions, we'll make them for you.' Government by referendum is the mark of a leadership vacuum."

O'Neill said he was opposed to Proposition 2½ prior to the election and he is still opposed to it.

"But," he added, "I think there's a silver lining in this cloud and that is that it presents an opportunity for real tax reform to take place and the burden of that falls on the governor."

"Gov. King now has an opportunity to give the people what he promised them during his campaign. I hope he sees the handwriting on the wall. Prop 2½ is property tax reform. State taxes are not touched.

"If the governor's game plan is to hang on for a few months to find out what is going to happen to 2½ after the dust settles, that's one thing."

"But if he's not willing to show the leadership for good tax reform, don't expect the legislature to do it. The legislature can amend. It can repeal. But it can't propose."

O'Neill referred to the 1980 election in which Republicans won the White House and the U.S. Senate as a "watershed."

"The Republicans captured the issues and played with them to the extent that they turned the electorate around," he said. "But they don't have the absolute answers to all those issues."

"Now it is up to the Democrats to define our own issues so that we can come back and represent the interests of the average man and woman who is out there working. We can't forget them."

"That is the challenge of the next governor."

"I see the watershed as an opportunity for an old guard to be removed and new people to come in. The first to hit the political landscape with the answers to those issues is going to capture average man and woman."

O'Neill, who led the unsuccessful presidential campaign for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in New England, said he feels that Kennedy would have made a better showing against Ronald Reagan than President Carter. But he may not have won.

"It wasn't his liberalism," he said, "but he was a traditional Democrat and he would have held on to the traditional Democratic states in the northeast that Carter couldn't carry."

He said when Kennedy runs for re-election in 1982 he will be targeted for defeat by the New right and the Moral Majority as will the Massachusetts governor's race — depending on who runs.

If he is a candidate, said O'Neill, "the targeting will not be for me as much as for my father, who is symbolic in a way." His father is the speaker of the U.S. House.

Firemen, Residents Battle Marsh Blaze

Firefighters and residents armed with garden hoses fought to contain a fire that raged unchecked across a half square mile of Houghs Neck marsh, threatening 25 homes on Lenox, Stoughton and Winthrop Sts.

Only three houses were damaged by the flames, which reached 20 feet in height at times and were fanned by a strong westerly wind, and residents of some 20 others were forced to flee with their belongings.

Mrs. Thomas Connors and her two children were assisted through the dense smoke from their home off Winthrop St. by an unidentified motorist.

Ironically, the fire started when a crew of firefighters were ordered to burn a small section of dry marsh grass off Newton St. and they lost control of their fire.

QUINCY ALUMNI WIN

The Buckley gang, Don, Ed and Shine, had a hand in all three touchdowns as the Quincy Alumni football team trounced the North Quincy Alumni, 19-0, in a City League game.

UNION PROTESTS

The CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers asked for a new election after losing their bid to represent workers at the Fore River Shipyard to the Independent Union of Fore River Workers by a margin of 5-2.

CIO leader Paul Mulhern said the Independent Union was permitted to campaign on the premises during the election and intimidated workers. "Typical company union tactics," he said.

Condo Hearing Dec. 2

High Rents Cost City Its Young Residents

High rents are costing Quincy its young residents, says City Councillor James A. Sheets, and the conversion of rental units to condominiums may aggravate the problem.

The Council's Ordinance Committee will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. in the Council Chamber on Sheets' proposed ordinance limiting condo conversion in the city.

And the councillor said that he will have home-rule legislation introduced in the Legislature to make sure that the Council can pass such an ordinance.

"Meanwhile," he said, "the problem of rental housing and the plight of displaced persons where condo conversions are being accomplished necessitates analysis and action by the council."

"Quincy cannot afford to wait until the federal or state governments act a year or two from now."

Sheets said that the housing crisis may be the reason for the decline in the city's population noted by the U.S. Census Bureau.

"Young people may be forced to move out of the city in which they born and raised when they cannot afford to buy a new home or pay high rental rates," he said.

"Converting existing rental units to condominiums may only further aggravate this problem."

Dr. Chrystal Speaker At N.E. Conference

Dr. Richard K. Chrystal, director of staff and management development in the Quincy Public Schools, will be a speaker at the New England School Development Council conference Dec. 5 in Foxborough.

The topic of his presentation will be entitled "Coming to Terms with Staff Evaluation: A Human Dilemma."

Dr. Chrystal will explain how the model of clinical supervision for staff evaluation in the Quincy schools have been developed.

GIVE THANKS IN CHURCH

First Church Of Squantum Holds Thanksgiving Service

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum observed Thanksgiving with a joyous worship service Sunday.

The Junior Choir sang a portion of the 54th Psalm as the call to worship. The piece was Philip R. Dieterich's "I will Give Thanks." Accompanying the children on the tone bells were Blythe Bumpus, Jana Cocio, Lori Ogilvie, Kim Olson, Krista Olson and Kristen Reister. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The Boys' Choir sang "Thank You, Lord" by Diane Davis, accompanied by Jason Deary on finger cymbals and David Scott on the drum.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, spoke to the children on, "What Have We To Be Thankful For?" Using a large sheet of paper on an easel, the pastor drew a picture of each blessing that the children could name until the sheet was overflowing.

The Senior Choir sang "A Hymn For Thanksgiving" by David Williams. Canned goods were collected for the Pantry Shelf of the Protestant Social Service Bureau during the service. The congregation also joined in a special Thanksgiving litany before the sermon, "How Shall We Give Thanks?"

Greeters for the morning were Barbara Walter and Janet Sumner. Ushers were Richard Williams, Tore Wallin, Susan Mildram, Tom Adams, Paul Paulson, Bonnie Adams and Steve Williams. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Peggy Bryan, Claudia Young and Barbara Walter.

Next Sunday, the church will begin the celebration of Advent with the Sunday morning worship service at 10:15 a.m. The annual "Hanging of the Greens" will take place at 6:30 p.m. Ellen Ogilvie is in charge.

The annual event begins with a brief worship service. Persons of all ages then either decorate the church or make Christmas crafts to take home or give away. The festivities end with refreshments including Christmas cookies and a tasty wassail by Betty Ellis.

First At Local Church

David D'Olimpio To Be Ordained By Cardinal At St. John's

David D'Olimpio of Quincy ordained to the priesthood Saturday, Dec. 13, at the first ordination ever to be held at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

Humberto Cardinal Medeiros will officiate at the ordination during a concelebrated Mass at 10 a.m. Lawrence Russo of Everett will also be ordained.

The new Rev. D'Olimpio will celebrate his first Mass of Thanksgiving Sunday, Dec. 14, at 2 p.m. which will be followed by a reception in the church hall.

Rev. D'Olimpio is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine D'Olimpio of 70 South Walnut St., Quincy Point. A life long member of St. John's Church, he has been active in the parish.

He was one of the original members of St. John's Folk Group when it was founded in 1968 and continued his involvement with music as a member of St. John's Seminary Choir. He was also leader of the seminary folk group.

Rev. D'Olimpio was the first president of the parish CYO when it was re-organized in 1970 and was one of the founders of the Chi Rho Society for the Quincy Vicariate.

A graduate of Quincy High School, he received a bachelor's degree from the University of

DAVID D'OLIMPIO

Lowell in 1975.

He pursued his theological studies at St. John's Seminary and was involved in parish ministries at St. Francis, Medford; Sacred Heart, Watertown; and St. John Chrysostom, West Roxbury.

He was ordained to the diaconate in Feb. 2, at St. Joseph's Church, Belmont, and served as a deacon at St. Pius V Parish, Lynn.

Rev. D'Olimpio has three sisters: Mrs. Darlene Cullen of Marshfield, Deborah D'Olimpio and Diane D'Olimpio of the home address, and a brother, Douglas D'Olimpio, also of the home address.

Thanksgiving Mass, Fellowship At St. John's Church

St. John's Church, Quincy Center will hold a concelebrated Mass followed by fellowship in the church hall tonight (Wednesday) beginning at 7:30 p.m. in honor of Thanksgiving.

The Mass, in the upper church, will have as its principal celebrant and homilist Rev. William R.

McCarthy, pastor. Also celebrating the Mass will be the priests and deacon of the church.

St. John's adult choir and folk group will provide special music for the occasion.

Following the Mass, coffee, cider and dessert will be served in the parish hall.

Parishioners are asked to bring their favorite Thanksgiving dessert, individually cut, for easy serving to the church hall before Mass begins.

The event, open to the public and free of charge, is sponsored by the parish Spiritual Development Commission.

Union Thanksgiving Eve Service At Faith Lutheran Church

The Church of the Good Shepherd and Faith Lutheran Church will hold a union Thanksgiving Eve Service tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., Quincy Center.

Participating in the service of Thanksgiving and Holy Communion will be Rev. James Kimmell and Rev. Darrel Urban.

Refreshments will be served by the host church.

The LYFE youth group at Faith Lutheran will conduct the first Sunday in Advent services Sunday, Nov. 30, at 9 a.m. at the church.

The group, assisted by Rev. Kimmell, will present special music, the liturgy, and a short play depicting "Preparing the Way for Christ".

At 1:30 p.m., the LYFE group, church members and friends will participate in the Church Women's annual Thanksgiving visit to Fair Havens Rest Home, Middleboro.

Church members will bring gifts, present a program and serve festive refreshments. There is also a special appeal for canned goods.

Board Of Realtors

Christmas Party Dec. 5

Monday, Dec. 1, is the deadline for reservations for the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors annual Christmas party Friday, Dec. 5, at Lantana's, Randolph.

The evening will begin at 6:30 p.m. with cocktails and hot hors d'oeuvres. A roast beef dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m., followed by dancing until 11:30 p.m.

There will also be a drawing of door prizes.

Tickets will not be sold at the door and must be paid for in advance.

Reservations should be mailed to the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, Inc., 10 Crescent St., Quincy.

Christmas gift donations can be brought to the board office or to the party.

First Church Of Christ Thanksgiving Service Thursday Morning

A special Thanksgiving Day service will be offered Thursday at 10 a.m. at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St. Quincy Center.

Scriptures selected for the occasion point to Christ Jesus' example of gratitude as something deeply felt and lived day by day in healing, regeneration, and brotherhood.

Related passages from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, the denominational textbook, will be read by Warren Bolon.

The passages will include the statement: "Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

Mrs. Holly Bolon will read the passage from Psalms, "O come, let us sing unto the Lord.... Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God" - she will also read other selections from the Old and New Testaments.

The annual service also includes hymns, prayers, and a time for church members to express gratitude for God's goodness and care.

The President's Thanksgiving Proclamation will be read.

All are welcome to attend, and care will be available for very young children.

In One Way, You've Come Too Far Baby

smoking were on the outside of the body and not inside, you'd never smoke," she said.
She told the group that 520 new cases of lung cancer were detected at QCH last year. She asked the audience to estimate how many of the victims were smokers.

Guesses ranged from 30 to 83.

Alpert shook her head no, and held two fingers. "Two" she said, as though she couldn't believe it herself. "Only two."

But lung cancer isn't the biggest killer associated with smoking, she said. Heart disease is. "When you read an obituary for someone who died suddenly at fifty, it's more than likely from heart disease caused by smoking."

The speakers did offer one ray of hope for long time smokers:

Six days after quitting, a person's "statistical chances" of developing lung cancer are no worse than the chances of those who never lit up.

The real meaning of all this was brought home to the audience in an ACS documentary film.

"The Feminine Mistake" at first shows statistics, charts, and shots of medical testing equipment — the kind of demonstration sure to make some smokers yawn and say, "Oh, this again?"

But the film did open one door that many have never looked behind. A door which, unfortunately, millions of families have opened — and sealed in silence after the funeral.

It was nothing grotesque. Nothing loud. No look at unbearable pain. No begging the viewer to kick the habit.

For it there is a terrible wisdom that comes when death is near, Mary Brown had it as she lay on the black leather couch.

The 43-year old lung cancer victim was too exhausted to plead.

She just spoke her mind. "I was a light smoker... I was not up for cancer. If it would shorten my life it would only be five or so years at the end — at the other end. I never thought it would be at this end."

With an emaciated arm, the 86 pound woman unwrapped a white turban and showed an effect of cancer fighting drugs. She was bald.

"Smoking is supposed to make you sexy. I didn't turn out sexy."

Mary Brown talked in an unemotional voice, and rested often.

"Basically, I don't feel like I'm dying. I feel like I'm dead." Six days later, she was.

'Gift of Knowledge' Certificates At QJC

"The gift of knowledge is one of the most valuable gifts anyone can give another person," noted Dr.

Linda Wilson, Quincy Junior College Dean of Students, as she announced the new 'Gift of Knowledge' Quincy Junior College gift certificate. "Knowledge enhances the person and those around him or her, it never loses its worth, and it opens up new doors," she added.

A Quincy Junior College gift certificate is perfect to give to a spouse, parents, daughters, sons, friends and grandchildren, anyone to whom you want to give a special gift. The gift certificate can be purchased in any amount from $25 on up. It may be used to pay full or partial tuition for a credit or non-credit course, day or evening, at Quincy Junior College within a year of purchase.

The 'Gift of Knowledge' Quincy Junior College tuition gift certificate is available in the main office of the college.

General Dynamics Gets $15 Million Contract

General Dynamics' Quincy Shipbuilding Division has received a contract valued at approximately $15 million from Coastwise Trading Company, Inc., Delaware.

The contract is for construction of a 471-foot chemical carrier barge which will transport paraxylene between the Gulf Coast and Atlantic Coast. The barge will have a capacity of 175,000 barrels and is scheduled for delivery in late 1981.

The barge contract is the fourth

Quincy Shipbuilding has received from Coastwise Trading Company within a year. In December 1979, Coastwise contracted with Quincy for construction of three oil-carrying barges for inter-coastal service.

In recent months, Quincy has been successful in obtaining new Navy and commercial overhaul and construction contracts. Two weeks ago, the division was selected to build a $60 million coal-carrying ship for New England Electric System.

City of Quincy

PUBLIC HEARING

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and the Department of Planning and Community Development invite all interested citizens and community groups to attend a series of public planning hearings on the City's Community Development Block Grant application for the next year (program year 1981).

The purpose of these hearings is to give the citizens of Quincy the opportunity to discuss current community development and housing needs activities and to comment on the City's current development performance. In addition, these hearings will give the residents of Quincy an opportunity to have input into next year's program activities as they relate to housing and community development.

Through these hearings we will obtain citizens' views and opinions on community development and housing needs and receive citizen proposals for potential activities and projects which could be funded under next year's Community Development Block Grant applications.

It is important for the citizens of Quincy and representatives of private and public agencies to attend one of these hearings and make their views and proposals known to city officials.

The planning hearings are to be held as follows:

- Montclair
Tuesday December 2 - 7:30 P.M.
Montclair School
8 Belmont Street
- Wollaston
Wednesday, December 3 - 7:30 P.M.

Coal Stove Blamed For Fatal Squantum Fire

Sparks or ashes from a coal stove are being blamed for a Squantum fire that killed two persons Nov. 18, according to Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

Earlier newspaper reports had incorrectly reported the source of the blaze as a wood stove, according to Valenti.

Killed in the fire were Claire E. O'Neill, 43, and William Trueman, also 43. Both were residents of the 17 Deerfield St. home.

Two of Mrs. O'Neill's children,

Mary O'Neill, 18, and Robert O'Neill, 22, escaped the fire. Miss O'Neill suffered slight burns of the hand and hair and was treated and released at Quincy City Hospital.

Firefighter Mario Pasquale also suffered slight burns as a result of the fire.

Damages from the fire have been estimated at $60,000, Valenti said.

"Right now, we're listing the coal stove as the probable cause of the fire," said Valenti last week. "We figure it was either improper disposal of ashes or a spark that ignited a shag run when the stove door was left ajar."

The stove was properly installed and "not defective," Valenti said.

The two-alarm fire was reported at 11:41 p.m., Tuesday and was finally doused at about 2 a.m., Valenti said.

Fund Established For O'Neill Family Members

The Squantum Community Association has established the O'Neill Family Fund to aid survivors of the Nov. 18 fire at 17 Deerfield Rd.

Contributions may be sent to David Mercier at the South Boston Savings Bank, 690

Adams St., Wollaston, 02170.

Financial Aid Info Nights At Quincy High

A two-session, Financial Aid Information Program for students, parents, and members of the community will be held Dec. 4 and 11, 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center.

The program is sponsored by the guidance staff, under the direction of Edward Nankin, head counselor.

The first evening will provide information on grants, loans, scholarships, and work-study programs. Significant hand-outs will be available.

During the second session, parents and students will be given help in completing the Financial Aid Form used in applying for federal, state, and college grants.

Pharmacy Drug Grand Opening Nov. 30

Pharmacy Drug Store, 42 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its grand opening Sunday Nov. 30, beginning at 8 a.m.

Last week's Quincy Sun inadvertently listed Nov. 23, as the grand opening after the License Board granted the store a Sunday license for that date.

Christmas Bazaar Dec. 2 At Willard School

The Willard School PTO will hold a Christmas Bazaar Tuesday, Dec. 2, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the school, 212 Copeland St., West Quincy.

The bazaar will feature baked goods, hand made articles, a white elephant table and other items.

Local residents are invited to come to the bazaar and do some early Christmas shopping.

Joseph Walsh Named To MASP Advisory Board

Joseph F. Walsh of North Quincy, assistant director of admissions at Boston College, has been named to the advisory board of the Massachusetts Advanced Studies Program.

The MASP, a statewide offering for gifted high school students, will give participants a chance to spend six weeks studying college-level subjects next summer at Milton Academy.

Each high school in the state is entitled to a number of nominees proportional to its 11th grade enrollment. The two Quincy high schools, for example, may nominate nine plus six alternates.

Walsh will serve on the advisory board along with admissions officers from Harvard, South-eastern Massachusetts, U Mass-Amherst and Wellesley College.

A former president of the Greater Boston Guidance

Association, Walsh served as guidance counsellor at Arlington Catholic High School before joining Boston College two years ago.

"Joe is a real professional who has experience on both the high school and colleges levels," said Richard Barbieri, MASP program director.

"He will be especially helpful to us in developing an efficient application procedure."

Wollaston Auxiliary Planning Veteran's Christmas Gift Shop

Members of the Wollaston Legion Post Auxiliary brought items to their covered dish luncheon last week for the Veteran's Christmas gift shop at the Veterans Hospital, West Roxbury.

The gift shop is an annual event which allows veterans to select wrapped and tagged Christmas gifts for their families and friends at no expense.

Veterans have visited the shop on crutches, using a cane or walker, with the aid of a helping hand, on stretchers and in wheelchairs.

Those that remain in their rooms or wards can select gifts from a cart taken to the rooms by members of the auxiliary.

All gifts selected at the two day event are ready to be mailed or presented to loved ones. The Veterans Christmas shop is held in all Veterans Hospitals.

Commission Fears 2½ Impact On Its Kids

life, a job-placement service, and a Rent-A-Kid program to find part-time jobs.

There is also the National Youth Project Using Minibikes (NYPUM), for which Honda donated $10,000 worth of minibikes and the city pays $1,000 a year for insurance.

The bikes are used as a motivational tool. Boys and girls ages 11 to 15 are taught to ride and counseled on their problems at the same time. They also learn to work together on the bikes.

"It's a unique program because of the number of city agencies involved," says Mahoney. "Park, school, the court, YMCA, public works, planning, recreation and fire."

During fiscal 1980, 110 boys and 30 girls found work through the Rent-A-Kid program, 36 took the baby sitters course, and 15 girls and 10 boys found refuge in the group homes.

The girls home, started in 1974, is run by two Sisters of St. Joseph, Rita McCarthy and Marie Connolly, and the director of the boys' home is John Pye.

The group homes are the Youth Commission's pride and joys.

"These are not kids in trouble," says Mahoney. "These are kids people have made trouble for, who are in danger of screwing up their lives because of their environment.

"They have to have a place to go but if they were shipped out to say, Worcester, it would disrupt their lives. It's best to keep them in their home towns with their friends."

Not long ago, the Group Home for Girls took in a 16-year-old runaway from Quincy who had been in an emergency shelter in Boston. She remained for six months.

Gradually, she was worked back into her family. She finished high school. Right now, she is in her third year of college. She visits Sisters Rita and Marie frequently.

"They have great alumni," says Mahoney. "They keep coming back. For some, it is their only home."

Prop. 2½ May Cost Up To 400 City Jobs

Fire, $13,474,540; Other, $12,348,233.

Tobin also noted that 80 per cent of the city budget goes to pay salaries so that, out of the $14.5 million to be cut, about $11.6 million is salary-related.

"Unless reason and common sense prevails in dealing with the unions," Tobin said, "there will be massive layoffs."

The Mayor said he sat down over the weekend and reviewed

"possible positions that could be lost" and came up with a partial list of about 112 that would save the city only $1,997,000.

The list does not include teachers or other school personnel.

He said cuts in the school budget "will be in the range of $10 million, I'm sure," leaving the rest of the city government to slash nearly $5 million.

In an attempt to make up for the expected $1.5 million loss in excise tax receipts from Jan. 1 to July 1, Tobin said, "some jobs may be affected before the end of the fiscal year."

He said the Personnel Department has been going through birth dates of city employees to determine how many may be ready for retirement between January and July.

"If those jobs are not filled," he said, "we may be able to make up some of the lost money."

Finish With 8-1 Record

Quincy Sophs Roll, 26-8

Sports

The Quincy High sophomore football team finished one of its best seasons ever last Saturday when it topped North Quincy, 26-8, at Veterans Memorial Stadium in their annual version of The Game to finish with an 8-1 record.

However, the North Sophs, who finished 3-6, were far from disgraced. Greatly outmanned and outweighed, the young Raiders made a fine showing and, with a little better luck, the score could have been much closer.

"This was a fine team effort," Quincy Coach Mark Conroy said. "The offense and defense both played well, but North was tough and that boy DiCarlo (Dave) was one of the best runners we have faced this season."

Conroy hailed Bob Mudge, his quarterback, who called most of his own plays and did an excellent job. Mudge will be one of several sophomores who will be with the varsity on the holiday and will back up varsity quarterback Sean Martin.

Mark Righini, who scored nine touchdowns this season, sparked the young Presidents' running attack and Mike Miller, Chris Dracchio and John Pickering also ran well.

Others singled out by Conroy for their work on offense were end Kevin Riggs, Willie Cullen, center Al Carpenter, who Conroy called "my most consistent player all year," Bob Willard, Danny Mahoney, Glenn Oriola, Ted Walsh and Brian Callahan.

Defensive coach Bill Deal had good words for Sal Lorenzano, Bob Burns, who recovered a key fumble in the first minute of the game with North threatening; John Spencer, whose deflection of a North pass which appeared touchdown-bound, was one of the big plays of the game; Daren DeCosta, Riggs, big Joe Hart and Bob McIsaac.

Oriola, Mahoney and Riggs were the team's tri-captains.

A disappointed North coach Ted Sadowski, in his 22nd season as a North assistant, praised the running of DiCarlo.

Presidents Shooting For 4th Straight

QUINCY

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football team can't have a winning record, but it can atone for past defeats with its fourth straight win over North Quincy in Thursday's 48th annual classic at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Following their best season in 10 years (7-2-1) last year, the Presidents take a 3-5-1 mark into the holiday game, but Thursday is the second season and the record will be forgotten with a win.

Quincy hasn't won four in a row in the long series since Bill Sullivan's teams won five straight from 1954 through 1958.

"We are a better team than our record shows," Coach Tom Fitzgerald, a former North assistant, said. "If we play like we did against Brockton, Weymouth North and Revere, we have a good chance. But if we play like we did against Brookline and Weymouth South, we are in for a lot of trouble.

"North has an excellent team and we know what we are up against. But, we won't try anything new, we'll just go out there and play our game and hope for the best.

"North is an awfully tough team to defense against. Burkie (North coach Dave Burke) throws so many offenses at you. But, our defense has been strong in most games and will be ready.

Quincy was flat in every department in its last game, a 28-0 loss to Brookline, after making one of its finest showings of the year against undefeated Brockton the previous week.

"One thing is for sure, I won't have any trouble getting them up for this one," Fitzgerald said.

Quincy's starting quarterback, Ron Pettinelli, who broke his wrist several weeks ago, will be available only for kicking extra points and, if the occasion arises, a field goal attempt.

JUNIOR SEAN MARTIN has done an outstanding job at quarterback for Quincy since replacing the injured Ron Pettinelli.

Junior Sean Martin, who has done well since spelling Pettinelli, will get the call Thursday. He had excellent days against Weymouth North and Brockton, throwing six touchdown passes and running well.

Dan Montani, a three-year veteran end, has mononucleosis and will miss the traditional game. Another questionable started is big guard Chris Chevalier. If he is unable to start, John Christello will start in his place.

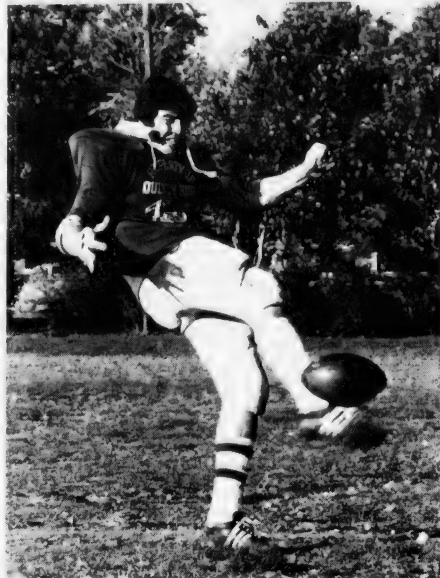

Martin will be joined in the starting backfield by halfbacks Mark Abboud, the leading ground gainer with three 100-plus games, and Ed Iodice, the team's fastest ball carrier, and fullback Mike Monahan.

Others who will see action in the offensive backfield will be Paul Flynn, Javier Perez, Steve Goguen and Glenn Straughn.

Sean Burke (6-5) and Scott Anson (6-3), two excellent receivers, will start at end. "I wouldn't trade them for any other ends in the league," Fitzgerald said.

Capt. Fran Duggan, one of the best in the league, and John Varrasso will start at tackle, John Taglieri and Chevalier or Christello at guard and Ed Mackey, who has been brilliant both ways all season, at center.

Also playing in the offensive line will be Steve Aluisi, Dave Donnelly, Paul Martin, Joe LaRaia, Billy Hall and sophomore Danny Mahoney.

On defense Mackey and Anson will be at end, sophomore Jamie Gravales and Mike Connors at tackle, Mike Nevins at nose guard, Taglieri or Abboud and Walter Kilgallon or Mike Burns linebacks, Goguen or Steve Remillard and Jack Oliverio or Straughn halfbacks and Ken Gustin or Greg Oriola safety.

Also playing on defense will be Duggan, Chevalier, Iodice, Sean Martin, Steve Spencer, who returns punts, Shaughnessy, Christello, Aluisi, LaRaia and Steve Rossetti.

Fitzgerald, a former all-scholastic at North, hasn't lost to the Raiders as Quincy coach and seeks his third straight win over them Thursday.

He has the same assistants as last year, Peter Chella, Bill Maver, Joe Goguen and Mark Conroy.

Jackie Wier, veteran equipment manager, is still on the job he does so well.

Records Don't Mean A Thing

Raiders Want To Shake 3-Year Jinx

NORTH

North Quincy's football team is assured of its first winning season in three years regardless of the outcome of Thursday's game, but utmost in the Raiders' minds is stopping Quincy from defeating them for the fourth year in a row when the rivals clash at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the 48th renewal of the series.

North takes a 5-3-1 record into the game as compared with Quincy's 3-5-1 mark, but Coach Dave Burke knows what to expect when the teams meet.

"This will be a typical Quincy-North game and records don't mean a thing," Burke said. "Quincy has a good team and we know we are in for a busy morning. They have been flat in a couple of games, but so have we. They can explode and they have a strong defense."

Burke has three questionable starters, Bob McCormack, Peter McDonough and Steve Howley.

Burke will start an offensive line of Bob Bolster and Glenn Segalla ends, John Buckley and Chuck Sylva tackles, Lou DiPietro and Ted Hannon guards and Bill Feeney center.

Jack Brown, who scored all five touchdowns in the win over Weymouth South, will be at quarterback with Steve McEachern and either Jim Sullivan or Joe Dudek at halfback and Dean Zoia, the leading ground gainer, at fullback.

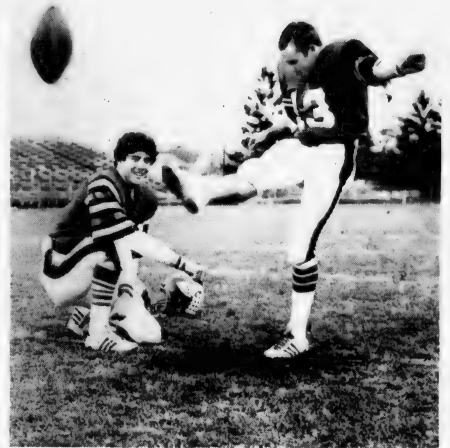

Also seeing action on offense will be Jack Leone, whose place kicking (he has a 51-yard field goal this year) could make the difference in a close game; Paul Ciarfella, Neil Fisher, Mike Panaro, Bob Pound, Steve Lee, McDonough, if he is able, Brian O'Leary, whose punting has been outstanding all season; Pat Burke and Ray Mallory.

Starters on defense will be Sylva and Lee or McCormack at end, Bill Stacy and Paul Schaeztl at tackle, Peter Alibrandi or Feeney noseguard, Paul O'Sullivan and Segalla or Tim Tehan linebackers, Ken Mann and Gino Pillard or Jim McGinnis cornerbacks and Chris Baker and Jamie Walsh safeties.

Also due to play on defense are Mallory, Dan Grant, Panaro, Rich Stevens, Brian Marsters, Paul McAleney, Ed Cochrane, Phil

BRIAN O'LEARY has done some fine punting for North Quincy and could be a factor on the holiday.

Donaghey and Tom Ceurvels.

"Knowing Tom (Fitzgerald, Quincy coach), I expect he will throw in a few new wrinkles," Burke said. "We will stick pretty much to our regular attack." However, Dave will undoubtedly come up with a new play or two for the Presidents.

Burke has the same assistants as last year, Ken McPhee, George Liset, Jack Raymer and Ted Sadowski, who has been a Raider aide for 22 years.

Burke hailed the work of Jack

Slight, a Boston State student, who has been trainer for the Raiders this fall. "He has done a fine job for us," the Raider coach said.

and I wish I had a dozen like him," Ted said. Mike Cullen also ran but that was the extent of our offense."

Sadowski, who had Pete Zoia as his assistant this fall, also had good words for Mike O'Hare, who came back from an injury and played offense for the first time and played well. Rich Tapper, a cornerback who stopped everything that came his way. Rich Brown, who played well both ways, and little Shawn Cunningham, who played well at noseguard.

Vin Barry, Rich Reardon and Gerry Connolly were the North Tri-Captains.

On the first play from scrimmage DiCarlo raced 58 yards before being brought down from behind on Quincy's 12. But on the first play Burns recovered a fumble.

Mudge threw a long pass to Cullen, who outran the North secondary and was all alone, for an apparent 62-yard touchdown play, but a penalty nullified it.

North's Cunningham recovered a fumble on the Raiders' 33 to stop a Quincy threat but, following a punt, Quincy drove 51 yards for its first score, Mudge passing to Cullen for four yards.

Early in the second period the Presidents scored again after Lorenzano intercepted a pass on North's 38. Mudge ran 14 yards for the touchdown.

North, sparked by DiCarlo and Cullen, drove to a first down on Quincy's 13 but was stopped on the seven.

Quincy drove from its own 27 for another touchdown early in the third period, Walsh scoring from the four. For the third straight time the Presidents failed to convert.

Quincy's kickoff into a stiff wind bounced back to the 50 and Quincy recovered, setting up its fourth score. Mudge passed to Riggs for 24 yards and the touchdown and Mudge rushed for the only successful conversion of the day.

North came right back and drove 60 yards for its only touchdown as DiCarlo and Cullen again divided the running chores. Cullen raced around right and for 26 yards and the touchdown and Barry passed to DiCarlo for the points.

North Jayvees, Memorial In Scoreless Tie

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy junior varsity football team played to a scoreless tie with Catholic Memorial last week in a game which featured a lot of razzle dazzle play but no scoring.

North Coach George Liset had his Raiders play a wide-open game but fumbles and intercepted passes prevented them from crossing the goal line.

Quarterback Paul Burke pitched out to Ray Mallory, who threw a left-handed bomb to Dan Linehan on the CM 39, but North fumbled the ball away.

After halting a CM drive, Burke tossed to Linehan to put the ball on CM's 30 and a Mallory to Burke pass went to the 19, but CM intercepted a pass as the half ended.

Some hard running by Mallory and Rich Stevens highlighted the third period, clicking off three first downs and reaching the CM 33, but the Raiders were held.

Mallory quickly intercepted a pass on the North 30 and Mallory passed to Burke for 17 yards. Two smashes by Stevens and Mallory brought the ball to CM's 34 but again the visitors held.

Liset had good words for Ed Leary, Jim Hutchinson, Tom Morrill, Mark Micelli and Steve Lee for their line play and also singled out Paul Melanson, Stevens, Rich Comeau, Walter Sullivan and Mike Hutchins for their defensive performances.

Hutchinson threw one of the hardest blocks seen all season and his blocking was outstanding throughout the game.

"I was pleased with our play toward the end of the season," Liset said. "We lost only one game (by six points) in our last five. We showed marked improvement as the season progressed."

Game On WJDA

Station WJDA will carry the play-by-play of Thursday's Quincy-North Quincy game from Veterans Memorial Stadium.

It will also bring in reports of Abp. Williams at Cardinal Spellman with Mark DeCharme, Weymouth North at Weymouth

South with Earl Hannafin and Milton at Braintree with Ernie Rotman.

Charlie Ross will do the play-by-play of the Quincy-North Quincy game with Roy Lind on color.

The warmup with interviews with both coaches will start at 9:30 a.m. Kickoff will be at 10.

John Nicolson will man the WJDA football scoreboard and will update other South Shore and Greater Boston games.

After the game John and Lynn Jackson will host the scoreboard show, sponsored by Quincy Cooperative Bank. The show will have complete wrapups on the WJDA games coverage, also all other games along the South Shore will be reported on by high school reporters.

Wednesday WJDA will present a preview of the holiday games at 1:05 p.m., taking a look at the games and previewing probable Superbowl teams.

I BET
YOU
KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Amazingly, a team once won the championship of the National Football League even though THEY DIDN'T HAVE A HEAD COACH. . . . It happened to the Chicago Bears in 1943. . . . Their head coach, George Halas, went into the Navy that year, and he turned the team over to 2 of his assistants, Luke Johnsos and Hunk Anderson. . . . Neither man was the head coach. . . . They served as sort of co-coaches. . . . The Bears won the NFL title that year. . . . That's the only time a team ever won the championship without a head coach.

Oddly enough, only once in the last 14 years has a right-hand hitter won the batting championship in baseball in the American League. . . . The only righty to win the batting title since 1966 was Alex Johnson, in 1970. . . . ALL other batting champions in the American League since 1966 have been lefties.

To prove that statistics don't always mean too much in a football game, look at this: On Sept. 20, Minnesota played Ohio State and Minnesota controlled the ball 8 minutes longer than Ohio State, ran off 18 more plays and had more first downs than Ohio State — but Minnesota not only lost, they lost 47-0!

I bet you didn't know. . . . that COLMAN'S has all the cold weather wear you need at money saving prices. For spots, leisure or outdoor activity. Now is a good time to get those cold weather wearables for Christmas giving.

QJC Faces Hellenic In Celtics Preliminary

The Quincy Junior College basketball team with a 1-1 record, will make its second Boston Garden appearance tonight (Wednesday) at 5 p.m. when it faces Hellenic in a preliminary to the Celtics-Portland game.

Hellenic this year is coached by Richard "Duke" Dukeshire, former Northeastern University head coach and the Greek Olympic coach. For the past six years he has coached in Greece, coaching that country's national team.

Dukeshire not only has brought coaching experience to Hellenic, but he has brought some players, including a 6'9" center, a 6'4" forward and two solid guards from Greece. These four, coupled with last year's Greater Boston Small College Conference MVP, John Koutsoulaifis (43 points a game), make Hellenic the favorite to win the conference title.

QJC Coach Brian Buckley is enthusiastic about playing Hellenic. "Our team really gets up for Hellenic, with its great scorer and now the big men, it will be doubly tough," he said.

"It is a thrill to coach against a coach of Duke's caliber. He is well-respected in the trade and rightfully so."

QJC last week defeated Daniel Webster, 71-65, to even its record at 1-1.

Leading scorers for the Jaguars were Ed Richard with 20 points, Jim Holleran with 16 and Gene Casper with seven, but it was the spark of center Brian Raymond and Ed Hanratty which provided the team with its victory.

"It was a team win," said Buckley. "There was great help from the defense and the bench played a major role in the win."

QJC will return home against Essex Agricultural next Tuesday at 7 at the Vo-Tech gym and Thursday will host North Shore Community College at 7.

Brown, Iodice Top Scorers

North Quincy Quarterback Jack Brown, who scored five touchdowns against Weymouth South, is the leading scorer going into the holiday game. Brown has seven touchdowns and two extra points for 44 points, leading Dean Zoia (seven touchdowns) by two points.

Quincy's top scorer is Ed Iodice with 26 points (four touchdowns and a two-point conversion), while end Sean Burke has 22 points (three touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions).

The Officials

Al Benson will again referee the holiday classic with John Krikorian the umpire, George Hill the head linesman and Jim O'Leary the field judge.

Jim Shaw will operate the clock.

Local Resident Composer

'Quincy, Quincy, Quincy' Composition Premieres Dec. 2

The world premiere of a composition written for the city, "Quincy, Quincy, Quincy (Photon City)", will be Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Berklee College of Music Recital Hall, Boston.

Written by area resident Vincent Mitchell, the work will also be featured in concert Monday, Dec. 8, at 8 p.m. at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston.

The composition depicts conceptual scenes which sequence through contemporary Quincy. Mitchell is a guitarist-performer as well as a composer.

Michael T. Szymczak, a South Shore resident and Berklee faculty member, will conduct the piece to be performed by Thom's Thumb. Mitchell will perform with the ensemble.

The concerts are free and open to the public.

Arts, Crafts Festival At Fontbonne Academy

Five Quincy women are helping to plan an Arts, and Crafts Festival being sponsored by Fontbonne Academy, Adams and Brook Sts., Milton, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29 and 30.

The women are Mrs. Kenneth Halloran, Mrs. John Keaney, Mrs. Charles McCarthy, Mrs. Paul O'Brien and Mrs. James Nee.

The festival will be held 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and will offer something for everyone.

Among the items available will be wood cut prints, puppets, dried floral arrangements, bake shop items, Bermuda Bay bag covers, pressed flowers in frames, stenciling, ceramics, macrame, quilting, coin jewelry and leaded glass.

There will also be lamps, pottery, Christmas centerpieces and decorations.

Refreshments will be available throughout the day as well as chances on prizes.

Christmas Lights On Friday

The holiday season will be officially ushered in at 7:30 p.m. Friday, when Christmas lights decorating a 25-foot Canadian fir tree at City Hall's Constitution Mall will be switched on.

Participating in the annual lighting ceremonies will be Santa Claus, city and state officials and well-known Walt Disney characters.

Santa will be on hand to distribute candy canes to youngsters, according to George Fay, chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The festivities are co-sponsored by the City of Quincy and the QCBPA.

Entertainment, beginning at 6:45 p.m., will feature the Bay State Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

The Canton-based men's chorus features Quincy singers Phil Spring, Bill Ragusa, Bill Erickson, Bill Grenier and Clay Worden.

The group, which has been champions of the Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island district, specializes in old-time harmony.

Santa and friends will arrive at 7:25 p.m. and the lights will be switched on at 7:30 sharp.

Festival Committee member Gloria Noble encourages the audience to bring hand bells in order to participate in the entertainment.

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 27

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19
The celebrity in you is brought out in open during social upbeat week. Use weekend to consider motives of recent acquaintance; you're highly perceptive now.

PISCES—February 20-March 20
Don't handle technical jobs unless you have the experience. And don't submit reports until you've checked facts. As for the "do's": do bargain, clear up clutter, accept flattery.

ARIES—March 21-April 20
You're nominated to uninvite that uninvited guest, speak to that irresponsible employee, or perform some other such task. On brighter side, you're in for modest windfall.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22
Your small gift brings big gesture of appreciation. Friends try to sweep you into their conflict on weekend, but do your best to remain entirely detached.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21
Good investment opportunity should be discussed with professional. A quiet week, but positive one, thanks to support from prestigious colleague or relative.

CANCER—June 22-July 22
You're beginning to feel more settled in a relationship, but give a second chance to someone you meet now. Strength of will helps you over domestic hurdle. Financial news bright.

LEO—July 23-August 22
A successful week provided you're willing to laugh at your own follies. Two cautions: Don't feel obligated to be big spender, and stay clear of feuding relatives.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22
Spotlight now is on love life—or on love life of loved one—with an announcement coming up. At work, you may have to negotiate more than usual.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22
Social life becomes bit confused but academically you're shining. Creative work proves profitable. Moderation is stressed—in dining, spending and praising yourself.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21
Business associate may be less than sensitive but family members know how to spoil you. Good week for concentrating on future plans. Mistake works out in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22
Influent people are cooperative—it's good week for asking for favors. Focus is on meditation through weekend. Good time to start educational or volunteer program.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20
Period stars briskly, then tempo grinds to near-halt. Capitalize on quietness and outline personal plans for future. Wit and warmth bring you brand new admirer.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're interested in travel (especially long-distance) and communication (usually the written word). This can be a financially and personally rewarding year, but you must learn to be less extreme and more responsible.

BORN THIS WEEK
November 27th, producer David Merrick; 28th, singer Randy Newman; 29th, singer John Gary; 30th, actor Richard Crenna; December 1st, actor Woody Allen; 2nd, actress Julie Harris; 3rd, singer Andy Williams.

Track Club Qualifys 37 In AAU Olympics

The Quincy Track Club experienced its finest cross country effort ever in last week's New England AAU Junior Olympics championships at Aponequet Regional High School.

The top 20 finishers in each division advance to the regional championships in Scarborough, Maine, and Quincy qualified 37, its highest number ever.

The QTC had two first finishers, Karen and Terri Rodgers getting big wins, and the club picked up two team championships, winning the boys and girls' 11-12 bracket.

In boys 10 and under Kevin O'Brien placed eighth, Mark Whitney 14th and Matt Norton 20th, the team placing third with 94 points.

In the girls' race Karen Rodgers dominated from the start and won by nearly two minutes over the 3000 meter (1.86 miles) course. Nancy Sheehy was 11th, Karen Cashman a surprising 16th and Dorothy Bonner 17th. QTC placed second with 111 points.

In boys 11-12 Robbie Glynn finished ninth, just edging Harry Morash, Stu Coull took 13th and Marty Werth 16th and Quincy won the division with 92 points.

The girls' race was dominated by Terri Rodgers and Nancy Sullivan, who finished 1-2. Sue Curran took 10th, Tracy Ann Wilson was 15th and Lorrie McNeill 25th as Quincy won the division with 53 points. It was the fifth straight year the QTC has won this age group.

In girls 13-14 Tracy Coull was eighth, Beth Regan 12th and Shannon Cotter 19th as Quincy finished second with 101 points.

In girls 15-16 Elizabeth O'Connor was sixth and in the girls 17-18 group Mary Crehan placed third, Vicki Finlayson 11th and Caroline Mitchell 16th.

Coach Jeff Hennessy said that from his championship girls 11-12 team of 1976, Linda Kennedy and Sheila Barrett did well for the North Quincy girls team this season and Michelle and Denise Santo were all-scholastic choices in track and field.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

WOOD STOVE INSTALLATION

Heating with wood is making a comeback. This is evidenced by the booming business in woodburning stoves. However, burning wood can also be hazardous. In Massachusetts alone, there are an average of 25 woodstove fires a month resulting in property damages of about $100,000 a month. Many of the fires could be avoided if stoves were properly installed.

Proper clearances around the sides and bottom of a stove are critical for its safe operation. A woodstove must be at least 36 inches from a combustible wall. This distance can be reduced by protecting the wall with sheet metal or asbestos millboard. The non-combustible material must be spaced at least one inch from the wall to assure free air circulation behind the shield. This ventilated space is essential for keeping the wall from getting too hot.

The stove must be placed on a non-combustible surface (brick, concrete, sheet metal) extend at least 18 inches in front of the stove and 12 inches to the sides and rear. Never place a stove in an alcove, or a stairwell or other cluttered areas.

LEGAL NOTICE

MASSACHUSETTS WATER RESOURCES COMMISSION
DIVISION OF WATER POLLUTION CONTROL

110 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MASS. 02108

PUBLIC NOTICE
OF
PERMIT APPLICATIONS

The Massachusetts Division of Water Pollution Control has received applications for permits for construction of sewer extensions or connections to the municipal systems listed below. Section 43 of Chapter 21 of the General Laws, as amended by Chapter 546 of the Acts of 1973, requires that public notice be given of every permit proceeding.

The applications are available for inspection and copying at the Division's offices at the above address. Persons desiring to comment upon or to object to the tentative determination of the Division or to request a Public Hearing thereon should submit their views in writing to the Division at the above address within 21 days of publication of this notice. All comments received within this 21-day period will be considered by the Division in formulating the final determination regarding these applications. A Public Hearing will be held only if the response to this notice indicates, in the opinion of the Director, that the public interest would be served thereby.

Following this 21-day comment period, a final determination to issue or deny the proposed permit will be made by the Director of the Division with respect to each permit application. Where the final determination remains substantially unchanged from the tentative determination indicated in this public notice, the Director will so inform the applicant, and any person who has filed written comments during this 21-day comment period, of his final determination and of the right of any party aggrieved by the final determination to request a formal adjudicatory hearing within 14 days of the final determination.

Where the final determination is substantially changed from the tentative determination in this public notice, the Director will publish a public notice of the final determination in addition to the written notice provided above. Persons other than the applicant who feel they may have a right to and may wish to request a formal adjudicatory hearing should file written comments during the 21-day public comment period in order to assure receipt of written notification of the final determination.

Within 14 days of the final permit determination parties (as defined in sections 1, 10 and 10A of Chapter 30A of the General Laws) aggrieved by the determination may file a written request with the Director for an Adjudicatory Hearing under the provisions of Chapter 30A. (The Massachusetts Administrative Procedure Act) and the Standard Adjudicatory Rules of Practice and Procedure (801 CMR 1.00).

QHA To Seek Advice From Security Firms On Vandalism

The Housing Authority voted last week to meet with representatives of several security companies to discuss the authority's growing vandalism and harassment problem's.

Authority member Lolita Harris motioned that the board meet with several of the largest local firms to find out what type of services they could provide and at what price.

Incidents of vandalism or abuse of the elderly have been reported at the Martinson, Papagno Towers, Oceanview and Snug Harbor Court projects, according to QHA Executive Director Clement O'Brien.

Inquiries to one local security company indicated that the firm charged $5.25 per hour per security guard, O'Brien added.

"We just don't have the funding for something like that," he said.

"Let's just see what these companies have to offer," said

Mrs. Harris. "Maybe they'll have an idea that we haven't even thought of."

Member Edward Graham agreed, saying, "It's time we stop fooling around and do something about this very serious problem."

Tobin Impressed By LA Hospital

Mayor Tobin returned from Los Angeles over the weekend and said he is impressed with the way two management firms are operating hospitals in the California city.

The two firms, Hyatt Medical Association and National Medical Enterprises Inc., both of Los Angeles, have applied to take over the running of the financially plagued Quincy City Hospital.

Tobin said he inspected a hospital operated by one of the firms that was similar in size and financial structure to the hospital in Quincy.

"It had the same problem as we have in Quincy," he said, "and they turned it around."

Accompanying Tobin were Auditor Charles L. Shea, Solicitor Robert Fleming, Treasurer Robert E. Foy III and the Rev. Peter Corea and Richard Corner of the Hospital's Board of Managers.

It has not yet been decided to have the hospital run by an outside manager firm but Tobin has indicated that he is leaning that way.

Earlier, he made a trip to Nashville, Tenn., to visit two other firms, Hospital Corp. of America and Hospital Affiliates International.

After Los Angeles, he said, "we have now examined the top four companies in the industry."

4 Santa's Mailboxes

Four Santa's Mailboxes will take their place in Quincy Center on Monday, Dec. 1, according to Richard J. Koch of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's Christmas Festival Committee.

Mailboxes will be located on McIntyre Mall adjacent to Quincy Cooperative Bank on Ross Parkway behind Hancock Bank and in front of Coleman's Sporting Goods and Child World, both on Hancock St.

The mailboxes, a special service of the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, allow youngsters to mail their letters and postcards directly to Santa. The small size of the mailboxes allows little ones to deposit their own Christmas request.

Each year, hundreds of notes are handed through the Santa Mailboxes, Koch said.

Adults are cautioned that the mailboxes are for Santa's mail only, Koch said.

Out of the past comes a beautiful present.

The Lane® Love Chest, a gift steeped in romantic tradition.

The romantic tradition of the Lane Love Chest is derived from the centuries-old custom of the Dowry Chest. From Europe the tradition found its way to America where it developed as a gift of love to hold the things you love. The Lane Love Chest is also a beautiful piece of furniture available in a variety of styles, each crafted of fine cabinetwoods. The fragrant cedar-lined interior, nature's only defense against the moth, will protect your most cherished belongings. Whether it is for a bride-to-be, for a sweetheart, for a fiancée or for a wife... the Lane Love Chest is a most imaginative way to say "I love you".

Irked Tobin Declares:

Political Figures Will Have No Clout In Cable TV License

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur Tobin says he was "hurt and disappointed" that several current and former city officials did not notify him they were investing in cable television companies that are seeking the Quincy franchise.

"But my selection will not be made on the basis of any political figure or ex-political figure who may be involved," said the mayor, who, under the city charter, is solely responsible for awarding the profitable, even lucrative, franchise.

"As private citizens," he said, "they can invest their money in any company of their choosing. What bothers me is how this is perceived in the eyes of the people. And they never had the courtesy to contact me about it."

A minor controversy has surfaced in the past week, within and without the industry, over a number of Quincy residents, some of them with considerable political clout, who have received options to invest in at least two of the nine companies.

They include ex-Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, who have options on 15 shares each, valued at $1,500 apiece, in Metro-Cable of Quincy, a subsidiary of the Los Angeles Times-Mirror.

Ironically, the Metro-Cable application was being examined by the State Cable Television Commission for a technical flaw in that it was incomplete when filed at the Nov. 21 deadline, and supplemented five days later.

Tobin said he first learned of the local investments in the cable companies when he returned from a trip to Los Angeles a week and a half ago.

"My first reaction was hurt and disappointment," he said.

"I never received the courtesy of a phone call that they had been contacted by the cable companies."

He said he then spoke with George Riley, chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television, and Riley told him that local investment is a common practice in cable TV.

"To say that the license will be granted because someone knows the mayor is an insult to Mr. Riley and his committee," said Tobin. "We'll choose the company that is in the best position to render the best service to Quincy."

Tobin said he plans to follow the recommendation of Riley and his committee, which will start hearings into the applications by the nine companies after the first of the year.

The cable companies themselves are divided on the benefits and drawbacks of local investment in a venture whose franchise is awarded by the Quincy Cablesystems Corp., a subsidiary of American Cable-systems of Boston, whose 12 Quincy investors includes Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, is one of those companies that is enthusiastic over such participation.

Mayor

"This blend of local ownership will help ensure the development and operation of a cable television system which is uniquely sensitive to the priorities and concerns of the Quincy community," says Cablesystem's application.

The Cablesystems bid also includes this glowing tribute from William O'Gara, mayor of Westbrook, Maine, written two and a half years after cable television came to his city:

"The presence of the local investors has the effect of further enhancing the conscience of the company, even though they hold only a minority interest. The local

Police Budget $400,000 Short

It took awhile but the City Council now knows how well Police Chief Francis X. Finn is doing making ends meet on his underfunded budget.

He's not doing well at all, he told the Council.

He's going to come up some $400,000 short. In fact, he said, he doesn't really know how much he has in his budget.

Finn was originally called on to testify before the Council's Public Safety Committee two weeks ago but he failed to appear, pleading a prior engagement with Mayor Tobin.

Monday night, however, he had to show up in order to get $1,230,300 from a reserve account to fund negotiated pay raises for patrolmen and superior officers.

The Council, which cut $420,000 out of the Police budget last spring, pounced, and Finn was ready.

"If we get this appropriation of $1,230,300, we will still be approximately $400,000 short and maybe a little more at the end of the year (June 30)," said the chief.

"There is a serious shortfall here," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. "Unless the city becomes involved in bonding I don't know where the money is coming from."

"I don't know either, councillor," said Finn. "I am concerned about it but I have confidence in talking to the city auditor (Charles L. Shea) that he will help us get through."

"Could you finish your budget in the black?" asked Councillor Francis X. McCauley, zeroing in on the same point from a different direction.

"No," said Finn. "I couldn't possibly make it. If somewhere along the line in the next few months I don't get some positive answers then more drastic steps in curtailment of services will have to be taken."

McCauley asked him what had been done already to keep the Police Department within its curtailed budget.

"We have not replaced any of our retired personnel," said Finn. "We are now 22 patrolmen short-handed (an addition of four

Tax Payment Due Dec. 29

All the city's 25,000 property tax bills for 1981 have been mailed, says Tax Collector Robert E. Foy III, and the first half payment is due at his City Hall office by 4:30 p.m., Monday, Dec. 29.

If it is not received by that time, said Foy, there will be a 14 per cent interest charge and a 30-day penalty charge, also calculated at 14 per cent.

The second half of the 1981 bill is due Friday, May 1, 1981.

Foy urged any taxpayer who has not yet received a bill to contact his office at 773-1380.

Council Marks Time On Mayor's Taxi Fare Veto

Quincy taxi owners are going to have to wait a little bit longer for their promised fare increase.

The rate hike, passed by the City Council and vetoed by the Mayor, came back to the Council Monday night and President Leo J. Kelly ruled that it had to be tabled for seven days.

He wouldn't even let the councillors talk about it.

The fare ordinance that was passed by the Council would raise rates to $1 for the first half mile and 20 cents for each additional one-sixth of a mile.

In his veto message, Mayor Tobin noted that among the major users of taxis are senior citizens, the physically and mentally handicapped and people in need of medical care.

"Could you kindly have copies of their testimony and input before the ordinance committee forwarded to my attention?" he asked.

He also wanted to know, he added, "which council blue ribbon committee, if any, studied this proposal and made recommendations."

Both the Mayor and the Council have rival blue ribbon committees studying the problems of City Hospital, a move the Mayor has regarded as an invasion of his prerogatives.

It requires a 6-3 vote of the Council to override the veto.

Conservation Commission Meets

The Conservation Commission was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 8:15 p.m. in the conference room of 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount.

Among the topics to be discussed is the final order of conditions for parking spaces for Forge-O'Connell Monarch II building in North Quincy.

BREAKING GROUND for Quincy Center Plaza, the 10-story office building that Campanelli Enterprises is building to house Stop and Shop headquarters, is a platoon of city and company officials. Left to right, Judie Cullen, Planning Department; Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director; Robert DeMarco, Campanelli; John Alongi, Campanelli; Frank Crowley, Stop and Shop; Robert Levin, Stop and Shop; Mayor Arthur H. Tobin; Bryon Matthews, state secretary of communities and development; James Lydon, planning director; City Council President Leo J. Kelly; Councillor Daniel G. Raymond; and Ronald Campanelli, Campanelli.

State Commerce Secretary:

Quincy Center Plaza 'Answer To Prop 2½'

By TOM HENSHAW

"This is our answer to Proposition 2½," said Byron Matthews, the state's secretary of commerce and development.

"What is going on in Quincy is going on across the state of Massachusetts but nowhere else in the country. We are creating more development and more jobs."

Matthews was a speaker last week at the groundbreaking for Quincy Center Plaza, the 10-story, $14 million office building at the corner of Hancock and Granite Sts.

When it is finished in 12 to 18 months, the building will house the corporate headquarters for the Stop & Shop companies now located in South Boston.

Matthews said he arrived in Quincy fresh from another groundbreaking in Watertown, a $56 million development on the site of the old Watertown Arsenal.

"That development took 12 years to get off the ground," he said, adding a plug for his boss, "It is the Ed King attitude that is turning the state around."

Quincy Center Plaza and its

Graham Terrace Accepted

The City Council voted recently to accept as a public street Graham Terrace from Stewart St. to the dead end in Quincy Point with the city to pay the costs of laying it out.

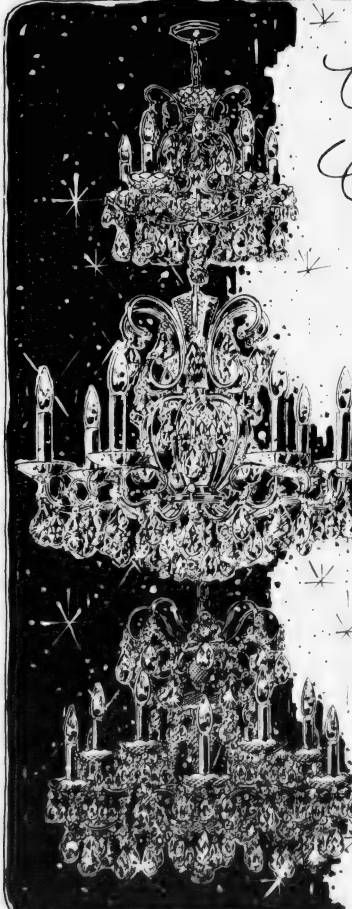

parking garage, a joint venture between the city and Campanelli Enterprises, took a 2½ years to get off the ground.

Ground was broken in October for the five-story garage over the MBTA tracks which is being built with a $3.79 million urban development action grant (UDAG) from the federal government.

Others who had speaking roles at last week's groundbreaking included:

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, City Council President Leo J. Kelly, Planning Director James Lydon, the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director; Robert Levin, senior vice president of Stop and Shop; and Robert DeMarco, managing partner in Campanelli.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, who was instrumental in obtaining the UDAG grant for the garage, was unable to attend since he was at the funeral of former House Speaker John W. McCormack in Boston.

$10,000 CHECK is returned by Mayor Arthur Tobin (left) to Quincy Sons of Italy Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo for use in aiding earthquake victims in Southern Italy. Looking on are (seated) Board of Trust Chairman A. Mario Salvatore and Assistant Venerable John Marella and, (standing) lodge members Sebastian Papagno, Henry Bosworth, Agrippino Rocuzzo, Donald McCarthy, Walter Salamone and Gus Purpura.

"THANK GOD I live in Quincy," a grateful Mimmo D'Arcangelo tells the City Council Monday night. The council voted to return a $10,000 gift from the Quincy Sons of Italy, to be used for earthquake relief in Southern Italy. D'Arcangelo is Venerable of the Quincy lodge.

City Returns $10,000

Italian Earthquake Relief Fund Over $15,000 Mark

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
Over $15,000 has been raised so far by the Quincy Sons of Italy to aid victims of the recent earthquakes in southern Italy, according to Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo.

Most of that total, $10,000, came in the form of a gift originally presented to the city by the Sons of Italy, but returned by the City Council Monday night at Mayor Arthur Tobin's request.

And more is expected to be raised this weekend at St. John's Church. The second collection at each Mass between Saturday evening and Sunday evening will be used to purchase supplies, equipment, and medicine for the stricken Naples area.

One of those Masses, the Sunday, 9:45 service, will be celebrated in memory of those who died in the Nov. 23 earthquakes.

"We want to see that church packed," said D'Arcangelo, "even if people only give $1 each."

Between $4,000 and $5,000, which would normally go to St. John's, is expected to be raised in the weekend's collections, according to Pastor Rev. William McCarthy.

Former Gov. John Volpe, who heads the state-wide emergency relief effort, is expected to attend the Sunday, 9:45 a.m. Mass, added Rev. McCarthy.

D'Arcangelo, like many other Quincy residents of Italian descent, has relatives in the area hit by the earthquakes.

"I came from Italy 34 years ago," he told the City Council Monday night. "I felt very sorry to have left, having left school, having left friends. But tonight, I'm going to finish my little speech with just a few words: Thank God I live in Quincy."

The council unanimously approved the return of the Sons' $10,000 gift, as recommended by Mayor Tobin.

"This earthquake has hit close in Quincy—right into the mayor's office," said Tobin, who noted that Mrs. Teresa Terranova, wife of mayoral aide Frank Terranova, also has relatives in the earthquake region.

Tobin noted the Quincy Sons of Italy lodge has donated $105,000 to the city and over $280,000 to various charities during the past nine years.

And, he added, the Sons' Stella Del Nord ladies auxiliary is in the process of purchasing a $7,500 dialysis machine for Quincy City Hospital.

"So we are returning this $10,000 gift not only in gratitude for the generosity of the Quincy Sons of Italy over the years, but also for the tremendous Italian community in Quincy," said Tobin.

"We have many, many citizens of Italian descent and a tremendous number of dedicated city employees. So we're doing this on behalf of them, too," the mayor said.

The council motion returning the $10,000 gift was made by John Quinn and seconded by Daniel Raymondi, both lodge members.

Quinn motioned that "we return this check to the Sons of Italy lodge so they may use it for a purpose more paramount to the people of the land which they came from...to alleviate the suffering and the problems they have in the area of Naples."

Raymondi noted, "It is critically important that gifts of money be sent over. There is a logistical problem with getting goods to these certain areas but with gifts of money, they would have the resources available to purchase those necessities."

"We've all seen the many actions by the Sons of Italy throughout their history and the many works they've done. It is fitting and appropriate that we return the many kindnesses that they've given to this city and enable them to properly use the money to benefit those people who need the COUNCIL PRESIDENT Leo Kelly with Quincy Sons of Italy Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo and councillors and lodge members John Quinn and Daniel Raymondi after Council voted to return $10,000 donated by the lodge.

assistance," Raymondi added.

According to D'Arcangelo, the lodge is now requesting only gifts of money. Earlier gifts of blankets and clothing are now on their way to Italy, he said.

Checks should be made payable to the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy Earthquake Relief Fund, and sent to the lodge at 120 Quarry St., Quincy, Ma. 02169.

Last Sunday, D'Arcangelo said, 50 lodge members, friends and family members worked for 13 hours packaging blankets and sleeping bags bound for the earthquake area.

"We worked from six o'clock in the morning to seven o'clock at night packing 500 blankets and 35 sleeping bags," said D'Arcangelo "and by eight o'clock they were on an Alitalia jet. They're in Italy by now."

Today's Women

Pine St. Inn Director Altrusa Club Speaker

Karen McCarthy, director of the Women's Unit of the Pine Street Inn, was guest speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Altrusa Club of Quincy, Inc., recently at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Miss McCarthy's topic was "Women in Crisis" particularly as it pertains to the shelter for homeless women in the Boston area.

Miss McCarthy informed members that, unlike the men's section of Pine Street Inn, 93% of the women served at the inn are deinstitutionalized with nowhere else to go but the streets. The Pine Street Inn is dedicated to providing shelter for them, said Miss McCarthy.

Members were informed the inn does not provide counselling, but attempts to place women in halfway houses. There are few places for these women, however, and the outlook for many of them is very bleak.

The Women's Unit, at the inn's new Bristol Street location has 50 beds. Breakfast is served each morning and dinner is provided in the evening compliments of area church, school and community groups.

Bedding and clothing are washed daily. The clothing and bedding, as well as much of the food, are donated by concerned individuals and area groups.

Miss McCarthy invited club members to visit the Women's Unit. Members were impressed with Miss McCarthy's presentation and a small donation was given to the Women's Unit on behalf of the Club.

The next dinner meeting will be at the Neighborhood Club, Tuesday, Jan. 20, 1981.

Altrusa is an international service organization of women in administrative positions. The Altrusa Club of Quincy, Inc. supports many charities in the area through funding and volunteering.

12 Graduated From Houghs Neck Babysitting Course

Twelve local girls recently received 4-H certificates for successfully completing the first baby sitters course at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea. St.

Graduates of the seven week course were Laura Barret, Sharon Barrett, Cheryl Burgess, Lynda Cefail, Maureen Kelley, Laurie Killilea, Helen Mina, Lee Ann Mitchell, Michelle Norris, Lisa Norton, Brenda Rudolph and Catherine Younie.

Classes were given by pediatric nurse Anne McFadd, nutritionist

Gail Lombardi, crafts instructor Joyce McNeal, Lieutenant Robert Kelly of the Quincy Fire Department, and 4-H counselor Joan Field.

Class members were able to put into practice the information they learned at a toddlers party.

The graduation ceremony for the class was attended by students and their mothers.

Anyone needing a qualified Houghs Neck babysitter should call Patricia Riden at the Houghs Neck Community Center at 471-8251.

Nu Chapter Members Hold Christmas Program

Roger and Mildred Cahoon presented a Christmas program, "God's Art in Nature" at a meeting of Nu Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, Tuesday in the Adams Room of The Hollow, Quincy.

Members of the international honor society for women in education from Quincy, Milton, Weymouth and Braintree participated in the meeting.

Program chairmen were Dorothy Russell, and Marie

Donovan. This year's program theme is "Selection of Design-Describing Quality Living". Chapter members recently voted to send $200 to the state chairman for the Sarah Chase Scholarship Fund.

The state executive board awarded five scholarships this year to Alpha Upsilon State member to assist them in graduate study programs.

SUNLAMP SAFETY

Careless use of a sunlamp can cause painful sunburn or far worse, eye damage that may be lasting. Unfortunately, most sunlamps intended for home use do not include these three important safety features, and you must provide them yourself.

...A set of instructions permanently attached to the lamp. After reading the directions, tape them to the base or stand of the lamp so they are available for other users.

...A timing device with an alarm that alerts you to overexposure. Always set a timer when you use the lamp. If possible, buy a sunlamp with an automatic timer that turns off the lamp at the proper time.

...Close-fitting glasses or goggles to protect your eyes. And don't sleep or read while using a lamp or stare at the ultra violet bulb when the lamp is operating.

We're where we are because of you.

On December first, South Scituate Savings Bank was consolidated into Quincy Savings Bank. Our services now are available at the two former offices of South Scituate Savings – in Norwell Center and at Queen Anne Plaza.

With this consolidation, we welcome all customers of South Scituate Savings. You'll see familiar faces in familiar places, and you can expect us to continue the long tradition of personal service and community spirit of which you're rightfully proud.

Indeed, we believe that the interests of the local communities will be even better served by the broad range of banking services the consolidated bank will provide. Along with greater resources will come the convenience of REDi-CASH around-the-clock banking, Pay-by-Phone, and such helpful services as Savings Bank Life Insurance and retirement accounts.

Though the consolidation in time will also require some physical improvements to banking quarters, we can assure you that we'll make every possible effort to preserve the integrity of the property.

Each change we make, including extended banking hours, will mean greater ability to serve your needs.

We're where we are today because of our customers, new and old. With nine offices now, Quincy Savings offers a complete package of REDi-SERViCES to an even wider area of the South Shore. If you're not already a Quincy Savings customer, we hope you'll consider stopping by at our nearest office to open your account.

Speed Cut On West, Smith Sts.

The Traffic Commission has approved a reduction in the speed limit from 30 to 20 miles an hour on West and Smith Sts., West Quincy.

Approval by the State Public Works Department will take about eight weeks, said City Councillor James A. Sheets.

The Traffic Commission also approved the installation of stop signs on Ferriter St. at the intersection of Grove St., where residents have complained of excessive speeding.

Sheets also submitted these traffic resolutions to the City Council Monday night:

- Reduce the speed limit on Grove St., West Quincy, from 30 to 20 miles an hour.

- Post no parking signs on both sides of Malvest St. Way.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath also introduced these resolves for the Traffic Commission:

- Excluding commercial traffic from Chester St., and restricting it to Linden St., Wollaston, in the interest of public safety.

- Establishing a tow-zone on the westerly side of Old Colony Ave. from Beale St. to the end of the Presidential Nursing Home, also in Wollaston.

A SPECIAL THANKSGIVING is shared by Webster School teacher David Erickson, students Karen Fitzgibbon, Robert Knapik, Melissa Williams and young visitor Dianna Wass.

A Special Thanksgiving

By FRANK MORTIMER

Somehow it worked. Maybe it was the careful planning and loving attention to detail. Like the way Diane Martell and Leo Carey, dressed as pilgrims, met parents at the door and looped a white nametag around each neck. Or the way nameplates made of white doilies assured a place for all—even when it seemed impossible to fit another soul.

On Nov. 24, nearly 80 fifth graders and relatives crowded into David Erickson's room in Daniel Webster Elementary School for an afternoon of family-style sharing. Parents brought dishes of sweet potatoes, baked ham, scalloped potatoes, ravioli, stuffed shells and a variety of vegetables. The class provided the entertainment.

But, oh, so much entertainment! A play. Two puppet shows. A song. A story about the Mayflower. And a ceremony in which 52 candles were lit for the hostages in Iran. There was almost too much of everything. It shouldn't have worked.

But it did work—as Dave Erickson knew it would.

While grownups wiggled themselves into a semblance of comfort in the kid-size plastic chairs, the middle aged teacher with the greying beard offered and explanation. It was not an apology.

"We could have done this in the cafeteria. But once you go into a larger place you lose the effect of community and togetherness. So we'll knock knees and elbows, but we'll be together."

Joseph Long, school principal, gave his blessing. Standing by a front wall papered with crayon drawings and current events clippings, he said, "They're talking about 2½ and classroom size, but this is ridiculous." Then, looking at the children in constant motion as they seated parents, scanned play scripts and carried hot bowls of food, he added: "Think good things about the kids that are here today. Welcome and enjoy."

Before any food was tasted, the group shared song, memories, heritage and prayer. "America the Beautiful" was sung with pride. The words "spacious skies" and "amber waves of grain" were like fresh air in the room.

Several parents shared their ethnic heritage.

Quincy Quiz

Last week's Quincy Quiz stumped everyone. No one came up with correct answers to all five questions.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. In what year did Quincy High and North Quincy High first meet in football?
2. In what section of the city is the Josiah Quincy Homestead Located?
3. Into what larger body of water does Furnace Brook flow before reaching Quincy Bay?
4. What are the names of the two golf courses located in Quincy?
5. What is the name and title of the city official who serves as chairman of the City Licensing Board?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. The Chairman of the Quincy Youth Commission is John W. (Butch) Mahoney.
2. The Myles Standish, Hunting and Great Hill Schools were closed this spring by the School Committee.
3. The Monarch I and II office buildings, to be part of the State Street South complex, will be located in the Monclair or North Quincy section.
4. Wollaston is named for early settler Captain Wollaston. His first name is believed to be Richard.
5. Ronald Reagan and Edward Kennedy were the choices of Quincy voters in the March presidential primary.

Baron Keeps Rolling

Baron Hugo carries a pocket calendar around with him and frequently checks it.

He has to, to be sure he's where he's supposed to be.

At age 77, Baron is still that busy.

One of the most durable of musicians, he's been playing the drums for 58 years and has had his own band for 45 of them.

Baron goes back to the Roaring Twenties and the big band era of the 1930s and 1940s. He not only had one of the best bands back then, but maybe the biggest of the big bands. He had a 28-piece group plus singers as the "house" band at the famed Totem Pole ballroom in Auburndale.

And during a nine-year stint there that started Christmas night, 1942, he shared the stage with such bands as Glenn Miller, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Benny Goodman, Harry James and Guy Lombardo.

Business, however, wasn't that good in 1942 and owner Roy Gill was thinking of closing that big ball room for the duration of World War II.

Hugo talked him into giving it another try. The Hugo band became a hit and the Totem Pole a must place to go if you liked good dance music. Baron, who now lives in Milton, came out of West Quincy. Of Finnish descent, he was born Hugo Englebert Lira.

Hugo Lira became Baron Hugo because a booking agent who had been listening to comedian Baron Manchussen on the radio one night thought Baron and Hugo would sound good. And, it has been Baron Hugo since.

Baron doesn't have a big band anymore. He has a small one - sometimes three, four or five pieces. But it's a good one and he keeps busy playing at weddings, socials and senior citizens dances.

"I don't think the big bands as we knew them in the 1940s, will ever come back," he says with a touch of sadness. "It will never be quite the same."

The big reason, he says, is economics.

"The cost these days of transporting and paying for a 15 or 20 piece band is staggering." That's one reason, he thinks, that rock 'n' roll has lasted.

"The groups are small. They don't cost as much money. There are more of them. They get the exposure. The kids grow up to that kind of music and they think that's all there is."

And who does Baron think had the best band of them all?

"Glenn Miller. That sound, those arrangements. He had that wonderful chord structure. He could play the smooth stuff and the fast stuff. He had the greatest band ever."

But Baron Hugo hasn't done so badly all these years. Maybe because when he plays a number, you know what it is.

CITY CLERK John Gillis was installed as commander of the Quincy Veterans Council Saturday night at ceremonies at Morrisette Legion Post. Mayor Arthur Tobin had this tribute: "There is no other individual in or out of public service that is more in love with the city of Quincy and the people of Quincy than John Gillis. He puts in long hours and quietly does so many things for so many people."

It turned out to be a thrilling night for John's mother, Mrs. Nora Gillis, who is in her 80's. She was given a long standing ovation when introduced. "Okay, Ma," Gillis quipped. "You can sit down now -- you're not running for office."

PETER ELEEY, who takes office in January as Governor's Councillor from this district, campaigned on an anti-crime platform. Eley marched in Quincy's Christmas Festival Parade Sunday and when he got to his car parked in the North Quincy High School yard, it wouldn't start. Someone had walked off with the battery. Sheriff Clifford Marshall, marching behind him, got him a ride home.

MILESTONE: Quincy Deputy Tax Collector

Constable Lester Glasser turned a young 80 Monday. He hardly looks it. His secret: "Keep busy." And, he does. In addition to his city chores, he's active in Temple Israel, Boston as a trustee.

EARLY BIRDS: They talk about golfers getting all wrapped up in their game. Well, there are tennis fanatics, too. Like Atty. Gen. Frank Bellotti and former Dist. Atty. George Burke. You can find them at local tennis clubs playing a couple of sets at 6 a.m.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Some people will believe anything -- if it's whispered to them."

He Fondly Remembers Nathan And Jason Feldman

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I truly enjoyed your wonderful tribute (Sunbeams column) to Jason Feldman in the Quincy Sun. In fact, it prompted me to write this letter concerning my experiences with Jason and his father.

In 1938, (I was a junior at Quincy High) I acquired my first photograph and started my record collection by visiting Jason's Record Shop. I had an agreement with Jason's father to set aside any big band record plus Bing Crosby which came in and I would pick them up on Saturday. Every Saturday I would walk down and pick up the two or three that Nathan had set aside for me. (records were 35 or 50 cents then) Jason was there, sweeping out the store or stacking records, even then. I'll never forget dropping in one Saturday and Mr. Feldman had eight records for me. I picked out a couple and Nathan asked me how come I didn't want the others. I told him I didn't have enough money to buy them. He said, "Take them all and pay me when you have the money." Since then I have built up a collection of about 800 78's, plus about 300 LP's, most of which I bought at Jason's.

I had a similar experience with Jason last year. While playing my favorite Benny Goodman album, I noticed that it had more skips and scratches on it than I thought. I took down the serial number and went down to see Jason in the hopes that he could replace it. He looked through all his catalogs and said although it was out of print, he'd call around and see if he could locate the record somewhere. He called me the next night and said that he had found the record in Boston and that I could pick it up in a week. I thanked him for all efforts. The phone rang the next night and it was Jason again, saying that I could pick up the record right then. I jumped in the car and drove down to the store. I asked him how come he had gotten the record so quickly after telling me it wouldn't be in for a week. He said, "Well, you seemed so happy when I called to tell you I had located the record that I called the distributor back and asked him as a special favor to me could he get it here as soon as possible."

I'm writing this letter on Thanksgiving Day, and I think in addition to being thankful that we have our health, nice families, etc., we give thanks that we know and have known people that we respect and admire (such as Jason Feldman).

Quincy Bay Inn Granted Liquor License Transfer

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The City License Board voted 3 to 1 Tuesday to grant Quincy Bay Inn, 24-29 Hancock St., transfer of the inholder-common victualer-alcoholic license held by the former Carlton House which it denied the inn Sept. 16.

Voting in favor were City Clerk John Gillis, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald. Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeough opposed the transfer. Police Chief Francis Finn was not at the meeting.

The license was transferred with a list of stipulations which must be agreed to in writing by inn manager, Atty. Richard J. Vita who was to meet with board members Wednesday morning.

Stipulations of the license include:

- All guests of the hotel and assembly rooms must park on the premises, fire lanes be posted and maintained.

- Certificates of capacity be posted in each room.

- Live entertainment be limited to a three piece band and vocalist, with no disco allowed.

- Closing time be 1 a.m.

- The manager must be on the premises at least eight hours a day and when functions take place.

- The pool must be completed or filled and fenced.

- The dining room must be kept a formal dining room.

- Police must be on the premises when there are functions or dancing.

- Rubbish must be handled as directed by the health commissioner and fire chief.

The License Board denied the license transfer in September "because of the parking requirements and the corporation's apparent inability to meet them" according to Chief Barry.

The decision was appealed to the Alcoholic Beverages Commission which remanded the matter back to the board for reconsideration. In a Nov. 17 letter sent to the License Board, the ABC said it found Quincy Motel Corp., willing to take action necessary to meet the parking requirements.

However, according to the ABC letter, the License Board has not clearly enunciated the standard and rules it has applied in establishing requirements for the license.

At this week's meeting, board members apparently found the inn has sufficient parking.

MacDonald said he and Barry counted 182 parking spaces at the inn. After calculating the requirements, MacDonald found only 148 spaces were required for a motel and assembly area of the inn's proportions.

Council Considers 'Modest' Pay Hike

The City Council was considering "a modest across-the-board pay raise" in the 1959 budget for city employees, who were requesting increases of 10 per cent.

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard told the School Committee that his estimate of the sum to be set aside for salaries and personal services in the budget would be $4,650,440.

TRANSIT DISTRICT RECOMMENDED

The Old Colony Area Transportation Commission, headed by George A. Yarrington, recommended a South Shore Transit District to supervise public and private transportation in the Quincy area.

Yarrington opposed a proposal by Rep. John T. Driscoll (D-Dorchester) to extend the MTA one stop to the Dorchester marsh to attract riders from the new Southeast Expressway.

ALUMNI BEATEN

Russ Landberg contributed 16 points to lead the North Quincy High School basketball team to a 58-49 victory over the school's alumni in the North gym.

The North lineup: Jeff Davidson, Richard Holmberg, Fred Bonner, forwards; Paul LaBrecque, center; Jack Painten, Russ Landberg, Sadlier, guards.

BRETT REBUFFED

The Park Board rejected a suggestion by City Councillor Joseph Brett that it take over jurisdiction of Kendall Park and spend $2,000 to beautify the old estate in North Quincy.

Park Board Chairman J. Ernest Collins pointed out that the Park Department had only 12 regular workmen, compared to 22 in 1948. He suggested the Forestry Department would be in a better position.

HEARING POSTPONED

A City Council public hearing on proposed rezoning of a large section of Germantown was postponed when Norfolk County Judge David Nagle issued a restraining order at the behest of opponents.

John Ucello, the Quincy developer who owned 20 per cent of the 50 acres that were to be rezoned from Industrial to Residence B, had a case pending in Superior Court to block the change.

Council Draws Bead On School Budget

Is the once sacrosanct school budget fair game for the City Council today (Thursday) when Proposition 2½ strips the school committee of its fiscal autonomy? Councillor Daniel G. Raymond wanted to know Monday night but no one was able to tell him for sure.

"Historically, we have had no input in the school budget," he said, "and I am concerned about reports that the School Department may be running in the red as of today.

"If it is our responsibility, effective Dec. 4, perhaps we should have Supt. Creedon come up and go through his budget so we can make sure he lives within that budget."

Auditor Charles L. Shea said the question of autonomy and the current 1981 school budget "is a question that we're trying to get answers on."

"Does fiscal autonomy restrict the school department to spending the total amount appropriated or can the Council exercise control over subdivisions of the budget?" he asked.

"We can't get an answer from the state. That is a gray area in 2½ that is not really spelled out."

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., chairman of the Finance Committee, assured his fellow councillors that he had been looking into the problem and will report to them when he has the answers.

Woodward School Receives Accreditation

The Woodward School for Girls has received official accreditation for the first time in 11 years, according to Headmaster Robert L. Johnston.

The school was one of the first in New England to be accredited in the 1950's, said Johnston, but lost that status in 1969 because of inadequate library and physical education facilities.

But, as the result of a year-long evaluation, school officials will receive official accreditation documents at the convention of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges in Boston on Friday, Johnston said.

Accreditation certifies that the school meets certain minimum standards in curriculum, staff, facilities and management.

"I'm very proud, naturally," said Johnston, who credited "hard work and cooperation" among the staff, board of managers and board of supervisors for the new accreditation.

"This is the start of my second year here," said Johnston, "and I'm pleased that the accreditation process has continued so smoothly and happened so quickly."

Rev. Keith Munson, chairman of the school's board of supervisors, commented, "it is my hope that we shall continue to improve Woodward and jealously safeguard its now-recognized standing in the academic community."

"Six years ago, when I came to this city and inherited the position of chairman of the board of supervisors, I knew that we must begin to regain our academic standing in the eyes of the educational communities," he said.

"It was not an easy road to pursue."

Rev. Munson credited Johnston, the "encouragement, support and assistance" of Mayor Arthur Tobin and Rev. Arthur Curtis, a former supervisor, for their aid to the accreditation process.

Tobin, who is chairman of the school's board of managers, called the new accreditation "another crowning achievement."

"I'm proud of it because of the people I appointed there," said Tobin.

The school's enrollment is now 110 students, the biggest since World War II, said Johnston.

"I think this accreditation can be an open door and a stepping stone to new possibilities for the Woodward School," said Johnston.

Obituaries

Ted Ashby, 84, Boston Globe Columnist

A funeral service was held Monday at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, for Ted Ashby, 84, a former Boston Globe columnist.

Mr. Ashby died Nov. 28 at Quincy City Hospital after a brief illness.

He was also author of the national comic strip "Ned Brant" and a frequent contributor to the Saturday Evening Post.

Born in Superior, Wis., he lived for many years in Wollaston.

Mr. Ashby wrote various daily columns for the Globe, including "Calling On The Neighbors" and contributed verse and light commentaries to the Post.

He was also a former sports columnist for the Des Moines Register and briefly played minor league baseball.

Mr. Ashby was a World War I Navy veteran.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anita (Wallace) Ashby, a son, Neal Ashby of New York, two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

E. Frank Ward, 69, Carpenter Foreman

A funeral Mass was celebrated Dec. 1 at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum, for E. Frank Ward, 69, who died Nov. 26 at Carney Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Ward was a carpenter foreman for the United Engineering Co., Boston.

Born in Boston, he has lived in Quincy for 37 years.

He was recording secretary at Local 67, Carpenters Union, Boston and a member of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of Star of the Sea Church and of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine (Sullivan) Ward; two daughters, Ann Manning and Kathleen Stebbins, both of Hingham; a brother, Leo C. Ward, of Milton; a sister, Eileen Molloy of West Palm Beach, Fla., and eight grandchildren. He was father of the late John M. Ward and brother of the late James A. Ward.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston and burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

William J. DeLargy, 77, Longtime Newspaperman

A funeral Mass was said Tuesday at Immaculate Conception Church, Weymouth, for William J. (Bill) DeLargy, who covered Quincy and the South Shore for the old Boston Record American for 32 years.

Mr. DeLargy, who lived in East Weymouth, died Nov. 28 at the age of 77.

Only a month ago, while confined to University Hospital, Boston, he was escorted on a stretcher to the funeral in Hingham of his wife, Catharine Schofield DeLargy. They were married 42 years.

DeLargy was a familiar figure to police officers throughout the South Shore and shortly before he retired in 1972 the Quincy Police named him their "Man of the Year," the first reporter to win the honor.

A native of Hingham, he was graduated from Hingham High School and Northeastern Law School. He intended to be a lawyer but went to work for the Boston American in the 1930s and never left.

He was assigned to cover the communities south of Boston and quickly became one of the most respected reporters on that beat, covering every major political or crime story in the area for 32 years.

His future wife also was a reporter on the American but after they were married she left the newspaper business and became one of the most prominent antique dealers on the South Shore.

Mr. DeLargy was a member of the Newspaper Guild of Boston and the South Shore Police Reporters and Photographers Association. He was an honorary member of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments and an honorary citizen of Quincy.

He leaves his brother, John P. DeLargy of Hull; two sisters, Mrs. Mary E. Martin and Mrs. Helen B. Adamson, both of Weymouth; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Barbara Allen of Weymouth; and a brother-in-law, Lawrence E. Schofield of Bar Mills, Me.

Burial was in St. Paul's Cemetery, Hingham.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 247 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

Dedication Service At Town Brook House

TOWN BROOK HOUSE dedication service, celebrating the opening of the 151-unit apartment building for senior citizens and the handicapped on Brackett St., Quincy Center, was attended by, from left, Cong. Brian Donnelly; Mayor Arthur Tobin; Rev. William McCarthy, St. John's pastor and Quincy Housing Authority chairman; Rev. Dr. J.A.O. Preus, president of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church, City Council President Leo Kelly and Rev. Frank Bauer, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church and executive director of Wollaston Lutheran Church Apartments.

KISS OF CONGRATULATIONS is given Mrs. John J. Donahue by Rev. Frank Bauer as plaque in memory of her late husband is unveiled during Town Brook House dedication ceremonies Sunday. Mr. Donahue was a director of Wollaston Lutheran Apartments from 1971 to 1975 and chairman of the board of directors from 1975 to 1979.

'Hanging Of The Greens' At Squantum Church

The Christmas season arrived at the First Church of Squantum Sunday amid the happy songs and voices of nearly 100 children and adults participating in the annual "Hanging of the Greens."

The evening began with a time of worship with the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, leading carols and prayers.

The service included an audio-visual presentation, "How We Got Our Christmas Customs." Richard Williams was projectionist; Steve Williams of Weymouth was in charge of sound.

After the service, people of all ages joined in decorating the church or making Christmas crafts. This part of the program was planned by Ellen Ogilvie.

Craft tables were supervised by Cecilia Stamos, Pay Myers, Carl

Anderson and Valerie Gorrill. Marie Reister headed up the decorating crews.

The evening concluded with Christmas refreshments including Betty Ellis' wassail. Pat Olson and Janet Summer kept the tables supplied with Christmas cookies.

Earlier in the day, the congregation held its first service of The Advent Season. Bonnie MacRitchie, Edward Myers, Lori Ogilvie and Jimmy Summer assisted the pastor in lighting the first candle in the Advent wreath.

The pastor preached a sermon, "The Unexpected Gift," the first in a series of Christmas sermons on "God's Christmas Gift to Us."

Ushers for the service were Tom Adams, Susan Mildram, Harry Holmes, Dave Mildram, Bonnie Adams and Steve Williams. Greeters were Dana and Pat Olson. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Jennie Preston and Edna MacIntyre.

Next Sunday's sermon is "How Much Does Your Gift Cost?" The service begins at 10:15 a.m.

Kiwanis, Lions Club Members Salvation Army Bell Ringers

Two local service clubs, The Kiwanis Club and The Lions Club, will be participating as bell ringers in the Salvation Army's Annual Christmas campaign beginning this week-end.

The Kiwanis Club will be in front of Remick's, Quincy Square, Saturday, and the Lions Club will be at their post Dec. 13.

The Salvation Army hopes to raise $50,000 for its Christmas Kettle and Mail Appeal to help needy Quincy families during holidays and year round. Major Charles L. Waddington of the Salvation Army said, "The cooperation of local clubs is invaluable; with their aid we will be able to brighten the lives of those less fortunate."

It's a matter of life and breath!

Police Budget $400,000 Short

(Cont'd from Page 1)
vacancies since July 1).
"We are following the Mayor's edict of no overtime except in extreme emergencies."

"We have not spent money on repairing vehicles that we might ordinarily have spent. There are all kinds of things we are not doing."

Normally, said the chief, the department has three ambulances "but one of our newest was totalled in a fire and there is nothing in the budget to purchase a new one."

"One of them is a tired 70,000-mile ambulance with a lot of problems," he said. "It is in the garage now for a major overhaul and it will be another two or three weeks before it is ready for the state to certify again."

"When that comes back in service, the main ambulance, with 35,000 miles on it, will go in for a major overhaul."

"For the next month at least the police will run the first ambulance and Bay State is the backup on the second and third trips."

Finn said if none of the 22 vacancies is filled by the end of the year (June 30), his department will save about $300,000.

"But that figure is not accurate because we are going to have to hire at time and a half overtime rates," he said.

"We can't allow certain areas of the city to go unprotected and be responsible. So I don't think we're saving that much money by not hiring."

"I want the patrolmen but I can't recommend hiring 22 people with the money I see coming to me. This is the first year I've ever operated without knowing how much money I have."

"We are going to work so there won't be any serious public safety difficulties in any section of our city. I'm satisfied if this is passed tonight we will be able to keep services at a respectable level."

The Council passed by a 9-0 vote the $1,230,300 for the Police Department, which was part of a general order totalling $1,573,202 to cover pay raises in all city departments.

But no one really knew where the extra $400,000 was going to come from.

Political Figures Will Have No Clout In Cable TV License

investors obviously wish to maintain their own reputations in the community."

Matthew McDonnell, the Quincy attorney who represents Comcast Cablevision of Quincy, Inc., a subsidiary of Comcast Corp., Bala Cynwyd, Pa., says Comcast "has no intention of having any local investors."

"There have been occasions of adverse consideration in other places," says McDonnell, meaning franchise bids have been lost when certain local residents have become too prominent in the bidding company.

Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts, a subsidiary of Rollins, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., has a similar policy.

"We don't plan to have local investors in Quincy," said Atty. George W. Shinney, Jr., of Malden, the local representative. "It's not done by Rollins."

But Shinney had a good word for the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television in Quincy, headed by George Rile.

"We have found that where there are suspicious things happening, there is not a strong cable advisory committee," he said. "This is not so in Quincy. Quincy has a strong committee. Usually, this indicates the city is playing it straight."

Norfolk Cablevision, Inc., a subsidiary of Sammons Communications of Dallas, Texas, is undecided about local participation.

"Local investment is not against company policy," said William K. Headley of Belmont, the local representative. "There is a possibility that we will have some. Sammons has done it in the past."

"There is a certain pejorative sense to the policy of 'rent a citizen.' It's been a plus in some places and a minus in others."

"We did have an arrangement for local participation on the original application but we never really concluded an agreement."

Quincy Cablevision Corp., a subsidiary of the Alda Group of Bridgeport, Conn., has a provision in its application for making 20 per cent of its stock available to Quincy residents.

Spokesmen for Adams Russell Telecommunications of Waltham and the Bay State Cablevision Corp. of Boston were not available for comment.

Prominent among the list of officers in Bay State Cablevision is Atty. Frank McGee of Marshfield, who has been in the news as counsel for the Boston Patrolmen's Association in their disputes with Mayor Kevin H. White. McGee is vice president and general counsel.

Among the "knowledgeable local investors" in Metro-Cable of Quincy are:

Former Mayor Hannon, the Rev. Baharian; Ralph J. Maher, plumbing inspector; Louis A. Cassis of the law firm Eley, Cassis and Eastman; Geoffrey A. Davidson, former planning director now an administrator in the district attorney's office; Dr. Frederick Heller; all of whom have 15 shares.

Joseph P. Shea, former executive secretary to Mayor Hannon; Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods; Paul Baharian, vice president of the South Shore Bank; Atty. Jeffrey C. LaPointe; Atty. Douglas C. Purdy; Nicholas Barbadoro, assistant clerk in Norfolk Superior Court.

Richard W. Corner, a CPA member of the Hospital Board of Managers; Richard K. Newcomb, former city purchasing agent and president of Mug and Muffin; Cornelius J. O'Connell, a consultant in government relations; Mary Weaver, assistant director of community relations in Medford; Blanche Wellman, associate director of 1000 Southern Artery.

They have 10 shares each. Metro-Cable, which has taken an option on the Bradford Building, 2 Maple St., for a Quincy headquarters, will have a nine member board of directors, three chosen by vote of local investors, one picked by the Mayor's advisory committee, and five chosen by the Times-Mirror.

It promises to employ a minimum of 12 local people on its programming staff at salaries ranging from $9,000 to $22,000.

If offered to local residents 200 shares of common stock at $1,500 a share. The money is payable only if the corporation is awarded the franchise by July 1, 1981, after which $1,000 is due in 10 days, $4,000 in one year, and $10,000 in three years.

Quincy partners in Quincy Cablestems Corp., each of whom will pay a full share averaging $10,000 for a 1.5 per cent interest, include:

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea, co-minister of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, and Atty. Paul C. Kelly, former member of the planning board and the school committee, both of whom have been selected to serve on the board of directors.

Joseph L. Donovan, assistant commissioner of the State DPW; Atty. Thomas E. Finnerty; Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall; Sabath A. (Sam) Mele, former Boston Red Sox outfielder; Peter F. O'Connell, president of OCB, Inc., developers; Atty. Lawrence F. O'Donnell, a member of the Mayor's advisory commission on City Hospital.

Atty. Albert Slate; Richard T. Sweeney of the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals; Peter J. Valle, a member of the zoning board of appeals; Andrew T. Walsh, owner of Walsh's Restaurant in North Quincy.

Cablestems' application also says that it will seek offers from 24 community organizations, such as veterans groups, fraternal orders, service clubs and charitable organizations.

General Manager for Cablestems, if it gets the franchise, will be David J. Keefe, son of Stephen T. Keefe Jr., former assistant city solicitor. David Keefe has been in cable TV since 1972, most recently as general manager of Upstate Community Antenna, Syracuse, NY. He will hold 2 per cent ownership.

American Cablevision of Quincy, a subsidiary of Time, Inc., is offering 15 shares each at $1 a share to four local organizations and is "continuing to discuss shareholder relationships with other local participants."

The local organizations are the Quincy Veterans Council, the Cerebral Palsy Association of the South Shore, the Quincy Arts Council, and the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

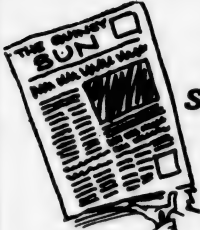

"American believes these groups will act as a stimulant in Quincy in providing a community-oriented system," says the American Cablevision application.

There were 13 preliminary applicants for the Quincy franchise but four of them dropped out when it came to filing amended applications.

They are Colony Cablevision of Quincy, a subsidiary of the Providence Journal; Greater New England Cablevision; Quincy CATV, a subsidiary of the Acton Corp. of Acton; and Teleprompter of Quincy, owned by Jack Kent Cooke.

Teleprompter bowed out because of its pending merger with Westinghouse, which also owns WBZ-TV Channel 4 in Boston.

Tobin To File 18-Point Program For Prop 2½

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin plans to file an 18-point program with the 1981 state legislature, most of it aimed at shoring up parts of the city budget against the expected ravages of Proposition 2½.

One of the points would require the state to reimburse the cities and towns for lost excise tax revenues over the next five years. Prop. 2½ trims the tax on autos from $66 to $25 a thousand.

Another point would require the state to reimburse the cities and towns for the cost of all statutory exemptions from real estate taxes, such as for the blind, veterans, widows, etc.

Other parts of the program would:

- Increase the state's share of veterans benefits from 50 per cent to 100 per cent, the same as the state pays for welfare benefits.
- Require the state to reimburse 100 per cent for the cost of public safety inspections and return fees collected by the city to the state.
- Permit the cities and towns to retain 100 per cent of all parking fines.
- Require the state to reimburse the cities and towns for all costs of national and state elections.
- Require the state to reimburse municipal hospitals for all public assistance at the same rate as medicare reimbursement when no third party payments are available.

• Treat personal property the same as real property in matters of liens and advertising for tax delinquency.

• Require the state to audit the city books at a charge annually or reimburse the city for such costs.

• Require the state to absorb the total cost of the MBTA deficit.

• Exempt municipal vehicles from state fuel taxes.

• Require the state to pay 50 per cent of the costs of traffic signalization.

• Require the state to fund any increases in the costs of the retirement system, providing the cities use 50 per cent of such payment for a funding amount.

• Require the state to pay any amount in excess of 8 per cent interest paid for temporary borrowing.

• Require the state to pay all police costs incurred because of riots and strikes.

• Increase the state reimbursement to cities and towns for civil defense costs from 50 per cent to 100 per cent.

• Require the state to reimburse the cities and towns for all current and future mandated public health programs.

• Require the state to reimburse the cities and towns 100 per cent for capital and maintenance costs for mandated emergency vehicle service.

explained that the Murray clan immigrated from Scotland to Nova Scotia. His mother was born on Prince Edward Island. Mr. Murray now plays bagpipes with a local Scottish organization. John Jr. is just starting to learn the pipes.

Tony Digiaco spoke happily about his ancestors, who worked the sulfur mines in Italy and fought against Napoleon. He said his father taught him to make wine and speak Italian—and he still does both, he added with a smile.

Erickson told the group that his great-grandparents, surnamed Ilichovitch, came from Russia in 1892. They were given the name Erickson by immigration officials who either had poor hearing or didn't want to bother with an unfamiliar name.

Erickson said he met Anne Frank's father in Amsterdam during Watergate, and the father of the famous diarist said to him: "You know, Mr. Erickson, the great thing you have is the ability to live in a democracy."

The teacher closed this part of the program with a plea for all adults to ask their own parents about the old days. "Write or tape what they say. Time has a way of just fleeing, and legacies are lost," he said. His son Elan, 17, and daughter Sabrina, 20, were beside him.

A commemoration of the hostages was conducted by five students. In keeping with the theme of sharing, Melissa Williams and Diane Young read a list of 52 things the class wanted to share. As each item was read, Joseph Fantasia, Vincent Elgart and Ronald Groezinger lit a candle.

The room was quiet, except for the voices reading such things as food, home, table, bed, problems, earth, secrets, plants, dreams and TV. When all 52 candles were burning, the children said, "May all people on this earth hear our hopes and prayers." Together they blew them out in a pungent puff of burnt wax. It was as though the kids had blown their wishes to the far away place where the hostages are held.

Kay Olsen, a grandmother, offered the Catholic blessing of the meal. Erickson gave the Hebrew blessing. His son Elan, a Yale freshman, translated into English.

The blessing was followed by a symbolic breaking of bread at every table.

It was then that Dennis Faherty, Mike Guerriero, Martin Joyce and Steve White, wearing white aprons and French bakers caps tilted at rakish angles, marched in with piping hot turkeys and cornbread stuffing. Turkeys were donated by Prevites, Roxies and Stop & Shop, and cooked by the men in the Vo Tech's post graduate chef course.

The good smells of Thanksgiving filled the room, and Erickson didn't try to hold anyone back. "In Mr. Digiaco's simple phrase, mangia!" he exclaimed.

The plays came later.

"Thanksgiving for the Birds" was an original production done by John Murray, Diane Heeney, Lisa Zambruno and Anthony Viapiano. It featured a cardboard sun rising on a string as a puppet rooster crowed the start of a new day.

"T for Turkey," a skit in which the children swap Thanksgiving rhymes, was performed by Cynthia Bain, Ronald Dibona, Vincent Digiaco, Marc Gramazio, Robert Hatfield, Clifford Jeli, Robert Knapik, Patricia Lomano and Heide Vorst.

Denise Hearn and Marion Miller gave a show with animal hand-puppets.

Jeffrey Pomeroy wrote a story called "Five Big Birds"—but the script got lost in the shuffle.

Many an adult would take the children's efforts lightly. Not so Erickson. He share the anxiety felt by a few young actors. When one boy struggled with his lines and grew embarrassed, the teacher bit the collar of his own turtleneck, an unconscious gesture that showed more caring than words could say.

"You don't often find a teacher like that," Mary McMahon, Diane Heeney's grandmother, said later in the hall. "Some don't want to be bothered."

Chanukah Commemorates Victory And Rededication Of Temple

By LESTER GLASSER

The Hebrew word Chanukah means "dedication" and refers to the joyous eight-day celebration which began Tuesday, Dec. 2 during which Jews commemorate the victory of the Maccabees over the armies of Syria in 165 B.C.E. and the subsequent liberation and "rededication" of the Temple in Jerusalem.

The story of Chanukah is as follows:

In the year 168 B.C. E., the Syrian tyrant Antiochus Epiphanes sent his soldiers to Jerusalem. The Syrians desecrated the Temple and Antiochus declared Judaism was to be abolished.

The only options he offered Jews were conversion or death. Altars and idols were set up throughout Judea for the purpose of worshipping Greek gods. Antiochus outlawed the observance of Shabbat, the festivals and circumcision.

On the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev in 168 B.C.E., the Temple was renamed for the Greek god Zeus. Pigs were sacrificed in the Temple. The Torah was spattered with pigs' blood and then burned. Thousands of Jews chose to die rather than commit idolatry.

Among the martyrs was a woman named Hannah who, with her seven sons defied the Syrian decree. Slowly a resistance movement developed against the cruelty of Antiochus, led by a priestly family known as the Hasmonians or Maccabees.

The head of the family was an elderly man named Mattathias. He and his five sons left Jerusalem and took up residence in a small town north of Jerusalem, called Modi'in.

When Syrian soldiers appeared in the town and commanded the inhabitants to offer sacrifices to Zeus, Mattathias and his sons refused. Mattathias killed one Jew who began to sacrifice to Zeus and his sons then turned upon the Syrian troops and slew them.

It was a turning point in the struggle. The Maccabees became instant folk heroes. Fleeing to the hills with their followers, they conducted a campaign of guerrilla warfare against the occupying Syrian forces.

Mattathias's son, Judah, known as "The Hammer", became the chief strategist and military leader.

Furious, Antiochus, decided to destroy totally the people of Judea. He sent a large army with instructions to kill every man, woman and child.

Though outnumbered, Judah Maccabee and his fighters miraculously won two major battles, routing the Syrians decisively. By 165 B.C. E., the terror of Antiochus had ended.

The Jews had won a victory for their land and their faith.

The idols were torn down, and, on the morning of the 25th day of Kislev in 165 B.C. E., the Temple in Jerusalem was reconsecrated three years to the day after its original defilement.

In celebration the people of Jerusalem lit bright lights in front of their homes and decided to mark their deliverance with an annual eight-day festival, the Feast of Dedication or simply Chanukah.

Originally, the eight-day Feast of Lights was intended to parallel the eight days of Sukot.

The books of Maccabees made no mention of the legend concerning the jar of oil which has come to be so much a part of Chanukah. It was several centuries later (500 C.E.) that the story of the cruse of oil emerged as part of the Talmud.

The legend relates that when the Maccabees entered the Temple and began to cleanse it they immediately relit the Ner Tamid or Eternal Light.

A single jar of oil remained which was sufficient for only one day. The messenger who was sent to secure additional oil took eight days to complete his mission. But, miraculously the single cruse of oil continued to burn for eight days.

The rabbis of the Talmud, therefore, attributed the eight days of Chanukah to the miracle of the little jar of oil.

We, the Jewish people, continue the ancient customs related to Chanukah to-day, commemorating the liberation of our people and their affirmation of human dignity and freedom of religion.

In Jewish homes throughout the world, the eve of the 25th of Kislev begins an eight-day celebration involving many joyous customs and ceremonies.

The modern home celebration of Chanukah centers around the lighting of Chanukah candles in the menorah, unique foods and special games and songs. Menorah is a Hebrew word meaning candelabrum. In relation to Chanukah, it refers to the nine-branched ceremonial lamp in which the Chanukah candles are placed and then blessed.

On the first night of Chanukah, we recite or chant the blessings and light one candle with the shamash (servant), two on the second night and so on. Customarily candles are placed in the menorah from right to left but lit from left to right.

There are two blessings chanted or recited on every night of Chanukah.

The first is a blessing over the candles themselves — "Blessed are You O Lord our God, Ruler of the world, who has sanctified us through your mitzvot and commanded us to kindle the Chanukah lights."

The second blessing expresses thanks for the "miracle" of deliverance — "Blessed are You, O Lord our God, Ruler of the world who did wondrous things for our ancestors in former times at this season."

The third blessing is chanted or recited only on the first night. This prayer is pronounced by Jews on all happy occasions — "Blessed are You, O Lord our God, Ruler of the world, who has kept us in life, sustained us and brought us to this happy time."

Any member or members of the family may chant or recite the blessings. One person lights and holds the shamash (servant) and pronounces the blessings and lights the candles.

On the Sabbath, the Chanukah candles are lit before the Sabbath candles. Games are played with a top (the dreidel); potato pancakes (latkes) is a favorite on this holiday. Gifts are exchanged.

A favorite and popular song on Chanukah is "Rock of Ages" composed in Europe in the 12th or 13th century by a man known as Mordecai. His words were set to different melodies over the centuries. There are a number of Chanukah songs.

However, when all is said and done, perhaps the most important message of Chanukah may be found in the name of the holiday itself — Dedication. When Jews have dedicated themselves, through faith and action, to the pursuit of high religious and human ideals, Judaism has been strong.

Morrissey Bill Seeks Abatements For Landlords

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has filed legislation to allow abatements to apartment house owners who have been overcharged by the local assessor's office.

Morrissey said he filed the bill specifically for Quincy landlords who had not filed a property tax abatement or who had not joined the class action suit recently won by a group of city landlords. The group had sued the city for overassessment and has recently been reimbursed.

"The legislation will help to correct the inequity in the law as it now stands," Morrissey said.

"Those owners who did not join the suit really have no course of action to fall on," he said. "We're trying to right a wrong in the wording of the current law."

Morrissey said the bill would probably come to public hearing sometime in February or March when the Legislature begins its 1981 session.

Landlords who wish for a copy of the bill may contact Morrissey at the State House, at 727-7035.

To Retain Quincy Sq. Location Quincy Cooperative Bank Moving Headquarters To Quincy Motor Site

Quincy Cooperative Bank President John R. Herbert announces he expects the bank to be in its new headquarters, the former site of Quincy Motor Co., on Quincy Ave. by October, 1981.

The bank received permission last week from state banking commissioner Gerald T. Mulligan to move its headquarters to the 85 Quincy Ave., Quincy Center, site, Herbert said.

Herbert said the bank's present headquarters, at 1259 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will remain open as a branch office after the move is made next year.

The former Ford dealership will provide more than 22,000 square feet of office space. This is more than three times the 6,500 square feet available at the present headquarters.

The two-acre site will also provide parking spaces for 95 cars and allow the city's only triple drive-in banking facilities.

"We will also be able to provide safe deposit boxes, which we don't have space for in our present headquarters," he added.

"We consider this to be a very valuable banking facility."

Plans for the new headquarters are being drawn up by Donahue Associates of Quincy. Following the bid process, renovation work is expected to begin in March, Herbert said.

$150,000 Repairs Cost

2 Hospital Floors Closed By Elevator Malfunctions

The fifth and sixth floors of Quincy City Hospital are still closed as a result of elevator malfunctions which last week forced the evacuation of 60 patients.

The repairs will cost an estimated $150,000 and keep those floors closed for indefinite period of time, according to QCH Director Anthony DeFalco.

Hospital officials blamed problems with the two sets of elevators on overuse. The elevators are 21 years old.

Christmas Fair At Wollaston Baptist

First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave., will hold a Christmas Fair Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A luncheonette will be open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

A children's grab will be available as well as a children's shopping bar where pictures can be taken with Santa.

Handmade articles and knitwear will be for sale and crochet and holiday novelties booths will be open. There will also be baked goods, preserves, cheese and candy.

A state inspector restricted use of the elevators on Nov. 25. But elevator malfunctions that night and on Thanksgiving Day led to DeFalco's order shutting down the two floors.

WEEK OF DECEMBER 4

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Don't play matchmaker as your judgment is cloudy. But do play host! Friend's secret is revealed in way that upsets, but think twice before criticizing.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
You're full of zest, but frustrating communication tie-ups prevent you from accomplishing all you should. Still, you come out ahead. Remarks are subject to misinterpretation.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Ego receives major boost but don't show off—resentful types are hovering. Week has foreign touch; perhaps you meet someone from abroad or experiment with exotic cuisine.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Better to give than receive? Not this week! You're making intangible and tangible gains. Relatives are counting on you for moral support; be prepared to lend an ear.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
Affections are showered on you—to point of embarrassment. Taste is excellent, so use the week to shop, design, decorate, build—or find a friend.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Gains shown in income sources and it's a fine week for bargain hunting. Minor household difficulties seem inevitable. Confusion over dates clears up by Tuesday.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Could be joining new and lively social circle. Also, this is a good time for exploring new career/academic paths. Lots of paperwork crosses desk—and can't be pushed away.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
You're awakened from unrealistic dreams. Cheer yourself up, channel creative energies by designing holiday gifts. Friend from long ago may contact you.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Builds on recent gains but don't overestimate resources. Several mysteries are revealed. Weekend is studded with unexpected happenings. News from abroad is bright.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Not the best week for taking risks, especially financial ones. But it is outstanding period for bridging generation gap, signing up for trip or getting away from it all.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Hobbies are accentuated—as source of escape and/or income. Be glamorous. A new look is just what Cupid ordered. Gemini or Cancer enters friendship picture in important way.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
You're headed in number of directions and it's important that you decide where you're going. Spend as much time as possible with older relatives. Don't neglect bookkeeping.

Need $3,000 For Trip

Track Club Qualifies 12 For National Junior Olympics

The Quincy Track Club recently qualified 12 members, its highest number ever, for the National Junior Olympics in Cheyenne, Wyo., on Dec. 13, at regional meet in Scarborough, Me.

The 12 will fly out to the nationals, if the club raises the necessary funds for the trip.

The club must raise $3,000 and a special fund is being set up.

Donations can be sent to the Quincy Track Club Cheyenne Fund, c/o First American Bank for Savings, 77 Granite Street, Quincy.

More information can be obtained by calling 328-7329.

In the 10 and under girls, Karen Rodgers wasted no time jumping into a big lead and cruised to an easy victory by 15 seconds. The runnerup from

New York placed third in the nationals a year ago.

In 10-under boys Mark Whitney surprised everyone with his 12th place finish, squeezing by at the line to qualify for the nationals.

The 11-12 girls team put on quite a show in winning the regional title with 84 points, as Terri Rodgers took second, Nancy Sullivan 11th, Tracy Wilson 12th, Susan Curran 19th and Mary Beth Bonner 40th. Lorrie McNeill and Tracy Fostello also qualified for the nationals.

Coach Jeff Hennessy rates this the best 11-12 team he has ever had since starting the cross country program in 1976.

In the 11-12 boys race Robbie Glynn took sixth, and Harry Morash ran perhaps his best race ever for 10th place and his first national meet. He was a Boston Youth Games member in the 800 meters in 1979.

The other Quincy qualifier was Mary Crehan, a North Quincy High star, who placed fifth in the 17-18 division.

"I am very pleased, as were all the parents and staff members, at the results of the Maine meet," Hennessy said. "We were really ready for the meet and everything went according to plan. I hope we can meet the financial commitment for this trip, and we are all looking forward to it. The kids have been a real joy to work with. I owe a lot to my assistant, Jack Dunderdale, who runs with the kids, helps out every way he can and is just a super guy."

QJC Hosts North Shore

The Quincy Junior College basketball team will host North Shore Community College tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Vo-Tech gym.

Monday night the Jaguars will be at Emerson at 7 and next Wednesday will play at Wentworth at 4.

Brian Buckley's QJC team made its second appearance of the season at Boston Garden last week in a preliminary to a Celtics game and lost to powerful Hellenic College, 90-69.

The Jaguars stayed close until midway through the first half when they were hurt by foul trouble. Hellenic, coached by former Northeastern Coach Richard "Duke" Dukeshire, had a huge height advantage.

Jim Holleran paced QJC with 24 points, Ed Richard scored 15, Gene Casper 10 and Jeff Marcel eight. John Koutsoullacis, who averaged 43 points a game a year ago, led Hellenic with 30 points.

Quincy is now 1-1 in the Greater Boston Small College Conference and 1-2 overall.

Koch Club Resumes Basketball

The Koch Club basketball program will resume its weekly recreational activity tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at the Atlantic Junior High gym.

The program was cancelled last week due to the holiday. All members are requested to report tonight at their regularly scheduled time.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, said the number of registrants and the increased fee, combined with the assistance of friends and boosters of the organization, will insure completion of the weekly program through March 26, despite the rental increase for school facility use from $3 to $12 an hour.

The 17-year old Broad Meadows District and 11-year old Montclair Division had cancelled their programs for the season when the dramatic increase was announced by the school committee.

Quincy throughout the city are welcome to join the basketball program at Atlantic and each will be assigned to a team and participate in the competition, regardless of ability.

Sports

PATTI STANZIANI, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stanziani of 94 Merrymount Rd., Quincy Center, is a member of the 1980-1981 Suffolk University Women's Tennis Team. A sociology major, she is a 1980 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School.

Gill On Soccer All-Star Team

Paul Gill, senior fullback and tri-captain of the North Quincy soccer team, was recently named to the Suburban League all-star first team.

Gill, a two-year starter for the Raiders, was a key player on defense this season. He is also co-captain of this year's basketball team.

North's Peter McGillicuddy, a sophomore, was named to the second team. The Raiders' number two scorer, McGillicuddy played wing and inside.

Nagle Closes Out

Mark Nagle of Quincy concluded his four-year varsity football career at Hamilton College with an 11-tackle performance in the Continentals' 24-20 victory over archrival Union College.

Nagle enjoyed a successful senior year as the 6-foot-2, 210-pound defensive tackle recorded 63 tackles, including 31 initial hits. Against Trinity he intercepted a pass and returned it 58 yards for a touchdown.

"Mark has played a major role in helping to rebuild our program,"

With 11 Tackles

said Coach Ted Stratford. "We will miss him next year."

Nagle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Nagle of 75 Atlantic Street.

It May Have Been Best Game Of Them All

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams clashed for the 48th time last Thursday and an estimated 13,000 fans witnessed what many veteran observers called "the most exciting game" in the long series.

North, thanks to a couple of "blockbuster" plays, raced out to a 21-0 lead and held on to defeat Quincy for the first time in four years, 27-20, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The thrilling win, the Raiders' first over the Presidents since 1976 and their first in three tries over their former assistant coach, Tom Fitzgerald, was their 20th in the series. Quincy has won 25 games and three ended in scoreless ties.

The victory gave North its first winning season (6-3-1) in three years, while Quincy finished with a deceiving 3-6-1 mark. The Presidents showed Thursday they were better than that record indicates.

"Boy, I'm glad that one is over," said a relieved North coach Dave Burke. "Quincy never quit and I got a few more gray hairs. The way they came back at us is a tribute to Fitzie and they deserve a lot of credit. Our defense came up with some big plays late when Quincy threatened to overtake us."

"That boy Martin (Sean) is an excellent passer and Burke (Sean) is an outstanding receiver and they gave us fits. I wasn't able to breathe easily until Jim McGinnis QUINCY cheerleaders whoop it up as Presidents close gap in final period.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Did you know an 8-year old girl helped name the Super Bowl game?

When football leaders were deciding what to call their final championship game, Sharron Hunt, 8-year old daughter of Lamar Hunt, who owns the Kansas City Chiefs, had been playing with a black rubber ball called a "super ball" - and from that she got the idea to suggest to her Dad that pro football could name its final game the "Super Bowl" ... Lamar Hunt made that recommendation, and so the famous Super Bowl game really owes its name to a little girl.

It seems hard to believe, but a school that had only 400 students in the whole student body once played in a major football bowl game! ... The 1922 Rose Bowl game featured California vs. Washington & Jefferson College ... Washington & Jefferson had only about 400 students at that time ... And, they tied California in that Rose Bowl.

Of all the college football teams, which one has played in the MOST post-season bowl games? ... Answer is Alabama which has been in 32 ... They've played in 6 Rose Bowls, 7 Orange Bowls, 9 Sugar Bowls, 4 Cotton Bowls, 3 Liberty Bowls, 2 Bluebonnet Bowls and one Gator Bowl.

I bet you didn't know ... that COLMAN'S has all the cold weather wear you need at money saving prices. For sports, leisure or outdoor activity. Now is a good time to get those cold weather wearables for Christmas giving.

came up with that big interception to end their last threat."

Fitzgerald, like Burke a former North all-scholastic and a Raider assistant coach for nine years before taking over Quincy's reins, had good words for both teams.

"Give North credit, they have an outstanding team and Dave did a great job with them," Fitzie said. "But, our kids never quit and made a tremendous comeback. I couldn't be prouder of them. It was just a great effort on their part and we almost pulled it out. This had to be about the most exciting game in this great series."

"It was a great game for the spectators, but awfully hard on us coaches."

Burke hailed Joe Dudek, who had his best day of the year with three touchdowns and 88 yards in 11 carries, and Dean Zoia, who set a series record with a 93-yard run which really turned the tide in North's favor. He gained 113 yards.

"All the backs did well and Jack Brown played well as quarterback," Burke said. "That pass he threw to Dudek (a 72-yard bomb) was one of the best thrown passes I've seen." Brian O'Leary again punted well.

Offensive line coach George Liset had good words for ends Glen Segalla, who had a brilliant game both ways, Jack Leone and DiPietro, Bill Feeney, Neil Fisher, John Buckley, Ted Hannon, and Chuck Sylva, who was outstanding both ways and was given the game ball by the captains.

"A big thing today was our lack of penalties," Liset said. North had only two five-yard penalties during the game.

The defense came up with some big plays when they were needed and defensive coordinator Ken McPhee, was especially pleased with the secondary. The Raiders came up with their 24th and 25th pass interceptions of the year, including Jamie Walsh's seventh, and kept Quincy's receivers so well covered that Quincy's Martin several times was unable to pass.

"The whole defense was just great," McPhee said. "Segalla and Sylva were outstanding and Paul Schaeztl, Bill Feeney, Peter Alibrandi, Bill Stacy, Paul O'Sullivan, Gino Pillard, Ken Mann, Jim McGinnis, Chris Baker and Walsh all played well. "Jack Raymer (the other defensive coach) called that pass play from the roof. It was just a perfectly thrown pass and Dudek didn't have to break his stride."

Fitzgerald praised Martin, his junior quarterback, who threw two touchdown passes to the 6-foot-5 Burke and hit on nine of 15 passes for 106 yards, seven to Burke, despite the tremendous pressure put on him by the North defense. He also had good words for Ed Iodice, who gained 84 yards on 16 carries, Mark Aboud, who gained 51 yards on 11 carries; fullback Mike Monahan, who did some excellent blocking, and Mark Picot for his punting.

Offensive line coach Peter Chella was pleased with the linemen's work and singled out Capt. Fran Duggan, Chris Chevalier, Ed Mackey, John Taglieri, John Varrasco, Scott Anson, who was ill and played no defense, and Burke.

"They hit hard today and the blocking was excellent," he said. "And for once we were virtually free from penalties, which helped a lot."

Bill Maver who, with Joe Goguen, coaches the defense, praised Mackey, who completed a remarkable season with another great two-way game.

He also had good words for Burke, who took Anson's place on defense, Chevalier, who came back from an injury, Mike Nevins, sophomore Jamie Gravales, who had an outstanding year, Walt Kilgallon for "his best game of the year," Taglieri, Steve Goguen, Iodice, Duggan, Greg Oriola, Steve Remillard and Mike Shaughnessy.

Quincy controlled the ball most of the game, running off 69 plays to only 39 for North and picking up 17 first downs to North's eight. But the two bombshells made the difference.

Quincy started well after taking the opening kickoff off, and with Iodice picking up two first downs with 12-yard runs, the Presidents had a first down on North's 41. But with fourth and one, the Raiders held on their 32.

On third down Brown unleashed his beautifully-thrown bomb to Dudek, who outran the secondary and raced 40 yards to complete the 72-yard scoring play. Leone kicked the point.

North's 12, the Raiders picked up only three yards on three plays and O'Leary punted to Quincy's 43. From there the Presidents picked up a couple of more first downs and early in the second period came the big break which turned the game in North's favor.

Jodice sparked the drive with his running but just when it appeared he would score or come close to it, he was hit hard and fumbled. North's Pillard recovering on the seven.

On the first play Zoia, sprung loose by DiPietro's nice block, broke loose and went all the way for 93 yards, with Segalla making sure with a bruising block on the 20. Leone again kicked the point.

So, in, in lead of Quincy tying the score or going ahead, North had a 14-0 lead.

A few plays later another bad break for the Presidents resulted in the third North score.

Picot, back to punt, fumbled the pass from center and North's Feeney recovered on the Quincy 17. Brown passed to Leone for an apparent score but a penalty nullified it, but Brown passed to Segalla for 11 yards. Zoia went for seven, then two, and Dudek scored from the two. Leone's kick made it 21-0.

Quincy drove from its own 28 following an O'Leary punt and, sparked by Martin's passes (four completions in five tries), the Presidents scored on a 15-yarder from Martin to Burke. Quincy faked a kick and Picot went in for the two points.

Quincy tried an onside kick to start the second half but North recovered on Quincy's 39. The Presidents held and took over on the 20 when Leone missed a 37-yard field goal attempt.

The Presidents then staged the best drive of the game, picking up four first downs and, with a first down on the one, Martin sneaked over to make it 21-14. Ron Pettinelli missed the kick for the conversion.

It didn't take North long to retaliate as it drove 70 yards, clicking off three first downs and Dudek scored his third touchdown from the five. This time North faked a kick and missed the conversion.

Quincy wasn't through. Picot punted to North's three. Quincy held and O'Leary's punt went only to the Raider 35. It took the Presidents five plays to score, with Martin again hitting Burke for 22 yards in the end zone. Burke was well-covered by two North defenders but reached over them to make a fine catch. The conversion try failed.

Quincy kept fighting back and, with 1:40 left in the game, started from its 42 after an O'Leary punt. The Presidents drove to North's 33 but McGinnis then came up with his big interception of a deflected pass and North ran out the clock.

● Cross Country

It Was A Big Year For North Quincy Girls

The North Quincy girls' cross-country team recently completed its most successful season. The unit:

- Compiled an 8-2-1 regular season record, winning the Suburban League championship meet and the Eastern Mass Division 2 championship, the first time a North girls' team had made the top 10.

- Placed sixth in the all-state meet, the highest finish ever.

- And again defeated Quincy to remain unbeaten against the First Ladies.

The girls' successful season gives Coach Lou Tozzi six championships and three state meet runnersup in cross country in eight years.

Tozzi had some outstanding runners, headed by sophomore Sheila Barrett, who lost only two dual meets, placed second in the Eastern Mass championships, second in the league championship meet, fourth in the state coaches meet and 13th in the all-state meet. She was a Boston Globe all-scholastic.

Another sophomore, Linda Kennedy, was running No. 1 until she became ill with asthma at mid-season, and made a remarkable comeback to finish first against Quincy, third in the Eastern Mass meet and fourth in the league championship meet.

Senior Mary Crehan, the surprise of the Suburban League, placed fifth in the Eastern Mass meet and third in the league championships.

Senior Deirdre Corrigan, the most improved runner in the league, ran consistently all year and went from 45th to seventh in the league championships in one season.

Junior Deirdre Donovan ran outstanding all year for some outstanding all year for some Tozzi would not normally consider a distance runner and her tremendous run over the last 660 yards in the Eastern Mass meet clinched the win for the Raidersettes.

Senior Robyn O'Donnell ran well all season after giving up soccer to run cross country. She peaked at the right time with excellent performances in the Eastern Mass meet and the league meet (10th).

Sophomore Amanda Mujica ran a few varsity meets and has the potential to make a solid contribution next season.

"Sheila Barrett has a lot of talent and, with some more experience, a little more confidence and a continuation of the advanced training she is doing, she can be one of the best," Tozzi said.

"Linda Kennedy has to be admired for the way she battled back from her problems. If she's healthy, look for some spectacular performances next season. Mary Crehan finally realized her potential and we're looking for even better things from her in winter track. Deirdre Corrigan is a classic example of someone with average talent who became motivated, paid the price, and then became outstanding.

"Deirdre Donovan had a fine season preparing for winter track and is ready to explode onto the state-wide scene in the long sprints. Robyn O'Donnell was the one newcomer we needed in order to become successful as a 'big' meet team and she did a fine job."

Tozzi praised Bart Petracca, a former North and Cornell standout, who was assistant coach as well as handling the boys' team, and thanked Principal Peter Chrisom and Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone for their support.

"Finally, I want to make special mention of the Quincy Track Club," he said. "They have been very helpful to us and we continue to benefit from them sending us girls with plenty of experience and a knowledge of the fundamentals."

- TOM SULLIVAN

Squirt A's Win 9th

Quincy's South Boston Savings Bank Squirt A team improved its record to 9-1-1 when it defeated Hyde Park, 3-2, avenging its only loss of the season.

Earlier the Squirt A's had traveled to Hyannis where they won two games, 8-0 and 11-1, and also blanked Falmouth, 5-0.

When North Quincy's Dean Zoia set a Quincy-North series record with his 93-yard touchdown run last week, he surpassed his father's longest run by three yards.

His dad, Pete, ran 90 yards for a touchdown in his final high school game for North against Trunton in 1935.

In the Quincy-North game that same year North's Pete Cooke returned a kickoff 92 yards for an apparent touchdown, but it was nullified by a penalty.

Incidentally, the elder Zoia, who has seen every Quincy-North game as a player or a fan, agreed with many other veteran observers that last week's game was the most exciting in the long series.

QCA Christmas Party, Annual Meeting Dec. 5

The Quincy Citizens Association will hold its annual meeting and Christmas Party on Friday, Dec. 5 at Walsh's Restaurant.

A cocktail hour will be held at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7:15 p.m.

The association will elect its officers for 1981 at 8:40 p.m.

This year's vice president, Joseph Gildea, has asked that he not be re-elected, and Maria Coffin has been nominated for vice president. President Arthur Chandler, Secretary Dorothy Kelly and Treasurer Saul Lipsitz have been renominated for 1981.

Music and dancing will follow the election.

For reservations, call Elenda Lipsitz at 328-8327.

Skating Registration Begins Dec. 9

The Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, will hold registration for the second session of its Instructional Ice Skating Program beginning Tuesday, Dec. 9, at 9 a.m. in the Recreation Office.

The co-recreation program is open to children age six through 16. Instruction is offered according to skating ability under the direction of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Professional. Classes are based upon the USFSA standards and testing is at the conclusion of each 10 week program.

The program is conducted at the Quincy Youth Arena, Sea Street, Merrymount.

Classes are available at the following times: Monday 3:10 - 4 p.m., 4:10 - 5 and Wednesday 3:10 - 4, 4:10 - 5. Registration is on a first come, first serve basis and enrollment is limited. A fee is payable at the time of registration.

Additional information, including program starting dates, is available by contacting the Quincy Recreation Department.

Allowance Granted To Fire Deputy's Widow

The City Council Monday night voted Mrs. Mary Wholey, widow of the late Deputy Fire Chief William Wholey, a yearly allowance of $1,680.

Wholey, who retired in 1954, was unable to leave any benefits to his widow when he died recently but state law enable the city to provide for her.

The council order noted Chief Wholey's "long and meritorious service to the city."

W. Quincy Rezoning Hassle Moves Closer To Council Vote

The City Council moved a little closer to a decision on the controversial proposal to rezone sections of Roosevelt Rd. and Old Coach Rd. off Adams St., West Quincy.

Councillors voted to advertise the proposed change for the last time yesterday (Wednesday) so that it can be voted on at the next Council meeting on Monday, Dec. 16.

The rezoning ordinance, which would change the area from Residence B to Residence A, would effectively prevent two land owners from building multiple dwelling units.

The owners, Paul and Robert Crossen and Ciriaco Soricelli, once again registered their protests in a letter to the Council that was read into the record Monday night.

The protest noted that the area already is occupied by multiple family dwellings and their proposed dwelling would "in all respects conform and comply with other dwellings."

"The proposed zoning changes would deprive the owners of the use of their land and would amount to a taking of the land without fair and reasonable compensation," they said.

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. said that a public hearing into the proposed change had been held 21 days ago and the Planning Board had not acted so it was up to the Council to take a vote.

Joseph F. Killion, attorney for the Crossens, told the earlier hearing that his clients would take the matter to court on a spot zoning charge if the rezoning were approved.

Council Urges Tax Abatement Measure

The City Council has lent its support legislation that would grant tax abatements to Quincy apartment house owners whose reassessments were ruled invalid by the Superior Court.

Councillor James A. Sheets, who introduced the measure, said the bill would affect only those owners of multi-family dwellings who were not party to the suit or had not filed for abatements.

Only those who had taken part in the suit or had filed subsequently for abatements were eligible for it as a result of the court decision.

Thus, said Sheets, it is impossible for the others to get abatements without legislation.

Such legislation, he said, has been filed by Rep. Michael Morrissey and a copy of the Council's resolution was sent to him to support the cause.

LOUIS' SIGN (Jack Powers Photos)

Well, Doggone!! Louis Gets His Own Street Crossing Sign

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

His name is Louis, he's nine and, by all accounts, he's a living legend in Houghs Neck.

He's also the only dog in the city to be honored with his own street sign.

A sign was unveiled Saturday outside Louis' Cafe, 1269 Sea St., Houghs Neck, warning motorists of Louis' frequent trips across the busy street. The sign reads "Caution Louis Crossing" and bears a likeness of the spotted Basset Hound.

Among those present to honor the proud pooch were a state senator (Paul Harold), a state representative (Thomas Brownell) and two city councillors (Leo Kelly and Frank McCauley).

Jack Powers of Houghs Neck explains the sign thusly:

Louis is owned by Donald Sartori of Houghs Neck, who also owns the cafe. Since Sartori answers to the nickname "Sacco," The dog has been given the name "Louis Sacco III."

Louis' eating habits have become the talk of the neighborhood, Powers says:

"Several times a day, he'll cross the street, go into the corner grocery and pick out a box of cookies. Then he'll walk back across the street, go back into the bar and consume the cookies.

"As he goes out the door of the grocery store, the owner keeps track of what he's got and charges it to Sartori. And Sartori pays for it.

"Louis has become sort of an institution with kids in the neighborhood. And people come from all over the country to fish from Houghs Neck. They've come to know Louis, too."

The sign was paid for and posted by, the Louis Golf League, of which Powers is a member.

"He's sort of an old dog now—he's nine years old. He's been hit by cars a couple of times now," said Powers. So the golf league decided to put up this sign in appreciation.

DeFalco: 'Time For Me To Move On' Private Firm May Run Hospital Next Month

By TOM HENSHAW

A private management firm could be operating City Hospital as early as next month, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said Tuesday.

"I hope to be able to announce early in January the name of the company that will take over administration of the hospital and run it for the city," said Tobin.

The Mayor said that Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco has assured him that he will stay on to help with the transition from municipal to private management.

DeFalco disclosed last week that he plans to resign from the $41,660 director's post after the first of the year, a job to which he was appointed by former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia in 1976.

"It is time for me to move on to something different," said DeFalco. "I have never had any long-term aspirations to be a hospital director.

"I learned a lot about hospitals that I did not know before when I was State Commissioner of Administration. It's time for me to put my knowledge to work elsewhere."

Actually, DeFalco's job was in jeopardy since it probably will be eliminated when the management firm takes over and installs its own administration team.

John J. Cheney Jr., chairman of the Hospital Board of Managers, said DeFalco's resignation was no surprise.

"I expected it," he said. "He has indicated to me in the past few years that he regarded it as a temporary assignment, that he didn't intend to stay long."

"I did not sense that there was any pressure on him to resign."

Mayor Tobin said that DeFalco had notified him that he was making other plans and would be leaving the Hospital in about 60 days.

"I had a pleasant chat with him," he said. "He assured me that he

City's Biggest Headache

Unfunded Pension Liabilities $72 Million Problem

City Auditor Charles L. Shea is setting up a series of meetings to discuss one of the city's biggest and unpublishized headaches — the $72 million in unfunded pension liabilities that hangs over the municipal treasury.

Retirement pensions cost the city close to $6 million in fiscal 1981. That's up $1 million from last year. It's expected to rise by $750,000 in fiscal 1982 when Proposition 2½ draws the financial noose a little tighter.

The problem of unfunded — that means only city money is behind it — pension liabilities is not peculiar to Quincy. Shea estimates that there is some $375 billion worth of them around the country.

And it's going up every day as the public salaries on which pensions are based increase and retired people live a little longer. About 15 years ago, most people died in their 60s. Now they are living into their 70s.

"What worries me is the constant increase in cost," said Shea, who is a member of the retirement system himself. "I wish there was some way we could stop the spiraling cost of pensions."

There is little that the city can do unilaterally about the spiral, even if it wanted to. State law tells the city how to compute pensions and how much to pay. State actuaries even specify how much the city must appropriate each year.

Most city employees in Quincy belong to a contributory retirement system, under which the city pays about 90 per cent of pension money from the tax levy and 10 per cent from the invested contributions of the employees.

There is, says Shea, nearly $20 million in the investment portfolio, which earned interest of $1,663,000 in 1979. That's added to the tax money in paying eligible retirees.

Shea's estimate of $72 million in unfunded pension liabilities represents how much it will cost the city in the years to come to pay pensions to the people in the retirement system now. It's based on earnings and mortality rates.

Ideally, said Shea, the city should put aside $7.2 million a year, one tenth of the liability, into

South Shore Bank Acquires Property

High Rise Office Building Possible On Scott Gordon Site

South Shore Bank has purchased the Scott Gordon Furniture Building on Chestnut St. to fulfill expansion plans—but that does not rule out the possibility of a high-rise office building being built on the site.

Unconfirmed reports had been circulating for several weeks that the Scott Gordon building, which is to be vacated next summer, was under consideration by a Boston developer as the site of a multi-story office complex.

"We heard those rumors, too," said William B. Austin Jr., president of the South Shore Bank, "and it accelerated our desire to make sure we didn't lose the site, which is our best option for expansion."

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin too indicated that plans for a new office building on the site still were very much alive.

"I feel very confident," he said, "that whatever happens on the site will be in the best interests of the city. I appreciate the positive statements being made by Mr. Austin and his attitude."

"We'll have a lot to say about what happens there."

Austin said it was not yet decided whether to renovate the old building or construct a new one.

"We are certainly willing to talk about joining someone in putting up a new office building, although we did not buy the building for that purpose," he said. "We would listen to someone who had the right deal."

The three-story Scott Gordon building at 18 Chestnut St., which housed for many years the old Quincy Market, has 63,000 square feet of floor space right across the street from South Shore Bank's headquarters.

"The bank has simply outgrown its present location," said Austin. "After all, the main office tower was built more than 50 years ago."

$61,125 In Wiring

William H. Pitts, Wire Inspector, announces 107 permits were issued during November for work estimated to cost $61,125. Forty seven certificates of approval were issued to Massachusetts Electric Company. Fee collections totalled $901.75. There were 164 inspections made during the month, with 18 defects noted. Ten reinspections were made and there was one fire call.

'Cooling Off' Urged

Missing Pages Won't Rule Out Cable Award

Those missing pages in its application does not automatically rule out Metro Cable of Quincy as a contender for the profitable cable television franchise in Quincy.

But, says George R. Riley, chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television, "it certainly is a minus."

The State Cable Television Commission ruled that the missing pages, containing financial and technical details, were filed after the Nov. 21 deadline and cannot be considered with the application.

Metro Cable said they were missing through clerical error, and when the mistake was discovered they were filed five days late with Chairman Riley.

Riley said most of the information contained in the late filed pages was available in other parts of the application, much of it in the memorandum listing local ownership.

"In the end," said Riley, "the award of the franchise will come down to pluses and minuses for and against the various companies. This will certainly be a minus against Metro Cable."

Metro Cable, a subsidiary of the Times Mirror Corp., has been one of the more controversial of the nine applicants, largely due to its roster of prominent local investors.

Last week, the Quincy Citizens Association urged Mayor Tobin that "a cooling-off period of one year elapse before any cable TV license for Quincy is awarded."

The Mayor was also asked to "ban purchases of stock by any department head or member of the city's official family for at least two years after the license is issued."

Applications on file at City Hall show that a number of prominent political figures, including former Mayor Walter J. Hannan and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, are investors in the companies.

The QCA described itself as "appalled to learn that city officials as well as influential 'in' members of the community have been lined up as prospective stockholders."

While technically it may not be a conflict of interest, the QCA said in a letter to Tobin, "it smacks too much of influence buying for the ordinary residents who haven't been approached to get in on Quincy's cable TV bonanza."

City Solicitor Robert J. Fleming has ruled that investment in a cable television company seeking to do business with the city is not a conflict of interest for city employees.

He so notified Baharian, Ralph J. Maher, assistant plumbing inspector; Geoffrey A. Davidson, a member of the Planning Board; and Richard J. Corner and Lawrence F. O'Donnell, both members of the Hospital Board of Managers.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television, headed by George R. Riley, is scheduled to begin hearings into the franchise applications by nine companies after the first of the year.

The committee will hold its regular meeting today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. in the second floor conference room in the new City Hall.

Errors In Tax Bills

For 15 Apartment Houses

Some owners of apartment houses have been getting tax bills for fiscal 1981 calculated on the basis of assessments that were declared illegal by the court a year ago.

Roger B. Lyons, of the Concerned Quincy Apartment House Owners Association, called it "an oversight."

John P. Comer, chairman of the Board of Assessors, called it "a computer error."

"All the bills were plugged into the computer according to the court order," said Comer. "For some reason known only to the computer they didn't come out that way."

Comer said about 15 of the four-unit apartment houses affected by the court's decision were involved in the error.

Both Lyons and Comer agreed on what should be done by the property owner who received an incorrect bill:

If you have received one and haven't paid it yet, pay the original valuation figure times the tax rate.

If you have already paid it, you must file for a rebate at the assessors office within 30 days of the date the bill was sent to you.

Also during the month, 141 gas fitting permits were issued for work estimated to cost $179,599.

Permit fees totalled $910 and there were 154 inspections made.

Over $4,600 Contributed At St. John's Italian Earthquake Relief Fund Nears $20,000 Mark

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

More than $4,600 was raised last weekend for Italian earthquake relief in Masses at St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

It brings the total raised so far for the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy Earthquake Relief Fund to almost $20,000 according to Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo.

D'Arcangelo said the lodge hopes to raise $25,000 by Christmas to buy emergency supplies for the stricken area east and south of Naples.

"Let's make this a special Christmas, a Christmas of giving as the city of Quincy can do," said D'Arcangelo at Sunday's memorial mass at St. John's. "God bless America, God bless Italy and God bless the citizens of Quincy."

"This is not a speech," he began, "but I would like to convey to you my sorrow and express my gratitude to all of you for my little Italy."

"You have heard all the news, mostly bad, and today in this house of God, I would like to mention the feelings of an Italian citizen living in hell for the last two weeks. His name is Domenic, a ham radio operator, and I quote:

"Mimmo, the dead are the fortunate ones, they are in the grace of God. The wounded are suffering the most."

"The living are begging for a blanket and clothes to warm up their frozen bodies, but most of all their biggest need is our prayers to keep their faith in God."

Also speaking at Sunday's Mass was John Volpe, former governor and ambassador to Italy.

"You have seen pictures that are almost incredible," said Volpe, who heads the state-wide emergency relief effort. "Remember the old woman with only a shawl to warm herself when you contribute. Be as generous as you can."

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's praised the Sons of Italy and the Stella Del Nord Auxiliary as "always ready and compassionate to help those in need," and St.

John's entire Italian community, "which has always contributed so much physically, financially and given of their time and talent for the parish in so many ways."

In his sermon, Fr. McCarthy said the earthquake raised the eternal question, "Why is there so much human suffering?"

"We can not see the 'why' of our suffering," he said, but we can see its necessity. Without suffering we would become smug, complacent and proud and cease reaching out for God and the light beyond."

Thousands of Quincy residents have helped the relief fund, says D'Arcangelo, either through donations at the St. John's Masses or through direct cash or check contributions.

Among the contribution's he's most grateful for, he said, is the money raised by the Italian Club of North Quincy High School. The students raised $286 from their classmates.

QJC Accepting Students For January Semester

Quincy Junior College is accepting applications for full or part-time study in second semester day courses which begin Jan. 21, 1981.

New students interested in full-time study should immediately submit an application and a copy of their high school transcript or GED certificate. Upon receipt of these documents, an interview will be arranged with an admissions counselor.

Part-time students need only call the admissions office to arrange an appointment.

"More adults are returning to school during the day than ever before. A part-time or full-time schedule can often be arranged for homemakers and others who only have specific times available for classes," noted Hugo Salati, Dean of Admissions.

"We also find that many June high school graduates, who wanted a semester break from school, enter college in January," he added.

Students enrolled in another college may transfer to Quincy Junior for the second semester by completing an application form and having both their high school and college transcripts sent to the admissions office.

Among the Associate Degree programs available for mid-year entrance are criminal justice, early childhood education, secretarial science, accounting, management, marketing, hotel/restaurant management, health careers preparatory, and liberal arts.

For more information on college programs and admissions procedures, call Dean Hugo Salati at 786-8777.

Emblem Club Holds Christmas Party

The Quincy Emblem Club was scheduled to hold its Christmas Party for members and guests last night (Wednesday).

A short business meeting was to be held at the Elks Home at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at the Golden Bowl Restaurant, Quincy, at 8:30 p.m.

Members were to bring a wrapped exchange gift with their name on it.

Charlotte Wilson and Susan McGregor, were in charge of reservations.

As a result of an increase in supreme per capita for 1981, dues will probably be increased next year for club members. The matter will be discussed at the January meeting.

Upcoming events include the state meeting and Christmas party Sunday at the Maynard Lodge of Elks. Those attending are asked to bring a wrapped gift for a man or woman in a nursing home, or to make a donation to the Little Sisters of the Poor.

The Quincy Elks Open House will be Sunday, Dec. 21, and the Embola is in March.

St. Ann's Parish Dance Saturday

Sean Roach will provide the music at the monthly dance of St. Ann's Parish Saturday, 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. in the school hall.

St. Ann's Rd., Wollaston.

Refreshments will be available.

The dance committee is offering free round trip air fare to Ireland or the cash equivalent as a prize to be awarded at the May 9, dance.

At each dance until then, five names will be drawn from those in attendance making them eligible for the grand prize drawing.

Christmas Pageant At First Parish Church

The public is invited to attend and participate in the "Christmas Pageant" to be held Sunday, Dec. 14, at 6:30 p.m. at the United First Parish Church of the Presidents, Quincy Center.

The "Christmas Pageant" is the final in a series of events annually sponsored by the Christmas Festival Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

All are welcome to attend and join with the participants in the singing of Christmas Carols.

Rev. Keith Munson, pastor of the Church of the Presidents, will open the program with a welcome message.

First and second grade students from Sacred Heart parochial school, North Quincy will participate wearing their Christmas pageant costumes.

Highlight of the brief services will be the children's procession carrying the Christ Child statue from the Church to the Nativity Scene at the Hancock Cemetery for placement in the Manger.

Rev. Father Charles Higgins of Sacred Heart Church, will conduct a number of readings assisted by clergy of various faiths.

James Connors, organist, will provide the musical accompaniment and the Sacred Heart Church Adult Choir will sing a number of Christmas selections.

Following the placing of the Christ Child in the Manger, the children and adults participating are requested to return to the Church Hall for light refreshments provided through the courtesy of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

George C. Fay is General Chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee and Richard J. Koch, chairman of the Christmas Pageant and Nativity Program.

Politically, It's Already 1981

Christmas is still three weeks away and the new year four.

But in political circles it's already 1981 and thoughts are turning toward the big fishbowl on the third floor of the new City Hall: the mayor's office.

Candidates, potential candidates and dreamers are beginning to stir. Little signs that may mean a lot are beginning to pop up.

Mayor Arthur Tobin who hasn't exactly had a picnic at City Hall the past three years, apparently likes being mayor despite all the headaches that go with the job. Right now, he sounds and acts like a candidate for a third term.

TOBIN

Listen to him talk and you hear him talking not past, but present — and future. Not just next year but beyond that. He's talking like he plans to be around as mayor for at least two more years.

Meanwhile, Councillors Frank McCauley and Joseph LaRaia seem to be showing up at more and more functions. And, LaRaia has been staying late as if to get in the final plug or two for a future vote.

LaRAIA

Some sources close to LaRaia still insist he will not run for mayor. Maybe he won't. But those who really think they can figure him — the so-called "LaRaia watchers" are convinced he's going to make a comeback bid for the mayor's office. He's not going to be satisfied just sitting in the City Council Chamber, they insist.

McCauley in the past has flirted with the idea of running for mayor. And has gotten a lot more serious about the idea since he topped the City Council at-large field last year. He's already had one fund-raiser which seems to be a little early if he were only going to run for the council again.

McCauley expects to make up his mind in early January.

"I'm sorting things out," he says. "I've talked to a lot of people this fall — the bank (Presidential Cooperative of which he is president), family, supporters, etc. I'm going to give it some more thought over the Christmas holiday and will announce my decision in January."

SHEETS

Councillor James Sheets is also considered a potential candidate for mayor. But so far he's playing his cards pretty close to the vest. He hasn't given any open sign that he's a candidate.

Ah, politics. Never a dull moment.

STEVE GETZ, district director for the Southern Massachusetts MDA Chapter with which the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee is affiliated, has been promoted to the Big Apple. Steve is now with the national office in New York as Director of Corporate Programs. Jim Sharland, who had been program coordinator, succeeds Steve here as district director.

ATTENTION, toy train buffs: If you haven't already seen the Rogers Jewelry store window display in Quincy Sq., don't miss it. It's a must. Makes you feel like a kid again.

REMEMBER the 10-cent cup of coffee? Well, it's still here — at the Wollaston Theater anyway. Arthur Chandler still serving it up for a thin dime.

Quincy Quiz

There were two winners in the Quincy Quiz this week. Earning Quincy Sun T-shirts were Diane Crowley, age 14, of 139 Highland Ave., Wollaston and Phil Robinson, 42 North Bayfield Rd., North Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Ground was broken recently for the Quincy Center Plaza office building. What firm plans to locate its headquarters in that building?
2. In what section of the city is the Quincy Bay Inn located?
3. What city body selects residents for jury duty?
4. A Quincy private school recently received official accreditation for the first time in 11 years. What is the full name of the school?
5. What is the name of the president of the Quincy Co-operative Bank?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Quincy High and North Quincy High first met in football in 1933.
2. The Josiah Quincy Homestead is located in Wollaston.
3. Furnace Brook flows into Black's Creek.
4. The Furnace Brook Golf Course and Presidents Golf Course (located at the Norfolk County Recreational Facility) are located in Quincy.
5. City Clerk John Gillis is the chairman of the Licensing Board.

Gold, Silver Tops On Burglars' Hit List

Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn notes a continuing change in the pattern of home burglaries.

"Due to the escalating value of gold and silver," he said, "radios, color TV sets and stereos no longer are the major targets of thieves."

This trend also has been noted by Massachusetts CRIME WATCH, the state-wide crime prevention program headquartered in Hudson. Crime prevention officers from over 200 local police departments constantly report local developments to CRIME WATCH.

"Burglars are passing up the traditional items, and are stealing rings, bracelets, necklaces, silverware, coin collections, and similar items which contain precious metals," Finn said. "When these types of things are taken, they tend to disappear quickly and permanently. Silver, particularly, can be disposed of immediately."

"Small items, such as silverware, jewelry and gold ornaments — which cannot be marked with an identification number — should be photographed in close detail, their value professionally established in writing. They then should be stored in a safe place. Copies of the photographs should be kept outside the home, for quick reference in case of fire or other catastrophe."

Finn recommended that churches, lodges and other groups possessing silver and gold valuables, build a rugged "security closet" in a location away from constant traffic. This closet should be equipped with a deadbolt lock with a one-inch throw, to delay entry. "A good security closet can be built for a small investment, and will make possible use of silverware and other valuables, while also protecting them to a great extent, against theft."

Further crime prevention ideas are available from the Quincy Police Department.

Friends Of Library To Make Donation

Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library will kick off their 1981 membership drive by making a donation to the library tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the main library, 40 Washington St.

Mrs. Nettie Sumner, library friends president, will present a check to library director Warren Watson for the purchase of library books and materials.

The money was raised from membership fees, donations and fund raising activities.

Refreshments will be served and the public is invited.

The library friends sponsor many activities throughout the year including special programs for the family and fund raising events.

Other officers of the organization are Dr. Mary Baran, vice president; Maurice Zack, treasurer, and Ann McLaughlin, secretary.

Medicaid False Claims To Bring Stiff Penalties

Stiff penalties including heavy fines and long jail sentences for Medicaid vendors who make false claims are provided under new legislation now in effect, according to Senator Paul D. Harold.

The Medicaid False Claim Act provides fines of up to $10,000 and jail terms of up to five years for a number of false statements.

The former law provided fines of up to $500 and up to one year in jail for fraudulent claims, Senator Harold said.

The new legislation provides heavy penalties for making false statements in a claim or application for benefits, or concealing facts effecting eligibility for benefits.

It also provides stiff punishments for using benefits intended for another, failing to provide the services claimed, soliciting or offering bribes, charging rates in excess of established rates, or demanding payment from a patient in excess of the Medicaid payments.

Sen. Harold noted the new law empowers the attorney general or district attorney to sue, in addition to bringing criminal charges, and recover treble damages for false claims.

"This new law provides for very heavy penalties for those who knowingly make false statements, and while simple clerical errors bring no penalty, those who attempt to defraud the taxpayers through false Medicaid claims will find themselves in extremely serious trouble," Harold said.

He said that needy Medicaid applicants are also victimized by false claimants, since false claims reduce the amount of funds available to help those whose needs are legitimate.

Jenness Gains But Loses To McIntosh

William W. Jenness gained 48 votes in the recount but he still failed to displace David S. McIntosh as city councillor from Ward 1 by 91, instead of 189, votes.

The recount found that a block of 50 votes originally credited to McIntosh should have gone to Jenness by 48 to 2.

"Quincy is getting a very bad reputation for its conduct of elections," said Heslip E. Sutherland, chairman of the Republican City Committee.

"This latest error was entirely too serious to be lightly passed over."

COMMUNIST DANGER CITED

The destroyer USS Moffett was launched at the Fore River Shipyard amid strict security after a reduction gear on the USS Quincy was badly damaged in a suspicious accident.

"If certain episodes in this yard can be definitely traced to Communist activities," said State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, the luncheon speaker, "the time has come for every patriotic American to demand immediate deportation."

LYONS REAPPOINTED

Gov. James M. Curley reappointed Lawrence W. Lyons to a sixth five-year term as clerk of Quincy District Court, passing over his challenger, former Sen. Edward G. Morris.

Morris was named to a $3,180 post in the Department of Taxation and Corporations by Curley in order to avert a split in the ranks of Norfolk County Democrats.

QUINCY-ISMS

George A. Bonsall was reported in line for reappointment to a second two-year term in the $3,750 post of city auditor ... The Granite Trust Carol Singers, under the direction of Edward Whittredge, sang at a Christmas social sponsored by the Daniel Webster School PTA ... A barbeque chicken dinner was 60 cents at the St. Moritz Gardens on Willard St., West Quincy, "the largest dine and dance casino on the South Shore" ... Nicholas DiCross was elected president of the John Quincy Adams Club ... Mayor Thomas S. Burgin said he will remove three assistant assessors appointed in January by former Mayor Charles A. Ross, his predecessor ... They are D. Forest Taylor, Benjamin Rappaport and Lyndon Gurney ... A duplicate of the ranchhouse owned by movie cowboy star Hoot Gibson was on display in the Boys Department at Remick's ... It was announced that Milton would replace Boston Farm and Trade on the 1936 North Quincy High School football schedule ... Mrs. Dorothy B. Lee reported that she spent $5.60 — $4.60 with Franklin Printing for cards and $1 for an ad in the Patriot Ledger — on her unsuccessful campaign for School Committee ... Clarence Trask, president of the Blue Hills Recreation Club, criticized the MDC for its "unfair attitude" toward St. Moritz ponds and winter playgrounds ... Oysters were 21 cents a pint at the Mohican Market, 19-25 Chestnut St. ... Edwin J. MacEwan, who held a similar post with the Asbury Park, N.J., Board of Trade, was named secretary of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce ... City Councillor John R. Shaughnessy, angered by the Quincy Taxpayers Association's failure to oppose a $1.1 million tax abatement to Standard Oil, predicted the "death" of the QTA as long as Charles E. Greeley is president ... A box of stereoscopic slides taken by Amory H. Waite Jr. near the South Pole was lost somewhere between the Cities Service Oil Refinery in East Braintree and his Wollaston home ... Joseph R. Smith was elected commander of the John A. Boyd Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, at Memorial Hall ... "Barbary Coast," starring Edward G. Robinson and Miriam Hopkins, and "The Rainmakers," with Wheeler and Woolsey, were playing at the Strand ... The City Council's Finance Committee voted to accept 27 acres of land from Henry M. Faxon, thus doubling the size of Faxon Park in South Quincy ... The Friendship Circle of the Wollaston Methodist Ladies Aid held its Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Elestus DeWolfe, 154 Pine St. ... Some 240 WPA workers in Faxon Park threatened to walk off the job if they didn't receive their paychecks, which were four weeks late ... Producers of the play "The Children's Hour," banned in Boston by City Censor Herbert McNary, reportedly were seeking a theater in Quincy in which to stage their production ... Jim Cleary and His Pals were playing at Kiley's Grille, 35 Washington St., opposite the public library.

I JUST HEARD THAT BILL CLARK DIED.

I'D LIKE TO HELP. WHAT SHOULD I DO?

Many bereaved people complain that they feel avoided and alone after a death. Friends complain of awkwardness in finding an appropriate way to offer assistance. They feel they might intrude or fear creating further upset. The solution to this dilemma lies in taking the initiative! Call your bereaved friends and tell them of your willingness to listen or to help. If they want your assistance they will gratefully accept. If they refuse your offer keep in mind that they are not rejecting you personally, they are simply saying they do not need your help at this time. Many grieving people find it difficult to seek help on their own behalf. So remember, friends and neighbors who make a specific offer of assistance may relieve some of the burden.

Squantum Church Celebrates Second Sunday Of Advent

The First Church of Squantum celebrated the second Sunday in Advent last Sunday with a variety of special Christmas music.

The service began with violinist James Sumner playing J.S. Bach's "Sheep May Safely Graze" as a musical call to worship. Later, using the same instrument, Sumner accompanied the Junior Choir singing Bach's "Come, Thou Long Expected Jesus" with words by Charles Wesley.

The Senior Choir sang "In the Bleak Mid Winter" by Rossetti and Drake. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

Four children assisted the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, in lighting the second candle of the Advent Wreath. They were Jana Cocio, Matthew Sumner, Bethany Golden and Brian Colwell.

The pastor also explained to the children The Christman tree which stands in front of the sanctuary. The tree is decorated with handmade ornaments of white and gold. Each of the decorations is a Christian symbol that relates to the coming of Jesus as the Christ.

The pastor told the congregation a Christmas story, "The Gift of the Magi" by O. Henry, and preached on "How Much Does Your Gift Cost?"

During the service, the congregation honored Boy Scouts Timothy Allen and Steven Petrosius of Troop #24, sponsored by the church. Both have earned the highest award in Scouting, the Eagle.

They were accompanied by Marjorie Petrosius, troop committeewoman, and Don Pound, scoutmaster. The young men will receive their awards at a ceremony at the church Friday, Dec. 12.

Greeters for the morning were Ida and Robert VonRiegers. Ushers were Tore Wallin, Richard Williams, Nancy Allen, Bonnie Adams, Paul Paulson and Steve Williams. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Barbara Fluhr, Barbara Colwell and Pat Olson.

Next Sunday the pastor will preach on "The Gift That Reconciles." The service, which begins at 10:15 a.m. will include special music and a Christmas puppet play by the puppets of The Way Up.

Advent, Christmas Music At Faith Lutheran Church Sunday

The senior choir of Faith Lutheran Church will present "Advent and Christmas in Song" Sunday during the 9 a.m. service at the church, 201 Granite St., Quincy Center.

The choir is under the direction of Mrs. Ethel Berg.

Sunday, Dec. 21, at 9 a.m. the church school will present a program, "Symbols of Christmas."

Sunday Deadline For Ordering Bethany Poinsettias

Sunday, Dec. 14, is the deadline for ordering poinsettias to be displayed at the Christmas service at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

Following the Christmas service, the flowers can be picked up by those who ordered them, or they will be delivered to shut-ins.

To order a poinsettia, call Margaret Kelsey at 472-3434, or Muriel Goudey at 472-4308. Miss Kelsey and Miss Goudey will also

$5 Million Facility

King To Break Ground For Mental Health Center

Gov. Edward King will turn the first shovel today (Thursday) at groundbreaking ceremonies for the new $5 million Quincy mental health center.

Ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. at the 10-acre site at Quincy Ave. and East Howard St., Quincy Point.

The 65,000-square foot facility, when completed in mid-1982, will serve residents of Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

Owned by the state and operated by the state Department of Mental Health (DMH), the center will house the department's area office and administrative offices for the South Shore Mental Health. A 20-bed in-patient facility will also be located in the building.

Presiding over groundbreaking ceremonies will be state Senate Counsel James McIntyre, former Quincy mayor and state senator. In 1969, then-Mayor McIntyre made the first step in starting the facility by helping to obtain the site.

Also named to a special groundbreaking committee are state and local leaders who contributed to development and planning for the new building.

They include Mayor Arthur Tobin, Sen. Paul Harold, Rep. Robert Cerasoli, South Shore Mental Health Center President Warren Powers, state Human Services Secretary Charles F. Mahoney, DMH Commissioner Robert Okin, DMH area director Harry Shulman, Milton Selectman James Colt and Randolph Selectman Paul Connors.

Also, Mollie Hirschberg, Ruth M. Paven and Anne Kane, all of Quincy; Barbara Dowds of Weymouth; Elizabeth Rawlins of Hingham; Daniel MacIntyre, Coastal Community Counseling Center president; Rev. Dean Tegeler of South Shore Day Care Services; Lloyd Wilkie; Dr. Ronald G. Hersch, South Shore Mental Health Center executive director and Dr. David Van Buskirk, former executive director.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly has been invited to participate.

A luncheon for guest will follow the ceremonies at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Faxon Center.

Koch Santa Ready To Visit Shutins

Boys and girls who are confined to their homes year around are eligible for a visit from Santa Claus on the weekend of Dec. 21-22 through his local agents, the Koch Club of Quincy.

Santa will be available for special visits on Saturday, Dec. 20, and Sunday, Dec. 21, between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. or at a more convenient time arranged by the child's parents.

Only the parents of the children themselves may request the visit from Santa by contacting Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury St., North Quincy.

Santa will arrive at the child's home with a special gift in advance of his Christmas Eve visit to the area. The Koch Club's Santa program, started in 1957, is designed especially for youngsters who are unable to leave their homes to visit Santa during the Christmas season.

All requests for visits will be honored regardless of the distance, provided the boy or girl is confined to his or her home year around and the parents formally request the service.

The program originally served only Quincy but later Braintree, Weymouth and other surrounding communities were added as requests were received.

Richard M. Morrissey and Thomas P. Koch are co-chairmen of the Santa Visitation Program.

Architect's drawing of how remodeled Quincy Motor Company Building will look as the Main Office of The Quincy Co-operative Bank.

Thanks to our steady and solid growth, The Quincy Co-operative Bank is about to move forward with the biggest expansion program in its history.

Permission has been granted by the Commissioner of Banks of Massachusetts for us to proceed with the conversion of the former Quincy Motor Company building at 85 Quincy Avenue, Quincy, into attractive, colonial style banking headquarters. We have also received permission to continue our present downtown office as a branch for the convenience of our customers.

Our purchase of the Quincy Motors property will give us two acres of land, 22,000 square feet of building for bank use, plenty of parking for employees and customers, plus features we have not been able to offer at our present quarters such as safe deposit boxes and drive-in facilities.

Our customers have made our major expansion possible. In the past five years, and without mergers, our asset growth has increased by more than $43,000,000. We feel proud that we have received such an overwhelming vote of confidence for our friendly, helpful and cooperative banking services: Our new headquarters will make it possible to expand all of these great services. And at our new and expanded quarters, our same friendly service will continue.

Plans for the remodeling of the Quincy Motor building are being drawn now and we should be able to begin use of our new facilities by fall. We will keep you posted with progress reports.

What Our Expansion Will Bring To The Banking Community

PARKING:

We will have 95 parking spaces alongside the main banking office. This will provide plenty of customer and employee parking. Customers will be able to park close to the South door, which, in bad weather, means a much shorter walk than at our present downtown site.

DRIVE-IN FACILITIES.

We have no drive-in facilities now but our new site will include a triple drive-in easily reached from Quincy Avenue and with exiting on Water Street. No other Quincy bank has three drive-in units and we intend to make this service fast and friendly in keeping with our downtown tradition of customer service at teller windows.

SPEEDIER TELLER SERVICE

We now have 10 teller windows downtown—we will have seventeen teller windows in the new bank. As our customers know, there are times during the month when even 10 tellers are not enough to give speedy service. We love to have our customers pour into the bank but to give them fast teller service, we need this new 17 teller facility.

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES

We have wanted to offer safe deposit services for many years but we have never been able to work out a practical way to provide ground floor safe deposit service. Now we can offer ground floor service at our new home on Quincy Avenue.

DOWNTOWN CONVENIENCE

Our present headquarters office has been and still is an excellent banking site. But we have outgrown this office. However, we will keep the present site as a downtown branch. So if it is more convenient to use the 1259 Hancock Street Office, we welcome you to do so. And if it is more convenient to use the new main office at 85 Quincy Avenue, come visit us when we are ready for business sometime in the fall.

Christmas Concert Sunday At Archbishop Williams H.S.

Todd Leslie of West Quincy will be among the soloists in Archbishop Williams High School's annual concert of Christmas music Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The concert, free and open to the public, is presented by the school's 270 member student chorale, under the direction of Sister Corona MacDonald, SCH.

The program will open with "Glory to God" by Gregor and Elmore, and will close with Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah" complete with trumpet accompaniment.

The concert will also include traditional and contemporary Christmas melodies such as "Rudolph Christmas Medley", "Mary's Boy Child", "Do You Hear What I Hear?", "Wake, Gentle Shepherd", "White Christmas", "Jazz Gloria", "O Come All Ye Faithful", "Silent Night", and "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing".

Other soloists will be Karen Carrabes and Marybeth Curtis of Braintree, and Thomas Lineham of South Boston.

Accompaniment will be by Jeannine Machon, class of 1981, and Christopher Curtis, class of 1983, at the piano, and Jerry Serfass on trumpet.

North Prize Winners Show Off Trophies

The prize-winning North Quincy High School band, color guard and majorettes were invited to attend last night's (Wednesday) School Committee meeting.

They were to display the four trophies won by their groups at the New England and State championship parade contest held in Gloucester, Nov. 23.

The majorettes won first place; the band and color guard receive second place awards; and the drum major, Walter McConaghy, captured third place in his competition.

Michael Costa In 'Christmas Carol'

Michael Costa of Squantum will play Scrooge as a young man in The Company Theatre, Inc., production of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. at First Congregational Church of Weymouth Heights, 17 Church St. Doors open at 7:30 p.m.

Directors are Zoe Bradford and Jordie Saucerman of Houghs Neck.

The Company Theatre, a non-profit organization in its eighth season is dedicated to building creativity and self confidence in students ages nine to 20 through semi-professional plays.

Christmas Mailing Tips

Postmaster Philip L. Sullivan reminds customers that for the best service this Christmas season they should use ZIP codes, place their return address in the upper left corner of the envelope, use proper postage, and mail early.

It is important, he said, that families double check envelopes and cards to be certain that addresses are complete and proper postage is affixed. Envelopes without postage will either be returned to the sender or delayed by postage-due procedures.

"When the return address is placed on your envelopes, it helps remind friends of your current address," the postmaster said. And, if the family to whom a holiday message is sent moved more than a year ago, it cannot be forwarded. However, if it has a return address, the letter or card will be returned to the sender with a notation that the forwarding order has expired.

"By following these suggestions, you will be assured of good mail service this holiday season."

Dec. 12 - "Swim Fun" at the Lincoln Hancock pool, followed by a pizza party at the center.

Dec. 13 - "Hansel and Gretel" at the Opera House in Boston. Cost is $6 and a bus will leave the center at noon. Adults and children are invited.

Dec. 14 - Trip to Quincy Market in Boston. A bus will leave the center at noon and return at 4 p.m. Cost is $2.

Dec. 23 - "A Christmas Carol" at the Opera House in Boston. This musical version of Dickens' classic features over 100 life-size marionettes. Cost is $3.50 and the bus will leave the center at noon.

Dec. 28 - "The Next Move" theater's Christmas celebration in Boston. Audience performers will join in a special reading of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" with bell-ringers, carolers and other surprises.

Cost is $8 for adults, $5 for children under 12. A bus will leave the center at 2 p.m.

Dec. 29 - Roller skating at Four Seasons Arena, Norwood, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The Cost is $2 and the bus will leave the center at 10:30 p.m.

The Squantum Community Center is located at 136 Standish Rd., Squantum.

Dec. 16 Deadline For Squantum Holiday Door Decorating Contest

Dec. 16 is the deadline for entering the Squantum Community Association's annual holiday door decorating contest.

The association announces the following rules for this year's contest:

Doors will be judged in one of three categories: traditional, contemporary or religious.

Anything within four feet of the door can be judged if decorated. Lawns and roofs will not be judged.

Doors must be decorated by 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 21. Judging will begin at that time.

Only registered entries will be judged. Entries must be submitted by Dec. 16 to Marilyn Cadogan, 927 East Squantum St., Squantum, 328-1621.

CHRISTMAS MORNING is depicted by North Quincy Knights of Columbus float featuring Cathy and Mike Greene (in rocking chairs), nephews Kevin and Mark Largerquist (kneeling) and Jennifer Roofey.

Top Winner 2 Years In Row

N.Q. Knights Prize Winning Float A 672-Hour Labor of Love

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus, for the second year in a row, sponsored and built the top float in the recent Christmas Festival Parade.

Inside Guard Mike Greene of North Quincy headed the Knights' float committee which, he said, spent more than 672 hours, spread over three weeks to complete the float.

Greene thanked the over 60 "brothers," their families and friends, who aided in the "herculean task." His committee, Greene joked, "could have easily built the pyramids if they weren't already there."

Greene also thanked Ed Hogan, who allowed the 1979 and 1980 floats to be constructed at his Exxon Service Station.

Grand Knight Kevin Doherty led a standing ovation in recognition of Greene and his float committee. Doherty said the winning float was symbolic of the Knights' involvement in community affairs.

The float, "Christmas Morning," won top prize in the non-commercial category, earning a $1,000 top prize.

Posing on the float were Greene, his sister Cathy Greene, nephews Kevin and Mark Largerquist and Jennifer Roofey.

Morrissey Bill Would Limit Condo Conversion

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) is sponsoring legislation to control condominium conversions in the state.

The bill is similar to another piece of legislation that died in the waning hours of the 1980 legislative session.

Morrissey said the bill would protect the elderly from eviction, and provide conversion guidelines that may affect moderate and low income tenants. The new bill would also provide for a notification procedure to tenants as well as the right of first refusal to purchase for current tenants, he said.

"The conversion phenomenon has affected Boston, Brookline and Cambridge already," Morrissey said. "It is still relatively new in Quincy, but nevertheless causes widespread displacement of elderly and low and moderate-income people."

Morrissey said that another unique feature of the legislation, was the ability of local communities to enact strict "no conversion" policy once the rental stock has been depleted by 10 percent because of conversion.

"This may help to provide the necessary balance for apartment dwellers and developers that seems to be missing right now," Morrissey said.

Koch Club Christmas Charities Underway

The Koch Club's 25th annual Christmas charity projects are now underway, announces Executive Director Richard J. Koch.

The organization annually provides toys, gifts and Christmas meals for hundreds of needy area residents.

A series of workshops will be conducted to check, clear and package gifts for delivery to charitable agencies in the Greater Boston area in time for distribution before the Christmas season, said Koch.

Volunteers are needed to assist in preparing the many articles for packaging and those interested may contact Koch at 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy.

Koch said that dozens of area residents have delivered used toys, games, and books for use in the 1980 project and hundreds of other items have been received by students of Central Junior High School and Massachusetts Fields School and will be prepared for shipment.

The Granite City Grange, under the direction of Mrs. Sadie Wesley, is again preparing for participation with the Koch Club in its annual Christmas Charity Drive with toys and food for families in need.

Otis Elevator employees are again providing over 50 gifts for needy children through the Koch Club. Mrs. Alice Buchanan has directed the Otis Elevator contribution for the past eight years.

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League are also part of the Christmas charity program each year, contributing food supplies and donations toward the project.

Conservation Commission Approves Monarch II Parking Area

The Conservation Commission has approved construction of a parking lot for the Monarch II office building in North Quincy, provided the drainage is kept away from populated areas of Montclair.

Ground was broken last month for the nine-story, $14 million, which is being built in the State Street South complex by Forge-O'Connell Properties. Completion is expected next fall.

The Conservation Commission directed that the drainage system of the parking area be rearranged as far north as possible to keep it away from Harriet Ave. and John and Division Sts.

The Monarch project does not involve the filling or alteration of any wetland but the work area borders on Sagamore Creek near where it empties into the Neponset River.

City's Revenue Sharing Position Shaky

The City Council got a glimpse of the city's federal revenue-sharing picture Monday night and found it to be a little precarious.

Revenue-sharing money is federal funds granted to the city, usually about $1.8 million a year, that is parceled out in quarterly sums.

The city is able to invest the money and use the principal and interest to offset the real estate tax levy, usually in the fire and police budgets.

The problem is that the revenue-sharing bill for the federal fiscal year, Oct. 1, 1980 to Sept. 30, 1981, is stalled in a dispute in Congress.

Auditor Charles L. Shea told the Council that the bill is in a conference committee of the Senate and the House to iron out differences between the two.

But if Congress adjourns before taking action on the bill, said Shea, the city is liable not to get its January allotment of some $450,000 on time.

Thus, he said it would lose a good chunk of interest derived from a half million dollars invested at about 16 per cent.

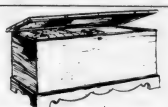

Shea told the Council that the city has recently received its July and October allocations which total $900,000, plus interest.

The Council appropriated $3,515 of it for the Solicitor's office to pay legal fees ordered by the court for a police officer who successfully litigated a case in arbitration four years ago.

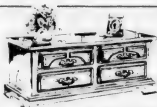

Out of the past comes a beautiful present.

The Lane® Love Chest, a gift steeped in romantic tradition.

The romantic tradition of the Lane Love Chest is derived from the centuries-old custom of the Dowry chest. From Europe the tradition found its way to America where it developed as a gift of love to hold the things you love. The Lane Love Chest is also a beautiful piece of furniture available in a variety of styles, each crafted of fine cabinetwoods. The fragrant cedar-lined interior, nature's only defense against the moth, will protect your most cherished belongings. Whether it is for a bride-to-be, for a sweetheart, for a fiancée or for a wife... the Lane Love Chest is a most imaginative way to say "I love you".

West Quincy Branch Library Sold

Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library have voted to sell the abandoned West Quincy branch library for $37,520 to Ross S. Noble, who owns a sporting goods firm on adjoining land.

Trustee Chairman L. Paul Marini said trustees received only two bids for the property on Furnace Brook Parkway and Noble's bid was closest to the assessed valuation of $41,000.

"It was a very reasonable figure," said Marini. "He was a serious bidder."

The only other bidder was a Hanover man who offered $20,000.

Marini said the trustees had at least 15 inquiries about the property but most of them apparently were scared off by zoning and right of way restrictions.

The land is zoned for Residence B and the library, which preceded the zoning ordinance, was operated under a "grandfather" variance.

Access to the property also is obtained by a right of way over Noble's property, said Marini.

The money received from the property will go into the Adams Trust fund, a private charitable trust that is administered by library trustees. Adams Fund money was used to build the library branch.

Marini said trustees accepted Noble's bid even though it was short of the assessed value because "we didn't want to get into a hassle over this thing. We're not in the real estate business."

Telephone Dividend

New England Telephone directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 85 cents per share payable Friday, Jan. 2, 1981, to share owners of record at the close of business Wednesday, Dec. 10, 1980. The amount is the same as the preceding quarter.

Taxi Stand Ordinance To Be Submitted To Council

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board voted Tuesday to submit a proposed ordinance to the City Council that would establish private taxi stands at MBTA stations in Quincy.

The ordinance was suggested during discussion of two hackney licenses for Shore Taxi, Inc., 535 Sea St.

City Clerk John Gillis commented on the number of cabs that stand at the Quincy MBTA Station and use municipal parking without paying a fee.

A motion to submit such an ordinance to the council was made by Fire Chief Edward Barry and seconded by Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

Atty. Nathaniel Sherman, representing Shore Taxi, said that taxi company "would be more than pleased" to pay such a fee.

Shore Taxi was granted the two licenses after board members calculated there were still enough hackney licenses in reserve should the taxi companies which gave up their "pocket" licenses in 1971 want them back.

Gillis said there are 83 hackney licenses in the city and prior to the meeting only 58 have been issued.

At's City Cab indicated at the meeting it would like two additional hackney licenses, and Yellow Cab of Quincy also expressed interest in more licenses.

The cab companies must now submit formal applications to the License Board. When the licenses are issued, the hackneys must be registered and on the road within 30 days.

Address Reading Association

Three Quincy educators recently addressed members of the New England Reading Association at its annual conference in Cambridge.

The educators were Janet DiTullio, Quincy's coordinator of language arts, Mary Baran, reading specialist, and Jane Granstrom, director of children's services at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Topic of their address was involvement of the home, public library and public school system in shaping student's attitudes and reading habits.

City Club Holds Pearl Harbor Service

The Quincy City Club held its sixth annual Christmas breakfast meeting Sunday at Sherry's Restaurant, Quincy, with the highlights of the day including a Memorial Service to commemorate the 39th Anniversary of Pearl Harbor and the announcement of gifts for Christmas 1980.

Members John P. Comer, past State Commander of the American Legion and Thomas M. McDonald, past State Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, directed the Pearl Harbor Commemorative Ceremonies. Comer led the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by the group and McDonald recited a prayer in memory of those Americans who died at Pearl Harbor and also for other veterans who lost their lives in the war.

Donald E. Conboy, co-chairman of the Quincy City Club Christmas Charitable Activities Program announced that 80 of the membership total of 90 had donated a total of $3,500 to fund the charitable projects of the organization for the 1980 Holiday Season.

Conboy has been assisted by Paul Lee and Dr. Allan Yacubian in the Christmas Charitable Program since its inception in 1975.

Richard J. Koch, president of the City Club, announced that the major gifts this year include a refrigerator-freezer for the DOVE Home in Quincy, a 19 inch color TV set and table radio for Long Island Hospital, several sport magazine subscriptions, pajamas and sheets for the Faxon House. Personal gifts are also being provided to patients at the Medfield State Hospital and a number of half-way houses. Koch said the City Club will also provide 36 gifts for the Retarded Children's Christmas Party annually sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department.

The City Club is a charitable service organization and has donated over $10,000. to date in worthy causes.

would stay long enough to help with the transition period. I want him to leave on the same friendly terms we have had in the past."

Should DeFalco have to leave before the management team is in place, Tobin said, provisions have been made for an interim director to be provided by the company.

He said Personnel Director Harold Coose could serve as acting director for a 24-hour period while the interim director is being installed.

"Things could have been better at the Hospital," said the Mayor.

"but it would be totally unfair to blame Mr. DeFalco for the problems there."

"These are long range problems and the blame can be shared by every mayor, city councillor, member of the Board of Managers, even members of the medical staff, for the past 15 to 20 years."

"Until I became mayor, it never had a fully funded budget. No provision was ever made for sufficient capital outlay funds. It was used to keep the tax rate down year after year."

"No one person can be blamed for what has happened at the Hospital."

Four management firms are still in contention for the contract to run City Hospital.

They are Hyatt Medical Association of Los Angeles, National Medical Enterprises, Inc., also of Los Angeles, Hospital Corp. of America of Nashville, Tenn., and Hospital Affiliates International, also of Nashville.

The Mayor's Blue Ribbon Advisory Commission on the Hospital, headed by Atty. Lawrence F. O'Donnell, is scheduled to meet tonight (Thursday) in the Hospital Board Room to further consider their applications.

Unfunded Pensions Headache

a special retirement account to fund pensions.

"At that rate," he said, "it would take 12 years to build a fund large enough to take pensions off the tax rate."

But that would be a pretty radical solution. Instead, Shea's series of meetings will discuss such things as:

- Legislation that would allow the city to charge the administration of the retirement system to the employee's accounts. Now the city pays the total cost.

- Legislation that would allow the city to set a limit on the amount of interest that could be credited to the individual accounts, much like a savings bank is limited in the interest it can pay.

"Just because we're going to discuss things like that," said Shea, "doesn't mean that I'm in favor of them."

Included among those invited to Shea's meeting are the various heads of the city employee unions— even though labor contracts have little to do with retirements—and Joseph J. LaRaia, chairman of the Council's Committee on Pensions.

High Rise Possible On Scott Gordon Site

"This acquisition was the most attractive of several options we considered."

"It will not only give us a flexible solution to our current space problems but will enable us to accommodate projected future growth and strength our long-term commitment to Quincy and the Quincy Center area as well."

"We looked around and Quincy was the right answer for us."

"We are basically a holding company with a lot of computers and people shuffling papers so there was a possibility of moving closer to Route 128. We looked at a number of different spots in Norfolk County."

"But more and more, Quincy looked like the right answer. The city is progressing nicely in making the downtown area viable. Stop and Shop is moving in. Transportation is good."

"And then Scott Gordon is adjacent to our building. We would still be able to conduct business face to face. We would be doing less talking to each other by phone."

Samuel W. Sinclair, senior vice president, who conducted a year-long study of expansion, said selection of an architect for final development of the property is currently in process.

Scott Gordon Furniture is scheduled to move out of the building no later than September, 1981, and Austin said construction of the bank's addition is projected to begin in early 1982.

Free Denture Screening Appointments

A Sport On The Way Up

Quincy, North Volleyball Teams Improve

Interest has been building rapidly in girls' volleyball at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and both teams showed great improvement this fall.

North Quincy, under coaches Steve Corey and Peter Fitch, took impressive wins over Quincy and Waltham in its last two matches of the season and in an earlier match against state champion Brockton, the Raiderettes one of the games in impressive style.

Quincy, with Ray Whitehouse and Chris Prendiville as coaches, finished only 4-8 in the Suburban League, one of the strongest in the state, but was 6-1 outside the league for a 10-9 overall mark.

Quincy and North split in their matches, the First Ladies winning the first at home, 15-12, 9-15, 15-6, and the Raiderettes later winning at home, 15-6, 11-15, 15-5.

The Quincy junior varsity won both matches, 15-2, 15-6, in the first and 15-8, 15-13, in the second.

Volleyball in the city has made gigantic advances due to the junior high school programs and the enthusiasm and dedication of the girls carry on into high school.

The North Quincy varsity squad included Anne McLaney, Joann Runge, Kerry Kiley, Tara Mahoney, Sue Connor, Denise Carroll, Julie Watts, Maureen McLaney, Sue Kelleher, Susan Ayles, Kerri McCready and Lauri Barba.

These girls scored at least 10 points in 63 percent of their games and they all constantly improved and never gave up.

North's junior varsity finished with a 7-5 record and the coaches are looking for strong seasons from these players in the future.

The jayvee squad included Mary Beth Golden, Kathy Doherty, Karen Boutillier, Karen Bridges, Debbie McGovern, Joanne Keenan, Linda Rickson, Lori Kelly, Cindy Sweatt, Jane Leonhardt, Andrea Gelsomini, Patty McKinnon, Karen Merrigan, Susan Orrock, Lisa Tenaglia, Maria Paz, Jean Duggan, Denise Downing, Cathy Downing, Brenda Bryant, Lori Peterson, Cheryl Page and Sheila Durkin. These girls scored at least 10 points in 73 percent of their matches.

The North season concluded with a banquet at Valle's. Highlights of the evening included awarding of action photos of the Quincy matches and senior and team photos. Video tapes of the final win over Quincy were shown.

Junior varsity players receiving trophies and awards were Karen Boutillier, most valuable player; Lisa Tenaglia, most improved; Joanne Keenan, unsung hero; Patty McKinnon, sparkplug, and Kathy Doherty, coaches' award. All players received medals and certificates.

The varsity awards included letters, medals and certificates.

The seniors receiving jackets and trophies were Lori Peterson, Anne McLaney, Kerry Kiley, Tara Mahoney, Denise Carroll and Julie Watts. An appreciation trophy was awarded to Mary Ellen Supply for her volunteer work as statistician.

Varsity players receiving awards were Co-Captains Tara Mahoney and Kerry Kiley for their excellent leadership, Ann McLaney, coaches award; Denise Carroll, unsung hero; Susan Ayles, most improved, Tara Mahoney, sparkplug, and Kerry Kiley, most valuable.

Sixteen Quincy girls attended camp last summer and for the first time Whitehouse had an assistant coach.

Prendiville played four years of varsity volleyball at Bridgewater and played in the U.S. Volleyball Association.

Quincy's junior varsity won the league championship with a 9-3 record, totally dominating all opponents.

Several of Quincy's players will be playing college ball next year, a tribute to their hard work and dedication. Rhode Island and Northeastern have shown a great deal of interest in seniors Maureen Walsh and Susan McLoughlin, both Suburban League all-stars, and junior Nancy MacDonald already has received the attention of local college coaches. At 5-foot-10, Nancy will be a dominant hitter next year and has been referred to as the best blocker in the league by the Brockton coach.

Karin Deady was the fourth best player (out of 62) in camp last summer, playing with college level athletes. Marie Callahan was the best offensive player for Quincy with excellent serving and spiking. Other varsity players were seniors Linda Brennan and Kathy Behan.

Baseball Clinic Saturday

International Amateur Baseball and Softball, of which several Quincy and South Shore teams are members, will hold a baseball clinic Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Aaron Guild School, 825 Washington Street, Norwood.

The instructors will be Red Sox coach Johnny Pesky, Brandeis coach and former Braintree High coach Tom O'Connell, North Reading High coach Frank Carey and Holliston High coach Harvey Krupnick.

Racquetball Lessons At YMCA

The Quincy YMCA will offer racquetball lessons Saturday, Dec. 20, at 10 a.m.

The lesson will include an hour and a half classroom lecture and an hour instruction on the court.

Basic instruction includes discussion on rules, equipment, stance, positioning, forehand, backhand and serve.

Pre-registration is required, and must be done at the Pro Shop at the Quincy Y.

For more information, call Jeffrey Johnson at 479-8500.

a three-year starter, and juniors Tricia Ilacqua, Lisa Zannis and Kathryn Condos.

The junior varsity had a wealth of talent and Capt. Jean Fenby, a sophomore, led the team to the league title with excellent hitting and defense. Sophomore Ellen Deady is a fine prospect and saw some varsity action. Barbara Fain became a superior setter and Janet Buttomer was a tremendous digger and hitter.

Whitehouse and Prendiville worked closely with the junior high schools, as these programs, especially those at Central and Broad Meadows, supply the backbone of the Quincy tech help next year are Carolyn Leonard, Susan Bevans and Chris Gallery from Grade 9 and Mia Gonzales, Terry, McLaughlin, Colleen and Sandy Dunn, Karen Marnell and Stephanie Le Vangie from Grade 8. Many of them attend Saturday classes, summer camp and work in junior Olympic programs.

This year Quincy will send 25 to 30 girls from Grades 7 to 12 to summer camp, 12 girls will play in the Yankee League with Coach Prendiville and 15 will try out for the Junior Olympics.

Whitehouse gives Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone much of the credit for the growth of the sport at Quincy. He purchased a new net, helped set up non-league games and pushed for and hired an assistant coach of high calibre.

Returning lettermen next year will be Condos, Ilacqua, Zannis, MacDonald, Fain, Buttomer, Donna Porcaro, Sue Deehan, Laura Schofield, Mel Goldrick and Michelle Healy.

Quincy Players In Key Roles

Columbus Bows In Super Bowl But It Was A Tremendous Year

Christopher Columbus High School's football team enjoyed a perfect (10-0-0) season, won the Catholic Suburban League title and last Saturday played in the first Division 5 Super Bowl.

And Quincy personnel played prominent roles in the Friars' success.

Although Columbus lost to Nantucket, 44-20, in the Super Bowl contest, Quincy's Bob

Hennessy, who called it quits after six years as the Friars' coach, was proud of his team's showing, as several key players were out with injuries.

Columbus and Nantucket were tied, 20-20, in the second period but Nantucket's brilliant Beau Almodobar, who scored three touchdowns and gained more than 201 yards on the ground himself, returned a kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown and Columbus never had a chance after that.

"We had too many injuries," Hennessy said. "We were forced to do things we don't usually do and we were unable to block like we usually do for (Jim) Costigan. I'm very proud of these kids. We had a tremendous season."

One of the Friars' top linemen was Quincy's John Kiley, one of the team's top blockers. The 6-0 190-pound senior played all four years for Columbus and formerly played for the North Quincy Apaches of the Quincy Youth League.

Columbus had one of the most highly-recruited running backs in the state in Costigan, who capped a sensational season by scoring all three touchdowns in the Super Bowl. Kiley was one of the reasons for this.

"John was our quickest and smartest lineman," Hennessy said. "Offensively, we favored the right side and John's the man we counted on to open holes. On defense he was equally good against both the pass and rush."

Quincy's Steve McGonagle, a junior, and another former North Quincy Apache, played mostly on the special teams.

The team's backup fullback, he saw a lot of action and blocked well.

"One week Steve won our skull and bones award that we give to our top defensive player," Hennessy said. "Usually he was one of the first downfield, making the first hit on our kickoffs."

The third Quincy player contributing heavily to Columbus' success was senior Dan Shea, who played at Broad Meadows Junior High and in the Youth League.

Over the past three seasons Hennessy's teams were 22-6, with two of the losses coming to Dom Savio, a team which went to last year's Division 4 Super Bowl.

"This was by far the best year I've ever had and I'll always have fond memories of this exceptional season," said the Quincy resident.

Hennessy turned around a program that had seen the football teams not winning more than two games in a season for 10 years. He made his teams perennial title contenders.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's an amazing football fact... There was once a quarterback who played pro football for 10 years—and in each of the 10 years he played, his team finished in first place!...The man who set that unique record was Otto Graham...He quarterbacked the Cleveland Browns from 1946 through 1955, and in EVERY one of those seasons, the Browns wound up in first place!

Did you know a woman once coached a major college football team? ...At Yale, their famous coach Walter Camp was ill one season in the 1880s and was unable to attend practices or games...His wife went to all the practices and games for him, and actually coached the Yale football team that year.

What was the coldest weather any major football game was ever played in?...It's believed that the record was set in the 1967 National Football League playoff game between Green Bay and Dallas which Green Bay won 24-17...At game time, it was 13 below zero with an icy 15-mile-an-hour north wind which made the wind-chill factor, according to the U.S. weather bureau, equal to 49 below!

I bet you didn't know... that COLMAN'S has all the cold weather wear you need at money saving prices. For sports, leisure or outdoor activity. Now is a good time to get those cold weather wearables for Christmas giving.

CAN YOU NAME THE PLAYER WHO HOLDS THE FOOTBALL FOR JOHN SMITH ON POINT AFTER AND FIELD GOAL TRIES FOR THE PATRIOTS?

Executive Washington, Adams, Budget Win

Washington Tap defeated Luke's Lounge, 5-2, in Executive Hockey League action Monday night at the Youth Arena.

Chet Brunstrom had two goals and Jack Duffy, Ralph Gibbs, and Marty Tolson one each. Gibbs had two assists and John Emmott, Jack Duffy, Charlie Duffy, Bernie Toland, Wayne Gauthier and Paul Casey one each. For Luke's Ted Ahola and Kevin Sullivan had the goals with an assist for Ahola.

Bob Donovan scored twice and assisted on three other goals to spark Adams Sports to a 7-5 win over Dayce's Place. Bob Simonelli scored two goals and Bob and Dennis O'Connell and Kevin Glynn one each. Glynn and both O'Connells had assists. For Dayce's Kevin Lewis, one of the league's most prolific scorers, had another hat trick and Pete Bertrand and Joe Mullen one goal each. Bertrand, Jack Aldred, Ken Noonan and Jack Casey had assists.

Fred Cashman and Bob Murray were double scorers as Budget Rent-A-Car topped Beau's Place, 6-4. Chuck Behenna and Mike Semertgakis had the other goals. Don Bonito and Jim Horner had two assists each and Art Boyle one. Ned Burke had two Beau's goals and Bob Carroll and Dick McCabe one each. Mike Haynes, McCabe, Burke and Terry Flaman had assists.

In the previous set of games Lewis, who earlier in the season had five goals in a game, scored six to spark Dayce's to a 7-2 victory over Beau's.

Aldred had the other goal. Ken Marini and Doug McLean had two assists apiece and Aldred and Paul Casey one each. For Beau's Colin Campbell, Burke and Charlie Chambers scored the goals with assists for Chambers, McCabe, Steve Dymant and Hughes.

Adams Sports defeated Luke's, 6-4, as Donovan had a hat trick. Tom Roberts had two goals and Dennis O'Connell, one. Bibby Lewis and Dennis O'Connell had two assists apiece and Pete Lynch, Bob O'Connell and Simonelli one each. Don Costa had a hat trick and Al McKay the other goal for Luke's. Bob Murray, John Lawrence, Rich Gibbs, Ralph Freeman and Kevin Sullivan had assists.

Horner had four goals to pace Budget to a 7-4 win over Washington. Ahola, Joe Verlicco and Steve Marini had the other goals. Marini had three assists, Ahola two and Bonito, Behenna and Boyle one each. Tolson, Brunstrom, Ralph Gibbs and Jack Duffy scored for Washington, with two assists each for Duffy and Tolson and one each for Ed Grogan and Gibbs.

Defeats Essex, 81-56

QJC At Bunker Hill Friday

The Quincy Junior College basketball team, with a 2-4 record (2-3 in the Greater Boston Small College Conference), will play at Bunker Hill Friday night at 7 in a non-conference game.

Next Tuesday the Jaguar's will host Northern Essex at 7 at the Votch gym in a conference game.

QJC last week defeated Essex Agricultural, 81-56, but then suffered a disappointing 75-73 loss to North Shore Community. Then, with leading scorer and rebounder Ed Richard sidelined with a knee injury, the Jaguars lost to Emerson, 100-94, in overtime.

Richard and Jim Holleran, the co-captains, are leading the team so far, Richard averaging 18 points a game and Holleran 15. Center Gene Casper has contributed 13 points a game.

Coach Brian Buckley is still optimistic. "We've been playing with a lot of inexperienced players and have had a number of minor injuries," he said. "Once we begin to play more consistently, we should win some close games."

Buckley was referring to the two-point loss to North Shore.

"It was a hard loss to take," he said. "We played very well in spots but we had some very poor spurts that caused the defeat."

● St. Ann's Hockey

Ideal Wins 5th Straight, Lydon Leading Bantams

Ideal Elevator improved its league-leading record to 5-0-0 in the Pee Wee Division of St. Ann's Hockey League with a 6-0 win over Noble Sporting Goods.

Bill Caplis and Derek Hunter had two goals apiece and Paul Tosone and Sean Caplis one each. Billy Palmer, Paul Sullivan and Bill Caplis had assists.

Keohane's defeated Razers Edge, 3-1, with Matt Hurley scoring two goals unassisted and Howie Gordon one unassisted. Kris Meyer scored unassisted for Razers.

No. Quincy Dunkin Donuts edged winless JDA, 2-1, on goals by Mike Newman and Mike Crowley. Paul Carty had an assist. Mike Watt scored for JDA unassisted.

In the Bantam Division Lydon-Russell leads with a 3-1-1 record following a wild 7-7 tie with Riley Club. John Klingenstein and Walter Downing had two goals apiece and Ben Klingenstein, John O'Connell and Kevin Kelly one each. O'Connell, Ben Klingenstein, Paul Coyman and Frank Coyman had assists. COMMON COLD DEBATE

Recently, the big toe - a part of the anatomy which usually gets little attention in the headlines - became news in medical circles. Israeli researchers reported that they found a cure for the common cold by chilling the big toe with a refrigerant chemical. According to the doctors, the sudden chilling dries up the nostrils and cures colds. This method has not been tested here as yet.

Unorthodox new "cures" for the common cold have popped up throughout the ages. Some have been on the off-beat side, such as wearing garlic around the neck, sniffing smelling salts and standing on one's head.

One of the most controversial cold cures in recent years is the claim by Nobel Laureate Dr. Jonas Pauling that large doses of vitamin C can prevent and cure the common cold. Other studies have found Dr. Pauling's theory debatable and have questioned the preventative or therapeutic effectiveness of vitamin C. The debate rages on - and so does the common cold.

Lose Only To One Another

Central, Broad Meadows Share Crown

By VIC DIGRAVIO

The Central and Broad Meadows ninth grade football teams shared the city junior high school championships with 7-1 records.

The only setback for each team was against the other. Broad Meadows won the first game between the two, 22-14, and Central came back later to win, 8-6.

Central's offense was led by first year quarterback Nunzio Carbone, whose strong and accurate left arm was a vital part of the offense.

Central's ground game was also an important part of the attack. Halfbacks Paul Ryan and Mark Vialpando and fullback Bill Fahey shared the ball carrying chores. Central controlled the ball much of the time with Ryan and Vialpando going to the outside and Fahey up the middle.

Complementing the running game was an exciting aerial game, sparked by the Carbone to end Jack Bolster combination. This duo accounted for many points.

At the other end Vic DiGravio was a steady performer with Tim Reardon and Jimmy Garrity also doing a fine job at end.

Another aspect of the passing game was the screen pass. Probably Central's most productive play saw Carbone passing to either Ryan or Vialpando coming out of the backfield.

The offensive line was outstanding, opening up large holes for the backs. It also did an excellent job of protecting Carbone on pass plays.

The line included Russ Seiders, Dave Magnell, Chris Connors, Pat MacDonald, Jim McCadden, Denis Downing, Ben Klingenstein and Bob Plante.

Central also had a fine defensive unit and several times kept the opposing teams out of the end zone when the ball was inside the Central 20. At one point Broad Meadows was on Central's one-foot line and was turned back.

The defense shut out Atlantic and Sterling and held BM to six points another time.

Defensive standouts were Bolster and Fahey at safety, Mangell at linebacker and Reardon at defensive end. Other defensive stars were David Edgren, Martin Flaherty, Paul Marsters, Brian McCarthy, Ray McLaughlin, Dan Morris and Brian Spring.

Bob Schiess was Central's coach and he kept the team fired up and never allowed it to let down. Drew Simmons served as the team's trainer.

Broad Meadows, coached by former Quincy High assistant coach Gene Macomber, scored 192 points and held the opposition to 44.

The strong defense accounted for five shutouts as only Central (twice) and Point scored against it.

Sadowski Receives First President's Award

Ted Sadowski, an assistant football coach at North Quincy for 22 years, who has contributed to many a young person's life, recently received the first President's Award from the Eastern Mass. Association of Interscholastic Football Officials.

"I don't think I'd enjoy the job of head coach," Ted said. "Over the years I could have applied, but I was never even tempted."

"One of the nicest things happened to me recently. I was scouting Quincy against Brookline and coming out of the stadium I heard someone yelling my name. I looked over and several former players, two of them from our 1975 Super Bowl team. It was nice. The kids stop, tell you how they are doing. They bring you up to date on their lives and you feel like, somehow, you've contributed a little bit to the whole picture."

Sadowski, a physics teacher, came to North in 1958. He was a two-way tackle at Boston English and went to MIT, which didn't have varsity football but he played on the junior varsity team. He played semi-pro football for the South Boston Chippewas.

QSO Returns To Quincy In 'Young People's Concerts'

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will begin its 27th season and mark its return to Quincy after a four-year absence with its annual Young People's Concerts on Saturday, Dec. 13.

The orchestra will give two performances, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., both in the redesigned and refurbished North Quincy High School auditorium.

The QSO had performed in auditoriums in Canton and Milton during renovations to North Quincy High.

"We're very pleased to be back in Quincy," said QSO president Nancy Johnson, "and we're looking forward to a full house on the 13th."

The rest of the orchestra's 1980-81 schedule includes "An Evening of Mendelssohn," March 6 at North Quincy; the annual "Youth Performs" concert, featuring the North Quincy and Quincy High choirs, April 10 at North Quincy; and three "Pops" concerts at the Neighborhood Club in May.

The program for Saturday's concerts will feature Smetana's "Moldau" and Moussorgsky's "Pictures At An Exhibition," which will be presented with the Loon and Heron Theatre group of Boston. The theater group combines dance, mime and puppetry in a presentation specially planned for children.

Tickets for the concerts may be obtained by calling Mary Vallier at 479-2408 and tickets will also be available at the door. Season tickets for all four 1980-81 performances are also available through Mrs. Vallier.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra T-shirts will also be on sale before Saturday's concerts in the North Quincy lobby. T-shirts may be purchased or ordered in all sizes from Kathy Jenkins, president of the QSO Women's Guild.

The QSO is a non-profit community orchestra composed entirely of unpaid volunteers. Its 60-odd members are a mixed bag including teachers, students, engineers, housewives, doctors, retired persons and others.

The organization's purposes are to provide a musical outlet for local musicians; to broaden the experiences of musically talented youngsters, through scholarships and "Youth Performs" concerts; and to provide cultural entertainment for the community.

Through its concerts, the QSO has raised funds for causes like the Quincy Historical Society, Braintree PTA scholarships, the Canton Rotary Club Fund for Crippled Children and the Milton Arts Council.

Leading the QSO for the 14th season will be Robert E. Brown of Wollaston.

A native of Illinois, he attended

QUINCY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA members, led by conductor Robert Brown (standing, center) will begin the 1980-81 season Saturday with two Young People's Concerts at North Quincy High.

(Miller Studio)

Olivet Nazarene College and University of Illinois, where he received his master's degree.

He served on the faculty of Olivet Nazarene College from 1956 to 1962, was supervisor of music for the West Windsor Schools of Princeton, New Jersey and, from 1966 to 1979, was a faculty member of Eastern Nazarene College.

He has conducted several district high school orchestras in recent years and serves as organist and choir director for First Baptist Church of Wollaston.

Some QSO members have won full scholarships to musical colleges such as Eastman School of Music, New England Conservatory, Hartt School of Music and Boston University. Others have gone on to join professional orchestras in Albany, N.Y.; Minneapolis, Minn. and Alabama.

The orchestra took its present name in 1955, although it evolved from a series of orchestras dating back to before World War II.

6 Local Girls Performing In 'The Nutcracker'

Six Quincy girls ranging in age from seven to 16 will be appearing in the Boston Ballet's production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker". The production premiers tonight (Thursday) and continues to Jan. 4, at the new Metropolitan Center, Boston.

Ten year old Carol Ann Jackmauth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jackmauth of Hummock Rd., will play a Hummock with cast three, Dec. 26, to Jan. 4.

This is the first appearance in "The Nutcracker" by the Quantum School fifth grader.

Appearing in the production for the seventh year is Angela Cristiani, 16, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent A. Cristiani of 39 Sturtevant Rd. An apprentice with the Boston Ballet Company, Angela will play a flower and an angel throughout the production.

She is a senior at Fontbonne Academy. Lynda Lee Rice, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Rice of 282 Palmer St., Germantown, will play a candy cane in her sixth year in the production.

An eighth grader at Broad Meadows Junior High School, Lynda is in the first cast which performs Dec. 11 to 23.

Also appearing in the production are Maureen, Kathryn and Karen Gralton, children of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Gralton of 196 Marlboro St.

Maureen, 11, a sixth grader at Beechwood Knoll School, will be making her first appearance in the production as a soldier.

Kathryn, 10, will play a reindeer. A fifth grader at Beechwood Knoll, she is making her third appearance in the production.

Seven year old Karen, will make her second appearance in "The Nutcracker" as a doll. She is a second grader at Beechwood Knoll.

All three Gralton children are in the second cast which performs Dec. 18 to 23.

Historical Society Exhibit Opens

The Quincy Historical Society will present three new exhibits for the holidays - "Winter Holidays", "The Yuletide Forest" and "Christmas Greetings" - now through Saturday, Jan. 3 at Adams Academy.

The exhibit which is free, will be previewed for members of the society Sunday, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. "Winter Holidays" commemorates traditional holiday celebrations with vignettes representing a Victorian Christmas, an 18th century New Year, and a 20th century Hanukkah.

"The Yuletide Forest" of Christmas trees, flags, toys and decorative objects, celebrates Christmas customs and traditions that have been nurtured and preserved around the world.

An exhibit of nineteenth and early twentieth century Christmas cards, "Christmas Greetings", completes the holiday exhibit.

Museum hours will be Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The museum will be closed Christmas and New Years days.

'Dapper' Takes Top Prize In Pet Show

Eleven-year old Ann Fahey and her dog, Dapper, won first prize in a pet show held recently at Fore River Field by Quincy Point Congregational Church's girl scout troop.

Pets were judged on grooming and ability to do tricks.

Other winners were: Karen

Foley and her cat, Shamus, second prize; Susan Smith and her hamster, Fluffer-nutter, third prize; Tracy Thornhill and her dog, Barbetie, fourth prize; and Karen Zupkowska and her dog, Buffy, honorable mention.

Mrs. Audrey Smith is troop leader.

Handbell Ringers At Fenno House

The Codman English Handbell Ringers will entertain at a Christmas celebration being held at Fenno House Sunday, Dec. 14, in the common room.

A social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m., followed by a family style roast turkey dinner at 6:30 p.m.

Historical Society Gift Memberships Available

The Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center, is suggesting gift memberships to the society as a distinctive holiday gift for those interested in Quincy and its history.

Recipients will receive a holiday card with greetings from the gift giver, a membership card, and benefits of a one year membership in the society.

Individual and family memberships are available.

WEEK OF DECEMBER 11

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19

You're enthusiastic about new sport and tend to give everything to it. Which is fine, but don't neglect possible financial tangles (Thursday-Friday) or legal wrangles (Tuesday-Wednesday).

PISCES—February 20-March 20

Not a productive week, what with series of delays and cancellations. But still, a positive time: pleasant visitors, witty chatter and good cultural activities all featured.

ARIES—March 21-April 20

A short trip, small promotion or modest windfall are present possibilities. You may have new thoughts about old friend but don't make candid comments or rash decisions.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22

A party or three are probable, but beware of what you're eating—stomach may be sensitive. Money is important theme with attractive opportunity opening up.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21

Although status improves, it's touch and go for a spell. Romance is on your mind but there's a problem of timing. Messages arriving on weekend hold more truth than you'd suspect.

CANCER—June 22-July 22

A favorable week if involved in recreational activities. You're in a playful mood, which is generally fine—except that you're likely to make all sorts of weird commitments.

LEO—July 23-August 22

If wrestling with career or academic problem, you experience joy of success. But there's not much time for basking as you're approached by highups in need of your expertise.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22

Careerwise, several wheels are spinning—but you can't afford to neglect social side of life. Speak out on behalf of a cause—but don't expect intimates to share your ideals.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22

A bright week favoring bright colors and lively conversation. Conflicts are resolved in quick succession, but two warnings: Don't overindulge foodwise; don't divulge secrets.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21

Misery does not love company—at least not now—so avoid gloomy types. Don't brush off compliments as mere flattery, and don't hesitate to make first or second move.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22

Overgenerous Sagittarius finds it easier than ever to carry things to extremes. Happily, you enjoy good financial fortune. New acquaintances can introduce you to important contact.

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20

Self-education is favored. Take time to understand recent moods and feelings. Money-making door opens up, but if you miss out there's at least another good opportunity in sight.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Philosophical, rational and, above all, curious. Sometimes, unrealistically generous when making promises. Recent ideas are put into action by March—so long as they're clearly defined.

BORN THIS WEEK

December 11th, producer Carlo Ponti; 12th, singer Frank Sinatra, 13th, actor Dick Van Dyke; 14th, actress Lee Remick; 15th, actor Tim Conway; 16th, actress Liv Ullmann; 17th, composer Ludwig van Beethoven.

Condon Criticizes Action

'Had To Do It,' Says Gillis

A liquor license granted to the Quincy Bay Inn in North Quincy last week has brought down the wrath of City Councillor Joanne Condon.

But Chairman John M. Gillis says there was nothing his Quincy Licensing Board could do but grant it since the move was dictated by the State Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

"If the Councillor and the residents had attended the ABCC hearing in Boston, we may have had a shot at it," said Gillis. "The fight was in there."

The license, an innholder-common victualer-all alcoholic license held by the former Carlton House, was denied a transfer by the Licensing Board on Sept. 16.

The transfer was turned down, said the board, "because of the parking requirements and the apparent inability to meet them, and because of public safety."

Quincy Bay Inn appealed to the ABCC, which found that the Licensing Board had "not clearly enunciated" its parking standards and requirements.

The matter was sent back so that the Board could "reconsider its decision based upon the ability of the transferee to comply with said parking requirements."

The license required 148 parking spaces, said Gillis, 104 for the motel and 44 for the restaurant.

Two members of the Board, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald and Fire Chief Edward Barry, visited the location and counted 182 spaces.

"They met the requirement," said Gillis. "The Board had no other alternative. The only reason we could consider was the one we used to deny the license."

Gillis, Barry and MacDonald voted for the license transfer; Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeough voted against it and Police Chief Francis X. Finn was not at the meeting.

Mrs. Condon complained that neither she nor residents of the area, who opposed the license transfer at previous Board

Richard Greene Enters Air Force

Richard W. Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Greene of 506 South St., Quincy Point, recently entered the Air Force under the delayed enlistment program, announces Quincy recruiter Master Sgt. Warren Sutton.

A 1978 graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical High School, Greene is scheduled to leave for basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas in January, 1981.

Block Grant Hearing Set For Tuesday

The final public hearing into Quincy's Community Development Block Grant Program for 1981 will be held Tuesday, Dec. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, 30 Granite St.

The meeting will discuss the past performance and future plans of the Department of Planning and Community Development as they pertain to Southwest Quincy.

City Councillor James A. Sheets said those attending will have an opportunity to provide suggestions for potential development projects in their neighborhoods.

Further information on the meeting may be obtained by calling Gerry Cavanaugh or Bob Luongo at 773-1380, extension 373 or 444.

McCauley Bill Seeks State Housing Funds

Sen. Paul D. Harold has filed a bill that would require the state to make yearly payments of $100 per unit to cities and towns that have state-aided senior citizen housing facilities.

The bill was filed on behalf of City Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

McCauley said the measure would help to compensate cities and towns for the loss of tax revenues on senior citizens housing and help to soften the impact of Proposition 2 1/2.

Quincy, which has more than 500 units of state-aided elderly housing, would receive more than $51,000 annually from the state, McCauley said.

A Meaningful Christmas Present

Quincy Homes Must Have Smoke Detectors By Jan. 1

By FRANK MORTIMER

A wailing smoke detector woke Richard Norton from a sound sleep. The 19-year-old chef knew just what to do. He got out fast.

So did everyone else in the rooming house on Monroe Rd. But there was no fire. The recent false alarm was triggered by smoke from someone's overcooked midnight snack.

Unfortunately, no one knew how to shut the alarm off.

According to Norton, one occupant hit upon the idea of temporarily pulling the battery from the unit. This was done, and the noise stopped.

The battery was put aside and all returned to their rooms, confident no alarm would again disturb their sleep that night...

The story has a happy ending. Norton got a good night's sleep.

But it could have ended tragically.

During Thanksgiving weekend, an early morning fire in Seattle took the lives of a woman and her two young children. Investigators believe a smoke detector found near the bodies would have warned the family in time -- if it had been equipped with a battery.

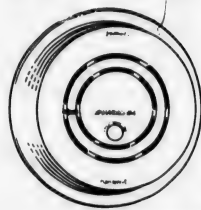

It was not a freak case.

On Dec. 2, 1974, a 3½ year old boy died in a Brookhaven, N.Y. apartment house fire. "No battery in smoke detector" investigators from the National Fire Protection Association reported.

On April 2, 1976 two parents and a five year old child died in their split level wood frame house in Anchorage, Alaska. A smoke detector mounting was found on a ceiling. The device

Cars To Be Kept Off Streets During Snowstorms

With the winter snow season upon us, Police Chief Francis X. Finn requests that local residents make arrangements for keeping their cars off the streets, especially during snow storms.

Illegally parked cars prevent proper plowing of streets and sidewalks creating danger and public inconvenience for school children and other citizens, according to Finn.

He added illegally parked cars which hamper or prevent plowing will be towed at owner's expense.

All residents, at all times, day or night, would facilitate snow removal if they would park properly with their right wheels to the curb and as close to the curb as possible, says Finn.

Early News Deadline

There will be an early news deadline for next week's Quincy Sun because of Christmas.

All news releases from organizations and social clubs must be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq. by Friday Dec. 19 at 5 p.m.

All sports news, including bowling and youth hockey will be submitted by noon Saturday.

Next week's Quincy Sun will be published on Wednesday instead of Thursday because of Christmas.

An early news deadline will also be in effect for the New Year holiday.

The Sun will be published Wednesday, Dec. 31 instead of Thursday, Jan. 1 because of the New Year holiday.

Deadline for that issue will be Friday, Dec. 26 at 5 p.m. and for sports, Saturday, Dec. 27 at noon.

Thank you for your cooperation.

7 Plans Under Study

Prop. 2½ Dilemma: Close More Schools Or Cut Programs

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The city faces a choice of neighborhood schools or educational programs due to Proposition 2½ according to several School Committee members.

"The city is going to have to decide whether it wants neighborhood schools and fewer educational programs or whether it wants to preserve as many programs as possible," says School Committee member Patricia Toland. "If we do, the most efficient way to do that is to close schools."

"I agree with Mrs. Toland," added member Mary Collins. "Personally, as a parent, I would lean towards fewer schools and more programs."

Committee members will have to choose from among seven plans, drawn up by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and other school administrators, which would close from five to 14 schools.

Those plans presented to the committee last Wednesday, are aimed at making up the school system's share of a city-wide $15 million cut due to Proposition 2½.

The school cut will be no less than $8.5 million, said Mayor Arthur Tobin, while Creedon warns that it might be as much as $3 million more.

The seven options presented to Five to 14 schools could be closed. Story Page 17.

The School Committee by Creedon would close from five to 14 schools, save from $7.2 to $8.5 million and lay off a minimum of 226 teachers.

The layoffs would be based on an increase in the system's pupil-teacher ratio from about 21 - 1 to 25 - 1.

The plans also call for layoffs of all teacher aides, over 30 main office and administrative support employees and list programs that the committee may choose to cut.

Creedon had dire predictions if 2½ takes effect and stays in effect: Quincy schools "would no longer be able to offer a quality or even adequate program of instruction," would lose an increasing number of students to private schools and would suffer an increase in dropouts and a drop in attendance, Creedon said.

Students from Quincy and other Massachusetts communities would be at a disadvantage when competing for scholarships and college admissions with students elsewhere, Creedon said.

"There's no doubt that quality education is going to be hurt by 2½," said committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy, "not just in the increase in classroom numbers but the possible loss of some of our ancillary programs that I also consider very instrumental in a quality education."

"Both the type and the quality of the programs we have been able to offer in the past are going to be seriously tampered with," said member John Sullivan.

"I have voted against most of the school closings in the past and I have never voted favorably on laying off teachers," said Sullivan. "But this 2½ situation has put me into a corner as far as re-examining my philosophy of the past."

"I don't know how these cuts can be accomplished without closing schools. That bothers me," said Sullivan.

"The effects of 2½ are going to traumatize the school system," said

2 Santa Mail Boxes Stolen

Even Scrooge wouldn't be so mean!

Two of the four special Santa's mail boxes provided by the Christmas Festival Committee in Quincy Center for children to mail their special letters for Santa have disappeared according to Richard J. Koch, chairman of the program.

The boxes located at McIntyre Mall adjacent to the Quincy Cooperative Bank and at Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Store have been removed by persons unknown. However, the two at Colman's Sporting Goods and in front of the Child World Store remain.

Deadline for boys and girls to mail their Santa request is Monday, Dec. 22.

The special service, provided by the Christmas Festival Committee, allows boys and girls to mail their letters and postcards to Santa directly and the mailboxes are built to allow the children to deposit their own communications to Santa.

Adults are cautioned that the smaller size mailboxes are for Santa mail only allowing boys and girls to communicate with Santa as they want for Christmas 1980.

Each season, hundreds of letters and notes are delivered to Santa from the special children's mailing service.

The Santa Mail Box Project is one of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's Christmas Festival Committee sponsored events. Others are the Christmas Lighting Ceremony, the annual Christmas Parade and the Christmas Pageant and Nativity Program.

Construction Work Up In November

The amount of construction work approved in November rose slightly over the previous year, according to the monthly report of the Building Department.

During November, 95 permits for work costing an estimated $673,170 were approved, compared to 114 permits for work costing an estimated $601,707 during November, 1979.

The following permits were issued last month:

Four one-family dwellings, costing an estimated $114,000; one four-family dwelling, $120,000; one storage permit, $13,000; two garages, $4,700; 36 residential alterations, $94,260; eight "other alterations," $158,400; one removal, $900; three signs, $2,500; 39 miscellaneous, including 27 wood or coal stoves, $135,410;

Eight new dwelling units were added through new construction. Receipts for November totalled $3,020 and $576 was collected for public safety inspections.

Repairs Completed At Grasso Playground

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and Councillor James Sheets announce completion of renovations at West Quincy's Grasso Playground.

The project was funded through the City of Quincy federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG).

"This marks the end of a long process of community input going back to 1977 when the people from West Quincy began talking about upgrading the playground," said Tobin. Steps in the process included neighborhood meetings, an assessment by a landscape architect, and earmarking of federal funds for the project.

"I'd like to commend the residents of the Grasso Playground area for their community interest in improving the playground," said Tobin, and "the cooperative spirit of everyone involved."

The (CDBG) funds were used to install trees and shrubs and a wooden fence, resurface the basketball court, replace the basketball goals and net, and to install a slide and sand pit.

"It's important for our children to have safe, clean areas in which to play, so I view this project as one of the most pleasant ones I've been involved with," said Tobin.

Now under construction in the West Quincy area using CDBG funds is the Sterling Junior High Park, scheduled for completion in the spring of 1981.

Maxwell's Parrot To Reopen As The High Rise

Maxwell's Parrot, a Quincy Center restaurant which closed in mid-September after declaring bankruptcy, is expected to re-open next year as The High Rise under new management.

The City License Board approved the transfer Tuesday of the common victualer - all alcoholic license for the restaurant from Charles J. Artesani, Jr., court appointed trustee, to William D. Ryan and Paul B. Slattery, owners of Presidential Pub, Quincy Square.

Atty. Jeffrey LaPointe told the board the owners plan to renovate the restaurant and lower the ceilings.

LaPointe said the restaurant would cater to court house employees and business people as well as shoppers looking for a place to have lunch.

Houghs Neck Center Opens Lending Library

The Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., announces a lending library is now open at the center with a limited number of books and paperbacks for all ages.

Residents are invited to visit the library and take home a book. Single books can be checked out for two weeks, two books for three weeks.

Anyone with books in fair to good condition is encouraged to donate them to the center library.

Patricia Ridlen is coordinator of community affairs at the center.

Check Nashville Firm

Tobin, Council Bury Hatchet On Hospital

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, long at odds with the City Council over Quincy City Hospital, has held out an olive branch to the Council and some of its members have accepted it.

The Mayor, accompanied by four councilors, spent Tuesday in Nashville, Tenn., taking another look at one of the management firms that is seeking to run the hospital.

Several other councilors were invited, said Tobin, but only Joanne Condon, James A. Sheets, Stephen J. McGrath and John J. Quinn were able to make it.

"The awarding of the contract is the prerogative of the Mayor," he said, "but I wouldn't want to get to that stage and then take the City Council in as an afterthought."

The Mayor and the Council started feuding over the hospital after each appointed a blue ribbon commission to study it and make recommendations on its future.

Tobin, who regarded the Council's commission as an invasion of his prerogatives, was outraged when its report leaned heavily on what it found to be the "politicization" of the hospital.

Council members, on the other hand, expressed the opinion that they were being kept in the dark by the Mayor on possible courses of action to take with the financially plagued hospital.

"Up until now," said the Mayor, "I wanted to make sure that the matter was handled by my task force. I wasn't ready to make any presentation to the Council.

"We are at the stage now where the City Council should be invited into the discussion."

As far as can be determined, a Council vote is not needed to hire a private firm to manage the hospital but some forms of enabling legislation may be necessary to ease the transition.

Accompanying Tobin and the four councilors to the Nashville were Auditor Charles L. Shea and Solicitor Robert Fleming.

"The City Council and this Administration have an opportunity to leave a great legacy with this city — a self-supporting hospital," said Tobin.

"For years, previous administrations and Councils have used the hospital budget to hold down the tax rate. I am proud that now we are meeting this issue head on.

"I am confident that we are going to give Quincy a first class hospital.

"There is a possibility that City Hospital will become a teaching hospital in conjunction with a great university. That brings a lot of good to a hospital.

"I want the city councilors to be a part of this."

Earthquake Fund Nears $21,000

The Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy fund for Italian earthquake relief is now at almost $21,000, about $4,000 short of its goal.

"We want to give this a big push to reach our goal of $25,000 by Christmas," said Quincy Lodge Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo.

The money is needed for medicine and supplies.

Although American donations of clothing, blankets and cash are reaching Italy, reports D'Arcangelo, "I am told that conditions there are not much better at all."

D'Arcangelo has been in frequent communication with an Italian ham radio operator in the stricken area.

"He tells me that conditions are still terrible. The weather has been working against them, with much rain and snow. There is a lot of mud everywhere and transportation is impossible.

"Many homes that were damaged and cracked by the first tremors are just collapsing now," said D'Arcangelo.

According to D'Arcangelo, the lodge is now requesting only gifts of money. Earlier gifts of blankets and clothing are now on their way to Italy, he said.

Checks should be made payable to the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy Earthquake Relief Fund, and sent to the lodge at 120 Quarry St., Quincy, Ma. 02169.

Few Problems From Tuesday's Snow Storm

Tuesday's snow storm was enough to cancel school, but apparently not enough to cause problems for motorists and Public Works snow crews.

"Everything was fine—no major accidents," reported Lt. Jack Flaherty of the Quincy Police traffic department.

"There were a couple of minor things, but nothing spectacular," said Flaherty. "They did a good job sanding and salting the major streets."

Twelve sanders took to the streets at about 1 a.m. Tuesday, according to Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

Ricciuti also reported no major problems or unusual occurrences relating to the storm and said it was too early to calculate the cost to the city.

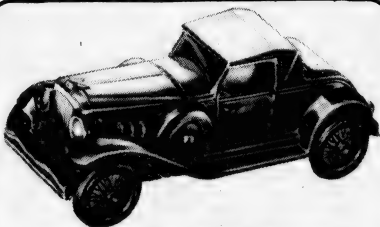

The storm had dumped about four inches on the city by mid-afternoon.

Thank You— To Our Customers

Architect's drawing of how remodeled Quincy Motor Company Building will look as the Main Office of The Quincy Co-operative Bank.

Thanks to our steady and solid growth, The Quincy Co-operative Bank is about to move forward with the biggest expansion program in its history.

Permission has been granted by the Commissioner of Banks of Massachusetts for us to proceed with the conversion of the former Quincy Motor Company building at 85 Quincy Avenue, Quincy, into attractive, colonial style banking headquarters. We have also received permission to continue our present downtown office as a branch for the convenience of our customers.

Our purchase of the Quincy Motors property will give us two acres of land, 22,000 square feet of building for bank use, plenty of parking for employees and customers, plus features we have not been able to offer at our present quarters such as safe deposit boxes and drive-in facilities.

Our customers have made our major expansion possible. In the past five years, and without mergers, our asset growth has increased by more than $43,000,000. We feel proud that we have received such an overwhelming vote of confidence for our friendly, helpful and cooperative banking services: Our new headquarters will make it possible to expand all of these great services. And at our new and expanded quarters, our same friendly service will continue.

Plans for the remodeling of the Quincy Motor building are being drawn now and we should be able to begin use of our new facilities by fall. We will keep you posted with progress reports.

What Our Expansion Will Bring To The Banking Community

PARKING:

We will have 95 parking spaces alongside the main banking office. This will provide plenty of customer and employee parking. Customers will be able to park close to the South door, which, in bad weather, means a much shorter walk than at our present downtown site.

DRIVE-IN FACILITIES.

We have no drive-in facilities now but our new site will include a triple drive-in easily reached from Quincy Avenue and with exiting on Water Street. No other Quincy bank has three drive-in units and we intend to make this service fast and friendly in keeping with our downtown tradition of customer service at teller windows.

SPEEDIER TELLER SERVICE

We now have 10 teller windows downtown—we will have seventeen teller windows in the new bank. As our customers know, there are times during the month when even 10 tellers are not enough to give speedy service. We love to have our customers pour into the bank but to give them fast teller service, we need this new 17 teller facility.

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES
We have wanted to offer safe deposit services for many years but we have never been able to work out a practical way to provide ground floor safe deposit service. Now we can offer ground floor service at our new home on Quincy Avenue.

DOWNTOWN CONVENIENCE

Our present headquarters office has been and still is an excellent banking site. But we have outgrown this office. However, we will keep the present site as a downtown branch. So if it is more convenient to use the 1259 Hancock Street Office, we welcome you to do so. And if it is more convenient to use the new main office at 85 Quincy Avenue, come visit us when we are ready for business sometime in the fall.

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM J. FLANAGAN, JR.

(Robert B. Gorill)

Joanne McCormack Bride Of William J. Flanagan, Jr.

Joanne McCormack and William J. Flanagan, Jr., were married recently by Fr. Robert Ver Eeck, S.J., of Boston College during a double ring ceremony at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. McCormack of 11 Richfield St., Squantum. A graduate of North Quincy High School and Boston College School of Nursing, she is employed as a staff nurse at Carney Hospital.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flanagan of 17 Hickory St., Randolph, is a graduate of Randolph High School and Mass. College of Pharmacy. He is pharmacist/manager of Thayer Pharmacy, South Braintree.

Maid of honor was Paula McCormack of Squantum. Bridesmaids were Catherine Arsenault, Deborah Durkin and Carol Merrigan, all of Quincy; and Patricia Flanagan of Randolph.

Melissa Lezberg of Sharon was flower girl.

Best man was Robert Olive of Randolph. Ushers were Paul McCormack, Robert McCormack, Stephen McCormack and Michael McCormack, all of Squantum; and Gerard Wallace of Everett.

A reception was held at the Morrisette Post, West Quincy. Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the newlyweds are making their home in Squantum.

ENGAGED - Mrs. Mary L. Kennally of 33 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, announces the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Diaz Kennally, to Glenn G. Spencer of North Quincy, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William G. Spencer. Miss Kennally, also the daughter of the late Mr. James R. Kennally, is a graduate of Fontbonne Academy. She was also graduated summa cum laude from Northeastern University and received a master's degree in education from Boston College. She is a teacher at Atlantic Junior High School, North Quincy. Mr. Spencer attended South Shore Vocational Technical School and Northeastern University. He is a field service engineer with Russelectric, Inc., Hingham. A Feb. 14, 1981 wedding is planned.

Aerobics, Slimnastics Classes At Houghs Neck Center

Pre-registration is being conducted at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., for aerobic dancing and slimnastics classes to be conducted by Beth Richardson in January.

Aerobics, choreographed movements set to music, will be held Tuesday and Thursdays, at 10:30 a.m. beginning Jan. 13, and Wednesdays and Fridays 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. beginning Jan. 14.

The one hour classes, which will run for 12 weeks, promote cardio/vascular fitness, endurance, muscle tone and coordination.

Slimnastics, exercise done to music to improve muscle tone and stretch muscles, will begin Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 9:30 a.m. The classes are 45 minutes long.

All classes are limited in size.

For more information on class fees and registration, call Patricia Riden at 471-8251.

'Traumatic Time'

Task Force To Aid Auditor On First Prop 2½ Budget

Mayor Tobin plans to borrow at least four officials from other city departments and set up a task force to help Auditor Charles L. Shea with the 1982 budget, the first under Proposition 2½.

"The physical and mental demands that will be placed on the auditor during this traumatic time are too much for any one man," said the Mayor.

"We plan to establish this new department under the auditor temporarily for perhaps 60 to 90 days."

Included in the new department are Dennis E. Harrington, assistant solicitor; Albert F. Sheehan, a researcher in the solicitor's office; William Grindlay of the Police Department; and Thomas Burke, the Mayor's executive secretary.

If a fifth wheel is needed, said Tobin, it will be Joseph McLaughlin of the Planning Department.

All will be paid by their regular departments, the Mayor said.

Harrington will be used to research the legal aspects of Prop 2½, said Tobin, and Grindlay, who served as budget coordinator under Mayor Walter J. Hannon, will assist with figures.

Sheehan, Burke and possibly McLaughlin will act as liaisons with the various city departments while the budgets are being hammered out under the limits of Prop 2½.

"We are going to need a team effort to meet the constraints that have been placed on us," said Tobin.

The Tobin administration estimates that some $15 million will be lost from the 1982 Quincy tax levy as the city makes its initial effort to trim the levy to 2.5 percent of full valuation.

John S. Reidy To be Sworn In As Attorney

John S. Reidy of Quincy recently passed the Massachusetts Bar Examination and will be sworn in as an attorney Monday, Dec. 22, at New Court House, Boston.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Reidy Sr., of 211 Whitwell St., he will also soon be sworn in as assistant district attorney in the office of Essex County District Attorney Kevin M. Burke.

Reidy was graduated from Boston College Law School in June. During the summer of 1979, he was a summer associate for the law firm of Akin, Gump, Hauer and Feld of Dallas, Texas.

He was also a legal intern in the Government Bureau of Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti's office during the academic year 1979-1980.

Reidy is a cum laude graduate of Dartmouth College where he was a defensive back on the 1973 Ivy League champions football team.

While at Dartmouth, he participated in the Tuck program and received a citation for educational work in an underprivileged area in Oakland, Ca. He taught mathematics and English and tutored disadvantaged Hispanic students in a junior high school.

In Oakland, he also worked for the Volunteer Bureau of Alameda County. He interviewed convicted criminal offenders and placed them with civic organizations to do volunteer work in place of paying fines or serving a jail sentence.

Reidy is a 1972 graduate of Boston College High School where he was a member of the National Honor Society and played on the varsity football team.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

DON'T LET YOUR TREE KILL YOU

You can almost count on reading it in the headlines every Christmas season. "Family dies in X-mas tree-caused fire." Don't let it be you. Here are some safety suggestions for lighting your indoor tree.

Make sure your lights carry the UL (Underwriters Laboratories) label on the package to insure safety from the start.

Do not overload circuits. If your circuit won't take the extra burden, try more than one. Never replace a fuse with one of a higher amperage - the lights may go on but you also run the risk of fire.

Drape wires on tree so that lights fall between branches and not on them. Position bulbs so that they touch needles as little as often. Be sure any artificial tree you buy is flame retardant.

Finally, always disconnect lights when the family is asleep or away from the house.

$10 Smoke Detector Saves 4 Lives In S. Quincy Fire

A $10 smoke detector, triggered at 4:22 a.m. Saturday, is credited with saving the lives of Joseph M. Aristide and his family from a fire in their home at 13 Payne St., South Quincy.

The family, including Aristide, his wife, Beverly, and their sons, Michael 20, and Bradley 19, had fled the fire safely in their night clothes by the time firefighters had arrived.

"This is another case of smoke detectors saving lives," said Deputy Chief Carl Valenti, head of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

"At that hour of the morning a fire could gain tremendous headway before it is discovered. The smoke was so heavy that firefighters had to use masks to fight the fire."

Aristide said the sound of the detector awoke his wife whose screams alerted the rest of the family. He and his wife went out the back door; their sons the front door.

The fire started in a basement laundry room, Valenti said, possibly from a defective electrical extension cord. He estimated damage at about $4,000.

Aristide, whose ownership of a nursing home has made him fire-conscious, said he installed two smoke detectors in his home two years ago.

"They only cost $10 apiece and they really saved us," he said. "Sunday I went out and bought two more."

Gillis Seeks To License Garage, Yard Sales

Those garage and yard sales that never seem to end are starting to bug City Clerk John Gillis.

Gillis, who is also chairman of the Licensing Board, filed a resolution with the City Council Monday night that would require a $5 license fee for the conduct of such a sale.

The license would be limited to two days on the premises where the licensee resides.

Furthermore, only personal property owned by the licensee or his family could be sold and only two sales would be permitted in any one year.

"Some of these so-called yard sales are getting out of hand," said Gillis. "We've got to do something to control them."

Priority Mail Suggested For Late Shoppers

If you're Christmas shopping and haven't mailed your packages yet, there is still a reliable way to speed your gifts to their destination before Christmas. The U.S. Postal Service notes.

Priority Mail is the ideal service for last-minute mailers who want prompt delivery at a relatively low cost, according to Boston Postmaster Philip L. Sullivan.

Priority Mail affords first-class handling for packages weighing over 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds. Priced slightly higher than Parcel Post, Priority Mail offers next-day delivery up to 150 miles from the post office of mailing, and delivery within three days anywhere in the United States during the Christmas season.

Priority Mail can be sent from any post office, and can be insured up to $400. Customers interested in this service should contact any post office for further details.

Quincy Quiz

There are four winners in this week's Quincy Quiz.

Earning Quincy Sun T-shirts are Harriet Goldman of 666 Furnace Brook Parkway, West Quincy and Arnold Levine of 150 Plymouth Ave., West Quincy.

Quincy Sun bumper stickers will be awarded to Donald Unanitte, 10 Beebe Rd., Germantown and Mrs. Mary Zdanbauskis, 15 Dittmar St., North Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site?
2. In what section of the city is the Adams School?
3. In what year was the original granite section of City Hall Constructed?
4. Quincy District Court was formerly located on Coddington St., Quincy Center. What is the former courthouse now used for?
5. What are the two MDC roadways in Quincy?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Headquarters for the Stop & Shop Company will be located in the Quincy Center Plaza office building.
2. Quincy Bay Inn is located in the Atlantic or North Quincy section of the city.
3. Residents are selected for jury duty by the City Council.
4. The Woodward School for Girls recently received its official accreditation.
5. The president of Quincy Cooperative Bank is John R. Herbert.

Lennon 'A Believer'

Slain former Beatle John Lennon received a special tribute at the 11 a.m. folk Mass at St. John's Church, Sunday.

Fr. Daniel Graham recited some of the lyrics from Lennon's "Imagine," a song which asks people to imagine what the world would be like if there "were no possessions, nothing to kill or die for" — just "people living life in peace."

Fr. GRAHAM

The folk group then softly echoed some of the lyrics.

Said Fr. Graham of Lennon: "We don't know if he was a Christian, but he certainly was a believer."

ALSO DURING THE same folk Mass, parishioners gave Fr. Joseph Byrne a rare tribute — a standing ovation — after his sermon.

Fr. BYRNE

In recognition of the ordination of Quincy's David D'Olimpio and Lawrence Russo by Humberto Cardinal Medeiros at St. John's Saturday, Fr. Byrne spoke on what being a priest meant to him.

His words were so personal and full of feeling that parishioners stood and applauded.

IT MAY TAKE awhile for history to rate him, but as far as Carmela Lynch of Glenview Rd., Quincy Point is concerned, Jimmy Carter is a great president.

Mrs. Lynch, who worked for Carter in his unsuccessful re-election campaign recently received a note from the White House signed by Carter. It said:

"Thank you for your kind message of support. I appreciate your confidence as well as your friendship. Rosalynn joins me in sending you our warm best wishes."

Mrs. Lynch, a housewife, says: "I was very sorry to see him lose. I think he is a great president."

CARTER

DURING A LULL in Monday's City Council meeting, Councillor Joanne Condon moved over to sit and chat with Public Works Commissioner James J. (Pete) Ricciuti.

"I think we're in for a bad snow storm tomorrow," observed Council President Leo J. Kelly. "I see Mrs. Condon sitting with the Commissioner."

"I have six plows lined up already," said Mrs. Condon.

CONDON

AT A MEETING of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television, Chairman George Riley asked representatives of the nine applicants seeking the Quincy license how much time they would need to make their oral presentations to the committee.

The committee will be holding hearings Jan. 20, 22 and 24.

"My retention span is not great," Riley said. "I want to be able to separate the blarney from the facts."

MILESTONE: Max London of the Quincy Furniture store in downtown Quincy must have the Fountain of Youth bubbling in his backyard. Max just turned a young 99. He still puts in a day's work at the store and exercises. He doesn't drink but he does smoke three or four cigars a day.

LONDON

And to what does he owe his longevity? "Stay active and don't worry."

Max, incidentally, also likes to laugh and tell a joke. At the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Christmas social at the Quincy Neighborhood Club the other night, he told the one about the couple who were celebrating their 10th wedding anniversary.

The husband said he would take his wife out for the occasion but she insisted, "It has to be someplace I've never been before."

"Okay," said he. "I'll take you to the kitchen."

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Most of us have two chances of becoming wealthy — slim and none."

Brownell Commended For MBTA Reform Help

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The MBTA is again running, and several significant reforms are now law. Among the reforms are: personnel cost controls that give management the right to assign, promote and discharge employees, set productivity standards, assign overtime, and hire part-time workers; retaining control over the MBTA budget for district cities and towns; and a prohibition of automatic cost-of-living clauses in contracts.

The number of organizations which worked very hard for these reforms would like to publicly thank Rep. Thomas Brownell for the assistance given during the difficult struggle to enact key management and fiscal reforms that were part of the bill filed by Representative David Cohen and Michael Barrett.

In helping to clamp down on the MBTA's wasteful spending, Rep. Brownell has performed well for the district and the Commonwealth, since residents both inside and outside the district are taxed to pay the MBTA's deficit.

Enjoyed Vaudeville Show At Wollaston Theater

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was one of the very fortunate people to visit the Wollaston Theater on Dec. 10th to see "Roy Radins Vaudeville 80" live show.

Mr. Geo. Savalas was the superb M.C. for 2 hrs. of pure enjoyment.

The Ink Spots and the Drifters received a standing ovation that was well deserved.

The Marvelettes, the peppy Serendipity Singers, Loretta Long, and as always Tiny Tim, were better than any record or T.V. program you could ever see.

Donna Jean Young a stand up comic, was a very talented lady who knew just how to tickle your funny bone.

As you can tell I spent a completely satisfied evening, as I'm sure a lot of people did. I very much look forward to their return to Quincy next year.

300 Rescued From Obscurity

New Index Lists Quincy's Architectural Treasures

Everyone is familiar with the John and John Quincy Adams Birthplaces, those red-painted -- er, stone and white-painted old farmhouses at 133 and 141 Franklin St., South Quincy.

But how many know about the Joseph Crane House across the road at 126 Franklin St.?

It was built in 1834 as a residence and shop by Joe Crane, the bootmaker, a sixth generation descendant of Henry Crane, who settled in Dorchester in 1642.

The Crane House is one of some 300 buildings in Quincy that are being rescued from obscurity in a newly compiled index of historically and architecturally significant structures.

It was done over a period of a year by Nancy Derene, a graduate architectural student at Harvard, with an $8,000 grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

The results fill three loose-leaf volumes, each larger than the Boston telephone book.

It says of the Crane House: "Its clapboard walls, clean unhampered lines, simple double-hung windows and double central entrance are the essence of the extreme simplicity and dignity of the Cape Cod house."

"The purpose of the index is to see just what we have out there," says Robert Luongo of the Planning Department, who has custody of the volumes.

"Also if we want to nominate any of our buildings for the National Register we have to have it in our inventory."

"The buildings were chosen for their architectural or historical significance. Historically, they must have had something to do with the great figures or events in the city's history."

You'd be surprised at the significance of some of the most modest and unassuming structures in all sections of the city.

For instance, the "builder's Victorian-style" house at 41 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston, is not only a good example of "the symmetrical two-bayed wooden sided turn of the century builders home which is found in the Wollaston area."

It is also the birthplace of (Cont'd on Page 14)

JOSEPH CRANE HOUSE at 126 Franklin St., South Quincy, built in 1834, represents the 'essence of the extreme simplicity and dignity of the Cape Cod house.'

GRANITE HOUSE at Willard and Robertson Sts., West Quincy, is a 'rare example of domestic architecture in stone so important to Quincy's industrial background and identity.'

SPARGO HOUSE at 115 Roberts St., West Quincy, once contained the print shop where William C. Spargo published his Quincy Daily Telegram from 1909 to 1927.

Teachers Reject Temporary $300 Raise

Quincy teachers took a secret ballot vote on what to do next in their campaign to reject a temporary $300 salary hike and obtain a permanent $500 increase.

Kenneth J. Kelley, secretary of the Quincy Central Labor Union, said a number of the teachers had asked the American Federation of Labor how to go about organizing a union.

William H. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, which supports the temporary raise, said a poll taken of Medford citizens was against permanent increases.

But a committee of Quincy police and firemen noted that their counterparts in Somerville had received permanent hikes to $2,912 a year, adding only $1.40 to the tax rate.

The Somerville tax rate was $42.50 and the Quincy rate was $30.

U.S. ACCEPTS MANSION

Interior Secretary J. H. Krug accepted the deed to the Adams Mansion on Adams St., which is to become the Adams National Historic Site. It was owned by the Adams Memorial Society since 1927.

"There is probably no other home in the United States which has so long an association with American history and those who had an important part in shaping it," said Krug.

FOREIGN GRANITE PROSCRIBED

Officials of the International Association of Granite Cutters of America announced that Quincy granite cutters will not work on blocks of finished granite shipped from Scandinavia.

The local quarrymen denied that the Quincy hills were running out of granite, maintaining that there is enough to take care of the granite industry's needs for at least 100 years.

BROOKLINE BEATEN

Ed (Cookie) Needel scored 14 points and Bill Vargas threw in 13 as the Quincy High School basketball team defeated Brookline, 46-36, in its opener at Brookline.

Theodore (Ted) Olsen, 68, Former Red Sox Pitcher

A memorial service was held Sunday at the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Hingham for Theodore (Ted) Olsen, who lived in Scituate when he pitched for the Boston Red Sox 40 years ago.

He died Tuesday, Dec. 9, in South Shore Hospital at the age of 68.

A native of Quincy, he was graduated from Quincy High School in 1930, Thayer Academy in 1932 and Dartmouth College in 1936.

He pitched for the Red Sox from 1936 to 1940 and in later years coached Little League baseball in Hingham.

For many years, he was an insurance broker for the Summer's Agency of The New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., Boston.

Olsen was a member of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, the Old Colony Lodge of Masons and the Cohasset Golf Club.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Dorothy (McKenna) Olsen; three sons, David A. Olsen of Portsmouth, N.H., Peter G. Olsen of Marshfield, and Theodore M. Olsen of Weymouth; a brother, Roy C. Olsen of Sands Point, N.Y.; a sister, Mrs. Ruth Danforth of Scituate; and three grandchildren.

The Rev. Thomas Cleveland, interim rector, officiated at the memorial service.

Mrs. Jessie G. DeWitt, 85, Vaudeville, Circus Entertainer

A funeral Mass was said Tuesday at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, for Mrs. Jessie G. (MacDonald) DeWitt, a retired secretary and former vaudeville and circus performer.

Mrs. DeWitt, 85, died Dec. 12 at Quincy City Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Meriden, Conn., she was a dancer and drummer from 1913 to 1920 with the Buffalo Bill Circus, toured with the Harry Lauder Vaudeville circuit and shared a vaudeville act with her sister, Grace Tate.

She was a champion bass drummer of the Canadian Northwest in 1929.

More recently, she was a secretary with the Fairfield and Ellis Insurance Co. of Boston.

Wife of the late Frederick DeWitt, she is survived by a sister, Grace Tate of Quincy; a nephew, Allen G. Tate of Menlo Park, Calif. and a niece, Jessalyn Furguson of Wilton, Conn.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Charles E. Connor, 81, Retired Boston Edison Tender

A funeral Mass was said Wednesday morning for Charles E. Connor, 81, of Wollaston, retired auxiliary tender for the Boston Edison Company.

Mr. Connor died Dec. 15 in Quincy Nursing Home. Born in Boston, he was a longtime resident of Quincy.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rita (O'Donnell); a daughter, Marilyn Connor of Quincy, five grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral services were held at Bethany Congregational Church Dec. 16 for William A. Anderson, 79, of Braintree, a member of the Quincy School Committee from 1943 to 1951.

Mr. Anderson, retired president of the Wollaston Credit Union, died Dec. 13 at Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

Born and educated in New York, he was a long-time resident of Quincy before moving to Braintree 16 years ago.

He was retired estimator at the Fore River Shipyard, served for 30 years as president of Wollaston Credit Union and, at the time of his death, was still a member of the credit union's board of directors.

He was an unsuccessful candidate for City Council while serving on the School Committee.

He was a member of numerous local groups, including the St. Paul's Masonic Lodge, Rural Masonic Lodge, Quincy Comandery of Knights Templar, St. Stephen's Royal Arch Chapter, Temple Council of Quincy, Quincy Lodge of Elks, the John Adams Lodge of Eagles, Quincy Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star and a member of the Massachusetts Order of Consistory and the Bethany Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lillian (Mattison) Anderson; a son, William A. Anderson, Jr., of Tennessee; two daughters, Mrs. Eileen Shattuck of Maryland and Pauline Anderson of Braintree; five grandchildren and two great grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery.

Robert J. Fountaine, 54, Retired State Police Lieutenant

A funeral Mass was celebrated Dec. 16 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, for Robert J. Fountaine, 54, of North Quincy, a retired state police lieutenant.

Mr. Fountaine died Dec. 12 at home.

Born in Boston, he moved to Quincy 25 years ago.

At the time of his death, he was a contract assurance officer for the federal General Services Administration in Boston.

He retired in 1972 after 22 years with the state police.

A World War II veteran of the U.S. Army, he was a member of McKeon VFW Post in Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Mary E. (Skerry) Fountaine; two daughters, Lynne Fountaine of Rhode Island and Janice Fountaine of North Quincy; two sons, Stephen Fountaine of Texas and Christopher Fountaine of North Quincy; a brother, Russell P. Fountaine of Whitman; a sister, Frances McDermott of Weylesley and one granddaughter.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Central Students Collect Nearly 500 Toys For Koch Club

Nearly 500 toys have been collected by students from Central Junior High School for distribution by the Koch Club at Christmas.

School mayor Mark Denneen and ninth grade class president Suzanne Nolan led the campaign which was one of the best organized drives with the greatest number of participants at the school in many years.

Members of the school senate canvassed each roomer along with executive board members and pointed out the need for toys for the less fortunate.

Students stressed the need for toys and games in good condition and toys that could be repaired or made attractive and workable with a minimum of effort.

The toy drive was the first of the community service projects spearheaded by Denneen and the senate. The next drive will be for canned and packaged foods for the Christmas holidays.

Each roomer would collect food items that constitute a Christmas dinner. Money for a turkey will be collected.

Puppet Nativity Play At Squantum Church

Worshippers at the First Church of Squantum Sunday saw a Christmas nativity play performed by puppets on a 16-foot stage during the morning worship service.

The stage had been built at one side of the front of the sanctuary. Music for the play, "Jesus Is Born" was provided by the church Junior Choir and the Boys' Choir. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The brightly colored puppets were made and painted by teenagers from The Way Up, a local youth mission project sponsored by churches on the South Shore. Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor of First Church, is director of The Way Up.

The puppets were to be used later this week as young people from The Way Up carol at the homes of shut-ins and help with a Christmas party for patients at Long Island Hospital.

Participating in the play as puppeteers were Sandra Ahearn Mary; Steve Williams, Joseph; Bonnie Adams, angel; Mark Paul, shepherd; David Ahearn, shepherd boy; Steven Williams, Susan Mildram, Any Hite, sheep; Richard Williams, First Wise Man; David Young, Second Wise Man; John Smith, Third Wise Man; John Tuffo, star; and Tom Adams, horse.

Mandy Young, David Scott, Michael Stamos and Debbie

Stohlberg assisted the pastor in lighting the third candle in the Advent wreath.

Two other choirs, the Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir, combined to sing, "Go Tell It On The Mountain," a traditional Christmas spiritual.

The pastor read the congregation a Christmas story, "Angels and Other Strangers" by Katherine Paterson. His sermon was "The Gift That Reconciles."

John and Vera Malmgren were greeters for the morning. Steven Williams, Tore Wallin, Sandra Ahearn, Richard Williams, Paul Paulson and Mark Paul were ushers. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Gretchen Bumpus, Sue Sullivan and Valerie Gorill.

The service next Sunday morning at 10:15 a.m. will be followed by "Baby Jesus' Birthday Party" especially for the children. Children and adults are invited to bring either mittens for the Mitten Tree (which will be distributed to poor children at Christmas) or a can of food for the Pantry Shelf of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, as a birthday gift to Jesus.

There will be two services at the church on Christmas Eve, the Family Service at 7 p.m. and the traditional Candlelight Service at 11 p.m. Worshippers attending either service are asked to bring a bell or something to jingle.

Christmas Festival Celebration At First Parish Sunday

United First Parish Church (Unitarian), Quincy Center, will hold a Christmas Festival Celebration Sunday, the first day of winter, at 10:30 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The White Chapel Bell Ringers from Vermont, assisted by members of the church school, will be featured. There will also be music by Greg Buckley on the trumpet and the choir will sing.

Rev. Keith C. Munson's Christmas Sunday Sermon will be: "A Letter to a Friend" (Luke writes to his friend Theophilus in Rome).

A holiday celebration for singles will be held 4 to 7 p.m. in the parish hall. Carol singing and sociability will be featured.

11 P.M. Christmas Eve Service At Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church will hold its last Advent Service at 11 p.m. Christmas Eve. Church ministers Rev. Dr. Peter Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea will lead the worship and conduct the candle-lighting service.

All are invited to attend. The church is located at 310 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck.

White Gift Service At Wollaston Baptist

First Baptist Church of Wollaston will hold its "White Gift Service" Sunday at 5 p.m.

Parishioners are asked to bring gifts wrapped in white paper to the service for distribution to the 130 residents of Lakeville Hospital.

Patients at the hospital range from infants to 90 year olds. Gift suggestions for children are crayons, coloring books, Match

Box cars, puzzles, rag dolls. Adults and teenagers would appreciate hankies, white stretch socks, stamps, stationery, shaving cream, combs and brushes.

Each package should be tagged with the name of the article.

The service will also include a pageant, "The Christmas Story", by boys and girls of the church school.

A visit from Santa Claus will follow in Fellowship Hall. Refreshments will be served.

The Baptist Youth Fellowship will attend the gift program and then sing carols in homes and nursing homes.

St. John's Planning 'Relationships' Retreat

"Relationships" is the theme of a week-end retreat being sponsored by St. John's fellowship group Jan. 2, 3 and 4, 1981 at Oblate House, Natick.

Young adults ages 18 to 25 interested in sharing a week-end of faith and friendship are invited to attend. Carpool will leave St. John's at 7 p.m. that Friday and return by 5 p.m. Sunday.

MBTA Promises Bus Shelter On Quincy Ave.

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli has announced that the MBTA has agreed to install a new plexiglass bus shelter on its Quincy Ave. near Faxon Commons within 30 days.

The bus stop serves some 1,200 people who live in Faxon Commons apartments, more than 300 who live in Presidential Estates and more than 800 in the senior citizen complex at 1000 Southern Artery.

"The residents who depend on public transportation now do not have any shelter from the weather," said Cerasoli in a letter to MBTA director Paul Means.

"A bus shelter would be very important to these people, especially in adverse weather conditions."

actress Ruth Gordon.

It was built before 1896 during the Wollaston building boom when George Pinkham and his Wollaston Land Associates were offering three years' worth of free passes to Boston on the Old Colony Railroad to home buyers.

The two-family home at 115 Roberts St., West Quincy, built in 1902, is a fine example of the Queen Anne-style and it also once housed the print shop where William G. Spargo published his Quincy Daily Telegram from 1909-27.

The rectory of Most Blessed Sacrament Church at 1000 Sea St., Houghs Neck, is an example of the "Eclectic-style." It is made up of two buildings that were joined together in 1911.

The index calls it representative of the "Houghs Neck spirit of reapplying usable buildings for new functions."

This sort of thing was done from the earliest days in Houghs Neck "when the poor (and creative) removed portions of old sailing vessels and made lean-tos and homes with the salvaged pieces."

The so-called Granite House at the corner of Willard and Robertson Sts., West Quincy, built in 1904 with an exterior of granite, is an example of the "vernacular style."

The index calls it "an interesting and rare example of domestic architecture in stone, so important to Quincy's industrial background and identity."

Other buildings of architectural or historical significance include:

The Fore River Clubhouse at 16 Nevade Rd., Quincy Point, built in 1916 and "an asset to the people of Quincy because of its use for many years as a social center."

The triple-decker at 163 Liberty St., South Quincy, built in 1911 and identified as a common building form of the early to mid 1900's.

The Lamb Building at 1631 Hancock St., a fine example of 20th Century commercial architecture.

Faxon House, now the detox center at City Hospital, which was built in the Federal style as a nurse's residence in 1890.

The Wollaston Fire Station, 1900, an example of the "Italianate style."

The Merrymount Farm-house at 180 Sea St., corner of Samoset St., which was probably built by John Quincy Adams in the 1830's.

The Boston Gear Works in Wollaston (1909) and the Montclair School (1912).

County Mounties Seek Award Nominations

The County Mounties are accepting nominations from the general public for the annual William B. (Pete) Dooley Award of Merit.

The award was started two years ago to recognize an outstanding performance by a person associated with law enforcement signifying the value of the horse in public safety.

Sgt. Pete Dooley, for whom the award is named, spent several decades as a member of the Boston Police Mounted Unit. He died last month.

The County Mounties is an organization of citizens interested in the use of horses for public service. It is based in West Quincy.

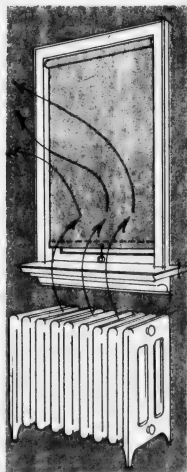

Nominations for the Dooley award should be sent to the Massachusetts County Mounted Patrol, The Somerset, 400 Commonwealth Ave., Boston 02215.

Red Cross Clearance Sale Saturday

The Greater Quincy Chapter will hold a clearance sale Saturday, Dec. 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at its office at the old Central Junior High School, 538 Washington St., Braintree.

In planning for its move to a new location in Weymouth, the Chapter needs to sell many articles of value, but which the Red Cross can no longer use.

Dishes, dishes, wicker baskets, thermos jugs, pots and pans, pitchers and other items will be available.

Proceeds from the sale will help the Red Cross chapter finance its relocation expenses. The American Red Cross is a voluntarily funded organization that derives its operating monies from donations through the United Way and its own fundraising activities.

The public should enter the Red Cross Office by using the rear entrance to the school and going downstairs to the office in the lower level.

First Parish Christmas Party Saturday

The congregation of United First Parish Unitarian Church, Quincy Center, will hold its annual Christmas Party, Saturday.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a pot-luck supper organized by Lillian Dashner.

Entertainment will be at 6:45 p.m. with an appearance by the White Chapel Bell Ringers from Vermont. The bell ringers will present traditional Christmas music, teach children in the audience to play a carol on the bells, and lead everyone in singing carols.

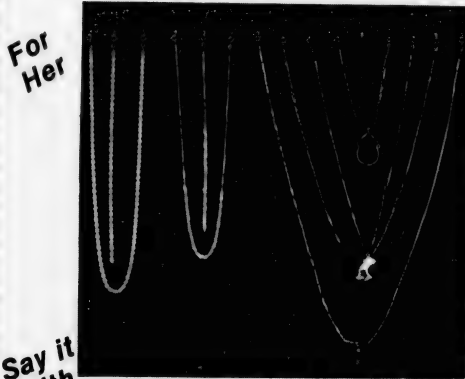

Santa will make an appearance with a small remembrance for each child.

7 Plans Could Close 5-14 Schools

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Anywhere from five to 14 Quincy schools could be closed next September under the seven reorganization plans presented to the School Committee.

The Gridley Bryant and Cranch Schools are slated to be closed under all seven plans while the Lincoln Hancock and Montclair Schools are the only elementary schools guaranteed to remain open next year.

The plans presented by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon provide a wide range of alternatives in terms of school uses, number of grades at each school and number of buildings.

The plans are:

Plan 1 -- Would keep the school system virtually as it is today, but close the Adams, Beechwood Knoll, Bryant, Cranch and Pollard Schools. Quincy Point Junior High would cease to exist, with the entire building becoming the Daniel Webster elementary school. The system would retain 13 K-6 (kindergarten through grade 6) schools, four junior highs and three high schools as they now exist.

Plan 2 -- Would close eight schools, the Bryant, Cranch, Atherton Hough, Mass Fields Pollard, Quincy, Willard and Wollaston.

The plan would provide for 10 elementary schools, grades K-5; the present five junior highs, grades 6-8 and the three high schools, all handling grades 9-12.

Plan 3 -- Would close nine schools, the Adams, Beechwood Knoll, Bryant, Cranch, Mass Fields, Parker, Quincy, Point - Webster and Wollaston.

Atlantic Junior High School would become an elementary school, handling grades 1-6. North Quincy High School would become a six-year school for grades 7-12.

The remainder of the school system would feature 10 other elementary schools, of grades K-5; three junior high or "middle" schools, for grades 6-8 and Quincy High and Quincy Vocational Technical School, handling grades 9-12.

Plan 4 -- Would close 10 schools, the Adams Beechwood Knoll, Bryant, Cranch, Mass Fields, Pollard, Quincy, Snug Harbor, Willard and Wollaston.

The plan would include eight elementary schools, grades K-4; five "middle" schools, grades 5-8 and the three high schools, all for grades 9-12.

Plan 5 -- Also closing 10 schools, but would close the Parker School instead of Snug Harbor.

Quincy Point Junior High would also close, with the entire building becoming the Daniel Webster elementary school.

Somewhat similar to Plan 4, it would provide for eight elementary schools of grades K-5, four middle schools of grades 6-8 and three high schools, grades 9-12.

Plan 6 -- Includes the unique feature of a city-wide kindergarten center which would be located at the Pollard School.

Eight "grammar schools" of grades 1-8 would be established, at the city's five junior highs, the Lincoln Hancock, Snug Harbor and Montclair Schools. The 13 other elementary schools would close. The three present high schools would remain in operation.

Plan 7 is similar, but eliminates the kindergarten center. "Grammar schools" for grades K-7 would be established at the same eight schools listed in Plan 6. All other elementary schools would close.

The three high schools would accommodate grades 8-12.

QJC Receives Accreditation

Quincy Junior College has received full accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC), announces President Dr. Edward Pierce.

Notification was received Dec. 5 at the annual meeting of the NEASC in Boston, he said.

A team of college educators visited the school in October, 1980 to meet with QJC faculty and staff, School Committee members School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and other community leaders.

"The report of the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education commended the college for its commitment to a clear mission for community service, programs of study appropriate to its objectives and constituency, its response to special student needs for orientation, counseling, and other services, and the evident concern on the part of the faculty and administration for the best interests of the individual student," said Pierce.

Napoli Pizzeria

Napoli Pizzeria, of 1570 Hancock St. Quincy, which has been satisfying the taste buds of thousands of South Shore clients for the last 18 years, with its scrumptious Neapolitan pizza, now introduces a new exciting product: "The Sicilian Pizza".

This pizza is prepared with Napoli's own daily made fresh dough, tomatoes and cheese. Its flavor may be enhanced with freshly chopped green peppers, mushrooms, onions, or any other condiment listed. The "Sicilian", unlike its Neapolitan counterpart, is thick and rectangular and usually cut into 9 or 12 squares.

At $5.00 (tax included) per pizza the "Sicilian" is a great, nutritional, inflation fighting meal for a family of 4 to 6, anyday of the week.

Prop. 2½ Brings School Dilemma

Mrs. Toland, "its impact is so great."

"If we're going to have to find $8.5 million, and maybe more, it's going to have to come out of salaries. And if we're going to have larger classes and a higher pupil-teacher ratio, we're going to have to consolidate classes into fewer buildings," she said.

"Laying off 226 teachers was a shock," she added. "I didn't realize it would have to be that many."

"The kids are the ones that are going to get hurt," commented member Francis Anselmo, who termed the possible cuts "a detriment and a surferance to the school system."

"We'll do what we have to do," said Anselmo. "If we have to close schools, we'll close schools, because we have only one guideline—the amount of money available."

Anselmo disagreed with those who talk of "cutting fat" from the school system and "getting back to basics."

"You just can't subsist with the Three R's and a sense of discipline," he said. "We have to give our children a broader education and a broader opportunity. Our society demands that."

"You know, I'm 82 years old and I hear people talk about the 'good old days,' but they weren't so good. We can never go back."

Committee member Joan Picard said she had been ill and unable to review budget information presented to the committee by Credon.

"I don't think it would be fair for me to comment right now," said Mrs. Picard.

Sullivan noted that while the school budget is 42 percent of the overall city budget, Tobin is asking that the school system take more than half of the city's $15 million cut.

"If he (Tobin) is asking us to go beyond the 42 percent, I think he's being somewhat unfair," said Sullivan.

"I assume we're being treated fairly," said Mrs. Toland, "but I haven't seen the formula he's using to come up with that figure. I'd like to see it in black and white."

At last Wednesday's meeting, Tobin promised to protect the schools from unnecessary cuts.

"I will not allow politics or a single politician to destroy the school system. Nobody is going to use the school system as a scapegoat," said the mayor.

Smoke Detectors Must By Jan. 1

itself was found in a kitchen cupboard with worn out batteries.

On Feb. 1, 1978 four adults died in a Nashville, Tenn. rooming house fire. It happened at night. There was no battery in the smoke detector.

On Sept. 20, 1978, a mother and three children died in their mobile home in Bear Creek, Ala. A smoke detector had been unplugged to allow connection of a fan.

In Peabody, Aug. 30, 1979, four adults died in a fire shortly after midnight. Two victims were found in a closet; two were found in their bedrooms. A smoke detector was found in its package in a bedroom closet. Fire officials believe that a second smoke detector which had been located on a bedroom ceiling could have saved lives if it had been located on the ceiling outside the bedroom.

By Jan. 1, all homes in Quincy must be equipped with smoke detectors on all floors including the basement.

Many residents already have the alarms. But proper installation and maintenance is another problem, according to Lt. Robert J. Kelley of the Fire Protection Bureau.

"We have gone into houses where there's been a fire and seen detectors with the cover off and battery removed," he said. "It's a real problem."

Marion Cole, a spokeswoman for the National Fire Protection Association, said there are no statistics available on the extent of the problem. But she checked into back issues of "Fire Journal", the company magazine, and came up with many tragic examples, such as those referred to above.

Interviews recently with people on Hancock St. showed that some local residents do pull the battery to stop false alarms in their detectors.

Out of 10 interviewed, nine already had smoke alarms in their homes, and all had experienced false alarms. Fanning the device with a newspaper or towel ended false alarms in 30 seconds to two minutes for all but two residents.

"We got the detector from our nephew," said Barbara Kemp of Quincy. "He said blow in the chamber if there's a false alarm. We tried it and it didn't stop the alarm. We found we had to undo the battery."

Asked if she ever went to sleep with the battery undone, Mrs. Kemp shook her head yes.

Richard Norton summed up his view of the incident in the Monroe Rd. rooming house: "Once you know it's not a real fire, you turn your attention to getting back to sleep."

Lt. Kelley pointed out that the smoke detector law can do nothing to protect those who disable their alarms.

He said the fire department will inspect the location and condition of smoke detectors upon request. He said it cannot force anyone to have a home inspection.

State Fire Marshall Joseph A. O'Keefe said local fire chiefs are charged with enforcing the smoke detector law in towns and cities that accepted the optional state law.

The city council accepted the law last year and the mayor approved it.

Asked how fire chiefs can enforce the law if they can enter homes only with the owner's consent, he said, "It can't be strictly enforced."

"But the law is not to scare people or force them to do anything," he added. "It's more of an awareness program. You need something to wake you if fire breaks out at 3 or 4 a.m."

The two common types of detectors are photoelectric and ionization.

Photoelectric models are recommended near the kitchen because they are less prone to going off when the bacon gets burned.

They also respond better to the smoldering upholstery and carpet fires that are the leading cause of death in residential fires.

Consumers Union recommends using both types in the home. It called the photoelectric type "a must in any home installation" despite the higher price.

CU urges weekly tests of the units with actual smoke.

Both Lt. Kelley and Marion Cole advise close attention to manufacturer's installation and maintenance instructions.

Lt. Kelley said families should plan and practice their fire escape routes, and agree on a meeting place outside the building.

He recommended smoke detectors as especially meaningful Christmas presents.

4-0-2 Record Sterling Wins 8th Grade Football Championship

Sterling Junior High's eighth grade football team won the city championship with a 4-0-2 record, giving Jerry Quintiliani the title in his first year as eighth grade coach. "Coach Q" as he is called, moved up from the seventh grade team and he credits the fine season to having the same team for a second season.

"The players continued to learn and improve from where they left off last season," he said.

The squad comprised 33 players and Quintiliani said some new faces and a healthy Darron Tucker made the difference.

The players elected Gerry Frazier and Tucker as their co-captains.

Sterling scored 74 points to only 20 for the opposition in edging Atlantic (3-0-3) for the city crown.

The leading scorers were Frazier with 32 points, Tucker with 20 and Mike Draicchio with 18. Pat Calabro was the top offensive lineman and P.J. Duggan, brother of Quincy High's outstanding captain, Fran Duggan, was the best defensive lineman.

On Jan. 28 at the fall sports assembly Quintiliani will present the following awards: Most Valuable Player trophies to Frazier and Tucker, and the Most Improved Player trophy to Draicchio. Each player will receive a certificate.

Track Club Wins 4 Medals In Junior Olympics

Eleven members of the Quincy Track Club took part in the national Junior Olympics cross-country championships last Saturday in Cheyenne, Wyo.

Although hampered by the 6100-foot altitude and lack of oxygen, Quincy runners took four medals, a club high in Junior Olympic competition.

The Quincy girls' 11-12 team, which won the New England and regional championships, placed seventh in the nationals. Karen Rodgers, who was figured by many to win the girls' 10 and under competition, led most of the way but felt the effects of the lack of oxygen halfway through the 3000-meter course and fell back to 23rd but still won a medal. Mark Whitney placed 86th in the boys 10-and-under race.

In girls' 11-12, Terri Rodgers placed 18th, Nancy Sullivan 24th, Sue Cutran 77th, Mary Beth Bonner 104th, Lorrie McNeill 108th, Tracy Fostello 109th and Tracy Wilson 116th. Tracy, normally the team's number three runner, was ill and was lucky to finish. In boys' 11-12, Harry Morash placed 97th.

The surprise of the day for Quincy was Mary Crehan, who placed 13 in girls' 17-18, highest of the day for the QTC.

She was running 25th most of the 5000-meter course, conserving her strength, and put on a fast finishing kick to overtake 11 runners.

The top 25 in each division won medals.

"We would like to thank all those who helped to sponsor the club and meet the great financial commitment of the trip," Coach Jeff Hennessy said.

"We would like to extend special thanks to Mrs. Pat Bonner for chaperoning the team and to Jim Smith of Travel World of Braintree who accompanied the team," Hennessy said.

Quincy Opens With 'Best Front Court'

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's basketball team, the defending Suburban League champion, opened its season Tuesday night at Brockton with what Coach Joe Amorosino called "my best front court."

The Presidents will host Newton North Friday night at 8 at the Vo-Tech gym.

Quincy, 17-4 a year ago, will play in the Hingham Christmas Tournament Dec. 26, facing Weymouth North at 6:30 on the 26th, while Hingham plays Brookline. The finals will be played on Dec. 27.

The Presidents then will play in the Portsmouth, N.H., Christmas Tournament Dec. 29 and 30, facing Winnacunnet in the first game at 7 p.m. on the 29th.

Last season Quincy actually finished second to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the state champion, in the league, but the league officials voted to drop Cambridge to last place when it was charged with using an ineligible player, and named Quincy the league champion.

The Presidents were shocked by North Quincy, 50-49, in the opening round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Amorosino has four varsity returnees, 6-4 Steve Priscella, a first team league all-star and a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic last season; 6-5 Kurt MacDonald, the team's leading rebounder; 6-2 Shawn Burnes and 5-10 P.J. Fay.

"This is a fine nucleus and all four boys are excellent players," Amorosino said. "Priscella should be truly outstanding this year. He played brilliantly last season."

Amorosino's big find this year was 6-5 Sean Burke, Quincy's brilliant end in football, who is playing high school basketball for the first time.

"Sean, a senior, has great hands as he showed in football," Amorosino said. "He played summer ball, is very strong and will be great under the boards. He is a big reason why I consider this my best front court."

The rest of the players are up from the junior varsity. Gary DiNardo (5-10) saw some action with the varsity and should help this season.

Peter Papile (6-1) and Dan Whyte (6-0) played well for the jayvees a year ago, while John Cascarano, Al Memmolo, and Jeff Morrison also played a good ball.

This is a senior squad with Morrison and Papile the only juniors and the rest seniors.

Amorosino again has Doug MacFarlane and John Franceschini as his assistant. Ed Goldberg is manager and Andrea Brown the scorer.

Illness, Injuries Plague North

North Quincy's hockey team opened last night (Wednesday) against Quincy and Coach Kevin Lewis' big worry was how many players would be available.

Saturday at 7:50 p.m. the Raiders will host Hull in a non-league game at the Quincy Youth Arena and next Tuesday will be home to Newton North at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

"We have been hit hard by illness and injuries and many of the players have been missing practice," Lewis said. "They are slowly coming back, but I don't know how many will be ready for Quincy."

North had only a 3-12-1 Suburban League record and a 6-13-1 overall mark last year but the Raiders, with mostly underclassmen, lost several tough games.

Lewis had only seven seniors and only four of them played regularly.

"We have a lot of boys back from last year and when we get everyone back and are healthy, we should be competitive," Lewis said. "Our big question is in goal. I had one of the best in the league last year in Bob Tierney and he will certainly be missed."

North's first or "green" line is centered by veteran Robby McHugh, a two-year veteran and the fastest skater on the team, with Tom Lester at right wing and Mike McNiece at left wing.

The "red" line is centered by Billy Nee with Paul O'Sullivan, a three-year veteran, at left wing and Kevin Duff at right wing.

"These are two fine lines and we appear to be all set with them," the Raider coach said.

Another two-year veteran, Rich Reinhardt, centers the "blue and white" line with Steve Igo and Rich Stevens on the wings.

The "blue and gold" line has sophomore Mike Cullen at center and Fran McCormack and either Jim McGinnis, a three-year vet, or Don Reidy on the wings.

Capt. Mark Andrews, another three-year veteran leads the defensemen and should have an outstanding season. Scott Alberti, Bill Bradley, Tim Joy, Mark Tenney and sophomore Bob Lynch are the other defensemen.

Fighting it out for the goalie spot are senior Don Golden and junior Dan Newcomb. Both are inexperienced but are looking good showing improvement.

"We have two lines all set and if our third line comes through, we should be all right offensively," Lewis said.

"I still have to get our defensive pairings set and we still have a question in goal, but if we get our ill and injured players back, we should hold our own."

The North coaches see Brookline, the defending champion, as the team to beat again and feels Weymouth North and Brockton, the 2-3 teams last year, will be strong again.

The Raiders took part last Saturday in the Pilgrim Jamboree in Hingham, facing Randolph.

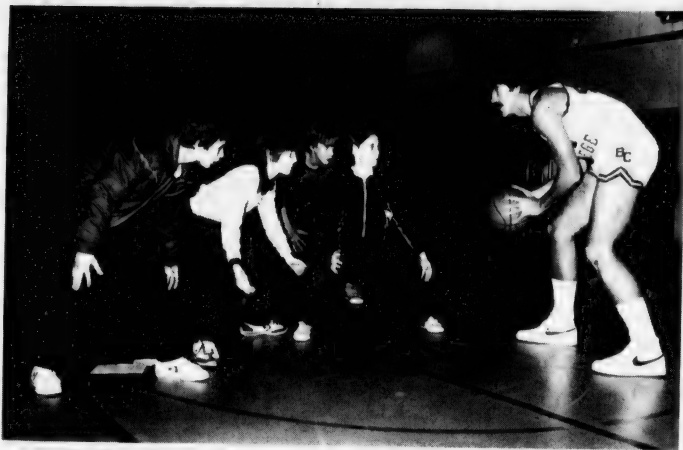

Playing with only half of its players, North bowed, 3-0, but Lewis was pleased with the work of Newcomb in goal and Lynch and Andrews on defense.

In another game in the jamboree Quincy edged Milton, 2-1.

Kevin Jago is back as Lewis' assistant coach.

Paul Connolly is the manager and Elizabeth McCormack and Nancy Gorman are the statisticians.

4 Varsity Starters Return At North

North Quincy's basketball team opened its season Tuesday against Weymouth North and Friday will play at Weymouth South at 8 p.m.

Next Tuesday North will host Revere at 7 in a non-league game.

Ed Miller's Raiders will play in a Christmas tournament Dec. 26 and 27 at Plymouth-Carver and on Dec. 30 at 2:30 will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the defending state champion.

Last season North finished 13-7, one win short of qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, but when Cambridge was charged with using an ineligible player, North was allowed in the tournament and proceeded to shock Quincy's Suburban League champs, 50-49, in the opening round. However, North fell to Braintree, 48-44, in the second round.

Miller has four returning varsity starters and one player who saw some varsity action.

Co-captains Mark Millane (6-4) and Paul Gill (6-0), lead the returnees and are outstanding players. Millane was one of the top scorers in the league and a top rebounder. Miller calls Gill "my quarterback," a speedy, aggressive player.

Paul Mallory (6-4) had an outstanding game in the big tournament victory over Quincy and Bob Bolster (6-1) played excellent ball all season. Rico MacTaggart (6-4) saw some varsity service and should do well this season.

One of Miller's key players is Chip Bunker, at 6-9 the tallest player ever at North and one of the jayvees' top players a year ago.

"Chip is a junior and should help us immeasurably under the hoop," Miller said. "he is a fine rebounder and a good shooter but may be a year away from being a truly outstanding player. But, it will be great having a real big man for the first time."

Others up from the junior varsity are Ray Mallory (6-0), Vic O'Leary (6-3), Brian McCarthy (6-4) and Steve Belcastro (6-0).

Wesley Paul (6-1) is a transfer from Quincy and sophomore John Phelan (5-8) will stay with the varsity. He follows in the footsteps of two brothers, Wink and Jed, at North.

"We have good depth and good overall depth," Miller said. "We have some good shooters and some excellent defensive players and we should be competitive."

Miller, a former North standout himself, has a new assistant in Rick DeCristofaro, former ninth grade coach. He replaces Paul Bregoli, who this season takes over as the girls' varsity coach.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Of all the teams in the National Football League, which one has gone to the Super Bowl the most times? ... Answer is the Dallas Cowboys, who've been to 5... The Cowboys made the Super Bowl following the seasons of 1970, 1971, 1975, 1977 and 1978... Next come the Pittsburgh Steelers and Minnesota Vikings who have been to the Super Bowl 4 times each.

It's a little-known fact that TWO current starting quarterbacks in the National Football League had fathers who were great runners in football... The father of Baltimore Colt quarterback Bert Jones is Dub Jones, who was a star halfback for the Cleveland Browns from 1948 to 1955... And the father of Dallas Cowboy quarterback Danny White is Wilford White, who led the nation in rushing in college football when he played for Arizona State in 1950.

Bear Bryant is the only football coach in history who's coached THREE different colleges in major bowl games... Bryant has coached at Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama, and taken all 3 of those schools to major bowl games.

I bet you didn't know... that COLEMAN'S has wearables for leisure, sports, cold weather, for the entire family. And, at prices that will save you money.

Connolly On B.U. Team

Tom Connolly of Quincy is a freshman defenseman on the Boston University varsity hockey team.

Connolly was a three-year defenseman at Don Bosco High, excelling in his senior year when he was named all-scholastic, all-Catholic Conference and was the League's Most Valuable Player. He captained the team last year.

"TJ is a very clever defenseman," Coach Jack Parker said. "He is equally adept at playing defense and then moving the puck out of the zone. He is a very good offensive defenseman."

Mariano Greets 50 Candidates

Veterans, Promising Sophs On Quincy Wrestling Team

Quincy High's wrestling team has won two successive Suburban League and South Sectional Division I championships and everything points to another highly successful season for the Presidents.

A year ago Carmen Mariano's team had a 17-3 regular season record and this season he has his largest turnout ever. The Presidents' energetic coach greeted 50 candidates, half of whom are promising sophomores, products of the city's excellent junior high programs.

Leading the Presidents are Co-Captains Michael Monahan (fourth in the state at 169 pounds last season) and John Herald (third in the state at 140).

Other veteran seniors are Al DiVincenzo (fourth in the state at 147), Ed Mackey (heavyweight), Jim Silox (169), John Madden (129/134), Greg Oriola (140/147), Joe Souza (134), Ed Ryan (121/129), John Carvello (129), Kevin McCormick (129) and Joe McClelland (121).

Juniors with varsity experience are Mark Picot (187), Jim Mullin (121), Peter Connolly (115), Steve Klaiman (115), David Silcox (129), Gerry McSharry (121/129) and Steve Ricci (157).

"We will be looking for strong contributions from all of them this year," Mariano said. "I've never seen anything like the crop of sophomores, it is just an outstanding group."

Joe Madden (107), Bill Eastwick (157), Al Carpenter (169), Paul Silcox (100), Michael Miller (129), John DePolo (121), Bill Rollins (147/157), Mario Venturi (121), Bill Marston (100), Allen Costigliola (107) and Glen Oriola (134) all come with outstanding junior high credentials and have been coming along well.

"The first-year talent just keeps coming, too," said Mariano.

Among them are juniors Ken MacDonald (121), Jim McCue (121) and John Taglieri (170) and sophomores Steve Johnston (129), Joe Harte (heavyweight), Jim Lennon (100), Kevin Mahoney (187), Charlie MacIsaac (100), Dan Pitts (heavyweight), Darren DeCoste (147), Shaun Wynn (129), Jamie Gravelese (heavyweight), Glen Ryan (121/129), Bob Willard (170), Walter Rosberg (140), John DeForge, Bob Clements, and Tom Barrett, all of whom show much promise.

"I'm not about to make any predictions, wrestling is too complex a sport to make guesses about, but I can say that, with the proper preparation and commitment, and with a minimum number of injuries, the sky is the limit for this team," Mariano concluded.

The Presidents opened their season Tuesday against Scituate and Saturday at 2 o'clock will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Brookline in a league triangular meet at the Vo-Tech gym.

Last Saturday they took part in a tournament in Lowell in which 370 schoolboy wrestlers participated. No official scores were kept, but Mariano expressed himself as "very pleased" with his team's showing.

3 Teams Battle For Playoff Spots In Adams Heights League

This is the final week of the first half in the Adams Heights Men's Club Bowling League, with three teams fighting it out for the top two positions, in which they will be eligible for the playoffs at the end of the year.

A battle for second place was waged last week with Bill Norton's team taking the runnerup spot by one point over Pete Neitz' team. Norton took only two points while Neitz' team took six points.

Neitz' team rolled the season's high single of 581 and the season's high three of 1590. Norton's team rolled the season's second high three of 1569.

This week first place Jack Casey's team will battle Norton for the top spot and Neitz' team will face Bob Lee's fourth place team.

The team standings: Casey, 74-38; Norton, 67-45; Neitz, 66-46; Lee, 56-56; Charlie Buckley, 52-60; Donnie Cahoon, 50-62; Frank Anderson, 45-67, and Arch Fulton, 38-74.

Reno Giudici rolled the season's high single of 157, Tom McKinnon had 143 and Chris Norton 142. Reno Giudici also had the weekly high three of 383, McKinnon had 368 and Casey 364.

Anderson rolled the second high weekly team single of 562 and Norton's team had 540. Casey's team rolled a 1560 three.

Reno Giudici has the season's high single of 157, Ritchie Collins has 153 and Sal McLeod 152. Anderson has the season's high three of 402, Collins has 394 and Neitz 387.

Neitz' team has the season's high single of 581, Anderson's team has 575 and Norton's team 547. Neitz' team has the season's high three of 1590, Norton has 1569 and Casey 1561.

The Top Ten: Collins, 111.3; John Giudici, 111.3; McKinnon, 111.1; Norton, 109.0; Fulton, 108.9; Reno Giudici, 107.5; Casey, 107.5; McLeod, 105.5; Anderson, 105.0, and Neitz, 103.5.

Koch, Shields Roll 339 In Men's League

Paul Koch and Mike Shields tied for top spot in the weekly "325" Club of the Koch Club Men's bowling league.

Each rolled a 339 while Tony Monti followed with 338, Paul Zambruno, 335; Frank Hoffman, 332; Bill Daniels, 329; Tony Alibrandi, 328, and Peter Alibrandi, 325.

Joe Keenan's team holds a comfortable lead with 51 wins and 29 losses followed by Mike Shields, 47-33; Al Mancuso, 45-35; Paul Koch, 41-39; Mike Doyle, 40-40; Steve Palumbo, 35-45; Tony Alibrandi, 31-49, and John O'Malley, 30-50.

Mike Shields and his teammates dominate the league with team and individual honors. Shields leads the league with an average of 111.1, holds the high three string total of 389 and high single string of 163 while his team has the best three string total of 1551 and top team single string of 566.

Shields, 111.1 in the top 10 scorers, is followed by Tony Monti, 108.5; Tony Alibrandi, 106.8; John O'Malley, 105.0; Frank Hoffman, 103.7; Peter Alibrandi, 103.5; Al Mancuso, 102.2; Dick Koch, Jr., 101.5; Joe Keenan, 101.2 and Steve Palumbo, 101.0.

Lombardi Team Rolls 470 In Koch Women's League

Barbara Lombardi and her teammates have taken over the top team single string in the Koch Club Women's Bowling League, rolling a 470 to best the Susan Batts' combines previous 467 high. However, the Susan Batts' team still holds the best three string total of 1354.

June Hillier leads the league in the average department with a score of 97.2 while others in the top ten are Debra Koch, 95.6; Gerry Caviechi, 93.3; Pat Murphy, 93.3; Edie Maher, 93.0; Susan Batts, 91.7; Maureen Robertson, 91.4; Linda Carpenter, 90.3; Adele Foley, 90.2, and Barbara Donelin, 89.9.

Susan Batts and her team lead in the standing with 48 wins and 16 losses and is followed by Kay Donelin, 44-20, Claire Fitch, 40-24; Charlene Josephs, 35-29; Ellen McAdam, 28-36; Barbara Lombardi, 24-40; Maureen Robertson, 22-42, and Barbara Donelin, 15-49.

Gerry Caviechi has the league's individual three string total top score of 321 while Lorraine Ryan has the best sole single string of 125.

Susan Batts has the greatest number of spares with 48 while Gerry Caviechi has the most strikes with 8.

The league bowls every Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys on Broad Street. Quincy and openings are available for permanent and spare bowlers in the league.

Fay was honored for his work as chairman of the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee, Mason for his work in cerebral palsy programs, Mrs. Oberg for long-time participation in the Quincy Historical Society and Mrs. Clarke for volunteer work in Quincy schools. The other eight recipients were members of the School Committee's citizens task force on school closings. (Quincy Sun Photo by Steve Grochowski)

Council Overrides Mayor's Veto Cab Fare Hike Becomes 'Constitutional Question'

What started out as a simple request for an increase in taxi fares a few weeks ago turned into a "real constitutional question" before the City Council Monday night.

The burning issue was this: Could the Mayor unveto his own veto?

The Council finally decided that he couldn't and voted 8-1 to override it, thus permitting Quincy cab companies to charge $1 for the first half mile and 20 cents for each ensuing one-sixth of a mile.

The Council passed the fare increase last month but the Mayor, noting that among the major users of cabs are senior citizens and people in need of medical care, promptly vetoed it.

He wanted to know how many senior citizens and handicapped use taxis in Quincy and he wanted to see copies of their testimony before the Ordinance Committee on the fare hike proposal.

He also wanted to know, he added, "which council blue-ribbon committee, if any, studied this proposal and made recommendations."

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. moved that the Council give the Mayor what he wanted but Daniel G. Raymond thought that the appropriate thing to do was to vote on the veto.

Councillor Francis X. McCauley noted that there had been a meeting of the Ordinance Committee on it and the Mayor's executive secretary, Thomas Burke, was there so why didn't Burke report what happened to his boss?

Councillor Joanne Condon suggested that the minutes of the Ordinance Committee hearing be sent to the Mayor and the cab companies supply him with further information.

"Why?" asked Raymond. "What can he do? How does the Mayor unveto a veto?"

Councillor James A. Sheets agreed.

"The Mayor has acted," he said. "How can we send it back to him and ask him not to veto it if he already has? We have a real constitutional question here."

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, brushing constitutional questions aside, moved to override the veto and the Council did, with only Raymond casting a vote to sustain.

City Clerk John Gillis said the new fares will go into effect as soon as they are advertised and the sealer of weights and measures can make the changes in the taxi meters, probably 10 days.

Historical Society Planning Christmas In Williamsburg

The Quincy Historical Society invites local residents to join them in a pre-holiday visit to "Christmas in Colonial Williamsburg, Va.," Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Dec. 20 to 22.

Members of the tour will depart Dec. 20, from Logan Airport and arrive in Williamsburg in the early afternoon. The area will be decorated with wreaths on the doors, Christmas trees, evergreen and holly and candles at the windows.

An escorted tour of the Colonial Williamsburg restored area is planned. There will also be an optional dinner at Chowning's Tavern, a typical alehouse of two centuries ago.

Sunday will be a free day to visit the decorated restored area and Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Collection. There will be an optional dinner at the King's Arms Tavern, specializing in 18th century southern dishes.

Monday's itinerary will include a visit to the restored area, optional brunch at the reconstructed 1765 Christiana Campbell's Tavern where George Washington ate, and departure from Williamsburg to Boston.

Lodging will be at the Williamsburg Hospitality House.

For more information, call the Quincy Historical Society at 773-1144.

Friday Deadline To Ask Santa Visit To Shut-ins

Deadline for parents to make arrangements for Santa's visit to shut-in children during the week-end is Friday, Dec. 19, announces Richard J. Koch, Executive Director.

The Koch Club of Quincy has arranged a series of visits by Santa to the residences of boys and girls confined to their homes year round.

Santa will be available for the special visits Saturday, Dec. 20 and Sunday, Dec. 21 between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. However, other arrangements may be made by the parents with a time more convenient for the family.

If the weekend is not convenient for the parents and child because of sickness or other reason, a special date and time may be selected for Santa's visit.

Only parents of the children may request the schedule of Santa's visit and those interested may contact Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Santa will arrive to visit with a special gift for each of the children in advance of his Christmas eve visit to the area.

The Santa Program is sponsored by the Koch Club on behalf of the children in the area who are unable to leave their homes and visit Santa during the Christmas Season. Started in 1957 for the children in Quincy, the program was later expanded to include Weymouth, Braintree and other neighboring communities and as requests were received from those areas, they were also accepted.

The Koch Club will honor all requests for a Santa Visit regardless of the distance provided that the boy or girl is confined to his or her home year round and the parents formally request the service.

Richard M. Morrissey and Thomas P. Koch are co-chairmen of the Santa Visitation Program now in its 24th year.

WEEK OF DECEMBER 18

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

Your attention focuses on career matters but overworking can get you exhausted. Pay strict attention to health needs. A conservative friend is suddenly liberated.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

A fascinating week. Positive thinking is potent and you're dynamite. Politics play part in your life. Extra care's essential when dealing with written word.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

Emphasis is on practical things in life—insurance forms, applications, resumes. Family member suddenly soars to cloud nine and you share in his/her joy.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

Minor difficulties of love will likely end—with a little help from your friends. Talents shine, but don't steal loved one's thunder. Social life is humming.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

People think you're too quiet, but fact is you're distracted—perhaps romantically. It's important you consult professional before making business moves.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Dedicate week to self-improvement—socially and academically. Budget needs review. Overdue news still doesn't arrive but the worst thing to do is worry.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Week marks beginning of period that accents partnership. Best work now is as part of a team. Tempers cool down. A little encouragement from you means lots to a newcomer.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

Despite time of year, week has a Valentine feeling, perhaps because heavy pressure is removed. Good week for joining club or running for elected post.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

There's positive feeling to the week. You're looking after your appearance and muddy problem is solved. Just don't neglect domestic obligations and other practical affairs.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

While important gains aren't realized, it's a week for making big plans. Family member may be touchy on weekend but last thing he/she needs is a lecture from you!

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

Life seems a little dull, right through weekend—then it explodes with activity. Focus is on money matters, if sharing expenses, check that you're receiving fair deal.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

One of the best weeks of the year. You're energetic and, especially in romance, you're lucky. Just stay optimistic and don't let downbeat types upset you.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Competitive, dependable and renowned for your warm sense of humor. You sometimes suffer from a communications problem—hearing what you want to. Heavy responsibilities ease by April. Personal goal undergoes major review during coming months.

Kelly's Pub Expansion Plan Ruling Delayed To Jan. 6

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The owner of Kelly's Pub and Grub will have to wait until next year for a License Board ruling on extension of the pub's license from 25-27 to 21-27 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

The matter was continued to Jan. 6, 1981 at Tuesday's License Board meeting after a local business and a development organization expressed opposition to the move.

Ward Councillor Joanne Condon also sent a letter to the board expressing concern over parking plans.

Atty. Richard Barry explained pub owner Peter Kelly would like to expand the business to the two vacant stores next to the establishment.

Barry said the new area would be renovated and seating capacity for the pub expanded from 49 to 106. The new area would be a cocktail lounge, with no entertainment, and an Old English motif.

Barry said there would be parking for 16 cars to the rear of a building across the street. He presented the board a petition with the names of 24 area businesses not opposed to the plans.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said there is no question Kelly has done a "magnificent job there" but the main consideration is adequate parking.

Joseph Doran, of Doran and Horrigan Realtors 19 Billings Rd., said he was concerned with the new areas close proximity to a five unit apartment building being established by the realtors.

Doran said the door to the new cocktail area would be within five feet of the apartments. He also said there wasn't adequate parking in the area.

Atty. Barry said his client would be willing to make that door an alarmed fire exit leaving the only entrance where it is now.

Andrew Walsh, president of the 70 member North Quincy Local Development Corporation, said his organization is trying to develop the area in an orderly way.

Walsh said the corporation is working on clearing up parking and other problems and Kelly's plan wouldn't help the situation.

He added the corporation has supported Kelly in other matters up to this point, and appreciates the improvements he's made to the area.

City Clerk John Gillis said Kelly has done "a wonderful job" with his establishment but that he has to satisfy Doran as well as residential abutters to the property.

Roller Rink Sought For Strand Theater

The Quincy License Board will recess for the holidays and will reconvene Tuesday, Jan. 6, to consider the following matters and any other business that may come before the commissioners:

- A request from the Strand Theatre, 12 Chestnut St., for a roller skating rink on one floor of the theatre.

- A request from Michael J. Minichello of Washington Tap, 609 Washington St., for a 2 a.m. closing.

- Noon openings on Sundays for the Boston Harbor Marina.

- Pinball machine and Lord's Day licenses for DIBOW Corporation, 119 Parkway.

Hancock Pool Closed Dec. 22 - Jan. 4

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool will be closed from Monday, Dec. 22, 1980 through Sunday, Jan. 4, 1981.

Swimming will resume at 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 5. The pool is being closed for maintenance work on the pool and locker room areas.

George Thompson Elected Weymouth Savings President

George H. Thompson of Weymouth was re-elected president of Weymouth Savings Bank at the 148th annual meeting of the corporation held recently.

Other officers elected were Dorothy G. Delano of Braintree and Norman J. Reilly of South Yarmouth, vice presidents and H. Winslow Bettinson of Braintree, clerk of the corporation.

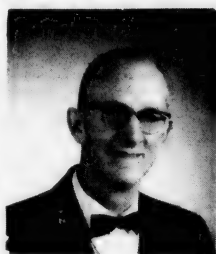

Re-elected to three-year terms as trustees were George H. Thompson and Elton B. Given, Jr. of Weymouth, Irving Gordon of Milton and Norman J. Reilly. Two new trustees elected to three-year terms: Donald Kent of Weymouth, WBZ meteorologist, and president of Solar Energy, Inc. and G. Caleb Marsh of Hingham, senior partner of Marsh-Sheehan, Inc., Bank Analysts and Consultants.

Thompson reported that "the records show in 1980 that Weymouth Savings Bank was the fastest growing savings bank in Massachusetts, with new deposits showing a 15-percent increase."

He added that "in 1980 the Weymouth Savings Bank was the highest earning savings bank in Massachusetts - number one in the state - based on recent statewide surveys compiled by the Mutual Savings Central Fund, Inc."

He also reported that the bank's assets now exceed $93 million and approximately $6 million was paid in dividends to depositors during the year.

Six new corporators were elected: Rev. Gary Blume, pastor of First Church of Weymouth; Herbert J. Clifford, partner and advertising director of Weymouth News & Gazette; Francis R. Frano, owner of Francis R. Frano CPA, P.C., Certified Public Accountants; Walter B. Heffernan, tax collector, Town of Weymouth; James B. Masella of Hingham, First Boston Corp. Investment Brokers; and Eric B. Remsen of Weymouth, general insurance agent for Remsen Insurance Agency, Weymouth and Needham.

Thompson announced that the newest branch office, The East Braintree Banking Centre, had a very successful year with deposits of over $4 million.

The bank also purchased the property adjoining the Bicentennial Branch office on Hunt Street, Weymouth and expects to be announcing plans for three new drive-up teller facilities soon.

The bank is presently negotiating for a new branch location on the South Shore.

4 Quincy Business Figures Among 12 Elected To Chamber Board

Four Quincy business figures have been elected or re-elected to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, announces President Paul MacElhinney.

Henry W. Bosworth, Jr., publisher of The Quincy Sun and The Hingham Journal, elected to a second three-year term.

John R. Herbert, president and chairman of the board of Quincy Cooperative Bank, elected to a second term.

Peter F. O'Connell, president of O'Connell Brothers Construction, Inc., elected to a second term.

Charlotte A. Volinn, president of Quincrafts Corp., elected to a first term.

Others elected to their second three-year terms were Jerry Ellis, president of Building 19; Joanne M. Hart, treasurer of Lantana, Catering and trustee of Hart Realty Trust; and Robert G. White, president of Hendries, Inc.

Others elected to first terms are William DeJonge, president of The Talbots, Inc. of Hingham; Joseph V. Forti, president, treasurer and chief executive officer of the Rockland Credit Union; James F. Joyce, president of Plaza Travel, Inc.; Charles N. Montgomery, vice president and division manager of Halliday Lithograph Corp. and Edward R. Piana, executive vice president of Bay Bank/Norfolk Trust Co.

Bosworth founded The Quincy

Sun in 1968 and last October acquired The Hingham Journal.

The Sun has won the National Newspaper Foundation's National Blue Ribbon Award, two New England Press Association awards and numerous community service awards.

Bosworth, a Braintree resident, is a director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, the Quincy YMCA, the Quincy Historical Society and the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, a member of the board of corporators of Quincy Savings Bank, co-chairman of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee, member of the Massachusetts MDA Executive Committee, the New England Press Association, Quincy Sons of Italy, Quincy Lodge of Elks and Morrisette Legion Post.

Last year he was named Citizen of the Year by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post.

Herbert, a Boston University graduate, is a former editor of the Quincy Patriot Ledger and the Boston Herald Traveler.

He is a member of the Academy of New England Journalists serving as a Cabot Prize Juror; founder of the Inter-American Press Association's Technical Center, a juror in the awarding of Pulitzer Prizes by Columbia University; a life member of the Inter-American Press Association; a director and past president of the Pan American Society of New England; chairman of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' Committee on International Communications, a director of the World Peace Foundation of Boston.

His awards include the Marie Moore Cabot Prize from Columbia University; the Order of Merit of Duarte, Sanchez and Mella by the Dominican Republic; an honorary Doctorate of Human Letters from Boston University, an honorary degree for leadership in journalism from Suffolk University and the Sigma Delta Chi Yankee Quill award.

O'Connell, a Quincy resident, is a director and past president of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, the Quincy Master Builders Association, the Quincy Rotary Club and the Granite Cooperative Bank. He is a former member of the Quincy Planning Board.

O'Connell was recently presented the "Citizen of the Year Award" by the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights.

Mrs. Volinn, and two partners founded Quincrafts as a part-time business which today is a major manufacturer of hobby crafts employing 100 persons and with a world-wide distribution.

She was named "Massachusetts Small Business Person of the Year" for 1980. She is a member of the Board of Directors of Hancock Bank and a member of the Hobby Industry Association of America.

DeJonge, a Scituate resident, has been associated with The Talbots since 1972 and became president and general manager in 1978. He is a native of Grand Rapids Michigan.

Ellis, a Newton resident founded the successful chain of Building 19 stores. Born in Providence, R.I., he attended Trinity College, majoring in economics. He is an Army veteran.

Forti, a Norwell resident, is a graduate of Northeastern University and a former Army Air Corps Lieutenant. He is active with Rockland Boy Scouts, Cerebral Palsy, the American Cancer Society and numerous professional groups.

Mrs. Hart, a Cohasset resident, founded Hart Brothers Catering in 1956 with her husband, Maurice. She is a director of the South Shore Business and Industry Political Action Committee and the Family Counselling and Guidance Center.

Joyce, a Duxbury resident, founded Plaza Travel 17 years ago. He is a Boston University graduate and an Air Force veteran.

Montgomery, a native of Tennessee, is a graduate of East Tennessee State University and an army veteran. He is a Hanover resident.

Piana, a Canton resident, is a graduate of Northeastern University and Harvard Business School and an Army veteran.

White, a Milton resident, is graduate of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service and the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance. He is a lieutenant in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Multibank Directors Charge:

Gosman Personally Financing Fight For Bank Control

Directors of Multibank Financial Corp. have charged that Abraham D. Gosman of Weston is personally financing "a so-called stockholders' committee" that is fighting for control of the billion-dollar bank holding company.

It is costing Gosman estimated expenses of $500,000 to $750,000 the directors said in a letter to Multibank shareholders.

Gosman's dissident group include the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, who is reported to be in line for the presidency of the South Shore Bank, one of Multibank's seven member banks.

Baharian and two other directors Frank S. Waterman of Wayland and David Heard of Norwood recently were ousted from the South Shore Bank board and Multibank filed suit in U.S. District Court charging that Gosman's group violated federal banking laws in its attempt to replace Multibank President David B. Lynch.

Gosman declined to comment on the letter until he had a chance to read it himself.

Meanwhile, it was reported that Eric Swider, president of the New England Council, had withdrawn from Gosman's slate of proposed directors and his name was replaced by that of former Sen. Edward W. Brooke, now a Washington lawyer.

Swider, former executive vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said preparations for the coming proxy fight, expected sometime in February, were taking up too much of his time.

The directors' letter to shareholders warned that "Mr. Gosman's explicitly stated goal is to gain control of Multibank — not to achieve membership or representation on the board."

"On Oct. 1, 1980," said the letter, "Mr. Gosman announced the formation of his so-called stockholders' committee."

"This committee was organized by Mr. Gosman, and its estimated expenses of $500,000-$750,000 are being personally financed by Mr. Gosman."

The Gosman group is reported to be unhappy with the dividend policies of Multibank under Lynch.

The letter to shareholders pointed "with considerable pride and satisfaction" to Multibank's recent financial performance, which include assets exceeding $1 billion for the first time.

"Since 1975," it said, "the year in which David Lynch became chairman and president of Multibank, net income per share has nearly tripled, increasing from $1.66 in 1975 to $4.76 in 1979."

"Multibank achieved record net income for the first nine months of 1980."

WEYMOUTH SAVINGS BANK Christmas tradition features dolls decorated by bank employees, displayed at the bank's branches and donated to needy children. Patrons are asked to vote for their favorite dolls. Jo Ann Murray and Beth Ruane, tellers at the bank's Bridge St., North Weymouth Branch, display dolls they dressed. The dolls are now on display at the bank's Hunt St. office, 295 Washington St., Weymouth.

State Board Suspends Revocation Of Lydon Funeral License

A state board of registration Tuesday revoked the license of Wollaston funeral director and City Councillor John J. Lydon, citing "a clear violation" of state laws regulating billing of customers.

The one-year revocation was suspended by the board, however, and Lydon was placed on probation for the one-year period, according to Arthur Cullen, executive secretary to the state Board of Registrars in Embalming and Funeral Directing.

"I would describe this as a serious offense," said Cullen Tuesday.

Lydon, who represents Ward 3 and is chairman of the council's Finance Committee, declined any comment on the decision Tuesday. "We're still in litigation on this," said Lydon, who operates the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Lydon was represented in the case by City Solicitor Robert Fleming and his partner, Robert Langlois.

At a Nov. 18 hearing before the board, Mrs. Arline Medlock of Quincy alleged that Lydon failed to consult her on funeral arrangements for her mother Mrs. Anna Gaffey in November 1979.

Lydon told the board he had entered into an oral agreement with Mrs. Gaffey on the arrangements. But, the board's decision noted that Lydon was "notably unresponsive" on the agreement and was unable to document it, aside from an unsigned, undated form.

"Thus, the board is left with a clear violation of General Law, 112, Sec. 84B," said Cullen, quoting the decision prepared by board Secretary David P. Diamond.

General Law 112, Sec. 84B states that funeral directors shall provide customers with itemized listing of the cost of goods and services before conducting a funeral.

"It is of the highest importance that funeral directors deal openly and honestly with the public," stated the decision. "The board and the legislature have concluded that the funeral director is indeed obliged to explain in advance and in detail the cost of each item and services to be rendered."

"The respondent's (Lydon's) failure to do that in this case has injured himself and his profession needlessly."

"On the other hand," stated the report, "the board does not find that the respondent has acted in bad faith or dishonorably."

"Mrs. Medlock complimented Mr. Lydon on his service and there is no question concerning the value of his work."

According to Cullen, the board noted that a civil suit filed by Mrs. Medlock in Norfolk District Court reduced the amount of Lydon's bill by approximately $1,000 because of the incorrect billing.

W. Q Rezoning Passes, Court Fight Promised

The City Council Monday night voted to rezone sections of Roosevelt Rd., and Old Coach Rd., West Quincy, to ban multi-unit housing in a move that appeared to be headed for the courts.

The zoning change from Residence B to A would effectively prevent Jerry Soricelli and the Crossen brothers, Paul and Robert, from building apartment houses on land they own in the area.

Soricelli's attorney, Joseph F.

Killion, was not available for comment but at an earlier hearing he promised that the case would end up in court on charges of spot zoning if the change were passed.

The Crossens own one multi-unit building on Adams St. around the corner from Roosevelt Rd. on which they had planned to build another.

Soricelli filed plans with the Building Department to build a four-unit dwelling on his vacant parcel of land last August, before the zoning hassle started.

Membership Available In Local AARP Chapter

The South Shore Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc., with a large Quincy membership, announces the organization is open to any person age 55 or over.

To become a member, individuals must first become a member of the National AARP, 215 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach, Ca.

Upon presentation of the national identification membership card, application to the local chapter can be made by attending a meeting and paying the yearly dues.

The South Shore Chapter meets the third Thursday of the month.

The next meeting will be January 22, at 1:30 p.m. at Sons of Italy Hall, Rte. 3A, Hingham.

William P. Finnigan Senior Airman

William P. Finnigan, of Quincy, has been chosen for early promotion to senior airman in the U.S. Air Force.

Finnigan, an administrative specialist at Minot Air Force Base, South Dakota, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Finnigan of 103 Colonial Dr., Quincy Center.

Armed Police Guard

Robbery Victim At Hospital

An armed round the clock police guard was placed on the City Hospital room of a security guard who was kidnapped in Boston and driven to Squantum where he was shot and robbed of $11,000.

The guard was identified as George Bolanes, 53, of Roslindale, who was taking the money from the Brooks Brothers store to the First National Bank when he was abducted Monday afternoon.

He was reported shot twice in the shoulder and leg before he escaped by leaping from the car in Squantum. It was feared the kidnappers might try to finish the job at the Hospital.

Cable TV

Hearings Set For Jan 20, 22, 24

The final round of hearings for applicants for the Quincy cable television franchise will take place Jan. 20, 22 and 24 under ground rules drawn up by the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television.

The nine applicants, appearing in groups of three, will have 30 minutes to make presentations and 20 minutes to answer questions by the committee and the public with the hearing thrown open to general public questioning Saturday, Jan. 24, from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The order in which the presentations will be made was drawn from a hat and emerged like this:

Tuesday, Jan. 20

7 p.m. - Quincy Cablevision Corp., a subsidiary of the Alda Group, Bridgeport, Conn. The local representative is Atty. Martin Cosgrove of Quincy.

8 p.m. - Norfolk Cablevision Inc., a subsidiary of Sammons Communications of Dallas, Texas. Its local representative is William K. Headley of Belmont.

9 p.m. - Adams Russell Telecommunications of Waltham. Ron Iacobucci of Quincy is the local representative.

Thursday, Jan. 22

7 p.m. - Quincy Cablesystems Corp., a subsidiary of American Cablesystems of Boston. This group lists 12 local investors, including Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, and plans to install David J. Keefe of Quincy as general manager.

8 p.m. - Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts, a subsidiary of Rollins, Inc., of Atlanta, Ga. The local representative is Atty. George W. Shinney of Malden.

9 p.m. - Metro-Cable of Quincy, a subsidiary of the Times-Mirror Cable Television. This company lists 17 local investors, including the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, and former Mayor Walter J. Hannon. It's local consultant is Joseph P. Shea.

Saturday, Jan. 24

9 a.m. - Comcast Cablevision of Quincy, a subsidiary of Comcast

Corp., Bala Cynwyd, Pa. Its local representative is Atty. Matthew McDonnell of Quincy.

10 a.m. - American Cablevision of Quincy, a subsidiary of Time, Inc. Four Quincy charitable and cultural groups are token investors (at $1 a share) in this company. Its local man is Atty. Richard W. Barry of Quincy.

11 a.m. - Bay State Cablevision Corp. of Boston. The local representative is Herbert S. Hoffman of Boston.

Representatives of all nine companies will be on hand from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 24, to field questions from the general public.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee set the ground rules during a meeting last Thursday after which Peter Lynch of Metro-Cable explained about the missing pages in the company's formal application.

"It was an accident and we feel badly about it," said Lynch.

He said the pages were inadvertently left out of the application booklet and hand-delivered to Committee Chairman George R. Riley five days after the Nov. 21 deadline. The State Cable TV decision ruled they cannot be used.

"In no way did we use the delay to look at the other applications and make changes in ours," said Lynch.

He said that most of the information contained in the missing pages was duplicated elsewhere in the application, a lot of it in the private prospectus that was put together for the benefit of local investors.

"You have all the basic information on which to make a decision," said Richard W. Corner, the Quincy CPA who is one of Metro-Cable's local investors.

Riley, said the January hearing, under state law, be tape-recorded or taken down by a stenographer.

"We probably will hire a professional stenographer with the nine companies sharing the cost," he said.

QCA Re-Elects Arthur Chandler

Arthur M. Chandler of 320 Belmont St., Wollaston, was re-elected president of the Quincy Citizens Association recently at the group's annual meeting.

Also re-elected were: Dorothy C. Kelly, 108 Davis St., Wollaston, secretary; and Saul Lipsitz, 40 Harriet Ave., Montclair.

Marie Coffin, 4 Alton Rd., South Quincy, was elected vice president, succeeding Joseph N. Gildea who chose not to run for another term.

Cable Committee Meets

The Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall. Chairman George Riley called it a working meeting.

It's a matter of life and breath!

$300,000 For Home Improvements

Southwest Quincy Picked As Rehab Target Area

Southwest Quincy has been chosen as the area of the city to participate in the Neighborhood Housing Service Program, which could mean as much as $300,000 in federal home improvement funds.

Under the program, which could begin in April or May, homeowners with low or moderate incomes can qualify for low interest loans and counseling on home improvements.

Some $250,000 in Community Development Block Grant money and $50,000 from the Neighborhood Housing Service program will be put into the program over the next three years.

Art Foley of the Site Selection Committee said the Southwest Quincy area was chosen because of the apparent need for rehabilitation and because of its high visibility as a gateway to Quincy Center.

Center.

Other areas given consideration were:

- Quincy Point, which was cited as an area in need of such a program but lost out because it was not currently designated a Community Development Neighborhood Strategy area.

"Thus," said Foley, "the committee voted not to select Quincy Point as the initial NHS target area but recommend that it be considered as the second NHS site based on its acceptance as a CD area."

- Atlantic, which also was considered to be in need of the program but, since much of the rehab work would be on interiors, it did not have the visibility needed to be a pilot area.

- Houghs Neck, which also would benefit from the program but had never shown enthusiasm for similar programs in the past.

The isolated Neck also had the problem of visibility.

- Wollaston West-Montclair was determined to be the most visible area, but the area of deterioration (Fayette, Farrington, Safford and Arlington Sts.) was too small for consideration.

The Southwest Quincy target area is roughly bounded by the MBTA tracks, the Braintree town line, the Southeast Expressway and Quarry St. - Tinson Rd. on the north.

Work Starts On Center At Squantum Gardens

Work has begun on the long-promised community center for Squantum Gardens, the Navy housing project that is home to the families of sailors stationed at South Weymouth Air Station.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey said the community center will consist of a small building with kitchen and rest rooms, a playground, and basketball and tennis courts.

Morrissey, who has worked for improvements at Squantum Gardens for the past four years, said he is pleased with the progress that has been made at the site.

"We are awaiting word now on demolition of 28 units that have been boarded up and are subject to damage from vandals," he said.

"But that is up to the federal General Services Administration and the GSA process is such that we can't expect a quick out come."

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the North Quincy High School Red Raiders Basketball Parents and Friends for a dance Jan. 31, 8 p.m. to midnight at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus hall. A police officer must be in attendance.

- Rescinded the one day all alcoholic license granted to Steve Mitchell of 15 Rawson Rd. for a benefit dance for a softball team Dec. 27, at North Quincy Knights of Columbus hall.

According to Fire Chief Edward Barry, at the time the request was made, Mitchell indicated the K of C would be supporting the team. Ken Runge, representing K of C, said that was not the case and the license was rescinded.

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from Albert S. Brandish of AI's City Cab for two hackney licenses.

Brandish told the board he will be selling his cab and will submit the proper papers to the board.

- Denied a request from Rainbow's End Jewelers, Inc., 294 Water St., for a license to buy and sell second hand, old gold and silver jewelry.

- Granted a temporary license to Frank G. Richards of Tri Town Stamp & Coin, 55 Franklin St., to buy and sell all types of old gold and silver, rare coins, stamps and collectibles. The board will make a final decision on the license Jan. 6.

- Granted a license to Pharmacy Drug Store, 42 Beale St., for a 128 space parking lot.

Customers of the store will be allowed to use the lot free of charge and others will be charged a small fee.

- Granted a six month Motor II (used car license) to School Street Auto Sales, 65 School St. No more than four cars can be offered for sale at one time.

- Granted a tag day license to the Quincy High School Band Parents for Dec. 20, to raise funds for band functions.

- No action was taken on a continued request from William Chiaramonte of Treasure Hut, 322 Washington, for a license to buy and sell old gold.

A motion made by Police Chief Francis Finn to deny the request failed to receive enough votes. Chief Finn and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh voted for the denial, and City Clerk John Gillis and Fire Chief Edward Barry were opposed.

The applicant can reapply.

Cold Snaps Water Main In Wollaston

The weekend's cold snap was blamed for one water main break in Quincy which affected some 10 homes on Harvard St., between Elmwood and Exeter Sts., Wollaston.

It was nothing like the situation in Cambridge where a number of mains popped due to the cold.

"We have spent a lot of money in the past few years replacing water mains," said Water Supt. Owen Eaton.

"The frost causes external pressure on the pipe and if the pipes are old or have defects or weak spots almost anything can happen."

The break on Harvard St. was discovered at 5:20 a.m. Monday, the water was shut off at 6:30 a.m. and the break was repaired some eight hours later.

House Takes 1.2 Mile Trip

A lot of people didn't believe what they were seeing.

What they saw last Thursday was a 50-ton, 2½ story building slowly easing its way through Quincy Center.

The house, the former Carlene Walker house, was moved from 25 Thayer St. to 116-120 Russell Park by Appia Associates Realty Trust, headed by Nicholas Trifone, III 22, of Milton.

The house, which is over 100 years old, will be renovated and refurbished at the new site and converted into a professional suite, according to Trifone's father, Quincy realtor Nicholas Trifone Jr.

"We had a lot of fun moving it," said the senior Trifone.

"People came up to us and commented that they didn't believe what they were seeing."

The 1.2-mile move took about four hours and required the aid of several utility companies and the city highway, forestry, fire and police departments.

"The only city agency they didn't have to contact was the dog officer," joked Trifone. "It's one of the most ambitious undertakings I've ever seen."

The actual moving was done by the Donald Betts Company of North Attleboro while the younger-Trifone, a graduate of Wentworth Institute now enrolled at the Boston Architectural Center, supervised the operations.

Shea Research Pays Off

City Gets Break In Unemployment Fund

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy apparently is winning one of the many little Proposition 2½ skirmishes, thanks to a research report done nine years ago by City Auditor Charles L. Shea and a decision made in 1977 at Shea's insistence.

The decision, which went against the advice of the so-called experts at the time, wedded the city to the contributory system of unemployment compensation rather than the reimbursement method that was chosen by the vast majority of cities and towns in the state.

As a result, faced with large layoffs of city employees under Prop 2½, Quincy is committed to paying two-tenths of 1 per cent of total payroll to the state Division of Employment Security while others may have to make huge reimbursements.

One South Shore town, for instance, where some 300 layoffs are predicted, is faced with the staggering prospect of reimbursing the system at a rate of $131 a week for each of them, or nearly $40,000 a week, or more than $2 million a year.

It's either that or join the contributory system when it opens up Dec. 31 and pay the beginning rates of 1 per cent of total payroll.

Jan Crowley, who handles unemployment compensation matters in Quincy, figures that the contribution of two-tenths of 1 per cent costs the city about $130,000 a year.

City workers were not involved in the unemployment compensation system until 1970, when federal law made such participation optional on the part of cities and towns.

Shea, then a researcher for the Legislative Research Council, was directed by the State Senate to look into the matter.

His report, 69 pages, concluded that in stable economic times the city contribution should come to about two-tenths of 1 per cent of total payroll and in economically distressed periods should not exceed one-half of 1 percent.

The report, as is the case with most state studies, was promptly filed and forgotten.

Late in 1977, however, it came time for Quincy to join the unemployment compensation system and the city was given the option of paying a percentage contribution or reimbursing the state for the money paid out to former employees.

Authorities on the subject recommended that the cities and towns adopt the reimbursement method as less expensive but Shea, armed with what was probably the only copy left of his 1971 report, thought otherwise.

The city was one of the very few municipalities in the state to adopt the contributory method.

Once the city established a track record for unemployment, its contribution dropped steadily from the starting 1 per cent until it was fixed at two-tenths of 1 per cent for the next two years.

Now, with Proposition 2½ due to take hold in some six months, Quincy finds itself in the driver's seat while other communities will be scrambling to get aboard - at a rate of contribution that is five times that of Quincy.

Town Brook Culvert Approved

The Conservation Commission has approved a plan for reconstruction of the Town Brook culvert where it flows under Washington and Bigelow Sts. and McGrath Highway.

The conditional approval was issued to Paul A. M. Hunt, attorney for Blanche Goldman.

One of the conditions is approval of the work by the U.S.

Army Corps of Engineers so that it conforms with the Corps' plan for future flood control work.

Another specifies that no work relating to the building of the culvert can take place between March 1 and June 30 when it would endanger the spawning of smelt.

In other actions last week the Commission:

- Gave Donald P. Uvanitte of 10 Beebe Rd., Germantown, conditional permission to construct a rip rap along his property line to prevent erosion.

- Gave William R. Morrill of 22 Beebe Rd., Germantown, conditional permission to fill and slope his sideyard to replace material removed as a result of a house fire.

EASY DOES IT - House on the move is eased out into Hancock St. from Alleyne St., Quincy Center.

The building, 50 feet long, 30 feet wide and 38 feet tall, "has a unique architectural style," reports Nicholas Trifone Jr.

"We're glad we were able to save it."

Sons' Earthquake Fund Still $2,000 Short Of Goal

The Sons of Italy earthquake relief fund was still about $2,000 short of its goal Monday with less than three days to go until the Christmas deadline.

The lodge hopes to raise $25,000 by Christmas Day, according to Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo.

As of Monday morning, the total stood at $23,040, he said. Funds are needed to finance medicine and other supplies from the earthquake-torn region east and south of Naples.

Checks should be made payable to the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy Earthquake Relief Fund, at 120 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Benefit Dance For O'Neil Family Jan. 16

The Squantum Community

Association will sponsor a Jan. 16, dance at Star of the Sea Church's Maryhall to benefit the O'Neil Family Fund.

The four O'Neil children,

Edward, Robert, Mary and Donna, lost their mother, Mrs. Claire O'Neil, and their Deerfield St. home during a November fire.

The dance, beginning at 8 p.m., will feature music by disc jockey Jack Horgan.

Tickets can be obtained from Carol Danckert at 328-5161, Phyllis Ryan at 328-5226 or from any board member of the Squantum Community Association.

The public is invited. Commented Mrs. Danckert of the ticket committee, "This is the time when the O'Neils really need to know people love them."

Over $1,000 was raised for the family at a dance held recently by friends of the O'Neils.

Salvation Army, Koch Club, Elks Make Christmas Merrier For Over 300 Families

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

More than 300 families will be having a merrier Christmas thanks to donations from several local charities.

The Koch Club, Salvation Army and Quincy Lodge of Elks are supplying meals to needy families in the Greater Quincy area.

The Elks delivered 133 full-fledged Christmas dinners this past Sunday, according to Exalted Ruler Joseph McArdle. Dave Montani Jr., chairman of the Elks' Christmas basket program, coordinated 36 lodge members who donated their time and vehicles to deliver the packages from the Capitol Market, 150 Parkway, Quincy Center.

The baskets, purchased by donations from lodge members, contain a Christmas turkey and all the trimmings.

"You name it, it was in there," said McArdle. Families were chosen by lodge members, the Mayor's office, the Salvation Army and local social service agencies. "No one is turned down," said McArdle.

The Koch Club is donating 30 full-scale Christmas packages, including presents and enough food for a week, according to Executive Director Richard Koch.

That's just a part of the organization's annual Christmas activities, notes Koch.

"By 'Little Christmas' (Jan. 5), we will have delivered over 4,000 items to youngsters and families in the Quincy-Braintree-Weymouth area," Koch said.

This includes books, toys and games for youngsters and smaller food items for families.

"The total response has been excellent—way over last year," Koch said. "It's amazing." The Koch Club serves as coordinators for school children, social service agencies and hundreds of other persons in arranging the holiday gifts, Koch said.

"It gives us quite a feeling to see people coming forward to help," said Koch.

The Quincy Salvation Army will aid about 130 families, according to Mrs. Major Carol Waddington. Needy families will receive canned goods, a gift certificate for Food Mart for purchasing perishable food and a gift certificate for King's for purchasing Christmas presents for the kids.

Families are selected from among applications made to the Salvation Army, which have increased slightly this year, according to Mrs. Waddington.

Like Koch, she didn't think the economy had cut into Christmas donations.

"It doesn't appear that way," she said. "One thing that has hurt us is that, since Thanksgiving came late this year, the Christmas shopping season is four days shorter than last year. That's four big donation days that we are missing."

"We are hoping that people will take that into consideration and try to donate a little more," she said.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS on nearby trees provide a starry background for the statue of Mary and the Christ Child, between Sacred Heart Church and the church rectory in North Quincy.

Santa Attends 2 Houghs Neck Post Christmas Parties

Santa Claus attended two parties recently sponsored by the Houghs Neck Legion Post and auxiliary - one for children of post members and the other for all Houghs Neck children.

Films were shown, singing was led by Billy Tang and gifts were presented.

Alice Scribner, junior vice commander, was chairman for both parties.

Santa also made a guest appearance at the annual tree lighting program of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Councillor at large Francis X. McCauley introduced the guest of honor along with city officials Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, City Council President Leo Kelly, State Senator Paul Harold and State Representative Thomas Brownell.

A wreath was laid at the granite war memorial by post members.

Singing was led by Most Blessed Sacrament choir and the Girl Scouts. Rev. James Hart of Most Blessed Sacrament Church and Rev. Peter V. Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church led devotions.

LIGHT UP OUTDOORS SAFELY

Outdoor holiday lighting, which adds to the festivity of your home's appearance can be a sight to remember - or cause a tragedy you'll never forget. Here are some safety guidelines.

When working with the outdoor wiring, be sure that electricity is turned off. The least bit of dampness could mean disaster.

Run cords above ground over Y-shaped wood splices to keep cords well above snow and slush. Wind insulated tape around each connection to keep it watertight.

For temporary wiring outside, use only outdoor extension cords (at least number 16) with permanently molded plugs and sockets.

Never string electrical cords under a door or in other places where they are apt to be pinched or worn.

Don't overload your wiring system. It may be necessary to use several circuits to obtain power.

City Club Donates Over $2,000 In Christmas Gifts For Needy

The Quincy City Club has donated over $2,000 in gifts to hospitals for the elderly, homes for the mentally ill and shelters for the needy, according to President Richard J. Koch.

The club's sixth annual Christmas charity program also included gifts to children attending the annual party for retarded children, Koch said.

A 19-inch color TV and stereo was presented to Long Island Hospital, replacing an old black and white TV, Koch said. Magazine subscriptions were also donated to the hospital patients.

A 23-cubic foot refrigerator-freezer was also presented to Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) to service the occupants of its crisis shelter.

Bedding and pajamas were donated to the Faxon House detoxification center while personal gifts were presented to patients at Medfield State Hospital.

The City Club has provided over $12,000 in gifts over the last six years, funded by donations from members, Koch said.

Swedish Service At Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church, Granite and Whitwell Sts., will celebrate Christmas Day with a traditional Swedish service, "Julotta" Thursday, at 6 a.m.

The service will be in English but the choir will sing in Swedish a traditional anthem 'Lyssna, Lyssna' (Listen, Listen). Other Swedish carols will be used in their English translations.

Church pastor Rev. Fred M. Lawson will discuss "The Forgotten Birthday".

Following the service, coffee and Swedish coffee bread will be served by Rev. and Mrs. Lawson.

The service is open to the public.

Forefathers in Sweden would attend such a service sometimes beginning at 4 a.m. Families would travel for miles on a sleigh, lighting the way with torches and singing carols.

Many would walk to church carrying torches. As they met other families, they would all join in singing carols.

Weight Control Clinics At Hospital

Quincy City Hospital's training department is accepting enrollment for three Weight Control Clinics which begin in January.

Beginning dates and times for the clinics are: Monday, Jan 5 at 10 a.m.; Wednesday and Thursday, Jan 7 and 8, at 7:30 p.m.

The clinics involves a combined approach of behavior modification, nutrition information, weekly weigh-ins, and individualized diets. Diets are tailored to meet nutritional needs and other health problems.

For further information and registration, contact John Felci, director of training, at 773-6100, Extension 308.

B'nai B'rith Women Donate $1,000 For Earthquake Victims

Sylvia Cenalli, president of the Quincy chapter of B'nai B'rith Women, announces the New England organization has contributed $1,000 for relief efforts after the recent earthquake in Italy.

The funds will go towards medical assistance for the several thousand people left homeless by the disaster.

Said Mrs. Cenalli, "As a volunteer organization, we are deeply mindful of the plight of victims of disaster the world over, and we accept the responsibility for reaching out to alleviate their suffering — in this case through the contribution of funds."

ENRICH YOUR HOLIDAY COME TO CHURCH THIS CHRISTMAS

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. The first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going each to his own town, to register. And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her firstborn Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a Manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you, Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PAGEANT at United First Parish Church, Quincy Center, is highlighted by the placement of the Christ Child in the manger scene in historic Hancock Cemetery adjacent to City Hall. Taking part in the pageant are Christopher Nelson, Jennifer Flynn and Steve O'Brien, all students at Sacred Heart School in North Quincy.

"ALWAYS THE LEADER"

Concerned Tsongas Sees Haig Confirmed

By TOM HENSHAW

Sen. Paul Tsongas says he is concerned about the possible appointment of Gen. Alexander Haig as secretary of state, but not because of his connections with the Watergate scandals.

President-elect Ronald Reagan has no strong foreign policy views, he told a South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast at the Lantana in Randolph last week, and Haig has never said anything on the subject.

"We will have to get in the confirmation hearings some sense of where he is coming from," said Tsongas, who is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Nevertheless, he added, "I think Haig will be confirmed."

"For the most part," Tsongas said, "the appointments that Reagan has made are pretty impressive. They are people with public records so you know where they are coming from."

"You may not want to read their memoirs when it's over, but they are the kind of a group that will give you a solid management team. The issue with Haig is different."

"The major problem I have is that you have a president who does not have strong foreign policy views and we found out during the Ford administrations what a man like Henry Kissinger can do."

"If you assume Reagan will not be the decision maker on foreign policy then you come down to the next level which is Haig. I've read most of what Haig has said and there is nothing there on foreign policy."

"If you wind up with a president with no strong views and a secretary of state unrooted in principles then you go to the third level and that's where Reagan's right wingers are."

The major test of the Reagan administration, said Tsongas, will be the way it deals with the right wing of the Republican party.

"There's going to be a major battle for Reagan's mind in the next few months," he said.

"Reagan has to choose between the moderate, realistic Republicans and the hard line right wingers, the moral majority."

"If Reagan turns out to be a pragmatist, if he can drop off his right wing and deal with problems realistically, then he and his lineal descendants will be in power for a long time."

"If he makes the same mistake made by the liberals in the Democratic party and adheres to ideology irrespective of what is happening in the real world, he will come a cropper."

"If he gives in to the ideologies then there are some very serious times ahead of us."

Tsongas attributed Jimmy Carter's loss of the presidency generally to the fact that "whoever is president we just destroy, sometimes physically like Jack Kennedy, sometimes through the process."

"The country realized that it was out of whack and just rejected everything," he said. "Carter happened to be the person in the White House at that particular time."

"Personally, I think the major problem was he gave no sense of direction. Reagan at least has a sense of direction, although it may be directed more toward 1954 than 1990."

"Society does not accept drift politically. People would rather have a direction, even if it's only one they can argue about."

Tsongas said he feels that Democrats are facing "an incredibly challenging intellectual period."

"What we have had in this country is 50 years of the New Deal," he said, "and that was rejected once and for all on Nov. 4."

"Now we have in its place a conservative theology and we're going to have to wait and see what it turns out to be. If it works, Reagan is going to be the new Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"If it doesn't work then the issue is going to be what the Democrats have to offer. If all we can say is let's go back to the New Deal, no one's going to come with us."

"For the first time since FDR we Democrats are defining what we are. We should look at that as an enormous opportunity and not spend all our time lamenting what happened Nov. 4."

Sunbeams

Dear Santa

Dear Santa:

Well, here I am again — late as usual. Every year I promise to write sooner and every year I don't. You know, Christmas really sneaks up on me. I keep thinking I have a lot of time to do all the things I'm supposed to do and before I know it, Christmas is here.

Santa, I know you're really busy and have a lot of things to do and places to go. But I would really appreciate it if you could squeeze these last minute gift items into your sleigh for delivery at Christmas.

And, tell Rudolph and the rest of the gang that I promise to write sooner next year.

As you know, some of these gifts are being asked in fun and a few in a serious vein. Please do your best to get the following to the following:

Mayor ARTHUR TOBIN, discovery of a gold mine or oil well under City Hall to get the city through the first year of Proposition 2½. . . City Clerk JOHN GILLIS, a private eye to find those 4,062 residents missing in the federal census. . . Committee Chairman GEORGE RILEY, the wisdom of Solomon to make the best choice among cable television applicants. . . Retiring Quincy Hospital Director ANTHONY DE FALCO, a telephone call from RONALD REAGAN. . . Councillor FRANK McCAULEY, a coin to help him decide whether to run for mayor or not. . . GENERAL DYNAMICS, a new Fore River bridge and a super aircraft carrier to go through it. . . Venerable MIMMO D'ARCANGELO, success in reaching the goal of $25,000 the Quincy Sons of Italy want to send to Italy to help the victims of the earthquake. . . PAUL MacELHINEY, outgoing president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce a "Well Done" citation for a job well done. . . And, a capital "A" to Chamber executive vice president RON ZOOLECK for king size ability. . . Rep. ROBERT CERASOLI, a rowboat so that he can commute between the Quincy and Weymouth halves of his "contiguous" district. . . School Supt. Dr. LAWRENCE CREEDON, lots of luck in his first encounter with the City Council without the safeguard of fiscal autonomy. . . Councillor JOANNE CONDON, a new bonnet to toss into the mayoral ring, if not next year in 1983. . . TOM BURKE, the mayor's executive secretary, a new set of darts. The old ones have dulled. . . Public Works Commissioner JAMES (PETE) RICCIUTI, a golf ball with a siren so he can find it when he slices into the woods. . . Quincy District Court Clerk DENNIS RYAN, a judgeship. . . RUTH GORDON, completion of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park and a trip home to dedicate it. (Santa, I asked for this last year but I guess you weren't paying attention. So, I'm trying again.) . . Senator PAUL HAROLD, a suitcase to carry around the Senate citations he presents to constituents. . . TAXPAYERS OF QUINCY, a tax rate reduction. Even if it's only $1. Anything, as long as it goes down. . . Former North Quincy Coach JACK DONAHUE, a "Salute to Jack Donahue" at next year's Quincy-North Quincy football game. He hasn't missed one yet. . . BARON HUGO, another big band. . . Former Quincy High School Principal GEORGE WILSON, five more gallons from the Fountain of Youth. . . BOB COLMAN, a Chamber of Commerce necktie. . . CITY OF QUINCY, a big sign for Chestnut St. that reads: "Don't Pay Any Attention To All The No Parking Signs, They're There Just For The Laughs". . . Rep. TOM BROWNELL, a box of stationery to keep those protest letters going to the MBTA, the MDC, etc. etc. . . My daughter, DOLLY, a GLENN MILLER album. . . WIN BETTINGSON, some new parties on "Party Line". . . ARTHUR CHANDLER, an SRO sign for the Wollaston Theater. . . Fire Chief ED BARRY, a toy fire engine, because, under Prop. 2½, it may be a long time before he sees a new real one. . . Police Chief FRANK FINN, a day without crime. . . To ALL who gave of their time, talent and money to help JERRY'S KIDS, a great big "thank you".

To all of them, and everyone, a very Merry Christmas and a happy, healthy, New Year.

Host Homes Sought For School 'Amity Aides'

The Quincy school system is seeking families interested in hosting foreign "Amity Aides" for 10 to 20 weeks.

The Amity Aides are invited to Quincy schools each year to assist teachers in foreign language classes and discuss cultural differences with students.

The aides arrive in Quincy on January 15.

Interested families should contact Paul Stanton or William Sullivan at 471-0100, ext. 461.

Quincy Quiz

There was just one winner in last week's Quincy Quiz.

Jean Ann MacLean of 12 Carruth St., Wollaston, was the only person to correctly answer all five questions.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What are the names of the city's five junior high schools? 2. Whose statue stands at the corner of Burgin Parkway and Granite St.?

3. In what section of the city is the Paul Grasso Playground? 4. What is the name of the principal of the Woodward School for Girls?

5. Dedication ceremonies were recently held for senior citizen apartments sponsored by Wollaston Lutheran Apartments. What is the name of the building?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Wilhelmina Harris is the superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site.

2. The Adams School is located in South Quincy.

3. The old granite section of City Hall was constructed in 1844, when it was Town Hall.

4. The former Quincy District Court building on Coddington St. is now an annex to Quincy Junior College.

5. The two MDC roadways in Quincy are Furnace Brook Parkway and Quincy Shore Drive.

New Home, Hope For Family

Son Born Here To Cambodian Couple

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Reminiscent of another couple long ago, Sarim Prak and his wife Phyl Yorn traveled far from their homeland for the birth of their son — but this time there was room at the inn.

The Cambodian couple arrived in Quincy with their 10 year old son, Rotha Prak, Dec. 17, sponsored by Faith Lutheran Church, Quincy.

The family was barely settled in temporary lodgings at the church when the baby decided to make its entrance in the world.

With the assistance of Faith Lutheran pastor Rev. James Kimmell, and his wife Gail, the couple arrived at Quincy City Hospital at 2:15 a.m. Dec. 19. Phyl Yorn, 28, gave birth to a healthy baby, Steven Thou Prak, at 2:18 a.m.

The couple was scheduled to move into a Quincy Center apartment this week. Sarim, who knows enough English to make himself understood, is studying at Bethany Congregational Church's refugee service center. He hopes to find a good job to support his family.

The family's bright hopes for the future are a far cry from their situation a few months ago.

Sarim Prak, 31, was a soldier in the Sihanouk regime. When the Pol Pot regime came into power, Sihanouk officers were ordered executed. The family had no choice but to try and leave.

Prak and his family left their country during the middle of the night and walked for a week before arriving in Thailand. There they received food and shelter supplied by the American government.

Both Prak's and his wife's parents died in Cambodia from lack of food. Both also lost brothers and sisters who were shot and killed.

Prak and his family were able to come to America through the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service.

The family is the first to be sponsored by Faith Lutheran Church.

According to Rev. Kimmell, sponsorship of another family by the church is within the realm of possibility.

"This has been a beautiful experience," said Rev. Kimmell. "As well as a very nice Christmas present for the congregation...having the family here with the new baby."

"They are very fine people," concluded Rev. Kimmell, "and helping them is really the essence of Christmas."

In Pretty Good Financial Shape!

Hospital Deficit Report Puzzles City Officials

Hospital and city officials appeared to be somewhat mystified by a published report which claimed that the City Hospital ran a $2.75 million deficit in fiscal 1980.

"The hospital is in pretty good financial shape," said John J. Fantuccio, the comptroller. "As of Dec. 31, we'll only owe about $75,000 to Medicare and Blue Cross."

"I don't know where the figures came from," said City Auditor Charles L. Shea. "I'm not sure they're correct. None of the numbers jive with ours."

"I don't know anything about it," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, "but if there is a deficit remaining I'm sure it will be addressed by the management firm that we hire to run the hospital."

The $2.75 million deficit published in The Patriot Ledger was attributed to a "state-ordered financial report," which Fantuccio said was probably a required statement filed in August with the Rate-Setting Commission.

"That's state-ordered in the same sense that the state orders you to file an income tax form," he said.

Fantuccio said the $2.75 million figure apparently included some $1.8 million that the hospital was ordered to refund to Blue Cross in fiscal 1980 for overpayments made in fiscal 1979.

This, he said, explains the apparent surplus of $622,000 that showed up at the end of fiscal 1979.

A private hospital, said Fantuccio, can handle such things on an accrual basis which more accurately reflects the financial condition.

"We have to file on a cash basis because we are part of the city government," he said. "All receipts and expenditures must be recorded in the year in which the cash changes hands."

"That's why fiscal 1979 looks so much better and fiscal 1980 looks so much worse."

"But that's history now," he added. "The most significant thing is that on Dec. 31 we will only owe $75,000."

Auditor Shea said he questioned some of the figures in the state-ordered report.

It showed hospital income of $22.7 million for 1980. The city's figures on the June 30 statement ending the fiscal year were $23.7.

Likewise, the figure quoted from the report for 1979 income is $24.4 million while, according to city's year-ending statement, it should have been $23.6 million.

"I don't know where the figures come from," said Shea, "but if they are correct it shows that we need some expert help in running the hospital."

Tobin indicated that such help is not far off.

The Mayor said that within the next two weeks he plans meetings with the hospital board of managers and with his own hospital advisory committee on private management of the hospital.

Tobin has been dicker with four national hospital management firms that have applied to run the hospital for the city.

After the first of the year, he said he plans to go before the City Council's Hospital Committee with his plans for the future of the Hospital.

City Council Rejects Private Ambulance Service For City

The City Council turned thumbs down on a proposal, endorsed by City Manager William J. Deegan Jr., to turn most of the city's ambulance service over to a private contractor.

Under the proposal, the South Shore Ambulance and Oxygen Service would have handled private patients while the police vehicle would have taken accident, emergency and welfare cases.

The contractor agreed to carry private patients at $8 a trip and also volunteered to make other runs at $5 a trip.

KING DENIES SALE PLAN

Delevere King denied a report that he was willing to sell a six-acre section of his estate at 270 Adams St. for $55,000 as the site of the proposed Furnace Brook school.

"I am absolutely convinced," said King, "that the school should be located on the other side of Adams St. and I am opposed to their taking our property and feel sure they will not."

However, he added, "if it works out that this property is taken by eminent domain, I will not require more than 25 per cent above the assessment, that is, $55,000."

INJURIES FELL NORTH

The North Quincy High School basketball team, playing without the services of injured starters Al Elkhill and Joe Crowley, bowed to Quincy, 46-42, in the Quincy gym.

Marv Weinstein led the Quincy scorers with 13 points, a total that was matched by Bob Ames for North.

The Quincy lineup: Weinstein, Lewis, Pompeo, Prezioso, forwards; Williams, Hebert, Phelan, centers; McDonald, Barba, Berry, Coleman, guards.

The North Quincy lineup: Ames, Glibody, Denneen, forwards; P. Higgins, R. Higgins, centers; Densmore, Rizzo, Breingan, guards.

FUNDS TAKEN ILLEGALLY

Probate Judge James F. Reynolds ruled that Quincy had taken $21,773 illegally from the operating fund of the Woodward School for Girls and must restore it with 4 per cent interest.

The city was sued by the trustees of Dartmouth College over whether certain funds that had accumulated in the Ebenezer Woodward Fund were part of the principal.

Exclusive Interview With Santa Claus

By FRANK MORTIMER

NORTH POLE -- His famous belly bulged happily in the middle of his red pajamas. He drew smoke from a long, skinny pipe and stared into the crackling fire. The magnificent white beard and moustache seemed to catch at the little puffs of smoke, making them swirl and twirl lazily about his pink cheeks.

Christmas was less than a week away; but to see Santa Claus sitting in his favorite chair, you'd never know it. The man was at peace.

I was something else. Perched beside him on a hard wooden bench, notebook and pen trembling faintly in my hand, my head full of questions, I was like a last minute Christmas shopper.

I felt guilty, but the interview had to be done. It was the chance of a lifetime....

"Mr. Claus, why did you grant this interview to The Quincy Sun? Isn't it true that you repeatedly refused to see reporters from the biggest news organizations in the world?"

"Yes, that's true. In fact, the elves threw Barbara Walters out just this afternoon. She was climbing through my bedroom window."

"I saw her outside with Dan Rather. They looked quite cold."

"Good. They'll go home sooner."

"But Santa, aren't they the most capable newsmen?"

"Very capable. Did you catch Barbara's interviews with Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds? It was a joy to see Clint and Burt talking so freely..."

"Yes, it was. So why do you keep her standing out there in North Pole weather. Do you have some kind of media phobia?"

"Nothing of the kind. I turned her out for the same reason I keep Art Buchwald on hold."

"Art Buchwald has your telephone number? I didn't think anyone has your telephone number! Why, I had to fly thousands of miles to reach you."

"True, but you're not Art Buchwald."

"No, I'm not. How'd he get the number?"

"Simple. He made it up. Only Art would think of that."

"Sort of like wishing upon a star and having it come true?"

"Exactly. Santa hears everybody's wishes. Even Art Buchwald's."

"Yet you won't talk to him."

"Never did, never will."

"Why?"

For the first time he turned from the fire and looked at me.

"Because none of them really believe in me."

"Of course they do. Everyone believes."

"Don't kid yourself. Look out that window."

As he pointed to a little port-hole window, I saw Barbara Walters duck out of sight. Her nose had been pressed against the glass.

"Very persistent," I said.

"No, go look out the window."

I touched my nose to the inside of the pane. In the blue light of early evening I saw a big guy in a trench coat, padding around in the snow.

"That man is covered with frost. His coat's wide open and he's not even wearing a hat."

"You don't recognize him?"

"No, but he must be rugged."

"That's Jimmy Breslin."

"No kidding! Can we ask him in?"

"Never. He doesn't believe in Santa Claus."

"Then what's he doing out there?"

"Same thing as all the others. Looking to expose a fake. You know, muckraking."

"Sure, I know the term. I used to rake muck at low tide in Germantown."

"I'm talking about a different kind of muckraking...By the way, you were pathetic with a clam-fork."

"How'd you know that?"

"Santa knows. He sees all. Not to brag, but I could tell you what color socks Breslin is wearing."

"What color?"

"A brown one and a blue one. He hasn't changed them in a week, either."

"Well, we all have our little quirks. I'd gladly swap my socks for his talent."

"Disbelieving in Santa is no little quirk. It's an epidemic. Do you realize that the Globe Spotlight Team was snooping around here all last summer, trying to catch me out of uniform?"

"Mr. Claus, I'm sure they had only the best intentions. Why, Globe Santa is one of the finest..."

"And National Enquirer photographed my personal things on the clothesline."

"Oh yes, I saw those photos. Rows of red boxer shorts?"

"And my green pom pom booties."

Santa's feet were propped up on a hassock. His booties had little jingly bells on the toes, and pom poms on the heels.

"I think they're kind of cute, Santa. Why are you angry at the photographers?"

"Because of the children."

"I don't understand."

"If the adults don't believe in me, the kids won't either. With each new Christmas, the kids begin to doubt at a younger age. They think it's a sign of being grown up...Would you care for a hot chocolate?"

"Why yes, I'd love a cup of hot chocolate. It's my favorite drink."

"I thought so."

What Christmas... And Chanukah Mean To Me...

Pupils in Quincy's public elementary and junior high schools have submitted the following articles on the themes "What Christmas Means To Me" and "What Chanukah Means To Me."

The Sun is happy to share their unedited thoughts with

There was a stable long ago
Where there was a star that glowed just so.

Chanukkah is a happy holiday. On Chanukkah you play a game called dreidle (a top), you eat latkes (potatoe pancakes), you light the menora, and get presents.
Then you eat a big dinner with your relatives.

Christmas is a special holiday because we get presents and we get to be with our family. When we go down stairs we see toys, look in our stockings we see all different things - like candy canes and chalk. We have lots of fun with the toys.

We are unable to print all of the articles because of space limitations. We are sorry about that because there were many others worthy of publication.

To all who participated, we wish a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Healthy New Year.

Christmas means, putting up a tree. Christmas shopping, Santa Claus, getting presents, and having relatives over for dinner.
It also means that Jesus Christ was born.

But what Christmas really means to me is just having my mother and father with me, having them there to be loved,
and just there to protect me.

Joe Demaggio
Willard School
Grade 6

Christmas is a time for sharing and being jolly. It was the day that Jesus Christ was born. We celebrate Christmas on December 25 by giving and sharing with other people. It was the day the three magis traveled to give their gifts to the new born baby.
Christmas today doesn't mean the same as it did hundreds of years ago when Christ was born.
People celebrate Christmas today by hanging up stockings, decorating trees, asking things from Santa and all sorts of things. I think that some people today are forgetting the reason why we celebrate Christmas and using this holiday in a different way.

Joshua Wood

To me Christmas means a very joyous time of year where all my troubles seem like tiny ones. Everyone is happy and full of love as they recall years gone by, years with very happy Christmases.

The stores and city streets are all decorated with Christmas lights, and tinsel, as they play Christmas carols. The best part of all is going to pick out a Christmas tree.

The excitement is in the little children's hearts as they think about Santa coming on Christmas Eve to bring them toys, or bicycles, and games.

Christmas is also a warm cup of cocoa, coming in from the snow and being all warmed up inside. The clock ticks away the hours til Christmas Day, everyone waiting in delightful suspense.

Christmas is going to be with a happy warm feeling in my stomach as I think about all the good foods that I have eaten, candy kisses, nuts, turkey, squash, potatoes, cranberry sauce, olives, egg nog, yams, and stuffing.

This is what Christmas means to me.

Nancy Steeves

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas is a time for giving. A lot of people think it is a time for getting. It is a time for thinking of others. I love it when we decorate the house. For me Christmas means LOVE.

Christine Carroll

Christmas to me, is a special time of the year, when people show how much they love each other. The way to show how they love each other is expressed by giving each other a present.

In America, Christmas is also a time when you put up a tree, decorate it, and place lovely presents beneath it.

Christmas is caroling and sharing things such as feelings. At Grandma's house we sit and wait for everyone to get there and talk and open presents. Christmas is also sharing food and money. Some kids think Christmas is getting presents but I must admit I like to open presents myself. The best thing about Christmas is happiness. It is so much fun watching people have a good time.

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas means sharing your special thought. When you think about it, it's not just sharing presents or eating a big feast. It is a time for prayer and thanking God for all the nice things you got. You also thank Jesus for a special holiday that He was born on. Christ is the first word in Christmas and the most important Christmas and the most enportant word. I like Christmas the best because my family is all together. That's what Christmas means to me.

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas means you give presents to people and when Jesus was born.

It means to be nice too. And thank people for the presents. The End.

Christmas Eve is very special in our family. We have a big party and my little cousins open some of their presents. After they open their presents, we sit and talk to one another. All of the kids play games.

There is a tradition in our family on Christmas Day. Everyone comes over and we have a big dinner. After the dinner we usually have pie and dessert. We usually have pie and cake. My favorite pie is apple pie. Christmas is very exciting to me; I love it!

Christmas is a time, when generosity is in the air, with happiness, love, and good cheer.

Christmas is a time of all times, to go to church and hear the chimes; ringing joyously as people sing, to honor our new born King.

It's hallways filled with mistletoe, and going out to shovel snow; it's coming in to feel the heat, of the fire's warmth beneath your feet.

It's a tree decorated with silver and gold.
And carolers singing, both young and old.
Most of all, Christmas is the biggest celebration, of the babe's birth, throughout creation.

Donna Gelsomini

Christmas means the day Christ was born. It is also a day of happiness, a day to give and to receive gifts, to have fun, to get together with friends, relatives, brothers and sister. And the most important thing is to be grateful for all the things the Lord has provided us, like foods, shelters, clothing and so on. Now Christmas is still celebrated on December 25 in America.

Christmas is a time for sharing and loving. It makes people happy to see the other people like the presents we give them. Christmas Day is the day Jesus was born in a manger in Bethlehem. He was with Mary and Joseph, the two angels and the three wise men. At home everyone is eating and opening presents and celebrating the birth of the Christ Child.

That's what Christmas means to me.

Loriana Marini

Christmas means a lot to me because it is not only Christmas in my house, its my birthday on Christmas Day. Christmas is a very cheerful time of year, because of the holiday spirit. It means Christmas Carols, running out getting gifts for all of your friends and relatives, getting together with your family having turkey with all the trimmings, and spreading happiness all around. Christmas is also decorating the Christmas tree whether it's real or fake, it's still a Christmas tree, and wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Christmas is also sitting with your younger sister, brother, cousin, niece and nephew and having them show you what Santa Claus brought for them.

What Christmas Means To Me...

On a snowy night,
Christmas Eve
I went downstairs
And what a surprise
Santa Claus was before my eyes!
I went and hid behind a chair,
And watched him with loving care.
Out of the bag Santa took,
A dolly, a truck and a pop-up book
He opened the book and laughed "HO, HO, HO!"
I had never seen such a glorious show!
And lo and behold!
The beautiful doll,
The unaffordable kind
That they sell at the mall.
The truck was a fire truck,
The best you can find
I knew it was the most expensive kind.
He took out airplanes,
More trucks, and more dolls
Then filled the stockings
With lollipops, candy canes
And some red bouncing balls.
Then I heard him say,
"Well, time to go!"
He went up the chimney
With a "HO, HO, HO."
Boarded his sleigh and Flew away!
Not in a hurry,
Not with a worry,
Just making a happy day for...
Shall we say,
A worthy cause?
Why?
Because he's Santa Claus!
Merry Christmas Everyone!

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas isn't the lights nor the glitter; it's much more than that. It's just being with the people that you love and care for. Everyone is filled with cheer. It's the time when people visit other people in the hospital or nursing homes.

We are very lucky to have a holiday like Christmas. Christmas is the love and joy of others. Of course you get presents but what are presents, but tokens of affections.

I may be only twelve, but I cherish the holiday always, and I will always in the years to come!

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas Eve is very special in our family. We always sit around the tree, which is the only thing lit up in the house. Our family takes their last look at the presents before they're opened. Then we all go to bed early.

There is a tradition in our family for Christmas Day. Our whole family has to get up and be there before anything is opened up. Also, my gift to my mother is always opened first. After we go over to my nana's and see my aunt. Then we always go over to my grandparents last, because we stay there for dinner and the night. The last thing is we always have to wait for my grandmother's brother, and his family. They're always late, too. Christmas is very joyous in our family.

Christmas was the day Christ was born. It is a special day to me because I get to see all my relatives. I also get to go to the Christmas Eve service. The thing I like about the service is the song and the candle light. It is a very special day because of Christ. He was a very special person but he was crucified for our sins he died so we wouldn't be hurt instead he was hurt for us.

Alison McDermott

On December 25 Jesus Christ was born. The three wise men brought Christ presents. That's probably how Christmas got its name. From that time on people have celebrated Christmas all over the world. Christmas is a time of giving and sharing. It's a time when families get together.

Christmas is a time of mistletoe, Santa Claus, and Christmas caroling. It's a time to spend with your loved ones. It's also a time when you decorate Christmas trees with lights and pretty ornaments. Christmas is a special holiday loved by everyone.

I could keep on writing about Christmas forever. But I won't. Anyway, Christmas to me means everything I wrote about. Christmas to me is something very special.

What Christmas Means To Me...

Christmas means fun, a giving not getting. It's a time for laughter and helping people.

But the best present you could give to someone is Love. It doesn't cost anything either because it comes from deep down in your heart.

Christmas is a time for families to join together. Happy people sing Christmas carols around the tree. "Ready to pop the popcorn," said my uncle. In the yard children are making a snowman. Some people are popping popcorn by the fireplace. Time passes and the turkey dinner comes out. Many people jump up to eat the turkey. After we eat, we light the Christmas tree. Some people stay late, but most are gone and Christmas is over.

Amorosino Stickler

Accent On Defense Pays Off For Presidents

Quincy basketball coach Joe Amorosino is a stickler for defense and at the Celtics rookie camp he lectured on the art of defense with such interested listeners as Larry Bird.

His emphasis on this aspect of the game was clearly evident last week when the Presidents opened their season with two close, low-scoring Suburban League victories as they take a 2-0 record into the Hingham Christmas tournament Friday and Saturday nights.

Quincy will play league rival Weymouth North at 6:30 p.m. Friday while Hingham faces Brookline at 8. The championship game will be Saturday at 8 with the consolation at 6:30.

The Presidents will then play in the Portsmouth, N.H., Christmas Tournament next Monday and Tuesday, playing Winnacunnet Monday at 7 in the first round.

Quincy will return to league action Jan. 2 when it faces state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 2:30 at Cambridge.

Last Friday night the Presidents scored three points in the final 20 seconds to edge Newton North, 51-48.

Steve Priscella, who had two good games last week and had 11 points and nine rebounds, hit on a free throw with 20 seconds left to give Quincy a 49-48 edge and P.J. Fay hit from the floor as the buzzer sounded for the final points.

Fay scored 12 points and Peter Papile had 10.

Earlier in the week Papile had sparked a 7-0 scoring spree with a little over a minute left to power the Presidents to a 42-40 decision over Brockton.

Kurt MacDonald had a big night with 15 points and 12 rebounds and Shawn Burns and Sean Burke did the job inside, each grabbing six rebounds.

CHARLES HUGHES of Hough Neck won the Most Valuable Goalie award in the seventh annual Oktoberfest Atom Hockey Tournament in Kitchner, Canada. He is the first Massachusetts boy to win the award. Charles played for the Metro Boston all-stars, who won the consolation game, 6-4, over Chinguacousy, Canada. Playing seven games in three days, Boston had a 6-1 record.

Good Depth, Size

North Opens With 2 Impressive Wins

Many Suburban League coaches pick North Quincy's basketball team to be one of the best in the league this year and Eddie Miller's Raiders lived up to expectations last week.

North, with good depth and its best size in years, opened with two impressive victories, a 63-37 romp over Weymouth South last Friday and a 67-30 bombing of Weymouth North earlier. Both were league games.

North, which played Revere Tuesday in a non-league game, will play in the Christmas Tournament at Plymouth-Carver High School Friday and Saturday nights and next Tuesday will receive its first real league test when it plays at defending state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 2:30.

Co-captains Paul Gill and Mark Millane combined for 26 points and 18 rebounds to give the Raiders their cinch victory at Weymouth South Friday.

In the Weymouth North game Millane, senior center, scored 16 points and Gill added 12. Steve Belcastro had 10 as North raced out to a 31-16 advantage.

Bregoli New Coach

Aggressive Raiderettes Look Good In 2 Wins

Paul Bregoli has taken over as coach of the North Quincy girls' basketball team and the same hustle and aggressiveness which has marked his soccer teams and his boys' junior varsity basketball teams of the past few years was much in evidence last week as his Raiderettes opened with two impressive Suburban League victories.

Friday North combined an effective three-quarter court press with a patient offense and had easy sailing over Weymouth South, 51-28.

One thing Bregoli has always insisted on is hustle. His much improved soccer team this fall had it and so did his boys' jayvee hoopmen the past few years.

"This was a great win for us. Paul said after his team had roared out to a 27-14 halftime lead Friday and won going away. We can prepare for a team and I can tell the girls what to do, but they have to go out and do it. That's what is good about this team -- they go out and do it. They have responded and they really hustle all the way."

Debbie Kiley and Joanne Runge were particularly effective in North's press.

North had only an 11-9 first period lead but took control of the game in the second period, outscoring Weymouth, 16-5. In the third quarter the Raiderettes ran off 14 points to four for the Wildcats. Julie Watts blocked four shots in this period and scored five of her seven points.

Kim Alberti had eight points, most from 15 or more feet away, and Runge had a good day with 10 points.

Earlier in the week North had to battle all the way to edge Weymouth North, 35-33, in overtime.

Tri-Capt. Watts scored the winning basket in the overtime session and had 13 points, six rebounds, two blocked shots and a steal.

With 30 seconds left in regulation time, North trailed, 33-30. A foul shot was missed but Kiley grabbed the rebound and Lauren Appolo scored to cut the gap to a point. With 14 seconds left, Jeanne Melville tied it at 33.

Alberti had 10 points in the Raiderettes.

Sheils Hotshot Winner

Eleven-year-old Siobhan Sheils of 4 Hillsboro Street, Quincy, was the girls' winner last Friday night in the Pepsi-Cola/NBA Hotshot semifinals at Boston Garden.

She and Martin Hackaby, 11, of Bristol, Conn., thereby qualified for the divisional championships during the NBA championship series on Feb. 8.

Siobhan was one of 16 boys and girls from 9 to 12 years of age who competed in the semi-finals before the game and during halftime of the Celtics-Houston game and she represented the Quincy Recreation Dept.

First Ladies Down Brockton, 59-45

The Quincy girls' basketball team got off to a winning start last week with a 59-45 victory over Brockton, but faltered in its next game Friday and bowed to a strong Newton North team, 59-39.

The First Ladies will host Brookline Friday night at 8 at the Quincy High gym, with the junior varsity teams clashing at 6:30.

Quincy was sparked by junior forward Nancy MacDonald at Brockton as she scored 27 points. Senior captain Anne McCarron had 14 points.

The First Ladies trailed, 27-26, at halftime but sophomore Mary Anne Agris sparked an outstanding defensive effort in the second half as Quincy rallied for an impressive win.

Raiders Off To Good Start

The North Quincy hockey team is off to its best start in years and took a 2-0 record (1-0 in the Suburban League) into Tuesday's game with Newton North.

The Raiders will play Brookline Saturday night at 8:30 at the Watertown rink in a league game.

Kevin Lewis' Raiders, following a cherished 5-2 opening night win over Quincy, only North's second victory in 20 years over the Presidents, blanked Hull, 3-0, last Saturday in a non-league game.

One of the North stars in last week's victories was junior goalie Danny Newcomb, who went all the way in both games and Saturday had 25 saves in earning the shutout.

"Newcomb was outstanding in both games," Lewis said. "Our defense came up with some good performances, but Danny was forced to make several excellent saves. He was especially impressive in the last three minutes of the Hull game, as he was under considerable pressure and he made a tremendous save on a breakaway."

Here's a football oddity... There was once a major-college football player who appeared on the field with a different uniform number EVERY time he scored... He was Bernardo Bramson, who played for the University of Maryland in 1964... Bramson was a kicker, and Maryland got permission from the NCAA to make Bramson a sort of human scoreboard... Maryland changed Bramson's number with each point he scored... For example, in one game against South Carolina, Bramson started the game wearing No. 3, then changed to No. 4 and 5 after extra points, and switched to uniform No. 8 after a field goal.

One of the most interesting football games ever played was a National Football League playoff game in 1965 between Baltimore and Green Bay... Baltimore's 2 quarterbacks were hurt and unable to play... So at quarterback they used a halfback, Tom Matte, who had NEVER played quarterback before in pro ball... Matte had the plays taped to his wrist so he could remember them... As he went into the huddle for each play, he'd study his wrist band... He captured the imagination of the nation as, despite his inexperience, he led Baltimore to a tie with Green Bay in regulation time and lost only in overtime... His wrist band is now in pro football's Hall of Fame.

I bet you didn't know... that COLMAN'S has all the last minute gifts you need for the entire family... Leisure wear, sportswear, cold weather wear for All. And COLMAN'S has everything you will want to give for the sports person.

Lewis was disappointed in the number of penalties assessed the Raiders, but was pleased with the performances of Robby McHugh, Mike McNeice, Bill Nee and Paul O'Sullivan as penalty killers.

McHugh, who was flying all night, McNeice and Rich Reinhardt had the goals against Hull.

In the big win over Quincy, in which Lewis finally defeated his old high school coach, Bob Sylvia, Tommy Lester had a hat trick and Nee the other two goals.

"All three of our lines played great hockey and our goals and defensemen all played well," Lewis said.

He singled out Mark Andrews, Tim Joy, Bill Bradley and Bob Lynch for their defensive efforts. He also had good words for his three lines (Lester, McHugh and McNeice, Nee, O'Sullivan and sophomore Dean Phillips, and Reinhardt, Jim McGinnis and Mike Cullen).

Lewis has a hard working group of statisticians, including Peggy Cronin.

along in the Pee Wee Division of St. Ann's Hockey League and last week blanked JDA, 9-0, to improve its record to 7-0.

Joe Tosoni had a hat trick, Billy Caplis two goals and Billy Palmer, Derek Hunter, Paul Tosoni and Paul Sullivan one each. Chris Deshler, Paul Tosoni, Hunter, Sullivan and Caplis had assists. Goalie Ricky Damagella earned the shutout. In JDA's previous game, a 4-4 tie with Keohane's, Jim Leonard had scored his first goal.

Keohane's and North Quincy Dunkin Donuts played to a 3-3 tie. Howie Gordon, Jim Gordon and Rob Olson scored for Keohane's with assists for Jim Gordon and Howie Gordon. Paul Carty had two Donut goals and Mike Crowley one with Carty having an assist.

Razer's Edge and Noble Sporting Goods also played to a 3-3 tie. Kris Meyer had two goals and Joe Bevelacqua one for Razer's and Dennis O'Reilly had an assist. Dennis Carey had two goals for Noble and Brandon Farrell one, with Jim Stec having an assist.

In the Bantam Division Plaza Olds stayed in first place with a 4-3 victory over Lydon-Russell. Brian Campbell, Mark Dougan, Peter Markakos and Dave Leonhardt scored for Plaza with assists for Markakos and Leonhardt. Scott Andrews had two goals for Lydon and John Downing one. Steve Kelly had an assist.

Riley Club defeated Bike 'n' Blade, 5-3, on goals by Danny Robison, Bob Burgess, Paul Picarello, Mike Walsh and Joe Callahan. John Keller, Ray Carigan, Walsh and George Seladis had assists. For B'n'B, James O'Reilly, Jeff Gale and Mike Morris had the goals and John Kenny, Gale and O'Reilly had assists.

Quincy Wrestlers Pin Brookline, Cambridge Rindge

The Quincy wrestling team, Suburban League and Division I South Sectional champions for two years in a row, opened the season last week with easy wins over Suburban League rivals Brookline and Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

An earlier meet with Scituate was postponed until Jan. 12.

Quincy, which faced Weymouth South Tuesday, will compete in the annual Lowell holiday tournament Saturday and Sunday and on Jan. 3 will be home to Randolph and Needham in a tri meet.

Carmen Mariano's Presidents polished off Brookline, 56-9.

winning all but two bouts.

Paul Silcox won by pin at 100 pounds, Al Costigliola won by pin at 107, Joe Souza won, 6-0, at 124; Glen Oriola won by pin at 140, Greg Oriola won, 12-4, at 147; John Monahan won by pin at 157, Mike Monahan won, 9-1, at 169; Jim Silcox won by pin at 187 and Ed Mackey won by pin in the heavyweight division.

The Cambridge meet was even more one-sided as Quincy won, 72-0, the maximum score a team can win by.

"Cambridge has a new coach and a young team and I didn't want to pour it on," Mariano said. "They have some kids who are going to be good wrestlers but it will take time for them to build up their program."

Quincy won every bout by pin and Cambridge was forced to forfeit in three classes. Mariano used several sophomores.

Small Turnout Hampers North Wrestling Team

Despite leading North Quincy's wrestling team to a 13-4 record, its best, last year, Coach Steve Joyce was disappointed by a small turnout of only 20 this fall but hopes the Raiders will win their share of meets.

The Raiders, who faced Weymouth North Tuesday and will compete Saturday in a Christmas Tournament at Norwell starting at 11 a.m., opened last week with a 1-2 record.

North dropped a 32-30 squeaker to Marshfield and then, in a triangular meet, was outclassed by Norwood, a state power, 48-9, but defeated Randolph, 36-30.

"I had hoped for a bigger turnout after our fine record last year, but we have some fine wrestlers and I think we should win our share of meets," said Joyce. "This year we have moved up to Division One, meaning we will face Quincy in the sectionals and states for the first time and not just in our dual meet."

Joyce has eight returnees from last year, led by senior captains Gino Pillard and Tom Malone. The other veterans are Junior Chris Butler, senior Lester Gerry, junior Steve Kallenberg, senior Jim O'Hare, senior John Sweet and senior Gerry Therrien.

Rounding out the squad are Jay

Allen, Tom Ceurvels, Danny Dodd, Eddie Fournier, Dave Hackett, John Kozlowski, Jack O'Donnell, Richie Palma, Jay Pillard, Frank Scanlan, Tom Sullivan and Tom Morrill.

Allen, Dodd, Fournier, Kozlowski, O'Donnell, Jay Pillard, Scanlan and Sullivan are also sophomores.

Following the first three meets Sweet is unbeaten at 114 pounds. Butler is undefeated at 128 and Gino Pillard remains unbeaten at 140. O'Hare and Kallenberg are 2-1.

Eddie O'Reilly is North's manager.

Flaman's 4 Goals Power Beau's, 6-4

Terry Flaman scored four goals and assisted on another to pace Beau's Place to a 6-4 victory over Washington Tap in the Executive Hockey League.

Ned Burke and Charlie Chambers had the other goals for Beau's. Bill Sweeney had two assists and Ken Gardiner, Dick McCabe and Burke one each. For Washington John Emmott scored two goals and Marty Tolson and Ralph Gibbs one each. Gibbs had three assists and Tolson two.

Dayce's Place and Luke's Lounge played to a 2-2 tie. Bob Murray and Al McKay scored for Luke's with an assist for Ed Linehan. Doug McLean and Dave Mullen scored for Dayce's with Kevin Lewis having an assist.

Adams Sports defeated Budget Rent-A-Car, 5-1. Kevin Glynn had two goals and Bob Donovan, Dennis O'Connell and Tom Roberts one each. Bob O'Connell, Bill Hansen, Donovan, Alan Gullickson and Bibby Lewis had assists.

Quincy Optimistic Despite 2 Losses

By TOM SULLIVAN

Although Quincy's hockey team lost its first two games last week, 5-2 North Quincy (only the second loss in 20 years to the Raiders), and 4-0 to Weymouth North, last year's Suburban League runner-up, Coach Bob Sylvia is hoping for a winning season.

The Presidents will host Waltham Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and next Tuesday will play Brockton at 1 o'clock at Brockton's Asiaf Rink.

"We haven't much experience this year and we are still working on the fundamentals," said Sylvia, who is starting his 17th year as Quincy coach and who has taken 10 of his teams into the state tournament. "We had a senior last year and have only two varsity returnees. Most of the others are up from the jayvees."

"These boys are working their heads off, though, and their desire is bound to pay off. Our big problem again is scoring. We move the puck around well but can't take advantage of our opportunities."

Sylvia lost one of the league's top scoring lines, Tom Brennan, Scott Richardson and Robby Craig, and two outstanding goalies, Jim Campbell and Chuck Dooley, to graduation.

Brennan, Richardson and Craig made up the league's number one scoring line two years ago and last year it was among the top scoring units with 92 points.

This year senior Steve Holler is the number one goalie backed up by seniors Paul Sarno and Rich LaPierre and sophomore Todd Richardson. Scott's brother, Holler played well against North Quincy but was injured in the third period and was replaced by Sarno.

Senior veteran John Baylis leads the defensemen and is joined by seniors Paul "Red" Furey, Mike Quigg, who had an outstanding game against North Quincy, and Joe Lamparelli and junior Steve Hall.

The first or "blue" line is made up of seniors Paul Flynn (center) and Steve Kamb and junior Mike Nevins.

Sophomores Mike Baylis, John's brother, and Mike Nourse make up two-thirds of a "green" line. Chenette was on this line until moved up to the "royal blue" line because of an injury.

Nevins and Flynn scored the goals against North Quincy.

"I was pleased with our overall play but we just couldn't take advantage of our chances," Sylvia said. "We had more shots on goal but, while we failed on our power plays, North took advantage of theirs. It was a typical Quincy-North game with good, hard checking and good skating."

North coach Kevin Lewis played for Sylvia at Quincy and, ironically, when North defeated Quincy several years ago, it was coached by another of Sylvia's former players, Ron Erikson.

North Swimmers Defeat Cambridge

The North Quincy boys' swimming team bounced back from a tough loss to Newton North, 95-76, to defeat Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 124-37, last week in Suburban League action. In the Cambridge meet the Raiders won eight of the 11 events with Paul Phipps leading the way with wins in the 50 and 100 freestyle events. Bill Feeney broke his own school record, set against Newton, in winning the 100 backstroke in 1:04.2.

Dave Riley won the 200 freestyle, Mike O'Toole won in diving, John Buckley took the 100 butterfly and Tim Burke the 500 freestyle.

North had made an excellent showing against a strong Newton team with Scott Andrews winning the diving, Feeney the 100 backstroke with his record showing, and Bill Boudreau the 100 breast stroke.

The Raiders' Riley was second in the 200 freestyle, Burke third in the 500 freestyle, O'Toole second in diving, Dan Johnson third in the 50 butterfly and Buckley third in the 100 butterfly.

WEEK OF DECEMBER 25

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

You make some universe shaking discoveries about people in your life. On less dramatic note, week favors shopping for items such as appliances, and getting into shape.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

Good time to get things out of your system and fight for your beliefs. Family is in loving mood. Best all-around approach is verbal one. Could be asked to be guest speaker.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

You're a pro in planning social functions, but don't get carried away with other people's money. In fact, don't let other people take advantage of you, either, during this generous period.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

Recent financial reversals end, and in romance tense situation stabilizes. Domestic animals are in week's picture: perhaps you adopt a stray creature or are asked to puppy-sit.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

Romance brightens by weekend. Careerwise, you may have difficulty convincing others you're right; don't push issue. Financial conflict with friend should be resolved promptly.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Social advances likely if you work at "being yourself." Good financial news arrives but don't divulge too much. Tendency to exaggerate could land you in hot water.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Don't look for shortcuts if negotiating any kind of deal. Creative spirit sparkles and you make dearest job come alive. An excellent week for delegating tasks.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

You're more animated than ever during this hectic week. It's important to take a long and hard look at joint financial ventures, ask questions till you have all the answers.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Year ends renewed commitment to romantic or professional goal. Coincidences seem too outrageous to be true. Think extra hard about who's missing from your gift list.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Chance to supplement income is introduced, but be wary of get-rich-quick schemes. Could be accident prone on weekend. Correspondence - incoming and outgoing - is lively.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

If not romantically committed, you just might be before 1980 ends. Popping your loved ones gives you unexpected pleasure. And don't hesitate to pamper yourself, either.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

You're increasingly social, and relationships with others continue to improve. As well, you're feeling more vigorous and more attractive. Try hard, however, to ignore jealous types.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Persistent, consistent, thoughtful; there's purpose in what you do. Sometimes, though, you stick too closely to what you know. Be more outspoken in career/academic matters and you can reach a key goal this year.

BORN THIS WEEK

December 25th, singer Cab Calloway; 26th, comedian Alan King; 27th, composer Victor Johnston; 28th, actress Maggie Smith; 29th, actress Mary Tyler Moore; 30th, host Bert Parks; 31st, singer John Denver.

QHS's Carroll Signs With Phils

Former Quincy High star Preston Carroll signed a professional baseball contract with the Philadelphia Phillies last week.

Carroll is a 1976 graduate of Quincy High School, where he lettered in baseball, football and track.

He signed the contract in Los Angeles, where he has been playing winter league baseball for the last three months. Carroll, an outfielder, was leading his Canoga Park team in home runs when signed by the Phillies.

He is on a leave of absence from Northeastern University, where he had played baseball and football and was a member of the Class of 1981.

He will report to the Phil's training camp in Clearwater, Fla. in March.

Horne Memorial Bloodmobile To Be Held Jan. 6

Local residents are invited to give one last gift this holiday season - a pint of blood - at the 10th annual William J. Horne, III, Memorial Bloodmobile Tuesday, Jan. 6, 11 to 7 p.m.

The bloodmobile, at St. John's School, Phipps St., is in memory of the late son of Marion and William Horne of the Quincy who died of leukemia at the age of 23.

In past years, the bloodmobile has been held during the week between Christmas and New Year and many thought of it as the "Christmas Bloodmobile Party".

Because Christmas falls on a Thursday, resulting in the consecutive long week-ends, the date has been changed by request to Jan. 6, known to many as "Little Christmas".

After the long week-ends, the need for blood will be extreme. One pint of blood can bring assistance to eight patients after being broken down into several components.

The American Red Cross is celebrating its 100th anniversary in 1981 and the bloodmobile will be one of the first events of the occasion.

Residents are asked to enjoy the holidays and then celebrate a grand finale Jan. 6, with a gift of

MASSACHUSETTS WATER RESOURCES COMMISSION
DIVISION OF WATER POLLUTION CONTROL

110 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MA 02108

OF
PERMIT APPLICATIONS

The Massachusetts Division of Water Pollution Control has received applications for permits for construction of sewer extensions or connections to the municipal systems listed below. Section 43 of Chapter 21 of the General Laws, as amended by Chapter 546 of the Acts of 1973, requires that public notice be given of every permit proceeding.

The applications are available for inspection and copying at the Division's offices at the above address. Persons desiring to comment upon or to object to the tentative determination of the Division or to request a Public Hearing thereon should submit their views in writing to the Division at the above address within 21 days of publication of this notice. All comments received within this 21-day period will be considered by the Division in formulating the final determination regarding these applications. A Public Hearing will be held only if response to this notice indicates, in the opinion of the Director, that the public interest would be served thereby.

Following this 21-day comment period, a final determination to issue or deny the proposed permit will be made by the Director of the Division with respect to each permit application. Where the final determination remains substantially unchanged from the tentative determination indicated in this public notice, the Director will so inform the applicant, and any person who has filed written comments during this 21-day comment period, of his final determination and of the right of any party aggrieved by the final determination to request a formal adjudicatory hearing within 14 days of the final determination.

Where the final determination is substantially changed from the tentative determination in this public notice, the Director will publish a proposed notice of the final determination in addition to the written notice provided above. Persons other than the applicant who feel they may have a right to and may wish to request a formal adjudicatory hearing should file written comments during the 21-day public comment period in order to assure receipt of written notification of the final determination.

Within 14 days of the final permit determination, parties (as defined in sections 1, 10 and 10A of Chapter 30A of the General Laws) aggrieved by the determination may file a written request with the Director for an Adjudicatory Hearing under the provisions of Chapter 30A (the Massachusetts Administrative Procedure Act) and the Standard Adjudicatory Rules of Practice and Procedure (801 CMR 1.00).

Furnace Brook School Brownie Troop 190 Visits The Quincy Sun

Eight 2nd and 3rd grade students from Brownie Troop 4190 visited The Quincy Sun recently to see first hand how a newspaper is produced.

Making the tour were Joanna Rugnetta, Cindy Psota, Carol Wirtz, Maria Kalantzis, Michelle Burke, Dawn Duncan, Christine Kavelis, Jessica Flavin and their Troop Leaders Mrs. Karvelis & Mrs. Flavin.

The students were shown how news stories are written, set in type and placed on a page.

They saw an IBM computer typesetter, two Compugraphic photo typesetters, and a new Varityper phototypesetter that sets news stories, headlines, advertisements, and has a video screen for editing. It is one of the latest typesetters in newspaper production today.

They also saw how a stat camera reduces, enlarges, and screens original photographs so they can be used in The Sun.

They were also shown how pages of The Sun are put together for printing.

The Brownies were presented with copies of the current issue of The Sun at the end of their tour.

Fire Department Urges: Make It A Safe Christmas

Christmas, the season of joy and gift-giving, also has the potential to be one of fire and tragedy. Christmas trees, lights, and decorations can all provide the spark for a house fire, notes the Quincy Fire Department. Deputy Chief Carl Valenti, fire prevention officer, offers the following safety tips for the Christmas season:

Christmas trees

- Buy a tree that hasn't dried out from prolonged storage.
- Stand the cut end of the tree trunk in water until taken indoors.
- Place the tree securely in a stand that has a water receptacle for the cut end of the tree trunk.
- Keep the water receptacle filled by checking at least once a day.
- Use a stand that will support the tree.
- Place the tree away from fireplaces, radiators, etc.
- Place tree where it will not block a door or exit.
- When needles become dry and start to shed dismantle and discard the tree immediately.

Lighting

- Do not use candles on or near a Christmas Tree.
- Use only electric lighting sets that are approved and bear the U. L. label.
- Before using electric set check for frayed wires, loose connections, and broken sockets.
- Use only 15 ampere fuses on electrical circuits for lighting sets.
- Extensive holiday wiring is dangerous unless done by a qualified electrician.
- Avoid plugging too many cords into one outlet.
- Turn off all tree lighting before retiring or leaving the house.
- Provide a switch some distance from the tree for turning tree lights off and on.

Decorations and Wrapping

- Dispose of Christmas wrapping immediately after gifts are opened.
- Decorate the home with non-combustible material whenever possible. When combustible material is used make sure it is flameproofed.
- Santa Claus whiskers and clothing, cotton batting, and certain papers ignite easily and burn intensely. Use only if flameproofed.
- Do not use the fireplace or stove to burn Christmas wrappings or decorations.

Toys

- Avoid buying pyroxylin plastic toys, or non-flameproofed costumes.
- Avoid buying toys operated by flammable liquids such as alcohol, kerosene, gasoline. They are especially dangerous.
- Buy electrical toys that are approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories.
- Electric trains and other electrical toys are not to be operated under or close to a Christmas Tree. An upset may cause an electrical spark that will result in a fire.

Other suggestions

- Avoid smoking near the Christmas Tree, or amidst decorations.
- Use a substantial fireplace screen to guard against flying sparks.
- Keep matches, lighters, and burning candles beyond the reach of children.
- Plan on what to do if a fire breaks out. Have a fire extinguisher or garden hose connected to a faucet, or buckets of water within easy reach of a tree.
- In case of fire, immediately call the fire department.

READY FOR NEW YEAR is Stephen Wigmore Jr., the first baby born at Quincy City Hospital in 1980. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wigmore of 11 Webster St., North Quincy, he arrived at 8:15 a.m. on Jan. 1 and weighed in at six lbs., two ounces.

Set Stage For 2½

1980: A Year Of Money Woes

By TOM HENSHAW

All through the year, the recurring theme was money — public money.

It was money to pay city employees; money to provide city services; money for badly needed capital improvements for City Hospital; money for the Police Department; money for the Fire Department; and, above all, money from the taxpayers with which to pay for all these things.

It all reached a climax on Nov. 4 when the voters of Massachusetts, apparently fed up with years of uncontrolled spending, voted overwhelmingly for Referendum Question 2, popularly known as Proposition 2½. In Quincy, the vote was 26,859 to 14,135.

Proposition 2½, which became law on Dec. 4, limited the tax levy of a city or town to 2.5 per cent of the total property valuation, leaving city officials with some hard decisions on slashing services and laying off city employees.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin estimated that Prop 2½ will cost Quincy about $15 million in its first effective year (1981-82) and as many as 400 city jobs might be lost. The School Department figured to lose $10 million of that total and five or six schools might have to close.

"We're going to have to deal with priorities," said Tobin. "I'm sure the people of Quincy will want public safety affected last.

"There are going to be layoffs. I don't want to mislead anyone. But there is a way of making layoffs that is the least disruptive." Some of the jobs may be affected before next July 1 so that we can get through the current year."

Prop 2½ came down most heavily on the schools since the referendum also stripped the School Committee of its long-cherished fiscal autonomy. Now the schools would have to compete for their money just like any other city department.

For the School Committee, the hard decision seemed to boil down to a choice of neighborhood schools or educational programs. "If it came down to that," said School Committeewoman Mary Collins, "I would lean towards fewer schools and more programs," and her committee colleagues apparently agreed with her.

Anticipating a cut of at least $8.5 million in the school budget, Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon drew up seven plans for the committee's consideration under which five to 14 schools would be closed, a minimum of 226 teachers would be laid off, and the pupil-teacher ratio increased from 21-1 to 25-1.

Cheney Dissents

Tobin Gathers Support For Hospital Management Plan

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin is taking his plan to hire a private firm to manage City Hospital to the City Council's Hospital Committee armed with the endorsement of just about everyone who counts at the hospital.

The Mayor secured letters of endorsement from the Board of Managers and his Hospital Advisory Committee Friday night to go along with earlier letters of approval from the nurses and the medical staff.

About the only dissenting note in Friday's meeting came from John Cheney, chairman of the Board of Managers, who told the Mayor that he had not been told enough about the proposal to be able to cast a vote.

"For me to sign a letter concurring with a proposal that I haven't seen would be impossible," he said.

He suggested that the individual members of the Board send letters independently to the mayor with their endorsements and later on, after a presentation is made to the Board, the Board could take a vote.

"I want the letter from the Board," Tobin insisted. "I want the City Council to know where the Board stands when I take my proposal to the committee. I want the board to take a vote. If some members want to abstain, okay."

Tobin said he was not asking a vote on details of his proposal, only on the concept of hiring a private firm to run the financially plagued institution. The Board so voted, with Cheney abstaining.

Tobin told the Board that the hiring of a management firm is an executive decision but he must go before the City Council for permission to set up a special enterprise account from which to pay hospital expenses from hospital receipts.

"The long-range problem of the hospital," he said, "is that through the years the City

Mall Announcement Due In Tobin Midterm Address

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin is set to announce details of a proposed shopping mall in the John Hancock Parking Area when he delivers his midterm address Monday, Jan. 5, in the Council chamber.

The announcement will include the names of the anchor stores that will go into the mall, which is to be developed by Stephen Weiner of Letherbee Associates.

The midterm ceremonies, which include the election of a Council president plus the first city Council meeting of the new year, will get underway at 10 a.m.

Jan. 1 Deadline For Smoke Detectors

Fire Chief Edward F. Barry reminds Quincy property owners of the Jan. 1, 1981 deadline for installing smoke detectors in homes and apartments.

As of Jan. 1, Barry said, all homes must have smoke detectors, either battery operated or wired to the home's AC power source.

Dwellings with six or more apartments must be equipped with detectors in each apartment as well as in each hallway floor.

And, he said, buildings with 25 or more dwelling units must be connected directly to the Fire Department's municipal alarm system.

Barry recommended that detectors be connected to the building's AC electricity, as there would be no batteries to replace and the units could not be removed by unauthorized persons.

Barry suggested that any property owners having questions on the new law contact the Fire Department's Fire Prevention Bureau or Fire Alarm Division at 773-9800 during office hours.

Man Overcome By Smoke In Fire At Pizza Shop

A Weymouth man was overcome by smoke early Monday morning in a fire at a Quincy Center pizza shop.

Warren Church of Weymouth called fire headquarters at around 4:30 a.m. to report that he was trapped in his gift shop next door to Friendly Pizza, 1622 Hancock

St.

Church is the owner of PVC, located at 1624 Hancock St.

Firefighters Lt. Edward O'Toole, Michael Hogan, Paul Cuddy and Joseph Pacciorretti "forcibly entered" PVC to rescue Church, according to Firefighter Bill Smith of the fire prevention department.

Church was treated and released at Quincy City Hospital.

The single-alarm fire apparently started in the back room or kitchen of Friendly Pizza, Smith said. Damages to the pizza shop, PVC and South Shore Mental Health, 1620 Hancock St., have been placed at over $20,000, he said.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, although the fire department is not calling it a suspicious fire, Smith said.

After Frozen Pipes Burst

Squantum Flea Market To Reopen Saturday

It will be business as usual at the Squantum Flea Market Saturday, Jan. 3, after a series of burst water pipes shut the flea market down last weekend.

Manager Hassan Haydar said Monday the flea market will be open for its normal business hours Saturday and Sunday.

Damage is still being added up from Saturday's mishap, Haydar said.

"Our damages, to the buildings, were a few thousand," he said. "The individual dealers, I'd say, lost much more than that."

Frozen pipes burst during the early morning hours Saturday, drenching stalls and merchandise set up by merchants.

About 225 dealers rent space at the former hangar building of the old Squantum Naval air base, Haydar said. The flea market operates on weekends year-round.

NQ Development Corporation Not Opposed To Kelly's Pub Expansion

The North Quincy Development Corporation has written to the Quincy License Board that the organization is not opposed to expansion of Kelly's Pub and Grub as reported in the Dec. 18, Quincy Sun.

Pub owner Peter Kelly had applied to the license board for extension of the pub's license from 25-27 to 21-27 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

During the meeting, Andrew Walsh, president of the development corporation, spoke to the board of his concern over adequate parking in the area.

Walsh said the corporation is trying to develop the area in an orderly way and indicated Kelly's move would not help the situation.

Brendan J. Gallager, clerk of the corporation, took exception to the fact that Walsh's concerns over the expansion were attributed to the corporation as a whole.

"Evidently there was a misunderstanding of all parties concerned because the LCD leadership as a group did not at anytime, or at any meetings held prior, come out against or for the expansion," wrote Gallager.

Gallagher continued that since that meeting, a number of members of the corporation have contacted him to say they are not in opposition but in favor of Kelly's extension.

Quinoil Donates $25,000 In Oil To Needy Families

Quinoil Industries Inc. of Quincy has donated over $25,000 in oil to needy families in the area through a program coordinated by the Quincy Council of Churches.

Oil was donated and delivered the week before Christmas to approximately 200 families recommended by the Council of Churches. This is the second time this year Quinoil has made these donations, according to spokesman L. Allan Spier.

"At this time of the year," Spier said, "Quinoil wishes to make it a little brighter for many families in the South Shore community."

MBTA On Regular Schedule New Year's Eve

The MBTA's rapid transit and commuter railroad trains, streetcars, buses and trackless trolleys will operate on regular schedules New Year's Eve.

However, for the convenience of New Year's Eve revelers, four-car trains will be operated on the three rapid transit lines and extra cars will be added on the Green Line, if necessary.

On New Year's Day, Sunday schedules will be in effect for all MBTA service.

Hopeful Report False

Wollaston Beach Search For 'Missing' Youth Futile

A four-hour search of icy waters off Wollaston Beach failed to turn up any evidence of an unidentified youth reported to have fallen through the ice Saturday morning.

Police now believe the report, by a nine-year old Milton boy, may have been false, according to Lt. John Sullivan, administrative commander of Old Colony MDC Police.

"At this point, everything that could have been done, has been done," said Sullivan Monday. "All we can do is hope and pray the report was false."

The MDC police, and patrol boat were joined by a Coast Guard helicopter, State Police helicopter and Quincy policemen and divers in the search, which attracted hundreds of onlookers Saturday morning and afternoon.

The Milton youngster told police he saw someone fall through the ice between Squantum and Wollaston yacht clubs at around 10:30 a.m. Police reported finding no breaks in the ice in the area pointed out by the youth.

Only one missing youth, who later returned home, was reported in the area since the search, Sullivan said.

Koch Warns: Beware Of Thin Ice

Would-be skaters and others should test ice carefully before venturing out onto it, says Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board.

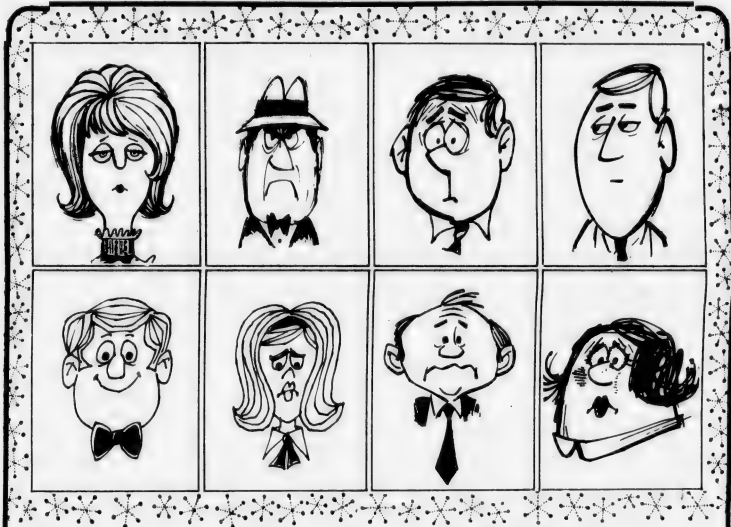

Although most natural ice surfaces in the city appear to be safe, Koch said, they may melt rapidly in the warm and foggy weather which has hit the city recently.

Park Department personnel frequently check the natural ice surfaces under its jurisdiction, Koch said.

For example, Sailor's Home Pond on Rice Rd., Wollaston, had an ice thickness of six inches Monday morning, Koch said. A thickness of 3.5 inches is considered safe for skating.

When the pond's gates are closed and padlocked, it is an indication that the ice is unsafe, Koch said. If the gates are opened, then the thickness of the ice is sufficient for skating.

Koch also warned youngsters to avoid treacherous salt water ice.

Can you tell which one of these people joined our CHRISTMAS CLUB last year?

Obviously, the happy-faced person is the one that saved systematically last year with an interest paying Christmas Club at the South Boston Savings Bank. He'll have plenty of money to buy his holiday presents this season. Now is the time to open your 1981 Christmas Club at any office of the South Boston Savings Bank and you too will have a smile on your face this time next year.

Local Telethon Committee Raises $117,239

Quincy MDA Spelling Bee No. 1 In Nation Second Year In Row

The Quincy Spelling Bee for the second year in a row has won top local and national honors as a Muscular Dystrophy Association fund-raiser.

The National MDA reports the spelling bee, held in Quincy public and parochial schools, was No. 1 in the nation raising $13,250, to help fight muscular dystrophy.

It was $4,464 more than the $8,464 raised in last year's Quincy Spelling Bee which was also No. 1 in the country.

This year's spelling bee was the biggest single pre-telethon event sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee which raised a total $117,239 in 1980.

The $117,239 was a record figure for the committee, topping last year's effort by $14,429.

It brings to $360,903 the total amount raised by the committee since it was established four years ago.

The $117,239 raised this year includes $67,400 in pre-telethon events and $40,629 in pledges and $9,220 in fishbowl receipts at The Quincy Sun based pledge center over the Labor Day Jerry Lewis Telethon.

The Quincy-South Shore committee and The Sun pledge center are headed by Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Richard Koch, executive secretary to the Quincy Park-Recreation Board.

The Quincy-South committee area includes in addition to Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth.

The spelling bee was held in cooperation with the Quincy School System. Janet DiTullio, coordinator of language arts for the Quincy Schools, directed the event.

Nearly 1,600 pupils in Quincy public and parochial elementary schools participated. Winning speller was Bryan Mosher, a fourth grade pupil at the Quincy School. Runner-up was Gail Saluti, a fifth grader at the Wollaston School. Third place honors went to Kevin Connelly, a fifth grader at St. Mary's School.

Top fund-raisers in the spelling bee were Snug Harbor fifth grader Jammie O'Brien, $264; Victor Panagou, Furnace Brook sixth grade; and Tad Sheets, also Furnace Brook sixth grade, $182.

Hingham Firefighters Local 2398 raised the second highest amount this year — $5,570 through canisters, tag days, toll booth and yard sale.

Third biggest event was the second annual Quincy Swim-a-thon co-sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Lincoln Hancock Community School Association that brought in $4,507.

Other top fund-raisers: Weymouth sons of Italy, $2,770. Quincy Sons of Italy, $2,500.

St. Francis Xavier CYO Superdance, Weymouth, $2,115. Quincy Lodge of Elks, $2,000. Quincy Bowling Little Loop $1,817.

Quincy Firefighters Local 792, canisters drive $1033.

North Quincy Knights of Columbus, $1,000.

Randolph Firefighters tag day, $950.

Quincy softball double header (News Media vs. City Officials, Police vs. Fire Department), $589. Quincy Roller Skate-a-thon, $517.

Quincy Football Kick-a-thon, $359.

Koch Club of Quincy, $258.

George F. Bryan VFW Auxiliary, $520.

George F. Bryan VFW Post, $500.

City Gets Early Taste Of Things To Come Under 2½

Even before passage of Prop 2½, Quincy got a taste of things to come when the School Committee voted to increase the cost of rentals to non-school groups to $12 an hour to cover the payment of custodians. It was seen as a death blow to many youth activities.

"We don't see any other alternative to cancelling the program," said Jim Rendle, director of the Quincy YMCA Church Basketball League, which paid $6,200 for the use of school gyms in 1979-80, would have to pay $24,800 under the new scale.

"You'll be driving these kids off the basketball court and into Judge Kramer's court," warned Ray Dunn, coach of the St. Josephs team.

A way out of the Prop 2½ dilemma appeared to be possible if the city were able to take some services out of the city budget and make them self-sustaining as separate enterprise accounts, similar to the Water Department.

Mayor Tobin was a strong advocate of such accounts but a cautious City Council put the brake on any headlong rush into them.

The Council rejected Tobin's plan to implement a sewer use charge based on water usage which, he said, would have an impact of $8 to $10 on the tax rate. New federal and MDC guidelines, he said, require such a "fair and equitable" charge to qualify for federal and state sewer aid.

But Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who was widely believed to be readying a campaign for mayor against Tobin in 1981, led the opposition claiming the plan was an effort "to reduce the tax rates so that he (Tobin) will look good."

"The City Council's options are simple." If they choose not to address the problem then the state will handle it for us and deduct it from the cherry sheet and we will get less aid.

"Or they can have an intelligent discussion on the issue and adopt a sewer use charge so that we can get federal funds to update our overburdened sewer system which dates back to 1895."

McCauley called the Mayor's proposal premature.

"We're not turning anything down," he said as the Council voted 7-2 against it. "I for one do not want to jeopardize any federal spending. I think when we get the thing in order and the Mayor comes back in the proper time, then we can accept this sewer charge."

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti put a number of his department's functions out to private contract, including street cleaning and operation of the city dump and plans were afoot to have snow removal done by a private contractor.

And, at year's end, the biggest account of them all — City Hospital — was on the verge of being farmed out to a private management firm.

The year began with the appointment of the Mayor and the City Council of rival blue ribbon commissions to study the problems of the Hospital and advise them of what steps should be taken to insure its future.

Mayor Tobin and the Hospital administration was at odds with the Council's commission right from the start.

"There are really no problems at the hospital," said John Cheney, chairman of the Board of Managers. "There are solutions. We have recognized them and implemented some of them. I'd like to have the commission assist us in implementing more."

Early in its study, the Council's commission called the selection and hiring of administrators at the hospital "100 per cent political."

"The interviewing for these important positions was not done at the hospital, it was done at city hall," said Dr. Gerard L. Gaughan, a commission member.

The commission's report, released in August, referred to the "politicizing" of the hospital and recommended that it be managed by a voluntary, non-profit association or be sold to a private, non-profit corporation.

Tobin called the report "a hatchet job."

"If you want to call it 'politicized,' yes, I guess I'd have to agree," he said. "After all, it is a municipal hospital. It's been politicized since the day the city took it over 60 years ago."

"I think it has been proven that the municipal stewardship has been inadequate," said Dr. Russell Irons, president of the medical staff. "Clearly, something drastic has to happen."

The Mayor and the Council's commission agreed on what that something drastic should be — private management of the Hospital.

Tobin has been leaning that way for more than a year and in the fall he and members of his commission started visiting the headquarters of four such management firms prior to letting out a contract.

"I hope to be able to announce

MAYOR ARTHUR H. TOBIN takes the oath of office for his second term from City Clerk John Gillis (right).

early in January the name of the company that will take over administration of the hospital and run it for the city," said Tobin.

About the same time, Anthony DeFalco, who was named to the post in 1976 by then-Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, announced plans to resign from the $41,600 director's job after the first of the year.

"It is time for me to move on to something different," he said.

Tobin named to the Hospital Board of Managers Atty. Lawrence F. O'Donnell and Richard W. Corner, an accountant, to replace Joseph M. Aristide and Mrs. Syria L. Mayo, and his statement that accompanied the appointments raised the hackles of the City Council.

Other members of the board, said the mayor, "if they agree with the direction we're going and can put in the time and energy to work with this commission, I'm going to ask them to stay on."

"Anyone who criticizes or questions our sense of direction and cannot put the time and energy into it, I'm going to ask for their resignations."

Mayor Tobin was sworn into a second term in January, with an extra police detail in the audience of 250 in the Council Chamber because of a reported threat on the mayor's life.

"Is he going to be there this morning?" a male telephone caller asked secretary Ann Clabby.

"Yes," she said. "Well, I'm going to get him," said the caller.

Nothing happened. In his inaugural address, Tobin promised "bold and innovative decisions, at times tough and unpopular."

He pledged that he would hold the line on city spending but, when it came time to present the budget for fiscal 1981 to the Council, it came to $112.5 million, up more than $10 million from the previous year and the first time it topped $100 million.

The Mayor said he cut $6.9 million from the budget requests of the various departments and $5 million from the School Department budget, which reduced the schools to within the state-mandated 4 per cent cap.

Tobin Cuts Down, Orders 'No Overtime For Anyone'

He told the Council that he would veto any appropriation that goes above the 4 per cent cap.

The Council proceeded to stun the Mayor by not only staying within the cap but cutting the budget by 10 percent across the board to $101 million in a marathon session that ended at 1 o'clock in the morning.

"Some of the action taken by the Council was totally unrealistic and is going to have a devastating effect on the city," said Tobin.

There were some additions, and the School Department was granted a $900,000 fuel allowance when the state removed it from the cap, but the appropriation still wound up at about $102 million.

LEO KELLY
Elected Council President

The new City Council met for the first time on the first Monday in January and elected a new president, Leo J. Kelly, who immediately set about reforming the Council rules. One of the new rules limits the Council president to a single two-year term starting in 1982.

Newly elected Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, who served as mayor for one dissension-racked term in 1976-77, pledged his cooperation "even though cooperation was lacking when I served as Mayor." On most anti-administration votes, LaRaia lined up with Councillor Francis X. McCauley as the opposition.

By early November, with the fiscal year little more than four months along, Tobin said:

"If things go along the way they are now there is a possibility we will have insufficient money to make it to June 30. I am instructing the City Auditor not to authorize payment of any overtime. That applies to everyone."

"We warned them," he added, "that they would create a deficit and what we predicted came true."

Police Chief Francis X. Finn told the Council that his department was going to come up about $400,000 short.

"If somewhere along the line in the next few months I don't get some positive answers then more drastic steps in curtailment of services will have to be taken," he said.

Earlier, Finn, whose department was 22 men short, told members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association that crime in downtown Quincy has been cut but he is not sure how long the police can hold the line.

"I don't think you can continue to function with the numbers of people we have there and continue to have public safety," he said.

The year was only four days old when the DiMarzio Roller Skating Rink on Sea St., long a Houghs Neck landmark as Taylor's and Moore's Ballroom, burned to the ground in an early morning fire. Later, the owners of the rink, Jean DiMarzio and Helen Lynch,

345th Anniversary

Tobin Proclaims Jan. 4 'Houghs Neck Day'

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has declared Sunday, Jan. 4 "Houghs Neck Day," in honor of the community's 345th birthday.

The birthday will be commemorated by a party at the Houghs Neck Community Council's Houghs Neck Multi-Service Center.

On Jan. 4, 1635, Tobin noted, the state's General Court granted 600 acres of land, including the land which is now Houghs Neck, to Atherton Hough.

In declaring Houghs Neck Day, Tobin cited "the countless contributions to history, both politically and professionally" by past and present Houghs Neck residents.

Tobin plans to attend the Houghs Neck celebration Sunday to present a mayoral citation to the community council.

Mass GOP Women Plan Own Inaugural Ball

Massachusetts Republicans, for whom victory is a rarity in recent years, will hold an inaugural ball of their own Friday, Jan. 9, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Cambridge to celebrate Ronald Reagan's ascendancy to the presidency.

The headliner of the evening will be Milton-born George Bush and his wife, Barbara, who will be sworn in as vice president along with President Reagan in Washington on Tuesday, Jan. 20.

"We want our inaugural ball to be a kick off for the Washington inauguration," said Kathryn Roberts, president of the Quincy Federation of Republican Women, "an evening of fun and celebration."

"It will be a party for all who worked in their communities to elect Ronald Reagan and George Bush."

The evening, which is sponsored by the Mass Federation of Republican Women, will begin with cocktails at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner and dancing at 9 p.m. to the music of a nine piece band.

Tickets are available from Kathryn Roberts at 479-8280 or by contacting the Mass Federation of Republican Women, 73 Tremont St., Boston.

Brownell Bill Would Link Tax Cut, Inflation

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has filed legislation that would reduce state income taxes by tying personal credits and exemptions to the rate of inflation.

The concept, known as "tax indexation", has been adopted in various forms by some 12 other states.

"Inflation is, in essence, a hidden tax because as your income increases with inflated dollars, your purchasing power remains the same or decreases, depending on how well your wages keep up with inflation," said Brownell.

"You are then taxed on your inflated income while your credits and exemptions remain the same.

In this sense, inflation is the cruellest tax of all."

The Brownell bill would increase the existing personal exemption for single and married persons, taxpayers 65 and over, blind persons, dependents and the aggregate low-income exemption.

It would also increase the low income credit, the income exemption from interest on savings accounts and an income exemption from interest, dividends and net capital gains.

The percentage increase on these credits and exemptions would be based on the Consumer Price Index for the Boston Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area.

Kelly And A Footnote In History

Leo Kelly is expected to be re-elected president of the City Council next week and it will become a footnote in Quincy's history.

Kelly will be the last president elected to a one-year term.

Beginning in 1982, the council president will be elected to a two-year term and will not be able to succeed himself as wielder of the gavel.

KELLY

The City Council in May adopted a new rule setting the term at two years effective in 1982 and with the stipulation that a president cannot succeed himself.

It will leave Mayor Arthur Tobin with an unchallenged record: he served eight consecutive one year terms as council president. Late Mayor Charles Ross is runner-up with six one-year terms.

Kelly is seen as a shoo-in for re-election Jan. 5 when Tobin gives his second mid-term address and the council reorganizes. He probably will get the nod unanimously.

Actually, Kelly is exempt from the new rule and could seek the council presidency for a two-year term in 1982.

But, he won't.

"If I am re-elected Jan. 5 I will not seek the council presidency in 1982," he says. "There definitely will be a new council president then."

THE TWO YEAR City Council presidency will thus fall in step with the vice-chairmanship of the School Committee. Current Vice-Chairman Christopher Kennedy, like his predecessors, was elected to a two-year term. So, he automatically remains in that post through 1981 having been elected vice-chairman in 1980.

The School Committee vice-chairman cannot succeed himself, either.

"I think it's a good rule," says Kennedy. "It gives more people the opportunity to become vice-chairman and it's better for the community, because it provides a different viewpoint more frequently."

CITY COUNCILLOR

Frank McCauley will make known his decision about running for mayor Tuesday, Jan. 6. He's sending out invitations to "An Announcement" to be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Right now the betting is 50-50 he will run — and will not run.

McCAULEY

ANYONE WHO HAS tangled with the utter frustration of trying to maneuver a car through the area, will appreciate this one.

Senator Paul Tsongas, speaking at a recent South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast at the Lantana, Randolph, had these openings remarks:

TSONGAS

"There are three issues I wanted to talk about. One of them was the economy and what we could expect in terms of tax legislation next year. Second was the General Haig appointment. And Third was energy."

"But I thought those were restrictive and perhaps with this group it would be better to talk about an issue that had much broader scope, that had global ramifications, so I'll talk to you about Five Corners (Braintree). Maybe we should get that question out of the way first. I'm trying to avoid it because I got it the last time I was here and I don't have an answer this time, either."

JIM LONBORG, the former Red Sox star pitcher, was among the guests at the Hurley Insurance Agency Christmas party. He's a close friend of Paul Hurley. Sr. Lonborg looked as young and as trim as when he was hurling the Sox to the "Impossible Dream" pennant in 1967.

THE FAMILY CHRISTMAS

Mass (7:30 p.m.) at St. John's was a most beautiful moving experience for all who attended. Rev. Daniel Graham, celebrant, led youngsters through the story of Christ's birth with two raised push brooms becoming the stable and pie plates the halos of angels. Joseph and Mary and the sheep were all portrayed by children.

A decorated Christmas tree and the Christ child were carried in the procession.

Youngsters sang Jingle, Bells, Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer and Frosty the Snowman.

Fr. Graham then donned a Santa Claus hat and sang "The Christmas Song" ala Nat King Cole. He then put the hat on Fr. William McCarthy, pastor, for the recessional, to the delight of all attending.

ONE OF THE nicest surprises Ed and Kae Spargo of Wollaston got Christmas was two groups of youngsters who made their way nearly a mile over icy streets to sing carols to them Christmas Eve.

The youngsters, aged nine to 14 were: Donna, Maryann and Paul Francis; Kevin, Kerri and Sean Lucie; Julie and Kathy Lane; Stephen and Michael Kearns; and Michael, Kevin and Liam Bligh.

"There's still a ray of hope for this beleaguered world of ours," notes Ed. "They beautifully exemplified the true spirit of the holidays. Bless them one and all, and may they ever remain young at heart — caring and sharing. Kudos to their parents who must have shown them by example."

WARNING: If you have a wood burning stove or fireplace, don't dispose of your natural Christmas tree in either. You probably know better anyway. But Arnold Greene Testing Laboratories of Natick which tests wood and coal burning stoves is afraid someone might try it.

Unlike seasoned dry hardwood, it notes, a Christmas tree is green wood and has a high pitch content. It could create a very dangerous creosote build-up if burned in a fireplace or wood burning stove.

Quincy Quiz

There are no winners this week in the Quincy Quiz.

No one submitted the correct answers to last week's questions. Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the city auditor?
2. What well-known building stands at 1120 Hancock St?
3. In what section of the city is St. Mary's Church?
4. Peter Eleey of Quincy was recently elected to the Governor's Council. Whom did he succeed in the post?
5. In what year was Arthur Tobin first elected mayor?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. The city's five junior high schools are Atlantic, Central, Broad Meadows, Quincy Point and Sterling.
2. A statue of Scottish poet Robert Burns is at the corner of Burgin Parkway and Granite St.
3. The Paul Grasso Playground is in West Quincy.
4. The principal of the Woodward School For Girls is Robert Johnston.
5. Dedication ceremonies were recently held for the Town Brook House senior citizen apartments.

New Year Resolutions

By FRANK MORTIMER

The time for breaking New Year resolutions is upon us.

Yes, we do have to make our resolutions before we can break them. But the promises are really of no importance. It is their violation that gives us pleasure.

How else can we explain this tradition of swearing off certain vices only to return to them with renewed enthusiasm by mid-January?

Why does a smoker take one hard look at his cigarette at the New Years Eve party and say, "Baby, I'm through with you!" — and repeat the performance year after year?

Apparently, he likes the game, and knows it's a game. He jams that "final" butt into the ashtray not to kiss the habit goodbye forever, but to add a touch of drama to a habit that tends to get boring.

This is only an opinion, and a non-smoker's opinion at that. Others may know better.

For this reason we went out and talked to other people about this New Year's resolution business. The idea was to try to get a picture of the tradition at its source.

Of course the tradition goes back to days long gone; days out of the reach of conversation.

And so we tried the next best source. We talked to children...

Six year old Nicole Cangemi was very happy to discuss her New Year's resolutions. Of course she didn't really know what is meant by "resolution" when stopped during her shopping spree the day after Christmas. But asked if she has any "bad habits" that she hopes to change, the little girl brightened:

"I want to stop kicking Blitzen."

At the mention of Blitzen, sister Julie Cangemi, 11, and cousin Kelly Byron, 10, broke into fits of giggling and head nodding.

So who's Blitzen? The older girls spoke at once, talking over the subject of their charge's faults.

"Blitzen is our dog," said Julie. "He's mixed husky and german shepherd. But Nicole doesn't kick him hard. She just teases him."

"She has other bad habits too," began Kelly, but thought better of it, and instead admitted a fault of her own.

"I want to stop saying Uz. I tried to stop last year because my friends made fun of me."

What's 'Uz'?

"It's what I say when I mean Us." Would you give an example?

"Uz kids went shopping."

"See" said Julie. "She really says Uz. It's funny."

But why does she say it? Julie, hoding a little paper bag just given to her by a smiling lady at the cosmetics counter, again answered for her cousin.

"She can't help saying it. She comes from Carver."

Does everyone in Carver say Uz?

The girls giggled again. "No." How about you, Julie. Any resolutions this year?

"Stop chewing gum," she said as she chewed a fresh pink wad of bubble gum.

Several times during our talk, Julie pulled the small package from her bag and looked at it. The flat, square cellophane envelope held two rows of tiny, flesh-colored discs.

What are those things?

"Fake finger nails. I bite my nails."

Are they some kind of joke?

"Oh no. You glue them on and they stay. I can scratch with them."

Julie seemed serious indeed about her glue-on fingernails. She was not asked if they might someday join chewing gum on her list of resolutions.

Joe Russell, 14, of Rawson Rd. was walking by with his buddy, Dennis DeMeis, 13, of Weymouth. Joe is big for his age. Bundled up in a red stocking cap and a puffy green nylon jacket, he looked even bigger. He carried a newly purchased hockey stick, and he knew all about resolutions.

"I'm gonna stop pickin' on little kids," said Joe. "I pick on him," he added with a nod to his smaller sidekick.

Dennis nodded in agreement. "Last year I tried to stop swearing for a while," Joe continued. "I try — then one slips out." He plans to give the habit another shot this New Year — and maybe kick it for good.

Linda Thorley, 17, and her pal Lisa Smith, both of Vine Ave. could be heard from some distance. Lisa was carrying a portable radio bigger than some TV sets. A song called "I Want You To Want Me" by a group called Cheap Trick, made conversation difficult. Lisa apologized and turned the volume way down.

But it was Linda who spoke freely of her resolutions. "No more drinkin', no more stayin' out late, no more talkin' back to parents." She rattled them right off.

Lisa said she doesn't have any resolutions.

"She's a party pooper," Linda said with a smile, implying that her friend needed no improvement.

How about playing the radio softer?

Lisa said that could be a resolution; she wasn't making any promises just yet.

Brett Heeney, 12, a news-carrier was balancing his news-laden stinger bicycle on the icy slope of Tresland Way behind Bethany Congregational Church. It was cold out, and getting dark fast. But Brett was willing to stop a moment and share his thoughts.

"I'll be more respectful to my parents, and maybe stop chewing gum."

Brett admitted that he'd like to be nicer to his 10-year old sister, but he doubted that New Year's resolutions are the way to go about it.

"Everybody I know makes them," he said. "But nobody keeps them. I'll ask a kid in school what he's giving up for New Years. He'll say gum. And right there he'll have a big pack of gum in his hands."

Say no more, Brett, say no more.

Mayor Burgin Vows No New City Buildings

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, stressing the downward trend in the city's debt in his mid-term message, said that Quincy should not start any new municipal construction unless 45 per cent federal funding can be obtained.

He reported the funded debt of the city at $4,280,500, the lowest in 13 years.

Myron N. Lane was elected president of the City Council, gaining the votes of all nine members except his own, and six ward councillors, including newcomer Louis A. George of Ward 2, were sworn in for two year terms.

Newly re-elected councillors included William W. Jenness, Ward 1; Aldo Della Chiesa, Ward 3; Christian A. Burkhard, Ward 4; Myron N. Lane, Ward 5; and Frank N. Orcutt, Ward 6. Harry W. Tirrell was elected to his 52nd consecutive one-year term as city messenger and was sworn in by City Clerk Emery Crane in his bed at City Hospital where Tirrell was ill. Tirrell held the post since 1889, the year Quincy became a city.

Mayor Burgin reported that 1,770 men and women in Quincy had been paid some $1,150,000 in federal work relief funds during 1939.

RECEIVER NAMED

Probate Judge Joseph R. McCool finally named a receiver for the estate of John Tolan, who walked out of the National Sailors Home in Quincy on Dec. 28, 1896, and was never seen again.

The judge's ruling meant that Tolan, who was 53 years old at the time of his disappearance, was legally dead and his heirs were entitled to the $1,097.69 in his account at the Quincy Savings Bank.

Tobin Gathers Support For Hospital Management Plan

Councils and the Mayors have used the hospital budget to hold down the tax rate.

"If we bring a management team on board and we don't give them the tools, if we don't provide them with a special enterprise account, then we will be back on square one."

"We would be better off to keep the hospital depoliticized," concurred Dr. Russell Irons, president of the medical staff. "In the future, hospitals should not be municipally controlled."

"Down the road I can see the hospital as a non-profit corporate structure with no ties to anyone except the patient."

The Board of Managers and the Mayor's Hospital Committee met jointly at first and then the committee held a meeting of its own, at which hints were given of its future report.

"The need for an outside management firm at Quincy City Hospital is not only necessary but the only logical alternative at this time; the need is immediate," the report will say.

"It is very important that the hospital be initially established as an enterprise fund with a restructured board of managers sufficiently authorized to make the necessary policy decisions required in order to make Quincy City Hospital a viable health care facility."

Tobin said negotiations with four companies who have shown interest in running the hospital are virtually complete but are "hung up on a couple of technicalities."

"We are going forward," he said. "It's going to happen."

One of the technicalities, he said, involves whether the winning company should start out with a six-months contract or a six-month escape clause or post a performance bond.

Dr. Irons said he is not in favor of a six-month contract.

"I don't think anyone with any guts would take a six months contract," he said. "How can they bring in top-notch people if they know they may have to move in six months?"

Handling of Drug Cases In Court Brings Police Criticism

connected but there was little doubt that all six were set. Two teen aged boys, one from Quincy and one from Braintree, were arrested in connection with the Willard St. blaze.

Vandals made most of the crime news in Quincy during 1980.

Residents of Snug Harbor Court, a 45-unit senior citizens complex in Germantown, rose in wrath at a meeting in St. Boniface Church Hall to demand a full-time guard and new locks on their apartment buildings to guard against vandals. The Housing Authority responded by putting barbed wire around the project.

"It's a sad commentary on our day that we have to put up barbed wire to protect people," said Carmine D'Olimpio, a member of the authority.

"Until we get back to morality and the stability of the family, we're going to have the same problems," said the Rev. William McCarthy, the chairman.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Park and Recreation Board, disclosed just prior to the Fourth of July that vandalism in city parks over the past four months had totalled more than $10,000, making 1980 already the worst year in the city's history.

And, on the July 4 weekend, vandals added $1,000 more in damage at Pageant Field and Heron Rd. Beach.

Vandals went on a rampage at Furnace Brook Golf Club, too, burning a flag, cutting a swastika in one of the greens and breaking down a steel door to take 14½ cases of liquor valued at $1,250 wholesale. The club had to build a $6,000 "fort" to protect a dozen golf carts.

Judge Albert L. Kramer's alleged failure to come down hard on criminals drew fire from Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall, who charged that 10 inmates of the Norfolk County jail were released early to make way for new prisoners serving weekend sentences, some of them for drunken driving.

"I am opposed to letting people who are convicted of criminal offenses go to make room for people who are arrested and prosecuted for operating under the influence," said Marshall.

"I don't consider operating under the influence for the third or fourth time a minor offense," retorted Judge Kramer. "It has killed 20 people in this jurisdiction in the past year."

The judge also came in for criticism of his handling of drug-related crimes.

Lt. Walter Lynch transferred out of the Quincy Police Drug Unit with the words:

"I've had it. No one seems to go to prison for drug offenses. I'm discouraged. I have been in it nearly nine years and it's not getting any better. It's only getting worse.

"The drug business is rolling, rolling, rolling. It's so big now that it seems like there is no stopping it. If people knew how much drugs there are on the street, especially in the schools, they would be very upset."

"This is the toughest court in the state in terms of drugs," replied Kramer. "When you talk about other drugs (aside from marijuana) we talk about tough probation, the toughest in the state. We surrender kids on probation more than any other court in the state."

"The proposition that this court is lenient is a falsehood."

Judge Kramer told The Sun in an interview that he himself experimented with marijuana when he was 17 years old and he has told of his experience in court.

"I'm glad to share the experience I had when I was 17," he said. "I had one or two joints. I tell them that when I was young I experimented with marijuana and now I don't touch a thing."

A group of dissident stockholders, headed by millionaire Abraham D. Gosman of Weston, emerged to challenge the regime of David B. Lynch of Dedham as president of Multibank Financial Corp., the holding company whose prize is the South Shore Bank with its $367 million in assets.

It was reported that the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Quincy Planning Board and a member of the Gosman group, would become president of the South Shore Bank should control change hands. The Lynch faction ousted Baharian from the board of directors of the bank.

A meeting of shareholders was in prospect sometime in February for a showdown between the rival groups.

Mayor Tobin's campaign to bring development to Quincy moved along a little slower than in previous years but some of his administration's efforts began to show more clearly to the public.

Ground was finally broken for Quincy Center Plaza, the 10-story, $14 million office building at the corner of Hancock and Granite Sts. which Campanelli Co. is building for Stop and Shop corporate headquarters. It took 2½ years to work out all the financial arrangements.

Work was also begun on the parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St. that was funded by a $3.79 million federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG), but only after a bitter struggle between Mayor and Council over the number of floors.

Seems the UDAG would cover only five levels of parking spaces and the Planning Department felt that seven would be necessary to handle the parking requirements of Center Plaza with additional spaces for the general public.

The Council, however, turned down Tobin's request for a $1 million bond issue to construct the extra two levels.

The Mayor called the Campanelli project "the catalyst for downtown Quincy," and even more important in his mind was the East-West Connector, which would cut across the city from Granite St. to Revere Rd.

In the past, the Connector had proven to be unpopular with a large number of downtown merchants but, with Sears Roebuck moving its anchor store from Quincy to South Shore Plaza, a new and more accepted route was planned through the abandoned building. That route would take only five buildings, including 12 business establishments.

Tobin said the Connector was crucial to the development of a shopping mall in the John Hancock Parking Area but even that enticement failed to stampede merchants into a quick approval of the new roadway.

"I would like the message to come across to the Planning Department," said City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond following a public hearing.

"Show us what is going to happen in the John Hancock Parking area. We have to assure the people out there that it is not a pie in the sky concept."

At year's end, Mayor Tobin was planning to disclose plans for the shopping mall in his mid-term address and the State Department of Public Works was delaying a public hearing on the Connector until the announcement was made.

OCB, Inc., the O'Connell Brothers construction firm, was particularly active in 1980 in the State Street South area of North Quincy.

A new five story, $11 million office building, built in conjunction with the Monarch Insurance Co. of Springfield, was finished and dedicated and renamed the Commercial Union Building, in honor of its prime tenant, a Boston insurance company.

On the same day, grounds were broken across the street for a nine story, $14 million office building, known as Monarch II, built and financed by the same partners. It was to be completed in the fall of 1981.

"This proves that the slogan 'Make It in Massachusetts' has some substance to it," said Gov. Edward J. King, who spoke at the dedication and groundbreaking.

Plans were afoot for the Boston Harbor Marina property, too, although the people of Squantum weren't sure they approved of everything that was happening on the vast expanse of the Old Naval Air Station.

It was proposed to build 142-low rise units of condominiums on a section of the site that was zoned for planned unit development (PUD) and Squantum residents liked the idea but...

They told a City Council hearing that the development had to have a second access road in addition to the narrow, heavily traveled East Squantum St. before the start of construction or "we will ask that the City Council reject the proposal."

GD, Union Agree To First 3-Year Pact In Decade

"The plan does not put before the City Council the main issue," said William Golden, a Squantum resident. "The real question is: How do we develop 250 to 400 acres of land?"

The Council gave its PUD approval to the project with 14 restrictive amendments, including one that required the second access road, possibly by acquiring Commander Shea Boulevard for that purpose.

For the first time in a decade, General Dynamics negotiated a three-year contract with Local 5 of its shipyard workers without a strike. The two sides reached agreement only an hour and a half after the old contract expired, giving first class mechanics a $2.20 hourly raise spread over three years.

The Fore River Shipyard started doing well with other contracts too.

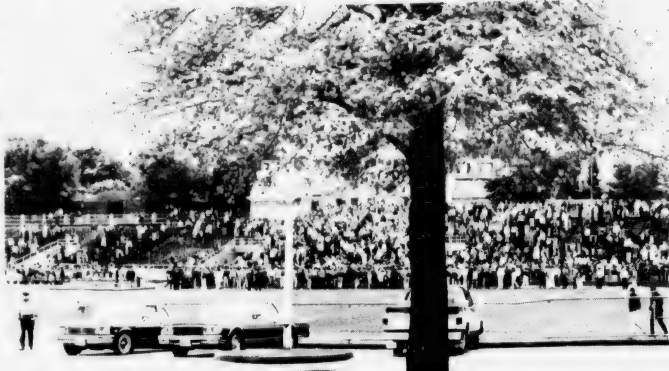

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly announced in early October that the yard will get contracts to build three new liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers for Zapata Western Co. and a week later came word of three more LNG contracts for the Ogden Corp. of New York.

In November, a contract was obtained to build a $60 million coal-fired, coal-carrying ship for New England Electric, which would guarantee employment for 1,000 workers until early 1983. Donnelly predicted that the yard would become a leader in the construction of coal-carrying ships like it had become in LNGs.

At year's end, the yard employed some 3,000 workers, down from the 1979 peak of 5,500, working on $150 million in repair and other contracts designed to tide them over until the new LNG contracts begin.

A six-foot plastic gorilla vanished from a miniature golf course on Southern Artery and turned up days later at Massasoit Junior College in Brockton. "We have 5,000 suspects," said Brockton Detective Joseph Smith.

LOCAL 5 MEMBERSHIP shows its approval of new three-year contract at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard by moving en masse to the right in Veterans Memorial Stadium. Few 'No' votes stayed left.

a figure that, strangely enough, was the enrollment of the college.

Mrs. Lydia Warren, 87, who served as a civilian telephone operator in France during World War I, became the first woman member of the Bryan VFW Post after the 335 women who performed her service were finally recognized as veterans.

The 60-year-old Quincy Motor Co., the oldest Ford dealership on the South Shore, closed its doors, leaving 50 persons jobless. The national slump in the auto industry was blamed and owner Leo Darr, 70, added: "My age was a contributing factor."

The first "buzzer for the blind", a 12-second sound that accompanies the red and yellow phase of the traffic signal, was installed at the intersection of Hancock and East Squantum Sts. Later, a second such buzzer was added to the lights on Hancock St. in front of City Hall.

The Koch Club Boys Bowling League surrendered to the feminist movement and announced that it would admit girls for its 18th season in 1980-81 and become the Koch Club Coed Bowling League.

The Rev. John Banks retired after 26 years as minister of Bethany Congregational Church. He was succeeded by the Rev. Eldon Zuern.

Paul A. Kennedy, 52, of Wollaston, brother of Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy of the School Committee, was named acting superintendent of Boston schools.

The Woodward School for Girls received accreditation from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges for the first time since 1969, when it was lost due to inadequate library and physical education facilities.

Thomas McDonald of North Quincy, past state commander of the VFW, was named Man of the Year by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans and retired from the Post Office as letter carrier on the Quincy Square beat. "In all my years," said McDonald, "I've never been bitten by a dog."

Simon Fireman of Quincy, chairman of Aqua-Leisure Industries of Avon with plants around the world, was named by President Carter to a Department of Commerce advisory board on international trade.

NQHS Finally Dedicated, School Enrollment Down

Tracy Hart, 17, a junior at Quincy High School who plans to study interior decorating at Dean Junior College was chosen Miss Quincy Bay.

Joseph B. Grossman gave the present on his 88th birthday, enough money to Beth Israel Hospital to transform the living room of the old nurse's dormitory into the Grossman Conference Center.

The 12-year-old Quincy Sun purchased the 153-year-old Hingham Journal and publisher Henry Bosworth promised that it would remain the same community-oriented publication it was in 1827 when it started as the Hingham Gazette.

The papers of the late Laurence J. Curtin, a member of the City Council from 1931-36 and 1939-42, were presented to the Quincy Historical Society for safekeeping.

Charlotte Vilinn and Estelle Sugarman of Quincy and Sylvia Schwartz of Braintree, who were called "dumb broads" when they started making and marketing plastic kits, were named Massachusetts Small Business Persons of the Year.

Edward Moore retired after 21 years as aide to Cong. James A. Burke and Brian J. Donnelly, which he said he found to be "a most rewarding and educational experience."

Paul D. MacElhiney, a Weymouth insurance man was elected president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Real inflation came to Quincy in March when it was noted that some gasoline stations had started charging 25 cents to $1 to fill a tire with air. The Licensing Board talked about an ordinance to require free air and toilet facilities but nothing ever came of it.

Louis, the best known spotted basset hound in Houghs Neck, received a traffic sign all his own when the warning, "Caution, Louis Crossing", was placed on Sea St. so he could cross from Louis Cafe to a grocery store for his daily box of cookies. Sen. Harold, Rep. Brownell and Councillors Kelly and McCauley showed up for the dedication.

A special committee that had been studying ambulance service in the city stirred up a hornet's nest when it recommended that the service, which has been handled by the Police, be farmed out to a private contractor. Police Chief Francis X. Finn, the chairman of the committee, said the police ambulance cost $250,000 a year.

The committee recommended that the contract be awarded to Bay State Ambulance, whose bid was $56,000, touching off cries of complaint from two of the four other bidders who said their bids were lower. The committee decided to redraw the specifications and reopen the bids, only to be stymied when the Patriot Ledger protested that the meetings violated the open meeting law.

Meanwhile, opposition to the private contractors reached the City Council which passed a resolution asking the Mayor to keep the service in the Police Department and, to emphasize its concerns, the Council directed the City Auditor, who is employed by the Council, not to sign any contract for private service.

The School Committee, faced with a declining enrollment that has shrunk from 17,100 in 1971-72 to 12,063 in 1980-81, bit the bullet and closed three elementary schools, Great Hill, Myles Standish and Hunting, with a savings of some $250,000.

The addition and renovation to North Quincy High School, begun in 1977, was finally completed and dedicated but it remained controversial to the end when a dispute arose over the wording on the plaque, which had Mayor Tobin's name first followed by Commissioner Ricciuti, Supt. Dr. Creedon and the members of the School Committee.

"We'll accept the keys, take over the building, tear down the plaque and put up our own plaque," threatened School Committeeman John J. Sullivan, but a compromise was worked out that appeased everyone but satisfied no one.

The bicentennial of the drafting of the Massachusetts Constitution by John and Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin was celebrated in 1979 and the party went off so well that the city tried it again in 1980 on a limited scale.

Bicentennial Sculpture Dedicated, Quincy Family Holds Reunion ceremonies in Constitution Plaza, called the document "the most remarkable and comprehensive expression of political freedom in history."

Dennis Ryan, clerk of the Quincy District Court for nearly 30 years, was honored during the ceremonies for his long service to the city as he resigned from the Hospital Board of Managers. He could not give the job the time it deserved, he said.

The Quincy family, descendants of early settler Edmund Quincy, whose great-grandson, Col. John, gave the city his name, held its first reunion since 1833 with about 200 Quincys from New England and New York joining in the festivities at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

The highlight of the Constitutional Bicentennial Plus I was the dedication of Ed Monti's long-awaited granite sculpture depicting abstractly the drafting of the Constitution. The sculpture in the plaza at City Hall drew "ohs" and "ahs" and not a few barbs. It was, to say the least, controversial.

"I think it's silly," said Ralph Morris of West Quincy.

"It's nice," said Charles Thornley of Quincy Point. "It's unusual."

"I don't know," said Anthony LoSordo of Quincy Center. "I can't figure it out. I suppose it will grow on us."

The long process of bringing cable television to Quincy was begun when Mayor Tobin named a seven-member committee, headed by insurance man George Riley, to set specifications and screen applications from companies seeking the lucrative franchise to wire up the city.

The process was complicated when a number of current and former city officials — including former Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board — showed up as local investors in two of the companies that submitted bids.

"My selection will not be made on the basis of any political figure or ex-political figure who may be involved," said Mayor Tobin. "What bothers me is how this is perceived in the eyes of the people."

Nine applicants remained in the competition when the final filing deadline passed and public hearings on their applications were set for mid-January.

First Parish Church Turned Over To U.S. Parks Services

Several historical sites in Quincy underwent significant changes.

The 152-year-old First Parish Church, badly in need of repairs that its congregation could not afford, became a ward of the U.S.

National Parks Service in October, barely five months after Cong. Brian J. Donnelly filed the bill requesting the takeover.

All that remained to be worked out at year's end was an agreement that would permit the active congregation to use the church without violating the constitutional separation of church and state.

City's Population Drops To 83,904 would be a visitor's center to tie together the National Parks' three properties, the church, the Adams Birthplaces and the Adams National Historic Site.

The Birthplaces underwent the most visible change. The cottages, which had been painted red for as long as anyone could remember, were repainted "stone" color and white, the colors they were in the early 1800s, according to Carole Perrault, architectural conservator.

The 136-year-old City Hall was placed on the National Register of Historic Places, which made it eligible for 50 per cent matching federal grants for preservation.

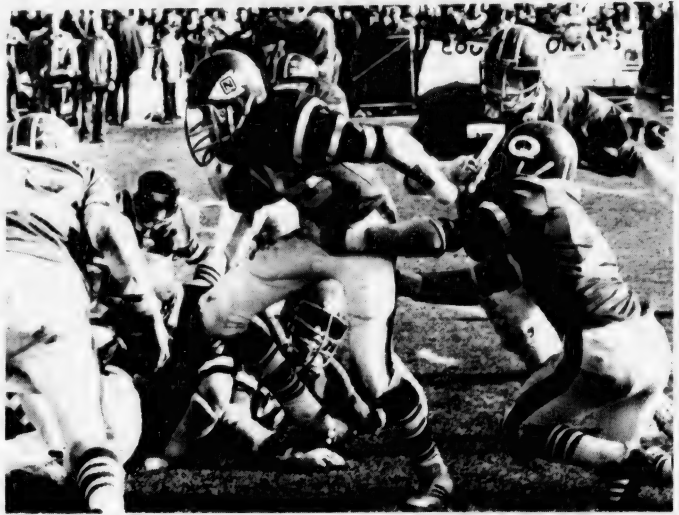

The Lyons Turning Mill in West Quincy, a survivor of the great days of Quincy granite 80 years ago, was recommended for the National Register, a move that would prevent needed expansion of the City Dump.

That, said Public Works Commissioner, James J. Ricciuti, would add $10 to the tax rate.

The "good" news leaked out in midsummer. Quincy, which had a population of 87,966 in 1970, was about to become one of the four or five largest cities in Massachusetts under the official U.S. Census Bureau count for 1980. There was talk of some 97,000, even 100,000, people.

The "bad" news came in September. Official preliminary figures from the Census Bureau pegged the city's population at 83,904.

"The low census could affect Quincy for the next 10 years and cost the city millions of dollars in federal aid," said Mayor Tobin. The city itself took samplings of the population in certain census tracts in an effort to prove the federal count wrong but it was to no avail.

JOE DUDEK breaks a Quincy tackle en route to his third touchdown in the 48th annual Thanksgiving classic won by North Quincy, 27-20, in a game that was called the most exciting of the series.

Patti Lyons-Catalano of Quincy became the top American woman marathoner and the second best in the world (behind Norway's Grete Waitz) with a series of fine performances, including a second in the famed Boston Marathon. Actually she finished third but it was discovered that the first finisher, Rosie Ruiz of New York, did not run the entire 26 miles 385 yards.

James Capezuto of Quincy captured the first annual Presidents' Marathon (twice around the city) in the time of two hours, 36 minutes, 47 seconds. Brenda Kelly of Bristol, R.I., was the first woman. It was hoped that the road race would become an annual fixture in early September.

The North Quincy High School football team, sparked by a 93-yard touchdown run by Dean Zoia, ran up a 21-0 lead and then had to hang on for a 27-20 victory over Quincy in what was called "the most exciting game" of their 48-game series. The Thanksgiving Day series now stands at 25 wins for Quincy, 20 for North, and three ties.

That 4-foot-8, 78-pound blonde shortstop playing for the Boston Gear team in the Quincy Little League turned out to be a girl, Nancy Flukes, 10, of Wollaston. How did her teammates treat her? "Like one of the guys," she said.

The North Quincy girls track team tied with Needham for the state championship as Michelle Millane capped an undefeated season by winning the shot put with a throw of 41 feet, two inches.

Bob Foley of Furnace Brook and Bob Bradley of Ponkapoag won the 32nd annual Cade Cup golf tournament at Furnace Brook for the second time. They last won in 1977.

Southern Italy, the "old country" for many of Quincy's residents of Italian descent, was ravaged by earthquakes Nov. 23 and the Sons of Italy turned its boundless energies to raising money for the victims. By Christmas, the Sons had collected some $23,000 toward their $25,000 goal, including $10,000 that had been given to the city and returned.

"I came from Italy 34 years ago," said Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo. "I felt very sorry to have left. But tonight I'm going to finish my little speech with just a few words, 'Thank God I live in Quincy!'"

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon was listed among "100 of North America's Top School Executives," by the national magazine, The Executive Educator.

Death Takes Prominent Residents

Death claimed a number of prominent Quincy people in 1980 including Jason Feldman, 55, owner of Jason's Luggage and Music Shop, and Arthur L. McGilvray, 59, owner of the drug store of the same name at the Quincy MBTA station.

The Rev. Chester A. Porteus, 74, rector emeritus of Christ Church and longtime chaplain of the Police and Fire Departments, also died, as did Dr. John M. Melvor, 67, ophthalmologist and a member of the City Hospital staff for many years.

Other deaths included: George A. McCall, 65, past president of the Norfolk County Labor Council and legendary manager of the old Sagamore Plébes baseball team.

William A. Anderson, 79, a member of the School Committee from 1943 to 1951.

Joseph L. Gallagher, 51, owner of Gallagher News Agency, in an airplane crash in New York City's East River.

Harlan L. Paine, 64, former director of City Hospital.

Mildred L. Tyler, 96, city treasurer from 1949 to 1954 and a worker in the treasurer's office for 47 years.

Mrs. Margaret M. Bradford, 83, one of the first women qualified to practice before the State Supreme Court.

Theodore (Ted) Olson, 68, Quincy-born pitcher for the Boston Red Sox from 1936 to 1940.

Mrs. Jennie J. Nelson, 97, a member of the first graduating class at Woodward School for Girls in 1902.

Louis Kaufman, 53, Boston Globe reporter and co-author of a biography of Moe Berg, the baseball player and spy.

William J. Mitchell, 86, chairman of the Park and Recreation Commission from 1943 to 1974.

Mrs. Grace M. Macdonald, 93, one of the founders of Our Lady of Good Counsel parish, Merrymount.

Harry F. Nilsen, 81, former city engineer and a city employee for 41 years.

Craig Capacioli, 56, master mechanic and former Quincy High School football star.

Harriet B. Barbour, author and former trustee of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

The Rev. John B. Welch, 78, assistant pastor at St. Ann's Church.

The Rev. Robert D. O'Brien, 65, poet and former associate pastor at St. Mary's Church.

William J. (Bill) DeLargy, 77, the Boston Record-American's Quincy correspondent for 32 years.

Mrs. Edna M. Lints, 64, retired secretary to two Quincy police chiefs.

Richard S. Cole, 70, comptroller at City Hospital from 1954 to 1969.

Dr. William R. Helfrich, 70, a Quincy physician for 42 years.

John J. Travis, 68, deputy collector for City Hospital.

Albert F. (Chick) Maher, 58, assistant city assessor.

Mrs. Sarah A. Wilkins, 78, founder and former president of the Dooley Press.

Dr. Harry Braverman, 84, a family doctor in Quincy for 50 years.

Harold Winerip, 65, longtime copy deskman at the Boston Herald American.

William L. Wholey, 91, retired deputy fire chief.

Reagan Carries Quincy

Quincy went Republican in a presidential election for the first time in 24 years when Ronald Reagan barely edged out President Jimmy Carter in the city en route to his national sweep. Quincy voters gave Reagan 18,038 to 17,977 for Carter with the independent candidate John Anderson drawing 5,328.

A wide open fight developed for the Governor's Council seat from the Fourth District when Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough of Boston died after holding the post for 33 years. His death came only days after Mayor Tobin had withdrawn his name from the race in deference to McDonough.

"I have no regrets at all about dropping out of the race," said Tobin. "Sonny McDonough was a friend of mine."

Most of the action came in the September Democratic primary when Quincy Atty. Peter Eeley, a nephew of former Mayor and Sen. James R. McIntyre, handily defeated a field of four other candidates for the nomination. He topped the Republican, William J. Robinson of Hull, in the general election.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell also turned back a challenge by City Councilor Stephen J. McGrath for his Second Norfolk seat in the primary. Brownell won big in his home Ward 1 and went on to victory, 3,838 to 2,302.

Only Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli had Republican opposition on a local level and he had little trouble defeating George W. Lawler of Weymouth, 11,532 to 5,128 in the Third Norfolk.

Mary Collins, the School Committeewoman from Squantum, was unsuccessful in her bid to oust George McDonald of Quincy as a county commissioner.

Re-elected without opposition in either primary or general election were Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, Sen. Paul D. Harold, Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, and Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall.

Voter turnouts in the three elections held in 1980 were a study in contrasts.

Some 50 per cent of those registered voted in the March presidential primary, in which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy easily defeated Carter and Reagan prevailed over Walter Bush and Anderson, while only 27 per cent showed up for the September primary and 81.8 per cent voted in the general election.

Obituaries

Erin P. McDonald, 23, Daughter Of County Commissioner

A funeral Mass was said today (Wednesday) at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, for Erin P. McDonald, 23, daughter of Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy.

Miss McDonald died Dec. 28 at her Cohasset home. Born in Quincy, she was a resident of the city until moving to Cohasset a year ago.

She was a receptionist at the Copley Plaza Hotel of Boston.

She is survived by her parents, George B. McDonald and Sheila (O'Mahoney) McDonald and two sisters, Colleen Haley of Cohasset and Eileen Cronin of Scituate.

Funeral arrangements were by the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St., West Quincy. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Helen C. Griffin, 71, QDC Clerk's Assistant

A funeral Mass was said Monday for Miss Helen C. Griffin, 71, retired assistant to the clerk of Quincy District Court.

Miss Griffin, a life-long Quincy resident, died Dec. 27 at Quincy City Hospital.

She retired in 1965 after working at the courthouse for 38 years. She was also a member of the Quincy Catholic Women's Club.

She is survived by two brothers, Joseph D. Griffin of Quincy and Francis M. Griffin of Braintree; a sister, Catherine V. Keefe of Quincy and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy Center. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

William McMahon, 90, U.S. Steel Statistician

A funeral Mass was said yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, for William J. McMahon, 90, a retired statistician for the U.S. Steel Company.

Mr. McMahon, a long-time resident of the city, died Dec. 28 in Carney Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Hyde Park, he moved to Quincy 57 years ago. He retired from U.S. Steel 26 years ago after working for the company for 47 years.

He was past chief ranger of St. Francis Court, Catholic Order of Foresters; a former member of Monsignor Chittick Council of the Hyde Park Knights of Columbus; a past president of Quincy Boy Scouts and a past member of St. Ann's Holy Name Society. He was also a former member of the New England Hardware Dealers Association.

Husband of the late Gertrude (McSwain) McMahon, he is survived by five sons, William E. McMahon of Maryland, Arthur F. McMahon and Leonard A. McMahon of Wollaston, Richard J. McMahon of Stoughton and Rev. Albert F. McMahon of Brighton; three daughters, Lucille A. Batchelder of Wollaston, Ruth A. Caronia of New Jersey and Regina A. McMahon of Wollaston, 22 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Highland Cemetery, Norwood.

David R. Brodie, 55, 'Little Loop' Director

Funeral arrangements are still incomplete for David R. Brodie, 55, of Braintree, who died Sunday evening at Carney Hospital following a brief illness.

Mr. Brodie was a director and instructor for 16 years for the Quincy Bowling Little Loop. He was active in the league until falling ill in November. He was also a member of the Montclair Men's Club.

Mr. Brodie was a patent maker for the Pneumatic Scale Company of North Quincy and the Canton Bronze and Aluminum Co.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs.

Elaine (Duquet) Brodie of Braintree and a daughter, Mrs. Marsha MacFarlane and three sons, David E. Brodie, John M. Brodie and Kenneth A. Brodie.

Funeral arrangements are by the Mortimer and Peck Funeral Home, 516 Washington St., Braintree.

Richard H. Kent, Jr., 54, Patriot Ledger Reporter

A funeral Mass will be said today (Wednesday) at 10 a.m. at Our Lady Help of Christians Church, Newtonville, for Richard H. Kent Jr., 54, of Newtonville, a veteran Boston area newspaperman.

Mr. Kent died Saturday of cancer.

Employed by the Patriot Ledger for the past 13½ years, he was a reporter who covered Milton, Randolph and Holbrook.

He previously had covered the State House for the old Boston Post.

Mr. Kent was born and raised in Boston. He was graduated from St. Anthony's School, Allston, and Boston Commerce High School. He also attended Boston University and the universities of Maine and Vermont.

His journalism career began in 1946 with the U.S. military newspaper, Stars and Stripes. He was appointed to the staff while serving with the Army Air Corps, Nuremberg, Germany, because he was the only member of his unit who could type.

He worked in public relations from 1955 to 1967. Mr. Kent worked for the state of Pennsylvania for six years and was a speechwriter for former Governors David Lawrence and George Leader. He also worked for six years for the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and the Republican State Committee.

He joined the Patriot Ledger in May, 1967.

Mr. Kent was one of several Boston area reporters who played a bit part in the 1978 movie, "The Brinks Job", based on the 1958 armored truck heist.

He was a member of the Boston Newspapermen's Benevolent Society.

Mr. Kent is survived by his wife, Claire (O'Donnell) Kent; sons Richard H. III, Geoffrey, David and Daniel and daughters Clarissa and Adrienne, all of the home address; a brother John Kent of Burlington; and a sister, Mary Goudey of Scituate.

Visiting hours were scheduled for last night (Tuesday) 7 to 9 p.m. at the Martin Conroy Funeral Home, 439 Washington St.

Burial will be in Newton Cemetery.

Mr., Mrs. Edward Keohane Attend Funeral Directors Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Keohane, of Keohane Funeral Home, Quincy, recently attended the 99th annual convention of the National Funeral Directors Association in New Orleans, La.

Mr. Keohane, vice president of the Massachusetts Funeral Directors Association, had been elected by the MFDA Board of Directors to act as a delegate at the convention.

A major action taken by the House of Delegates at the meeting was the approval of guidelines for funeral service practice.

These guidelines were designed to aid funeral service practitioners to maintain a high standard of practice and assure the consumer of professional care and fair treatment of the highest character without imposition of federal laws.

Squantum Church Holds Early New Year's Service

A happy New Year's service was held early Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum around a roaring fire in the fireplace of Fellowship Hall.

Worshippers of all ages participated in the unusual service. Mark Paul gave the Call to Worship, William Cogswell led the Opening Prayer, Bonnie Adams offered the Prayer of Dedication and Karin Reister pronounced the Sending.

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin spoke on "How to Keep Christmas Alive". He was assisted by Kim and Krista Olson, Kristin Reister, John Smith and Steven Williams in presenting a mini-puppet show to the congregation.

Si Porter and Ed Reister were in charge of refreshments.

A more traditional service was held at 10:15 a.m. The Chancel Choir sang Christina Rossetti's "In the Bleak Midwinter" to music by Harold Darke. The pastor's sermon was, "Continuing Christmas."

Greeters for the morning were Warren and Marjorie Miller and their granddaughters Lee Ann and Tracy. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Barbara Frazer, Katherine Hansen, Sandy Ahearn, Kathryn Kelly and Marie Reister.

Next week's service will begin at 10:15 a.m. Cinnamon Toast will meet as usual at 8:30 a.m. and Sunday School at 9:15 a.m.

Horne Bloodmobile At St. John's School Jan. 6

The 10th annual William J. Horne, III, Memorial Bloodmobile will be held Tuesday, Jan. 6, 1 to 7 p.m. at St. John's School, Phipps St., Quincy Center.

Traditionally, the bloodmobile has been held during Christmas week. The date was changed this year to accommodate many donors because of the two long holiday week-ends.

The need for blood at this time of year is urgent. Appointments to donate can be made by calling 471-3866 or 848-6626.

The Horne bloodmobile was begun 10 years ago as a memorial to the late son of Marion and William Horne of Quincy who died of leukemia at the age of 23.

To Be Honored Jan. 10

Rev. Charles McEachern Retiring As First Baptist Church Pastor

Rev. Charles L. McEachern, retiring pastor of First Baptist Church of Wollaston, will be honored by church members at a dinner on Saturday, Jan. 10.

Rev. McEachern, pastor of the church since 1967, will retire Feb. 1.

Reservations for the dinner, at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall, must be made by Jan. 3. For information, call the church office at 472-0824.

Ordained in 1940, Rev. McEachern came to Wollaston after serving churches in Rhode Island, Melrose, and Springfield.

He is chaplain of Wollaston Masonic Lodge and Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Masons of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rev. McEachern is past president of the American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts, a member and past chairman of that organization's personnel committee; a director of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts-

REV. CHARLES MCEACHERN

Evanswood at Kingston; past treasurer of the American Baptist Convention Corporation and a member of the Building Committee of Senior Citizen Congregate Housing at Ocean Park, Maine.

He served as executive secretary of the Conference of Baptist Ministers of Massachusetts for 25 years and has been appointed to that position for life.

Since coming to Quincy, he has been active in the South Shore Council of Churches, serving on its Hospital Committee, and is president of the Wollaston Ministers Association.

Rev. McEachern is married to the former Ruth Wheeler. They have a married daughter, Mrs. Barbara Jean Sanger, and four granddaughters.

Invited guests at the Jan. 10 dinner include Pastor Emeritus Rev. and Mrs. Horace Tatum and Associate Pastor Rev. and Mrs. Frank Parisi.

Also invited are representatives of The American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts and the Conference of Baptist Ministers of Massachusetts, city officials and friends, neighbors and relatives of the McEacherns.

Chairman of the retirement committee is Allen G. Beardsley and W. David Chase is treasurer.

Methodist Cooperative Parish To Hold Union Service Jan. 4

The newly elected Methodist bishop of Boston will speak at a Sunday, Jan. 4, Union Service involving the city's four Methodist Churches.

The service will be held at 11 a.m. at Atlantic United Methodist Church, 50 E. Squantum St., North Quincy.

Preaching will be Bishop George W. Bashore, who began as Bishop of Boston on Sept. 1. The service will also feature music by a combined choir. Pastor Kenneth Lehman's daughter, D'Arcie, will receive the sacrament of infant baptism. A fellowship hour will follow.

The United Methodist Cooperative Parish of Quincy includes the city's four United Methodist Churches, in Adams Shore, Atlantic, Quincy Center and Wollaston.

Pastors for the combined parish are Rev. Lehman, Daniel Allen and Theodore Romberg.

Basic Aid Training certificates were recently awarded to 10 Snug Harbor School fourth graders who completed a four-week first aid course.

The course was conducted by nurses from the Curry College division of nursing. Nurses Carolyn Wetterberg and Irene Renke instructed the students in emergency safety procedures, bandaging, burn treatments and fire safety and general safety procedures. The course was designed from a first aid course developed by the American Red Cross.

Participants of the program were selected with the assistance of Snug Harbor Assistant Principal John Finnerty. Classes were held for one hour each week at the Germantown Service Center.

Also helping in the program were teaching assistants Vil Dowell and Rosemary Medeiros, Daniel Pritchard, director of the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross; the staff of the Shriners Burns Institute and the staff of the Snug Harbor School.

Certificates were awarded to Kevin O'Connor, Kevin O'Connor, William Maher, Michael Mitchell, Jennifer LaPlume, Christopher Byrne, Frank Clifford, Peter Lee Hendrickson, Denise Hirl and Joseph Anshewitz. Honorable mention certificates were awarded to Sonya Guchy, Kathy McCauley, Derek Pond, Sandra Libby and Ginny Fisher.

Quincy's basketball team is off to another great start and took a 4-0 record and its second straight Hingham Christmas Tournament championship into the Christmas tournament at Portsmouth, N.H., Monday and Tuesday nights.

Quincy will return to Suburban League competition Friday against state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin. The game, originally scheduled for Cambridge, has been moved to Boston College where the junior varsity game will start at 1 and the varsity contest at 2:30. Next Tuesday night the Presidents will host Waltham at the Vo-Tech gym.

Joe Amoroso's team had its hands full with league rival Brookline Saturday in the finals of the Hingham tournament but pulled ahead late in the third period and won, 72-57.

Brookline led by three at the half and was ahead by five midway in the third quarter.

P. J. Fay had a big night with 18 points and was named the tournament's MVP and Peter Papile had 16 points and was voted the tournament player with the most desire.

"These are our guards and gave us 34 points, which was a big plus for us," Amoroso said. "I have the best front court I've ever had and the way these two boys have been playing in the back court really helps us."

"Steve Priscella, still not at full strength, played well again with 15 points and Sean Burke, who is playing his first year of high school ball, has really been playing great ball. He showed what great hands he has in football and he scored 11 points and grabbed seven rebounds while going all the way. He is a very pleasant surprise and his height (6-5) helps us."

Amoroso also singled out Shawn Burnes and junior Jim DePietro for their performances, coming off the bench.

In the semifinals Friday night Quincy used its height advantage to roll to an early lead and wallop another league rival, Weymouth North, 74-62, while Brookline ousted host Hingham, 65-54.

Amoroso was able to use everyone in this game and his reserves came off the bench to play fine ball. The Presidents led, 23-12, after one period and 44-23 at halftime.

Weymouth went into a full-court press but it didn't do much to stop the high flying Presidents.

"I think our height advantage helped and allowed us to jump out to a big lead," Amoroso said. "We started off with a lot of fast break hoops which we don't normally do. We want to slow it down to use that size."

Burke, Kurt MacDonald and Priscella all scored 10 points for Quincy, while Burnes had eight and everyone else played well.

Sports

TOM RAND, former Quincy High standout and a freshman at Bowdoin College, received his varsity football numerals there. Rand was an offensive guard and saw considerable action.

Raiders Bow To Plymouth-Carver

North Quincy's basketball team suffered its first loss in five games Saturday night, bowing to host Plymouth-Carver, 45-43, in the finals of the Mayflower Classic, and the Raiders took a 4-1 record into Tuesday's big Suburban League game at state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

North is idle Friday and next Tuesday will play at Newton North at 3:30 in a Suburban League game.

As the score indicates, Saturday's game was a bitter defensive battle with Plymouth-Carver pulling out the win in the last 20 seconds.

North had gone ahead on Paul Gill's two foul shots with 30 seconds remaining, but the Blue Eagles, playing before their home fans, tied it and won it with 20 seconds left.

"We played well defensively," Coach Eddie Miller said. "Both teams played excellent defense and it was a good, hard-fought game."

Co-Captains Mark Millane and Gill and Paul Mallory, who sparked Friday's 52-39 win over Silver Lake in the opening round of the tournament, played well again and 6-9 junior Chip Bunker again rebounded well and had five blocked shots for the second game in a row.

Against Silver Lake Millane had 12 points and Mallory and Bob Bolster had 10 apiece as North broke the game open with 10 unanswered points in the second period to take a 24-12 lead. Gill, the team's quarterback, and Rico MacTaggart had two baskets each during that run.

North forced several Silver Lake turnovers. "We changed our defense and started trapping with some of our smaller players," Miller said. "Our kids were ready to play and I think we did a nice job tonight."

Earlier in the week North had pounded Revere, 88-53, in a non-league game, shooting 64 percent from the floor.

Millane scored 19 points and Mallory 17 to spark the rout.

Gill, MacTaggart and Wesley Paul had 10 points each as North raced to a 49-25 halftime lead and cruised to its third win in a row.

Raiders Suffer First Defeat, 6-0

North Quincy's hockey team suffered its first loss after three wins in a row as Suburban League champion Brookline topped the Raiders, 6-0, last Saturday at Watertown. North took a 3-1 record into Tuesday's home game against Weymouth North.

Friday at 5:30 the Raiders will play at Concord-Carlisle in a non-league game. Saturday will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena and next Wednesday will play Waltham at Watertown at 8 o'clock.

North stayed with the veteran Brookline team, led by Tim and Tom McMahon, for a period, trailing, 1-0, after one, but the Indians went ahead, 3-0, in the middle period and scored three goals in the final two minutes of the game.

"We are just not ready to skate with teams like Brookline, Weymouth North and Brockton yet," Coach Kevin Lewis said. "We still have a lot of boys out of action but, even at full strength, we are not ready for this type of team."

Paul O'Sullivan played an excellent game for the Raiders, but they couldn't keep up with the high-flying league champions, who are favored to repeat this year.

Earlier in the week North improved its record to 3-0, scoring two goals in the final period to edge Newton North, 4-3.

"The kids are starting to believe in themselves and we are getting good goaltending and are capitalizing on our scoring chances," Lewis said.

Danny Newcomb, who has been outstanding all year, sparked in goal in the final ten minutes after Mark Andrews had scored the winning goal for the Raiders. Moments before Robbie McHugh had scored the tying goal, finishing off a rink-length rush with a shot from the slot.

McHugh, with an assist for Tom Lester, scored North's first goal and Jim McGinness fed to Mike Cullen, who scored the Raiders' second goal.

Quincy's hockey team has been coming along well after losing its first two games and the Presidents took a 1-2-1 record into Tuesday's game at Brockton.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team will play Weymouth South Saturday at 3 p.m. at Hingham's Pilgrim Rink and next Wednesday will host Brookline at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy tied Waltham, 2-2, last Saturday with Paul Flynn scoring the tying goal midway in the third period. Kevin Craig assisting.

Quincy had taken an early 1-0 lead on Paul (Red) Furey's goal (Craig also assisted on that one), but Waltham came back to take a 2-1 lead.

Paul Sarno, starting his second game in a row, did another outstanding job in goal for the Presidents.

Earlier last week Quincy had edged Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 3-2, for its first win as Bob Silcox scored his second goal of the game in the third period for the game-winner. Flynn assisted on the winning goal, leaving the puck for Silcox, who blasted home a 22-footer.

Silcox and Furey had given Quincy a 2-0 first period lead but Cambridge battled back to tie it up with goals in the second and third periods.

Sarno had an excellent night in Quincy's goal, making 28 saves.

North Wrestlers Seek Second Against Scituate

The North Quincy wrestling team, handicapped by a small turnout, made another attempt at its second win of the season Wednesday when it met Scituate in a 10 a.m. meet at Scituate.

Next Tuesday the Raiders (1-3) will be at Brockton at 4 o'clock.

North was defeated by Weymouth North, 36-22, last week as Weymouth won eight of the 12 matches.

The Raiders' only winners were Gino Pillard by pin at 140 pounds, Jim O'Hare, 12-4 decision, at 157; Dave Hackett by pin at 157 and Steve Kallenberg by pin in the heavyweight division.

North was forced to forfeit in the 100 and 107-pound classes and Steve Sweet lost at 114 pounds, at 121. Chris Butler at 128, John Kozlowski at 134, Tom Ceurvels at 169 and Tom Morrill at 187.

Bonoli MVP Lineman For Plymouth State

North Quincy's Steve Bonoli, a

6-foot, 245-pound defensive tackle, was named the Most Valuable Defensive Lineman on the 1980 Plymouth State College football team.

Bonoli was easily the top lineman for the Panthers. He was selected to the New England Conference all-star team and was often double-teamed by opposing linemen.

Quincy Wrestlers Down Weymouth S.

Quincy's powerful wrestling team continues to make things miserable for the opposition and, following a 60-4 win over Weymouth South last week, the Presidents take a 3-0 record into Saturday's tri meet with Needham and Randolph at 10 a.m. at the Vo-Tech gym.

Quincy, untested in its first three meets, lost only one match in rolling by Weymouth South.

Quincy's Bill Marston won, 5-0, at 100 pounds; Al Costigliano won by pin at 107. Joe Madden won by pin at 114. Jerry McSharry won by pin at 121. Ed Ryan won, 13-2, at 128; Glen Oriola won by pin at 134. John Madden lost, 10-4, at 140; Al DiVincenzo won by pin at 147. John Herald won, 8-0, at 157; Mike Monahan won by default at 169. Jim Silcox won by default at 187 and heavyweight Ed Macky won by pin.

Gibbs Hat Trick Powers Luke's, 5-2

Rich Gibbs had a hat trick and assisted on another goal to spark Luke's Lounge to a 5-2 victory over Beau's Place in Executive Hockey League action at the Youth Arena.

Kevin Sullivan scored the other two goals. Jack Powers had three assists and Ralph Freeman, Ed Dwyer and Jack Craig one each. For Beau's Steve Dymont and Charlie Chambers scored the goals with each assisting on the other's goal.

Adams Sports defeated Washington Tap, 7-3, as Bob Simonelli and Kevin Glynn scored two goals apiece and Bob Donovan, Alan Gullickson and Dennis O'Connell one each. Tom Roberts had three assists, Dennis O'Connell and Donovan two apiece and Glynn and Simonelli one each.

Dayce's Place forfeited to Budget Rent-A-Car.

North Girls' Track Team Strong

The North Quincy girls' track team last winter won the Suburban League championship with a 7-0-1 record and tied for the state championship.

This year Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes have another strong team, led by their middle distance and distance runners, and last week they got off to an impressive start with a 69-17 romp over Brookline.

North will face Newton North, a league power, Jan. 2 at 10 a.m. at Northeastern University.

The hurdlers are all new with Siobhan Corrigan, a junior, joining a pair of promising freshmen, Marie McGurl and Teresa Hutchings.

Junior Kara Crehan, a junior and a state medalist last year, Mary Kate Kennedy and Deirdre Donovan make up a fine group of high jumpers.

"We have an outstanding group of distance runners, who run cross country and had an outstanding season," Tozzi said.

Sophomore Sheila Barrett is one of the best and another soph, Linda Kennedy, ran a 5:12.7 mile and an 11:26.3 two-mile last year.

North Girls Romp By Sacred Heart

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, under first-year coach Paul Bregoli, went into Tuesday's game against powerful Cambridge Rindge and Latin tied with Cambridge for first place in the Suburban League with a 3-0 record.

The Raiderettes are idle Friday and Tuesday will host Newton North at 3:30 in a league game.

North girls were only 3-13 a year ago but Bregoli, who coached the boys' jayvee team the last few years, has directed them to a 4-0 overall record following a 51-28 romp over Sacred Heart of Weymouth last Saturday in a non-league game.

Simone Koch started her first game and played well, setting up several baskets. Everyone played for the Raiderettes and the scoring was spread out with Lauren Apollo scoring seven and having 10 rebounds, Joanne Runge scoring eight, Debbie Kiley six and Tricia Meehan five.

All of the other girls, Tri-Captains Kim Alberti, Julie Watts and Ann McLaney, Janet Petkun, Michelle White, Maureen McLaney, Mary Ellen Timmins and Jackie Thayer, played well.

Earlier in the week the North girls had defeated Brockton for the first time, 37-27, to move into Senior Mary Crehan was a state medalist in the 1000 last year and seniors Deirdre Corrigan, Robyn O'Donnell, junior Erin Horrigan and sophomore Regina Nagle are other fine runners.

The middle distances are also strong with junior Deirdre Donovan running a 1:26.600 for second place in the state meet last year. Junior Nancy McCarthy was a state medalist last spring in the 400. Juniors Karen Lindenfelzer, Anne Gorczyca and Cathy Moriarty are excellent runners, as is senior Linda Morash, who is currently injured.

In the sprints Mary Kate Kennedy is one of the best around and was an all-scholastic in the 220 last spring. Karen McCarthy, a sophomore, and another soph, Mary Gannon also look good.

There are several newcomers, all freshman and sophomores, including Diane Flynn, Laura Coughlin, Mary Fitzgerald, Andrea Gelsomini, Madelyn Gianetti, Teresa Jones, Cathy Keating, Michelle Miller, Sue Orrock, twins Joane and Pauline Pappas, Monica Reilly, Lisa Reynolds, Lisa Rodophele, Janet Zdanowski and Donna Stein.

In last week's easy win over Brookline Linda Kennedy and Deirdre Corrigan placed 1-2 in the two-mile, Mary Crehan and Barrett tied for first and Nagle was third in the mile, Donovan, a top tie with Cambridge in the league.

North was never behind as Alberti hit a jumper off the opening tap to get things started. Watts added five first quarter points to keep the Raiderettes even through the first period. Watts, who was in bed with the flu before the game, dominated the inside game all day, pulled down a game-high 16 rebounds and blocked two shots.

Alberti continued her fine shooting in the second period, but it was Runge, with seven second period points who keyed a 13-3 North advantage. During the period North's defense was exceptional as it nearly shut out Brockton. Sparking the defense were Kiley, who had four steals, Thayer and Meehan. Ann McLaney, who had an outstanding game in an earlier win over Weymouth South, did a fine job spelling Watts. She also had been out with the flu before the game.

The second half was played evenly with Watts scoring six of her team's eight third quarter points. Apollo teamed up with Watts on the boards and took down 12 rebounds. Runge had 15 points and Watts 13, while Alberti added six.

--TOM SULLIVAN

Gorczyca and Moriarty swept the 1000. Nancy McCarthy and Lindenfelzer were 1-2 in the 600, Mary Kate Kennedy and Gannon were 2-3 in the 300. Karen McCarthy was second in the 50. McGurl and Siobhan Corrigan were 1-3 in the hurdles. Millane and Karen McCarthy 1-3 in the shot put, Kara Crehan, Mary Kate Kennedy and Deirdre Donovan swept the high jump and the relay team of Mary Kate Kennedy, Linda Kennedy, Mary Crehan and Barrett won.

"I want to compliment the junior high coaches, Ron Adams at Atlantic and Ralph Koelsch at Central, for their fine work, and also the Quincy Track Club, which continues to send us some outstanding athletes," Tozzi said.

Track Club Opens

Winter Season On High Note

The Quincy Track Club opened its winter season on a high note Sunday with several wins in a development meet sponsored by Brown University.

Georgia Traficante was a double winner in the 12-13 division, winning the high jump and 400.

Terri Rodgers won the 12-13 mile in her best ever time of 5:34.0 and her sister Karen won the 10-11 mile in 5:48.4, a club record.

Beth Regan, a relative newcomer to the team, ran well in her first ever mile, clocking 5:33.9 in winning the 14-15 division.

Coach Jeff Hennessy placed third in the men's open 440.

Koch Club Collects, Delivers Over 3,500 Children's Gifts

Over 3,500 items including toys, games, books and dolls have been collected by the Koch Club and are being distributed to needy children in the Quincy, South Shore and Greater Boston areas.

Richard J. Koch, Koch Club executive director, credits families, school students, organizations and individuals with the success of the project which continues to Jan. 6, Little Christmas.

Hundreds of persons joined in collecting, cleaning and delivering the toys, according to Koch.

The project started 10 years ago in response to a pre-

Christmas fire in the Boston area which left some 300 children homeless. The Koch Club responded with gifts for each child.

The following year, a Recycle for Fun project was initiated with groups and families collecting and donating good used toys. Recipients were Greater Boston organizations, churches and social agencies who distributed the gifts to children.

The local Christmas Basket Fund, in its 25th year, provided turkeys, fresh fruits and vegetables, canned foods and children's gifts to needy families referred by charitable and social service agencies.

Funds and items collected for the endeavor are through contributions by members and friends of the Koch Club.

Although economic times are difficult, people have been most generous in supporting the Christmas charity program, according to Koch.

Koch expresses thanks on behalf of those aided by the program to the employees of Otis Elevator, members of the Granite City Grange, North Quincy Catholic Women's Club and Sacred Heart Sodality.

Also helping with the program were students of the Massachusetts Fields School, Francis W. Parker School, Central Junior High School, Broad Meadows Junior High School, Sacred Heart School, North Quincy, and Woodward School for Girls.

Koch also thanks the families and individuals who have quietly and anonymously visited his home each Christmas season bringing children's toys.

WEEK OF JANUARY 1

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

Subtle changes have been happening around you and now you feel their effects. Love question is answered by Sunday but financial puzzlement remains cloudy.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

You can get backing now that helps you proceed with important program. Travel proves more profitable than fun. Personality conflict may peak by Monday.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

Focus is on property dealings, second opinion from respected relative may prove wise. Could be startled to meet someone—male or female—who's remarkably like yourself.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

New challenges come with new year, but don't tackle more than you can handle. Several friends fight for your affections; you'll have to put at least one on hold.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

Bargaining position improves this week, especially helpful if looking for job or promotion. An important revelation stuns you; for once you're at a loss for words!

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Charisma helps you over more than one hurdle this week. An advancing relationship comes to temporary halt. Situation involving shared finances improves noticeably.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Research is favored all week and you can uncover some significant facts. Best times are those spent with members of opposite sex—of any age bracket.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

You're in mood to start fresh, but be careful before tossing out any documents. Be careful, too, about avoiding friends who may be supersensitive right now.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Partnership plans are favored through this period. The accent is also on communication, calls and letters carry more importance than usual. Check tendency to overindulge on weekend.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Congratulations come your way this week, for accomplishments old and new. Household expenses may prove higher than anticipated. Loved one is due for promotion.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

Hostile people should be avoided, not capoled. Observant friend can help you solve sticky problem now. Patience brings results through weekend.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

You can be real lighter now, battling for all your beliefs. Compromise may be unavoidable Friday-Saturday, but you still emerge a champion.

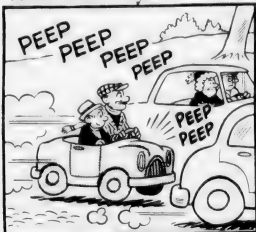

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You work harder than most others for what you want, and what you desire most of all is material security. This year the accent is on emotional security—you can gain quite a chunk of it if you learn to be less timid.

BORN THIS WEEK

January 1st, bandleader Xavier Cugat; 2nd, hero General Wolfe; 3rd, actor Ray Milland; 4th, actress Dyan Cannon; 5th, actor Jean-Pierre Aumont; 6th, actress Bonnie Franklin; 7th, actress Butterfly McQueen.

Instead Of New Bills

Smooth Out Existing Financial, Housing Laws, Lawrence Urges Congress

For Americans buying homes and lenders making home loans, the 1981 Congressional session should involve more "clean-up, paint-up, and fix-up" of old laws rather than building of new ones, an area financial leader said today.

"I hope Congress will spend time smoothing out the rough spots in existing financial and housing laws rather than trying to enact new bills," Philip J. Lawrence, President of Colonial Federal Savings said.

"For example," he said, "I hope this Congress will make permanent -- and increase -- the temporary tax break for savers approved in 1980." That tax break allows Americans to deduct $200 in savings account interest and dividends ($400 on a joint return) for 1981 and 1982 -- but a termination date will deny the opportunity thereafter.

"Savings should not be a temporarily-supported idea and we ought to provide more incentive for thrift than just $200," Lawrence said.

Lawrence has been named today to the 1981 Legislative Committee of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, trade group for the nation's 4,400 savings and loan associations. They make the bulk of home mortgage loans in this country.

When the Committee meets in March, Lawrence said, debate will center on the tax incentive and such other "improvement legislation" as:

- Putting a fence around the super-regulators of banks and savings and loans, the Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee (DIDC). "This group," he said, "has been wandering well beyond the bounds Congress established in creating it. If not checked, they can well destroy the system that has made America one of the best-housed countries in the world."

• Almost certain to be supported by savings group is the idea of 100% account insurance for governmental deposits. At present these public funds have the same $100,000 coverage as other savings.

Lawrence said "there is no question" that the savings and loan associations will vote to oppose amalgamation of the various Federal banking and savings and loan regulatory agencies.

"Savings and loan associations have been, are, and will continue to be, the main source of funds for home ownership, he said, "and as a result have very specialized operations that permit preservation of an independent Federal Home Loan Bank Board and Federal Home Loan Bank System designed especially for the credit needs of home finance."

Like other American businesses, savings and loan associations have been drowning in red tape, Lawrence said the Legislative Committee "undoubtedly" also would support changes in laws designed to cut back on duplicative regulations.

Christmas Decorating Contest Held At Weymouth Savings Bank

Weymouth Savings Bank's East Braintree Banking Center: Honoria Carroll, North Weymouth branch; Elaine Litwinczuk, Hunt St. branch; Hank Bush, main office; Virginia Moore, The Quincy Sun; Herb Clifford and Cathy Conley, Weymouth News; Charlie Knowles, Braintree Star. Scoring

Judges visited each office and scored them on originality, portraying the spirit of Christmas, creativity (giving consideration to hand-made decorations) and overall appearance.

Judges were Susan Butler from the East Braintree Banking Center: Honoria Carroll, North Weymouth branch; Elaine Litwinczuk, Hunt St. branch; Hank Bush, main office; Virginia Moore, The Quincy Sun; Herb Clifford and Cathy Conley, Weymouth News; Charlie Knowles, Braintree Star. Scoring was very close among the four branches.

"We have started another tradition at Weymouth Savings Bank," said bank president George Thompson, who added that all employees joined in the spirit of the contest.

Zoning Changes Sought To Aid City Developers

The Planning Board will hold two public hearings Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 7:30 p.m. and at 7:45 p.m. on proposed zoning changes that would make it easier for developers to work in Quincy.

One of them would establish a new category of district, "Business C-1, Downtown Business" for Quincy Center and exempt it from parking regulations that apply to Business C.

It would bypass the Business C requirement that developers or office users must provide their own parking for their employees, and permit them to lease space for workers' cars.

Planning Director James Lydon said the zoning change grew out of experiences with the Center Plaza Office Building, which technically violates the zoning ordinances by using leased parking.

"If we are to be competitive with places like Braintree for development," said Lydon, "we are going to have to provide public or leased parking spaces for developers."

The second proposed change in the zoning laws would permit construction of a hotel or a motel on land that is zoned for Industry A, or light industry. It's now banned.

"Most of the high tech industrial parks that you see in places like Norwell and Avon have hotels and restaurants nearby," said Lydon.

"It's almost a necessity now."

Lydon said there are two developable parcels of land in Quincy that could become industrial parks -- the Old Colony Crushed Stone land in West Quincy and Boston Harbor Marina in Squantum.

Morrissey Asks For One More Squantum Bus

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has asked the MBTA to compromise in its planned cutback and make one more bus run to Squantum after 6 p.m.

As it stands now, the last bus to Squantum will leave the Quincy Center station at 5:50 p.m., North Quincy station at 6 p.m. and arrive in Squantum at 6:10 p.m.

Morrissey said he asked the MBTA to study the feasibility of sending the bus back to the North Quincy station for one more Squantum run before going to the barn.

"This would enable a lot of commuters whose trains arrive shortly after 6 p.m. to have a bus to take them home," he said.

Tax Forms In The Mail

Quincy residents are now receiving 1980 income tax packages from the Internal Revenue Service, Boston Postmaster Philip L. Sullivan announces.

Sullivan noted that while the packages travel as third-class mail, "They are forwarded without charge to the recipient if such service is necessary." The Postal Service will recover any forwarding charges from the Internal Revenue Service through a prearranged agreement. The tax forms are delivered to some 86 million households across the country, the postmaster said.

Selective Service Registration Aid Offered

The next Selective Service Registration will take place during the week beginning Jan. 5.

Do you know what your choices are? If you want help regarding registration and the draft, call the Draft Legal Information Center at 542-0919 between 12 and 8 p.m.

A staffed hot-line, referrals to counsellors and lawyers, and legal first-aid are offered.

Bar Association To Hear Judge Brogna

The Quincy Bar Association will hold its monthly meeting Jan. 12 Mr. Kelly's Restaurant, Quincy Point.

Guest speakers will be Gilbert Nelson, an expert in analysis of vehicle collisions, and the Judge Vincent R. Brogna, associate justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court.

A social hour will be held at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Reservations should be made with Bar Association Secretary Louis Bertucci by Jan. 5.
